PUBLISHERS' NOTE

THE circumstances in which the present edition of "Lumley's Public Health" is produced and the difficulties arising out of those circumstances, have been explained in the Prefaces to former volumes. Since, through the war, the final labours of the Consolidation Committee appear to be indefinitely postponed, it becomes necessary to complete this edition by the inclusion of all remaining subject-matter in the form in which the Committee's previous labours have left it.

There does not appear to be any very obvious possible arrangement of this remaining subject-matter other than chronological. This has accordingly been adopted and, since it forms too large a bulk to be contained in a single closing volume, it has been divided into two of which this is the first and the second will soon be available.

The piecemeal arrangement of this edition has been forced upon us by circumstances and must not be taken to represent any idea of a satisfactory arrangement of Lumley. It is hoped that, after the war and after completion of the series of consolidating statutes, it will be possible to produce an edition which will be more logically arranged and more closely dovetailed. It is intended to publish a consolidated index to the whole of the five volumes when the work is completed.

Two final remarks need to be made in this Note. The first is that all temporary war legislation has been excluded, this following the precedent of the edition of Lumley produced at the end of the last war. The second that, as in the past, we shall welcome any corrections or suggestions from subscribers either as regards the present volume or as regards the whole work.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH ACTS.

THE GAME ACT, 1831.

(1 & 2 WILL. 4, c. 32) (a).

An Act to amend the Laws in England (b) relative to Game.

* * * * *

2. The word "game" shall for all the purposes of this Act be deemed to include hares, pheasants, partridges, grouse, heath or moor game, black game, and bustards (c).

Definition of "game" under

(a) See the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 27, 32, post, pp. 4911, 4912.

(b) All the clauses and provisions of this Act and of 2 & 3 Vict. c. 35 (repealed by the Revenue Act, 1860, s. 39), relating to the granting of licences by justices to deal in game, and to the holding of special sessions for the purpose of granting such licences, and also all the clauses, provisions, and penalties contained in the said Acts or either of them relating to dealers in game and to the selling of game, either by or to such dealers or others, are extended to the whole of the United Kingdom by the Game Licences Act, 1860, s. 13; 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1089.

(c) Note that deer, rabbits, quail, landrail, woodcock, snipe, geese, duck, pigeon, and plover are not included in this definition.

4. If any person licensed to deal in game by virtue of this Act as hereinafter mentioned shall buy or sell, or knowingly have in his house, shop, stall, possession, or control, any bird of game (a) after the expiration of ten days (one inclusive and the other exclusive) from the respective days in each year on which it shall become unlawful to kill or take such birds of game respectively as aforesaid; or if any person not being licensed to deal in game by virtue of this Act as hereinafter mentioned, shall buy or sell any bird of game after the expiration of ten days (one inclusive and the other exclusive) from the respective days in each year on which it shall become unlawful to kill or take such birds of game respectively as aforesaid, or shall knowingly have in his house, possession, or control any bird of game (except birds of game kept in a mew or breeding place) after the expiration of forty days (one inclusive and the other exclusive) from the respective days in each year on which it shall become unlawful to kill or take such birds of game respectively as aforesaid; every such person shall, on conviction of any such offence before two justices of the peace, forfeit and pay for every head of game so bought or sold, or found in his house, shop, possession, or control, such sum of money, not exceeding one pound, as to the convicting justices shall seem meet, together with the costs of the conviction (b).

(a) Alive or dead (Loom v. Bailly (1860), 3 E. & E. 444; 25 J. P. 55; 25 Digest 348, 5). Under an earlier Act which contained no provision as to the ten days' grace, it was held that it was not an offence for a qualified person to have in his possession nine days after the commencement of the close season birds killed before its commencement

Note to
Section 4.

(Simpson v. Urwin (1832), 3 B. & Ad. 134; 25 Digest 390, 405). It makes no difference whether the bird is tame or wild (Harnett v. Miles (1884), 48 J. P. 455; 25 Digest 348, 7). But now by s. 10 of the Revenue Act, 1911, "so much of s. 4 of the Game Act, 1831, as makes it an offence for any person to buy or sell, or have in his house, possession, or control game birds after the dates therein specified shall not apply where the game is live game, and the person buying, selling, or having in his house, possession, or control the game, is keeping or intending to keep the game solely for the purpose of breeding or for sale alive, and either is licensed at the time to deal in game, or is a holder of a certificate or licence to kill game in force at the time. The amendments made by this section shall have effect in the Game Act, 1831, as applied by any subsequent enactment, as well as in that Act as originally enacted." This provision relieved game breeders from a difficulty: if they were licensed to sell game, they could not lawfully keep their stock during the close season (s. 4); if they were not licensed, purchases from them were illegal: see Cook v. Trevener, [1911] 1 K. B. 9; 74 J. P. 469; 25 Digest 348, 6. See also M'Lean v. Johnston, [1913] S. C. (J.) 1. Game killed abroad is not within the section (Guyer v. R. (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 100; 53 J. P. 436; 25 Digest 390, 404). See, however, the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1893, s. 2, under which licences are required for dealing in imported game.

(b) As to forfeiture of the licence, see s. 22, post, p. 4103.

Justices to hold a special session yearly for granting licences to persons to deal in game.

18. The justices of the peace of every county, riding, division, liberty, franchise, city, or town (a) shall hold a special session in the division or district for which they usually act, and in every year in the month of July (b), for the purpose of granting licences to deal in game, of the holding of which session seven days notice shall be given to each of the justices acting for such division or district; and the majority of the justices assembled at such session, or at some adjournment thereof, not being less than two, are hereby authorised (if they shall think fit) to grant under their hands to any person being a householder or keeper of a shop or stall within such division or district and not being an innkeeper (c) or victualler, or licensed to sell beer by retail (d), nor being the owner, guard, or driver of any mail coach or other vehicle employed in the conveyance of the mails of letters, or of any stage coach, stage waggon, van, or other public conveyance, nor being a carrier or higgler, nor being in the employment of any of the above-mentioned persons, a licence (e) according to the form in the Schedule (A.) annexed to this Act, empowering the person to whom such licence shall be so granted to buy game at any place from any person who may lawfully sell game by virtue of this Act, and also to sell the same at one house, shop, or stall only, kept by him; provided that every person, while so licensed to deal in game as aforesaid, shall affix to some part of the outside of the front of his house, shop, or stall, and shall there keep a board having thereon in clear and legible characters, his Christian name and surname, together with the following words (that is to say), "Licensed to deal in game"; and every such licence granted in any succeeding year shall continue in force for the period of one year next after the granting thereof.

(a) The powers, duties, and liabilities of justices under this section are now transferred to district and county borough councils by ss. 27, 32 of the L. G. A., 1894, post, pp. 4911, 4912.

(b) By 2 & 3 Vict. c. 35, s. 4, after reciting this enactment, and that it is expedient that justices should be empowered to hold a special session for the purpose of granting these licences not only in July but also at any subsequent period of the year, it is enacted that from and after the passing of this Act it shall be lawful for the said justices of the peace to hold in their respective divisions or districts a special session for the purpose of granting licences to deal in game, not only in the month of July, but also at any time and from time to time as often as they shall think fit after the said month of July in every year; and it shall also be lawful for the majority of the said justices (not being less than two) assembled at any such session or at any adjournment thereof, to grant licences to deal in game, in the manner directed by the said last-recited Act, and under and subject to the provisions and regulations thereof: Provided always, that of the holding of any such special session seven days' notice shall be given to each of the justices acting for the division or district in which such session is intended to be held: Provided also, that every licence to deal in game, at whatever time the same hath been or shall be granted, shall continue in force from the granting thereof until the first day of July then next following, and no longer, anything in the said last-recited Act or in such licence to the contrary notwithstanding.

Although the whole of the above Act, 2 & 3 Vict. c. 35, was repealed by the Revenue Act, 1869, s. 39, it is considered that the foregoing section remains in force by virtue of s. 13 of the Game Licences Act, 1860, cited, ante, p. 4101.

(c) Although an innkeeper may not be a licensed dealer in game, yet under s. 26 of this Act an innkeeper or tavern keeper may without this licence sell game for consumption in his own house, if he has procured it from a licensed dealer.

(d) Including the holder of an additional licence to sell beer under s. 1 of the Revenue Act, 1863 (Shoolbred v. St. Pancras JJ. (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 346; 54 J. P. 231; 25 Digest 389, 401); but such licences are no longer granted. A question has been raised, but not decided, whether a person being the owner of several establishments in different districts and holding a licence to sell beer in one of them can hold a licence to sell game in one or more of the other establishments. See R. v. Bird (1898), 62 J. P. 309; 25 Digest 389, 402.

(e) An adapted form of licence is given in Warry's Game Laws, 1896 ed., at p. 203. The licence must specify the particular house, shop, or stall at which the game is to be sold. Until this is done the excise licence required by s. 14 of the Game Licences Act, 1860, as amended by s. 17 of the Revenue (No. 2) Act, 1861, cannot be granted. A game dealer's licence is personal and cannot be transferred. There is no provision for the case of a licensed person dying during the year his licence is current. It would seem that the personal representative carrying on the business should apply for a fresh licence.

Note to Section 18.

21. Provided always, that persons being in partnership, and carrying on their business at one house, shop, or stall only, shall not be obliged by virtue of this Act to take out more than one licence in any one year to authorise them to deal in game at such house, shop or stall.

22. If any person licensed by virtue of this Act to deal in game shall during the period of such licence be convicted of any offence whatever against this Act, such licence shall thereupon become null and void (a).

Licences to become void on any conviction
under this Act.

(a) There is no prohibition against an application by a convicted person for another licence. As to offences, see ss. 4, 28.

28. If any person, being licensed to deal in game according to this Act, shall buy or obtain any game from any person not authorised to sell game for want of a game certificate, or for want of a licence to deal in game (a); or if any person, being licensed to deal in game according to this Act, shall sell or offer for sale any game at his house, shop, or stall, without such board as aforesaid being affixed to some part of the outside of the front of such house, shop, or stall at the time of such selling or offering for sale, or shall affix or cause to be affixed such board to more than one house, shop, or stall, or shall sell any game at any place other than his house, shop, or stall where such board shall have been affixed; or if any person, not being licensed to deal in game according to this Act, shall assume, or pretend, by affixing such board as aforesaid, or by exhibiting any certificate, or by any other device or pretence, to be a person licensed to deal in game; every such offender, being convicted thereof before two justices of the peace, shall forfeit and pay such sum of money, not exceeding ten pounds, as to the said justices shall seem meet, together with the costs of the conviction.

(a) It makes no difference whether he knew or not, when he purchased the game, that the seller was unlicensed (R. v. Muirhead (1887), 51 J. P. 760).

29. Provided always, that the buying and selling of game by any person or persons employed on the behalf of any licensed dealer in game, and acting in the usual course of his employment, and upon the premises where such dealing is carried on, shall be deemed to be a lawful buying and selling in

THE LANDS CLAUSES CONSOLIDATION ACT, 1845.

(8 & 9 VICT. c. 18) (a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain Provisions usually inserted in Acts authorising the taking of Lands for Undertakings of a public nature.

[8th May 1845.]

Act to apply to all undertakings authorised by Acts hereafter to be passed.

[1.] This Act shall apply to every undertaking authorised by any Act which shall hereafter (b) be passed, and which shall authorise the purchase or taking of lands for such undertaking, and this Act shall be incorporated with such Act; and all the clauses and provisions of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by any such Act, shall apply to the undertaking authorised thereby, so far as the same shall be applicable to such undertaking, and shall, as well as the clauses and provisions of every other Act which shall be incorporated with such Act, form part of such Act, and be construed together therewith as forming one Act (c).

(a) This Act is incorporated with the L. G. A., 1933, ss. 160, 161, Sched. VI., ante, pp. 978, 985, 1263, except as therein mentioned. It is also incorporated with other Acts included in this work, e.g., the Water Supplies (Exceptional Shortage Orders) Act, 1934,

Note to
Section 1.

Vol. V., post, and the County Courts Act, 1934, s. 34 (2); 27 Halsbury's Statutes 107. It is amended by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106; 46 & 47 Vict. c. 15; 58 & 59 Vict. c. 11, post, pp. 4252, 4664, 4938. It should be noticed, however, that in the application of the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts in some cases, these provisions have been largely modified by recent legislation. The Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1908, s. 39, post, p. 5075, incorporates the Lands Clauses Acts with reference to the compulsory acquisition of land subject to the modifications contained in Sched. I. to that Act. A similar provision is contained in a large number of modern Acts, including the Public Works Facilities Act, 1930, ss. 2, 8 (4), Vol. V., post, continued to December 31, 1943, by the Expiring Laws Continuance Act, 1942; the L. G. A., 1933, ss. 160, 161, Sched. VI., ante, pp. 984, 985, 1263; the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931, s. 3, Sched. I.; 24 Halsbury's Statutes 52, 66; the Special Areas (Development and Improvement) Act, 1934, s. 4, Sched. III.; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 829, 834; the Housing Act, 1936, Sched. I., ante, p. 1773. See also the Defence of the Realm (Acquisition of Land) Act, 1916, post, p. 5157, and the Land Settlement (Facilities) Act, 1919, post, p. 5222. And reference must be made to the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5215, which provides generally for the procedure as to the assessment of compensation in respect of land acquired compulsorily for public purposes, and largely supersedes the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts in cases to which it applies.

(b) See, as to a corporation incorporated before 1845, but empowered to take lands under later Acts, In re Mills' Estate (1887), 34 Ch. D. 24; 51 J. P. 151; 11 Digest 254, 1597. A private charity incorporated by charter is not an undertaking of a public nature within the meaning of this Act (Re Sion College (1887), 57 L. T. 743; 11 Digest 105, 24).

(c) The preamble and part of s. 1 were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1891.

And with respect to the construction of this Act and of Acts to be incorporated therewith, be it enacted as follows: Interpretation.

2. The expression "the special Act," used in this Act, shall be construed "Special Act." to mean any Act which shall be hereafter passed which shall authorise the taking of lands for the undertaking to which the same relates, and with which this Act shall be so incorporated as aforesaid; and the word "prescribed" "Prescribed." used in this Act, in reference to any matter herein stated, shall be construed to refer to such matter as the same shall be prescribed or provided for in the special Act, and the sentence in which such word shall occur shall be construed as if instead of the word "prescribed" the expression "prescribed for that purpose in the special Act" had been used; and the expression "the works" or "the undertaking" shall mean the works or undertaking, "The works." of whatever nature, which shall by the special Act be authorised to be executed; and the expression "the promoters of the undertaking" shall "Promoters of the undertaking." mean the parties, whether company, undertakers, commissioners, trustees, corporations, or private persons, by the special Act empowered to execute such works or undertaking (a).

(a) As to the meaning of these expressions when read as incorporated with the L. G. A., 1933, see ss. 160 (8), 161 (5) of that Act, ante, pp. 985, 987.

3. The following words and expressions, both in this and the special Act, shall have the several meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something either in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say,) Interpretations in this and the special Act.

Words importing the singular number only shall include the plural number, Number.
and words importing the plural number only shall include the singular number:

Words importing the masculine gender only shall include females: Gender.
The word "lands" shall extend to messuages, lands, tenements, and "Lands." hereditaments of any tenure (a):

The word "lease" shall include an agreement for a lease: "Lease."
The word "month" shall mean calendar month: "Month."

The expression "superior courts" shall mean her Majesty's superior "Superior courts." courts of record at Westminster . . . (b):

- Section 3. The word "oath" shall include affirmation in the case of Quakers, or other declaration lawfully substituted for an oath in the case of any other persons exempted by law from the necessity of taking an oath:
- "Oath."
- "County." The word "county" shall include any riding or other like division of a county and shall also include county of a city or county of a town:
- "Sheriff." The word "sheriff" shall include under sheriff, or other legally competent deputy; and where any matter in relation to any lands is required to be done by any sheriff, or by any clerk of the peace, the expression "the sheriff," or the expression "the clerk of the peace," shall in such case be construed to mean the sheriff or the clerk of the peace of the county, city, borough, liberty, cinque port, or place where such lands shall be situate; and if the lands in question, being the property of one and the same party, be situate not wholly in one county, city, borough, liberty, cinque port, or place, the same expression shall be construed to mean the sheriff or clerk of the peace of any county, city, borough, liberty, cinque port, or place where any part of such lands shall be situate:
- "Clerk of the peace."
- "Justices." The word "justices" shall mean justices of the peace acting for the county, city, liberty, cinque port, or place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any such justice shall arise, and who shall not be interested in the matter; and where such matter shall arise in respect of lands, being the property of one and the same party, situate not wholly in any one county, city, borough, liberty, cinque port, or place, the same shall mean a justice acting for the county, city, borough, liberty, cinque port, or place where any part of such lands shall be situate, and who shall not be interested in such matter; and where any matter shall be authorised or required to be done by two justices, the expression "two justices" shall be understood to mean two justices assembled and acting together:
- "Two justices."
- Where under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, any notice shall be required to be given to the owner of any lands, or where any act shall be authorised or required to be done with the consent of any such owner, the word "owner" shall be understood to mean any person or corporation who, under the provisions of this or the special Act, would be enabled to sell and convey lands to the promoters of the undertaking (c):
- "Owner."
- "The Bank." The expression "the Bank" shall mean the Bank of England where the same shall relate to moneys to be paid or deposited in respect of lands situate in England . . . (b):

(a) It seems to be doubtful whether the definition includes incorporeal hereditaments, such as easements. See G. W. Rail. Co. v. Swindon, etc. Rail. Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 787; 48 J. P. 921; 11 Digest 106, 36; and per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J., in Re City and South London Railway and St. Mary Woolnoth, [1903] 2 K. B. at p. 737; 67 J. P. 221; affd., [1905] A. C. 1; 69 J. P. 101; 11 Digest 125, 159. The definition of "land" in the Law of Property Act, 1925, the Settled Land Act, 1925, and other later Acts, is much wider than the definition in the text and this fact should be borne in mind when construing the provisions of those Acts referred to in the notes to this Act.

(b) Words relating to Ireland only are omitted here.

(c) This definition includes mortgagees of land who have a power of sale. See Martin v. L. C. & D. Ry. (1866), 1 Ch. App. 501; 11 Digest 274, 2019; R. v. Middlesex (Clerk of the Peace), [1914] 3 K. B. 259; 79 J. P. 7. The extended powers of sale conferred by the Settled Land Act, 1925, should be borne in mind in connection with this definition.

Short title of the Act.

4. In citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament and in legal instruments it shall be sufficient to use the expression "The Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845" (a).

(a) The expression "Lands Clauses Acts" is sanctioned by the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 23.

5. And whereas it may be convenient in some cases to incorporate with Acts of Parliament hereafter to be passed some portion only of the provisions of this Act: Be it therefore enacted, that for the purpose of making any such incorporation it shall be sufficient in any such Act to enact that the clauses of this Act with respect to the matter so proposed to be incorporated (describing such matter as it is described in this Act in the words introductory to the enactment with respect to such matter), shall be incorporated with such Act, and thereupon all the clauses and provisions of this Act with respect to the matter so incorporated shall, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by such Act, form part of such Act, and such Act shall be construed as if the substance of such clauses and provisions were set forth therein with reference to the matter to which such Act shall relate.

Section 5.

Form in which portions of this Act may be incorporated with other Acts.

And with respect to the purchase of lands by agreement, be it enacted as follows:

Purchase of lands by agreement.

6. Subject to the provisions of this and the special Act it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to agree with the owners of any lands by the special Act authorised to be taken, and which shall be required for the purposes of such Act, and with all parties having any estate or interest in such lands, or by this or the special Act enabled to sell and convey the same, for the absolute purchase, for a consideration in money, of any such lands, or such parts thereof as they shall think proper, and of all estates and interests in such lands of what kind soever (a).

Power to purchase lands by agreement.

(a) See Errington v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co. (1882), 19 Ch. D. 559; 11 Digest 107, 39. A person having a mere possessory title, good against every one but the lawful owner and in course of becoming absolute as against him, has a prima facie right to compensation (Perry v. Glissold, [1907] A. C. 73; 11 Digest 123, n).

The promoters cannot bind themselves not to use their statutory powers in respect of any portion of the lands taken, even though the owner agrees to accept a smaller sum by way of compensation in consideration of a restriction in the conveyance on the user of the lands (Ayr Harbour Trustees v. Oswald (1883), 8 App. Cas. 623; 11 Digest 103, 4; Re S. E. Rail. Co. and Wiffin's Contract, [1907] 2 Ch. 366; 40 Digest 310, 2653). And see Stourcliffe Estates Co., Ltd. v. Bournemouth Corporation, [1910] 2 Ch. 12; 74 J. P. 289; 11 Digest 120, 131. See, however, a special power of this nature in relation to improvement lines given by P. H. A., 1925, s. 33 (7); Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1129.

7 (a). It shall be lawful for all parties, being seised, possessed of, or entitled to any such lands, or any estate or interest therein, to sell and convey or release the same to the promoters of the undertaking, and to enter into all necessary agreements for that purpose; and particularly it shall be lawful for all or any of the following parties so seised, possessed, or entitled as aforesaid so to sell, convey, or release; (that is to say,) all corporations, tenants in tail (b) or for life, married women seised in their own right (c) or entitled to dower, guardians, committees of lunatics and idiots (d), trustees or feoffees in trust for charitable or other purposes, executors and administrators (e), and all parties for the time being entitled to the receipt of the rents and profits of any such lands in possession or subject to any estate in dower, or to any lease for life, or for lives and years, or for years, or any less interest; and the power so to sell and convey or release as aforesaid may lawfully be exercised by all such parties, other than married women entitled to dower, or lessees for life, or for lives and years, or for years, or for any less interest, not only on behalf of themselves and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, and successors, but also for and on behalf of every person entitled in reversion, remainder, or expectancy after them, or in defeasance of the estates of such parties, and as to such married women, whether they be Parties under disability enabled to sell and convey.

Section 7. of full age or not, as if they were sole and of full age, and as to such guardians, on behalf of their wards, and as to such committees, on behalf of the lunatics and idiots of whom they are the committees respectively, and that to the same extent as such wives, wards, lunatics and idiots respectively could have exercised the same power under the authority of this or the special Act if they had respectively been under no disability, and as to such trustees, executors, and administrators, on behalf of their cestui que trusts, whether infants, issue unborn, lunatics, femmes covert, or other persons, and that to the same extent as such cestui que trusts respectively could have exercised the same powers under the authority of this and the special Act if they had respectively been under no disability.

(a) This section is to take effect as if the references to the disabilities which were removed by the Law of Property Act, 1922 (see now the Settled Land Act, 1925 (15 Geo. 5, c. 18)), had been omitted (15 Geo. 5, c. 5, Sched. IX. 2). Under the Settled Land Act a tenant for life (ss. 38, 39 (5) and 58), a tenant in tail in possession (s. 20 (1) (i)), a married woman (s. 20 (1) (x) and s. 25) and trustees for charitable, ecclesiastical or public trusts or purposes (s. 29) are given powers of sale. The powers of dealing with settled property and of property subject to equitable interests is outside the scope of this work and is too involved a subject to permit of being effectively dealt with in a note. Reference should, therefore, be made to one of the standard works on the Law of Property Act, 1925, the Settled Land Act, 1925, and the Administration of Estates Act, 1925.

(b) Even if the estate tail is inalienable; but this statute does not extend to the Crown (In re Cuckfield Burial Board (1854), 19 Beav. 153).

(c) The trustees of land for married women, who are absolutely entitled for their separate use, cannot contract to sell under this section (Peters v. Lewes and East Grinstead Rail. Co. (1881), 18 Ch. D. 429; 11 Digest 164, 418).

(d) Note that only the committee, not the lunatic, can sell. See Re Tugwell (1884), 27 Ch. D. 309; 20 Digest 361, 989.

(e) This means executors and administrators who are seised, possessed of, or entitled to land or any estate or interest therein, and not executors or administrators who have only a power of sale (Re Barrow-in-Furness Corporation and Rawlinson's Contract, [1903] 1 Ch. 339; 24 Digest 611, 6416). See also the Administration of Estates Act, 1925.

Parties under disability to exercise other powers.

8. The power hereinafter given to enfranchise copyhold lands (a), as well as every other power required to be exercised by the lord of any manor pursuant to the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, and the power to release lands from any rent, charge, or incumbrance, and to agree for the apportionment of any such rent, charge, or incumbrance, shall extend to and may lawfully be exercised by every party hereinbefore enabled to sell and convey or release lands to the promoters of the undertaking.

(a) All copyhold lands are enfranchised by the Law of Property Act, 1922.

Amount of compensation in case of parties under disability to be ascertained by valuation, and paid into the Bank.

9. The purchase money or compensation to be paid for any lands to be purchased or taken from any party under any disability or incapacity, and not having power to sell or convey such lands except under the provisions of this or the special Act, and the compensation to be paid for any permanent damage or injury to any such lands, shall not, except where the same shall have been determined by the verdict of a jury, or by arbitration, or by the valuation of a surveyor appointed by two justices under the provision herein-after contained, be less than shall be determined by the valuation of two able practical surveyors, one of whom shall be nominated by the promoters of the undertaking, and the other by the other party (a), and if such two surveyors cannot agree in the valuation, then by such third surveyor as any two justices shall, upon application of either party, after notice to the other party, for that purpose nominate; and each of such two surveyors, if they agree, or if not, then the surveyor nominated by the said justices, shall annex to the valuation a declaration in writing subscribed by them or him, of the correctness thereof; and all such purchase money or compensation shall be deposited in the Bank for the benefit of the parties interested, in manner hereinafter mentioned (b).

Section 9.

(a) The surveyor must not be the party himself (Peters v. Lewes, etc. Rail. Co., ante, p. 4108).

(b) See s. 69, post, p. 4127. The declaration in writing is necessary before a claim can be made for specific performance (Bridgend Gas and Water Co. v. Dunraven (1885), 31 Ch. D. 219). See note (a) to s. 7, ante, p. 4108. "Where a purchaser has power to acquire land compulsorily and a contract, whether by virtue of a notice to treat or otherwise is subsisting under which title can be made without payment of the compensation money into court, title shall be made in that way unless the purchaser, to avoid expense or delay or for any special reason, considers it expedient that the money should be paid into court" (s. 42 (7), Law of Property Act, 1925 (15 Geo. 5, c. 20)).

10. It shall be lawful for any person seised in fee of or entitled to dispose of absolutely for his own benefit any lands authorised to be purchased for the purposes of the special Act to sell and convey such lands or any part thereof unto the promoters of the undertaking in consideration of an annual rentcharge payable by the promoters of the undertaking, but, except as aforesaid, the consideration to be paid for the purchase of any such lands, or for any damage done thereto, shall be in a gross sum (a).

Where vendor absolutely entitled, lands may be sold on chief rents.

(a) So much of this section as provides that, save in the case of lands of which any person is seised in fee, or entitled to dispose absolutely for his own benefit, the consideration to be paid for any lands or for any damage done thereto shall be in a gross sum, was repealed by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106, s. 1. The power to sell for an annual rentcharge provided by this section is extended by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106, s. 2, post, to parties under disability. The amount of the rentcharge is under s. 4 of that Act to be settled in manner directed by s. 9, supra. The Law of Property Act, 1922, 12 & 13 Geo. 5, c. 16, s. 39, provided that the power conferred by s. 10 to sell and convey land in consideration of an annual rentcharge shall extend to a tenant for life in like manner in all respects as if he had been entitled to dispose of the settled land absolutely for his own benefit, and accordingly, s. 4 of the Lands Clauses Act, 1860, shall not apply to such a sale. That section is, however, repealed by the Settled Land Act, 1925 (15 Geo. 5, c. 18), which does not contain an identical provision though the same effect results from the combined operation of ss. 38 and 39, ibid., and s. 9 and Sched. IX. of the Law of Property (Amendment) Act, 1924 (15 Geo. 5, c. 5). See also note (a) to s. 7, ante, p. 4108. On a contract of sale for a yearly rentcharge, under which the undertakers have entered, the vendor has no lien for arrears of the rentcharge (Earl of Jersey v. Briton Ferry Floating Dock Co. (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 409; 32 Digest 296, 709).

11. The yearly rents reserved by any such conveyance shall be charged on the tolls or rates, if any, payable under the special Act, and shall be otherwise secured in such manner as shall be agreed between the parties (a), and shall be paid by the promoters of the undertaking as such rents become payable; and if at any time such rents be not paid within thirty days after they so become payable, and after demand thereof in writing, the person to whom any such rent shall be payable may either recover the same from the promoters of the undertaking, with costs of suit, by action of debt in any of the superior courts, or it shall be lawful for him to levy the same by distress of the goods and chattels of the promoters of the undertaking (b).

Payment of rents to be charged on tolls.

(a) E.g., by a power of entry (Forster v. Manchester and Milford Rail. Co. (1880), 49 L. J. Ch. 454; 39 Digest 55, 675).

(b) The power given by this section is extended by 23 & 24 Vict. c. 106, s. 2, post, to persons under a disability. As to the removal of certain classes of persons from this category, see note (a) to s. 7, ante, p. 4108. The holder of a rentcharge may be allowed leave to distrain, notwithstanding the appointment of a receiver (Eyton v. Denbigh, Ruthin and Corwen Rail. Co. (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 14, 488; 39 Digest 55, 670). The rentcharge is a first charge upon the land conveyed, but upon that land only (Eyton v. Denbigh, Ruthin and Corwen Rail. Co. (1869), L. R. 7 Eq. 439; 11 Digest 165, 439).

Section 12.

Power to purchase lands required for additional accommodation.

Authority to sell and re-purchase such lands.

12. In case the promoters of the undertaking shall be empowered by the special Act to purchase lands for extraordinary purposes, it shall be lawful for all parties who, under the provisions hereinbefore contained, would be enabled to sell and convey lands, to sell and convey the lands so authorised to be purchased for extraordinary purposes.

13. It shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to sell the lands which they shall have so acquired for extraordinary purposes, or any part thereof, in such manner, and for such considerations, and to such persons, as the promoters of the undertaking may think fit, and again to purchase other lands for the like purposes, and afterwards sell the same, and so from time to time; but the total quantity of land to be held at any one time by the promoters of the undertaking for the purposes aforesaid shall not exceed the prescribed quantity.

Restraint on purchase from incapacitated persons.

14. The promoters of the undertaking shall not, by virtue of the power to purchase land for extraordinary purposes (a), purchase more than the prescribed quantity from any party under legal disability, or who would not be able to sell and convey such lands except under the powers of this and the special Act; and if the promoters of the undertaking purchase the said quantity of land from any party under such legal disability, and afterwards sell the whole or any part of the land so purchased, it shall not be lawful for any party being under legal disability to sell to the promoters of the undertaking any other lands in lieu of the land so sold or disposed of by them (b).

(a) See Hooper v. Bourne (1877), 3 Q. B. D., at p. 272; affd. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 1; 11 Digest 283, 2120.

(b) As to persons under disability, see note (a) to s. 7 on p. 4108, ante.

Municipal corporations not to sell without the approbation of the Treasury.

15. Nothing in this or the special Act contained shall enable any municipal corporation to sell for the purposes of the special Act, without the approbation of the Treasury, any lands which they could not have sold without such approbation before the passing of the special Act, other than such lands as the company are by the powers of this or the special Act empowered to purchase or take compulsorily.

Purchase of lands otherwise than by agreement.

And with respect to the purchase and taking of lands otherwise than by agreement, be it enacted as follows (a):

* * * * *

(a) Sections 16 and 17 relate to the subscription of capital before these clauses are put in force. They are not set out here, as they cannot apply to local authorities.

This group of sections relates to the compulsory acquisition of land. As already stated in note (a) on p. 4108, ante, they have been modified in their application to certain cases. But the assessment of compensation in respect of land acquired compulsorily for public purposes is now regulated by the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919. See that Act, post.

Mortgages of land with a power of sale are entitled under these clauses to all the rights of owners. See R. v. Middlesex (Clerk of the Peace of), [1914] 3 K. B. 259; 79 J. P. 7.

As to the power of the Crown to take lands without payment of compensation in time of war, see Re a Petition of Right, [1915] 3 K. B. 649; 84 L. J. K. B. 1961; on appeal (1916), 32 T. L. R. 699; 11 Digest 546, 498; Att.-Gen. v. De Keyser's Royal Hotel, [1920] A. C. 508; 11 Digest 546, 499.

Notice of intention to take lands.

18. When the promoters of the undertaking shall require to purchase or take any of the lands which by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, they are authorised to purchase or take (a), they shall give notice thereof to all the parties interested in such lands, or to the parties enabled by this Act to sell and convey or release the same, or such of the said parties as shall, after diligent inquiry, be known to the promoters of the undertaking, and by such notice shall demand from such parties the particulars of their estate and interest in such lands, and of the claims (b) made by them in respect thereof; and every such notice shall state the particulars of the lands so required, and that the promoters of the undertaking are willing to treat for the purchase thereof, and as to the compensation to be made to all parties for the damage that may be sustained by them by reason of the execution of the works (c).

(a) As to the meaning of these words, see Spencer v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1882), 22 Ch. D. 142; 11 Digest 212, 971. The corporation of a borough, being empowered by a local Act which incorporated this Act to erect and maintain in, on, over, or under any street in which their tramways were laid poles and posts for the purpose of working the tramways by mechanical power, were held not to have taken land within the meaning of this Act by erecting a post on it in the pavement forming part of a street, and that a preliminary notice to or consent by the owner of the soil in order to justify their action was not required (Escott v. Newport Corporation, [1904] 2 K. B. 369; 68 J. P. 135; 26 Digest 327, 597).

(b) W. was the lessor, and S. was the lessee of premises the frontage of which was compulsorily acquired by a tramway company under statutory powers. W. had claimed a certain sum as the present value of the frontage deferred until the expiration of the lease, and had accepted an offer by the company of a smaller sum "for the purchase of the interest claimed by you." S. on assigning the lessee's interest in the frontage covenanted with the company to pay the whole rent reserved by his lease. On an originating summons, W. asked to be declared entitled to require the company to procure from S. at their own expense a covenant by S. with W. to pay the whole rent reserved without deduction for severance. It was held that as W. had not put forward his claim on the ground that he would be deprived of any portion of the rent, there was no contract between W. and the company for the covenant asked for (In re Way and London United Tramways Co., Ltd. (1908), 125 L. T. Jo. 594).

(c) If notice to treat is served before applying to Parliament for power to take land, and the Act gives power to take more land than that described in the notice, such additional land may be taken, though it was not included in the notice (In re Corporation of Huddersfield and Jacob (1875), 10 Ch. App. 92; 11 Digest 114, 85). After notice to treat an owner cannot deal with his property so as to cast any additional expense on the undertakers (In re Marylebone Improvement Act (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 389; Metropolitan Rail. Co. v. Woodhouse (1865), 34 L. J. Ch. 297; 12 L. T. 113); nor can he deal with other property not included in the notice to treat, but injuriously affected by the proposed works, so as to give persons bona fide acquiring an interest in such property a right to compensation for injurious affection (Mercer v. Liverpool, St. Helens and South Lancashire Rail. Co., [1904] A. C. 461; 68 J. P. 533; 11 Digest 276, 2038). An owner may before acceptance withdraw and amend his claim, therefore where an owner (possessing a leasehold interest) claims for disturbance and makes no claim in respect of the leasehold interest and subsequent to the notice to treat and before his claim is accepted, assigns his leasehold interest, his assignee is in the same position as the owner and can withdraw or amend the claim either expressly or by sending in a claim in respect of the leasehold interest wholly inconsistent with the original claim. The undertakers cannot on receipt of such a claim ignore the assignee and continue to treat and contract with the original owner (Cardiff Corporation v. Cook, [1923] 2 Ch. 115; 87 J. P. 90; Digest Supp.). But he may transfer his interest in toto (Sewell v. Harrow and Uxbridge Rail. Co. (1902), 19 T. L. R. 130; settled on appeal (1903), 20 T. L. R. 21; see also Zick v. London United Tramways, Ltd., [1908] 2 K. B. 126; 72 J. P. 257; 11 Digest 276, 2039). The mere fact that the promoters have already taken possession of the property does not preclude them from their statutory right to give notice to treat (Cooke v. London C. Co., [1911] 1 Ch. 604; 75 J. P. 309). For a case where a builder after notice to treat suspended operations, having obtained an extension of time under his agreement, see Birmingham and District Land Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1889), 40 Ch. D. 268; 11 Digest 214, 990. Where notice to treat is given in respect of part only of the land comprised in a building agreement, the building agreement may be still binding in respect of the land not included (Re Furness and Wilsden U. D. Co. (1906), 70 J. P. 25; 22 T. L. R. 52). As to what expenditure by an owner can be recovered as thrown away, and therefore damage by reason of the execution of the works, see Ex parte Streatham and General Estates Co. (1888), 4 T. L. R. 766; 11 Digest 130, 188. Notice to treat operates to release the landowner from any restrictive covenants that he may be under in respect of the land comprised in it (Baily v. De Crespigny (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 180; 31 Digest 465, 6111). The remedy of the covenantee is, under s. 68, for compensation from the undertakers, and not for an injunction or damages (Kirby v. Harrogate School Board, [1896] 1 Ch. 437; 60 J. P. 182; 11 Digest 145, 297; Long Eaton Recreation Grounds Co. v. Midland Rail. Co., [1902] 2 K. B. 574; 67 J. P. 1; 11 Digest 146, 298). But a lessor may recover substantial damages for breach of covenant to repair committed after notice to treat and before assignment to the promoters (Mills v. East London Union (1873), L. R. 8 C. P. 79; 31 Digest 338, 4815). Notice to treat does not make the landowner's claim for compensation an attachable debt before the compensation has been assessed (Richardson v. Elmit (1877), 2 C. P. D. 9; 21 Digest 624, 2101). Where notice to treat is properly withdrawn, a second notice can be given provided the time limited under s. 123, post, p. 4149, has not expired (Ashton Vale Iron Co. v. Bristol Corporation, [1901] 1 Ch. 591; 11 Digest 173, 509). Persons known to be equitable mortgagees having a lien over the lands proposed to be taken, ought to be served with notice to treat as being "parties interested" (Martin v. L. C. & D. Rail. Co. (1866), 1 Ch. App. 501; 11 Digest 274, 2019). And see R. v. Middlesex (Clerk of the Peace), [1914] 3 K. B. 259; 79 J. P. 7.

Where a proposed road is mentioned in the particulars scheduled to a notice to treat as one of the boundaries of the land to be purchased, the same must be regarded as descriptive only, and not as passing any right to have the road constructed, or any right over land adjacent to the land to be purchased (In re London School Board and Foster (1898), 87 L. T. 700; 11 Digest 119, 123).

As to what is a sufficient notice to treat, see Shepherd v. Norwich Corporation (1885), 30 Ch. D. 553. The notice to treat must be for the whole estate or interest of the parties interested in the lands (In re Chilworth Gunpowder Co. and Manchester Ship Canal Co. (1891), 8 T. L. R. 79; 11 Digest 174, 515). As to the effect of a notice to treat for part only of a building, see s. 92 and notes thereto, post, p. 4139.

For a general form of notice to treat, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

As to when a notice requiring execution of works under the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931, is to be served in the same way as a notice to treat, see ss. 2 (4), 3 (1), Sched. I., to that Act; Vol. V. and 24 Halsbury's Statutes 49, 52, 66.

Service of notices on owners and occupiers of lands.

19. All notices required to be served by the promoters of the undertaking upon the parties interested in or entitled to sell any such lands shall either be served personally on such parties or left at their last usual place of abode, if any such can after diligent inquiry be found, and in case any such parties shall be absent from the United Kingdom, or cannot be found after diligent inquiry, shall also be left with the occupier of such lands, or, if there be no such occupier, shall be affixed upon some conspicuous part of such lands.

notices on a corporation aggregate.

20. If any such party be a corporation aggregate such notice shall be left at the principal office of business of such corporation, or, if no such office can after diligent inquiry be found, shall be served on some principal member, if any, of such corporation, and such notice shall also be left with the occupier of such lands, or, if there be no such occupier, shall be affixed upon some conspicuous part of such lands.

If parties fail to treat or in case of dispute question to be settled as after mentioned.

21. If for twenty-one days after the service of such notice any such party shall fail to state the particulars of his claim in respect of any such land, or to treat with the promoters of the undertaking in respect thereof, or if such party and the promoters of the undertaking shall not agree as to the amount of the compensation to be paid by the promoters of the undertaking for the interest in such lands belonging to such party, or which he is by this or the special Act enabled to sell, or for any damage that may be sustained by him by reason of the execution of the works, the amount of such compensation shall be settled in the manner hereinafter provided for settling cases of disputed compensation (a).

(a) See ss. 25—57, post. And see also the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5215. As to the right of a person whose lands are taken in respect of a right of pre-emption over adjoining lands, see Clout v. Metropolitan Rail. Co. (1883), 48 L. T. 257; 11 Digest 131, 195; and in respect of an option over lands, Oppenheimer v. Minister of Transport, [1942] 1 K. B. 242; [1941] 3 All E. R. 485; 106 J. P. 46.

Disputes as to compensation
where the

22. If no agreement be come to between the promoters of the undertaking and the owners of or parties by this Act enabled to sell and convey or release any lands taken or required for or injuriously affected (a) by the execution of the undertaking, or any interest in such lands, as to the value of such lands or of any interest therein, or as to the compensation to be made in respect thereof, and if in any such case the compensation claimed shall not exceed fifty pounds, the same shall be settled by two justices (b).

Section 22.

amount claimed does not exceed £50 to be settled by two justices.

See now the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5215.

(a) That is, if injuriously affected, whether taken or not (R. v. St. Luke's (Chelsea) Vestry (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 148; 11 Digest 133, 205).

(b) The summons to hear and determine the question of compensation may be issued more than six months after the service of the notice to treat (R. v. Hannay (1874), 44 L. J. M. C. 27; 31 L. T. 702. See also s. 24, infra, and note thereto).

23. If the compensation claimed or offered in any such case shall exceed fifty pounds, and if the party claiming compensation desire to have the same settled by arbitration (a), and signify such desire by notice in writing to the promoters of the undertaking, before they have issued their warrant to the sheriff to summon a jury in respect of such lands, under the provisions hereinafter contained, stating in such notice the nature of the interest in respect of which such party claims compensation, and the amount of the compensation so claimed, the same shall be so settled accordingly; but unless the party claiming compensation shall as aforesaid signify his desire to have the question of such compensation settled by arbitration, or if when the matter shall have been referred to arbitration the arbitrators or their umpire shall for three months have failed to make their or his award (b), or if no final award shall be made, the question of such compensation shall be settled by the verdict of a jury, as hereinafter provided.

Compensation exceeding £50 to be settled by arbitration or jury, at the option of the party claiming compensation.

(a) That is, by arbitration under this Act, not under the P. H. A., 1875. See Ex parte Rayner (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 446; 42 J. P. 807. But see now the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, post, p. 5215, which prescribes the procedure for assessment of compensation where land is compulsorily acquired for public purposes.

Form of notice for arbitration, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

Service of a subsequent notice to treat in respect of a larger piece of land does not put an end to the arbitration agreed upon in respect of the compensation payable for the smaller (Rebeck v. Bournemouth Corporation, Times, March 17th, 1902). Where an owner of two contiguous pieces of land forming an area suitable, and it may be best suited, for development and use as one building site, sells under compulsion a part of one piece as a part of that piece, and without any reference to his interest in the other piece, the purchase price for the land so contracted to be sold must be calculated without reference to the vendors interest in the other piece, and is not to be ascertained by deducting the value of what is left to the owner of the two pieces after the sale from their aggregate value immediately prior to the sale (Re S. E. Rail. Co. and L. C. C., [1915] 2 Ch. 252; 79 J. P. 545; 11 Digest 124, 156).

(b) The umpire has a period of three months from the time when the arbitration devolves upon him (Skerratt v. North Staffordshire Rail. Co. (1848), 17 L. J. Ch. 161; 11 Digest 191, 708; In re Bradshaw (1848), 12 Q. B. 562; In re Pullen and the Mayor of Liverpool (1882), 51 L. J. Q. B. 285; 46 J. P. 468). The parties may by consent extend the time. The court can also extend the time for making the award even after the expiration of the three months (In re Dare Valley Rail. Co. (1869), 4 Ch. App. 554; 11 Digest 191, 714; Rhodes v. Airedale Drainage Commissioners (1876), 1 C. P. D. 403; 11 Digest 193, 727; Warburton v. Haslingden L. B. (1879), 48 L. J. Q. B. 451; 2 Digest 565, 1965; Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 9, post, p. 4790; Knowles & Sons, Ltd. v. Bolton Corporation, [1900] 2 Q. B. 253; 2 Digest 420, 722).

24. It shall be lawful for any justice, upon the application of either party with respect to any question of disputed compensation by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, authorised to be settled by two justices, to summon the other party to appear before two justices, at a time and place to be named in the summons, and upon the appearance of such parties, or, in the absence of any of them, upon proof of due service of the Method of proceeding for settling disputes as to compensation by justices.

Section 24. summons, it shall be lawful for such justices to hear and determine such question, and for that purpose to examine such parties or any of them, and their witnesses, upon oath, and the costs of every such inquiry shall be in the discretion of such justices, and they shall settle the amount thereof (a).

(a) A settlement by justices under this section of the compensation due to any person is not an order within S. J. Act, 1848, s. 11, and need not be made within six months (R. v. Edwards (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 586; 49 J. P. 117; 11 Digest 189, 697, overruling Re Edmundson (1851), 17 Q. B. 67; 15 J. P. 674).

Appointment of arbitrators when questions are to be determined by arbitration.

25. When any question of disputed compensation by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, authorised or required to be settled by arbitration shall have arisen, then, unless both parties shall concur in the appointment of a single arbitrator (a), each party, on the request of the other party, shall nominate and appoint an arbitrator, to whom such dispute shall be referred; and every appointment of an arbitrator shall be made on the part of the promoters of the undertaking (b) under the hands of the said promoters or any two of them, or of their secretary or clerk, and on the part of any other party under the hand of such party, or if such party be a corporation aggregate under the common seal of such corporation; and such appointment shall be delivered to the arbitrator, and shall be deemed a submission to arbitration on the part of the party by whom the same shall be made; and after any such appointment shall have been made neither party shall have power to revoke the same without the consent of the other, nor shall the death of either party operate as a revocation; and if for the space of fourteen days after any such dispute shall have arisen, and after a request in writing, in which shall be stated the matter so required to be referred to arbitration, shall have been served by the one party on the other party to appoint an arbitrator, such last-mentioned party fail to appoint such arbitrator, then upon such failure the party making the request, and having himself appointed an arbitrator, may appoint such arbitrator to act on behalf of both parties (c), and such arbitrator may proceed to hear and determine the matters which shall be in dispute, and in such case the award or determination of such single arbitrator shall be final.

(b) Form of appointment of arbitrator by promoters, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts"; the like under protest, ibid. Form of notice by promoters and request to appoint, ibid.

(c) Form of appointment of arbitrator to act for both parties where one party has failed to appoint, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

Vacancy of arbitrator to be supplied.

26. If before the matters so referred shall be determined any arbitrator appointed by either party die, or become incapable, the party by whom such arbitrator was appointed may nominate and appoint in writing (a) some other person to act in his place, and if for the space of seven days after notice in writing from the other party for that purpose he fail to do so, the remaining or other arbitrator may proceed ex parte; and every arbitrator so to be substituted as aforesaid shall have the same powers and authorities as were vested in the former arbitrator at the time of such his death or disability as aforesaid.

(a) Form of appointment of arbitrator in place of one who has died, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

A pointment of umpire.

27. Where more than one arbitrator shall have been appointed such arbitrators shall, before they enter upon the matters referred to them, nominate and appoint by writing (a) under their hands an umpire to decide on any such matters on which they shall differ, or which shall be referred to him under the provisions of this or the special Act; and if such umpire shall die, or become incapable to act, they shall forthwith after such death or incapacity appoint another umpire in his place; and the decision of every such umpire on the matters so referred to him shall be final. Section 27

(a) Form of appointment of umpire, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

28. If in either of the cases aforesaid the said arbitrators shall refuse, or shall for seven days after request of either party to such arbitration neglect to appoint an umpire, the Board of Trade, in any case in which a railway company shall be one party to the arbitration, and two justices in any other case (a), shall, on the application (b) of either party to such arbitration, appoint an umpire; and the decision of such umpire on the matters on which the arbitrators shall differ, or which shall be referred to him under this or the special Act, shall be final.

Board of Trade empowered to appoint an umpire on neglect of the arbitrators.

(a) These words are repealed by Lands Clauses (Umpire) Act, 1883, post, p. 4664.

(b) Form of request to Board of Trade to appoint umpire, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

29. If when a single arbitrator shall have been appointed such arbitrator shall die or become incapable to act before he shall have made his award, the matters referred to him shall be determined by arbitration, under the provisions of this or the special Act, in the same manner as if such arbitrator had not been appointed.

In case of death of single arbitrator, the matter to begin de novo.

30. If where more than one arbitrator shall have been appointed either of the arbitrators refuse or for seven days neglect to act, the other arbitrator may proceed ex parte, and the decision of such other arbitrator shall be as effectual as if he had been the single arbitrator appointed by both parties (a).

If either arbitrator refuse to act, the other to proceed ex parte.

(a) The appointment of an umpire is not a condition precedent to the ex parte proceedings (Shepherd v. Norwich Corporation (1885), 30 Ch. D. 553).

31. If where more than one arbitrator shall have been appointed, and where neither of them shall refuse or neglect to act as aforesaid, such arbitrators shall fail to make their award within twenty-one days after the day on which the last of such arbitrators shall have been appointed, or within such extended time (if any) as shall have been appointed for that purpose by both such arbitrators under their hands, the matters referred to them shall be determined by the umpire to be appointed as aforesaid (a).

If arbitrators fail to make their award within twenty-one days, or extended time, the matter to go to the umpire.

(a) Form of extension of time for award, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts". The umpire's duty devolves upon him at the expiration of the time named, and the time within which he must make his award runs from that date, whether or not he has received notice of the failure of the arbitrators to make their award (Skerratt v. North Staffordshire Rail. Co., ante, p. 4113). By consent the umpire may sit with the arbitrators and make his award within the time of the arbitrators for making their award. See form of consent, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

32. The said arbitrators or their umpire may call for the production of any documents in the possession or power of either party, which they or he may think necessary for determining the question in dispute, and may examine the parties or their witnesses on oath, and administer the oaths necessary for that purpose.

Power of arbitrators to call for books, etc.

Section 33. 33. Before any arbitrator or umpire shall enter into the consideration of any matters referred to him, he shall in the presence of a justice (a) make and subscribe the following declaration; that is to say,

Arbitrator or umpire to make a declaration.

"I A. B. do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I will faithfully and honestly, and to the best of my skill and ability, hear and determine the matters referred to me under the provisions of the Act [naming the special Act.]

"Made and subscribed in the presence of ."

And such declaration shall be annexed to the award when made; and if any arbitrator or umpire having made such declaration shall wilfully act contrary thereto he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor (b).

(a) That is, any justice, not merely one having jurisdiction where the lands are situated (Davies v. South Staffordshire Rail. Co. (1851), 21 L. J. M. C. 52; 15 Jur. 1133).

(b) As to when a failure to make this declaration will be a ground for setting aside the award, see Levick v. Epsom, etc. Rail. Co. (1859), 1 L. T. 60; 11 Digest 192, 718, and cf. Ludlow Corporation v. Prosser (1906), 70 J. P. 400; 4 L. G. R. 940; 38 Digest 175, 175. As to the time within which the declaration may be made, see In re Bradshaw (1848), 12 Q. B. 562.

Costs of arbitration, how to be borne.

34. All the costs of any such arbitration, and incident thereto, to be settled by the arbitrators, shall be borne by the promoters of the undertaking, unless the arbitrators shall award the same or a less sum than shall have been offered by the promoters of the undertaking, in which case each party shall bear his own costs incident to the arbitration, and the costs of the arbitrators shall be borne by the parties in equal proportions (a).

(a) The section contemplates nothing more than an offer of money (Fisher v. G. W. Rail. Co., [1911] 1 K. B. 551). The right to costs depends upon the section, and not upon the provisions of the P. H. A. (Ex parte Rayner, ante, p. 4113). The section, however, only applies to a competent arbitration under the Act, and if there is no jurisdiction to hold the arbitration the promoters can be under no liability for costs (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Walker, [1903] A. C. 289; 11 Digest 156, 372). The section applies to an offer made generally under s. 38, notwithstanding notice by the claimant under s. 23 (Lascelles v. Swansea School Board (1899), 63 J. P. 742; 69 L. J. Q. B. 24). If an offer is made but refused, and afterwards during the arbitration withdrawn by consent, and the subsequent award is less than the offer, the promoters of the undertaking cannot claim the benefit of this section (Foster v. Sheffield Corporation (1895), 59 J. P. 404; 72 L. T. 549). But if the award is not in respect of the same subject-matter as the offer, the claimant is entitled to costs, although the award is less than the offer (Miles v. G. W. Rail. Co., [1896] 2 Q. B. 432; 11 Digest 200, 797). Thus, where a claim was made against a railway company for compensation in respect of the diversion of a footpath and the company offered £50 in settlement of the claim upon the understanding that they would construct a new road it was held that the claimant was entitled to the costs of arbitration proceedings although he was awarded only £50 thereunder (Fisher v. G. W. Rail. Co., supra). Where costs are awarded, the execution of a conveyance is not a condition precedent to the payment of such costs (Capell v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 345; 11 Digest 202, 818). As to statement of a special case by the arbitrator, see Arbitration Act, 1889, s. 7, post. And as to costs, see s. 20, ibid., post, and In re Gonty and Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Rail. Co., [1896] 2 Q. B. 439; 11 Digest 131, 197. Costs not included in the award cannot be afterwards given by the arbitrator (South Minnors R. D. C. v. Barnet U. D. C. (1900), 82 L. T. 421; 33 Digest 26, 122).

As to the taxation of the costs, see Lands Clauses (Taxation of Costs) Act, 1895; Re Cannings and Middlesex C. C., [1907] 1 K. B. 51; 71 J. P. 46; Digest, Practice 947, 4871, and the note to s. 35, infra. The taxing master's certificate disallowing fees charged by the arbitrator and umpires is not evidence that such fees are unreasonable or extortionate, and it must be shown that they are so in order that any part may be recovered back after payment in order to take up the award (Llandrindod Wells Water Co. v. Hawksley (1904), 68 J. P. 242; 20 T. L. R. 241; 11 Digest 202, 813). The function of the taxing master is ministerial only, not judicial, therefore his certificate cannot be quashed on certiorari (R. v. Goff, [1905] 2 I. R. 121; 11 Digest 201, w).

35. The arbitrators shall deliver their award in writing to the promoters of the undertaking, and the said promoters shall retain the same, and shall forthwith, on demand, at their own expense, furnish a copy thereof to the other party to the arbitration, and shall at all times, on demand, produce the said award, and allow the same to be inspected or examined by such party or any person appointed by him for that purpose (a). Section 35.

Award to be delivered to the promoters of the undertaking.

(a) Form of award, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts". The promoters of the undertaking, though they have joined in the arbitration under protest, are bound to take up the award, and may be compelled to do so by mandamus (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Walker, [1900] A. C. 109; 64 J. P. 483; 11 Digest 195, 749). But it is a good return that the prosecutor is not entitled to any compensation at all by reason that the lands alleged to be injuriously affected have not been so affected (R. v. Cambrian Rail. Co. (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 320; 11 Digest 195, 752). And if a protest on the ground of want of jurisdiction is upheld the promoters will not be liable to costs (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Walker, [1903] A. C. 289; 11 Digest 156, 372). On taking up the award and paying the amount fixed by the arbitrator for so doing, including a bill of costs of solicitors employed by the umpire to draw up the award, the promoters are entitled to an order for taxation of such bill under s. 38 of the Solicitors Act, 1843 (Re Collyer-Bristow & Co., [1901] 2 K. B. 839; 11 Digest 199, 784). The order may be made in any division of the High Court (R. S. C., Order LXV., r 26A). The process of enforcing the award remains under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, notwithstanding s. 13 (1) of the Light Railways Act, 1896 (R. v. Barton and Immingham Light Rail. Co., Ex parte Simon, [1912] 3 K. B. 72; 76 J. P. 344).

36. The submission to any such arbitration may be made a rule of any of the superior courts, on the application of either of the parties (a). Submission may be made a rule of court.

(a) This does not enable an award to be enforced by motion (Re Newbold and Metropolitan Rail. Co. (1863), 14 C. B. (N. S.) 405; Re Walker and Beckenham L. B. (1884), 48 J. P. 264; 50 L. T. 207; 11 Digest 198, 772). An award may be enforced under s. 12 of the Arbitration Act, 1889, post, p. 4791, or by action. A claim for compensation under s. 68 is capable of assignment, and the assignee may bring an action in his own name to enforce the award (Dawson v. G. N. Rail. Co., [1905] 1 K. B. 260; 69 J. P. 29; 8 Digest 432, 96). The period within which an action may be brought to enforce the award is six years from the date of the award (Turner v. Midland Rail. Co., [1911] 1 K. B. 832; 75 J. P. 283; 32 Digest 327, 133).

37. No award made with respect to any question referred to arbitration under the provisions of this or the special Act shall be set aside for irregularity or error in matter of form (a). Award not void through error in form

(a) But it may be set aside if it include compensation in respect of a claim not legally enforceable (Beckett v. Midland Rail. Co. (1865), L. R. 1 C. P. 241; 11 Digest 198, 769). This case was considered in Campbell v. Paddington Corporation, [1911] 1 K. B. 869; 75 J. P. 277; 26 Digest 429, 1483, when it was decided that where a nuisance is created by the erection of an unauthorised structure in a highway and special damage is thereby caused to a person by reason of the view from his house being obstructed, he is entitled to recover damages from the persons creating the nuisance. See also Duke of Buccleuch v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1868), L. R. 3 Ex. 306; Re Hurley and Queenstown U. D. C. (1913), 47 Ir. L. T. 117. By proceeding to arbitration the undertakers waive any misdescription of the claimant's interest (Lovering v. City of London, etc., Subway Co. (1891), 7 T. L. R. 600; 11 Digest 225, 1105).

38. Before the promoters of the undertaking shall issue their warrant for summoning a jury for settling any case of disputed compensation they shall give not less than ten days notice to the other party of their intention to cause such jury to be summoned; and in such notice the promoters of the undertaking shall state what sum of money they are willing to give for the interest in such lands sought to be purchased by them from such party, and for the damage to be sustained by him by the execution of the works (a). Promoters of the undertaking to give notice before summoning a jury.

(a) This section does not apply where the promoters have already taken or injuriously affected land in respect of which no compensation has been made, and the section is not incorporated with s. 68, which is applicable to such cases (Re Haywood and Metropolitan

Section 38.

Rail. Co. (1864), 4 B. & S. 787; 28 J. P. 182; 11 Digest 203, 324). An irregularity in complying with this section may be waived. See Emmanuel Hospital v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co. (1869), 19 L. T. 692. See also R. v. Manley Smith (1892), 56 J. P. 729; 67 L. T. 197. The offer may be accepted at any time before verdict, and in such case the jury should be directed to return a verdict for the amount of the offer (R. v. High Bailiff of Westminster, [1903] 2 K. B. 189; 67 J. P. 302). And further, as to this offer, see the notes to s. 51, post, p. 4121.

Form of notice by promoters of intention to summon jury, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

Warrant for summoning jury to be addressed to the sheriff;

or in certain cases to coroner, or to ex-sheriff or ex-coroner.

39. In every case in which any such question of disputed compensation shall be required to be determined by the verdict of a jury the promoters of the undertaking shall issue their warrant to the sheriff, requiring him to summon a jury for that purpose (a), and such warrant shall be under the common seal of the promoters of the undertaking if they be a corporation, or if they be not a corporation under the hands and seals of such promoters or any two of them; and if such sheriff be interested (b) in the matter in dispute such application shall be made to some coroner of the county in which the lands in question, or some part thereof, shall be situate; and if all the coroners of such county be so interested such application may be made to some person having filled the office of sheriff or coroner in such county, and who shall be then living there, and who shall not be interested in the matter in dispute; and with respect to the persons last mentioned preference shall be given to one who shall have most recently served either of the said offices; and every ex-sheriff, coroner, or ex-coroner shall have power, if he think fit, to appoint a deputy or assessor.

(a) Separate juries cannot be summoned in respect of each different property of the same owner included in the notice to treat (Ecclesiastical Commissioners v. Commissioners of Sewers of City of London (1872), 14 Ch. D. 305; 11 Digest 297, 2280). A special jury can be had on proper notice under s. 54, post, p. 4122.

(b) As to the interest of the sheriff, see R. v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Rail. Co. (1867), L. R. 2 Q. B. 336; 31 J. P. 453; 11 Digest 204, 828.

Provisions applicable to sheriff to apply to coroner, or other person acting in place of sheriff.

40. Throughout the enactments contained in this Act relating to the reference to a jury, where the term "sheriff" is used, the provisions applicable thereto shall be held to apply to every coroner or other person lawfully acting in his place; and in every case in which any such warrant shall have been directed to any other person than the sheriff such sheriff shall, immediately on receiving notice of the delivery of the warrant, deliver over, on application for that purpose, to the person to whom the same shall have been directed, or to any person appointed by him to receive the same, the jurors book and special jurors list belonging to the county where the lands in question shall be situate.

summoned.

41. Upon the receipt of such warrant the sheriff shall summon a jury of twenty-four indifferent persons, duly qualified to act as common jurymen in the superior courts, to meet at a convenient time and place to be appointed by him for that purpose, such time not being less than fourteen nor more than twenty-one days after the receipt of such warrant, and such place not being more than eight miles distant from the lands in question, unless by consent of the parties interested, and he shall forthwith give notice to the promoters of the works of the time and place so appointed by him (a).

(a) The sheriff must summon a fresh jury if the first inquisition has been quashed (Horrocks v. Metropolitan Rail. Co. (1865), 19 C. B. (N. S.) 139). A verdict will not be set aside on the ground that some of the jurymen were not qualified, the remedy in such case being by challenge (In re Chelsea Waterworks Co. (1855), 10 Exch. 731).

42. Out of the jurors appearing upon such summons a jury of twelve persons shall be drawn by the sheriff, in such manner as juries for trials of issues joined in the superior courts are by law required to be drawn (a); and if a sufficient number of jurymen do not appear in obedience to such summons the sheriff shall return other indifferent men, duly qualified as aforesaid, of the bystanders, or others that can speedily be procured, to make up the jury to the number aforesaid; and all parties concerned may have their lawful challenges against any of the jurymen, but no such party shall challenge the array. Section 42.
Jury to be empanelled.

(a) See Juries Act, 1825, s. 26; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 55. That section is not repealed by the Juries Act, 1922.

43. The sheriff shall preside on the said inquiry, and the party claiming compensation shall be deemed the plaintiff, and shall have all such rights and privileges as the plaintiff is entitled to in the trial of actions at law (a); and if either party so request in writing, the sheriff shall summon before him any person considered necessary to be examined as a witness touching the matters in question; and on the like request the sheriff shall order the jury, or any six or more of them, to view the place or matter in controversy, in like manner as views may be had in the trial of actions in the superior courts. Sheriff to preside.
Witnesses to be summoned.
View by jury.

(a) "These words were clearly intended to regulate the general course of the proceedings, to remove doubts concerning the right to begin, and to show in other respects how the inquiry should be conducted": per Lord DENMAN, C.J., in R. v. Gardner (1837), 6 A. & E., at p. 117. See also R. v. Sheriff of Warwickshire (1841), 2 Rail. Cas. 661.

44. If the sheriff make default in any of the matters hereinbefore required to be done by him in relation to any such trial or inquiry, he shall forfeit fifty pounds for every such offence, and such penalty shall be recoverable by the promoters of the undertaking by action in any of the superior courts; and if any person summoned and returned upon any jury under this or the special Act, whether common or special, do not appear, or if appearing he refuse to make oath, or in any other manner unlawfully neglect his duty, he shall, unless he show reasonable excuse to the satisfaction of the sheriff, forfeit a sum not exceeding ten pounds, and every such penalty payable by the sheriff or jurymen shall be applied in satisfaction of the costs of the inquiry, so far as the same will extend; and in addition to the penalty hereby imposed every such jurymen shall be subject to the same regulations, pains, and penalties as if such jury had been returned for the trial of an issue joined in any of the superior courts. Penalty on sheriff and jurors for default.

45. If any person duly summoned to give evidence upon any such inquiry, and to whom a tender of his reasonable expenses shall have been made, fail to appear at the time and place specified in the summons, without sufficient cause, or if any person, whether summoned or not, who shall appear as a witness refuse to be examined on oath touching the subject matter in question, every person so offending shall forfeit to the party aggrieved a sum not exceeding ten pounds. Penalty on witnesses making default.

46. Not less than ten days notice of the time and place of the inquiry shall be given in writing by the promoters of the undertaking to the other party (a). Notice inquiry.

(a) Form of notice, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

Section 47.

If claimant makes default compensation to be determined by surveyor.

Jury to be sworn.

Sums to be paid for purchase of lands, and for damage, to be assessed separately.

47. If the party claiming compensation shall not appear at the time appointed for the inquiry such inquiry shall not be further proceeded in, but the compensation to be paid shall be such as shall be ascertained by a surveyor appointed by two justices in manner hereinafter provided.

48. Before the jury proceed to inquire of and assess the compensation or damage in respect of which their verdict is to be given they shall make oath that they will truly and faithfully inquire of and assess such compensation or damage; and the sheriff shall administer such oaths as well as the oaths of all persons called upon to give evidence.

49. Where such inquiry shall relate to the value of lands to be purchased, and also to compensation claimed for injury done or to be done to the lands held therewith, the jury shall deliver their verdict separately for the sum of money to be paid for the purchase of the lands required for the works, or of any interest therein belonging to the party with whom the question of disputed compensation shall have arisen, or which under the provisions herein contained he is enabled to sell or convey, and for the sum of money to be paid by way of compensation for the damage, if any, to be sustained by the owner of the lands by reason of the severing of the lands taken from the other lands of such owner, or otherwise injuriously affecting such lands by the exercise of the powers of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith (a).

(a) These provisions are directory only (Re Bradshaw (1848), 12 Q. B. 562.

As to the power of the court to quash a verdict for misdirection or improper rejection of evidence, see Streatham and General Estates Co. v. Commissioners of Public Works (1888), 52 J. P. 615; 11 Digest 130, 188.

Lands may be held with lands taken within the meaning of this section though not actually adjoining (Cowper Essex v. Acton L. B. (1889), 14 App. Cas. 153; 53 J. P. 756, 11 Digest 135, 216). See also Re S. E. Rail. Co. & L. C. C., ante, p. 4113; and Holditch v. Canadian Northern Ontario Ry., cited in the note to s. 63, post, p. 4124.

For a case in which a residence was held to be "held with" lands purchased in respect of which the owner of the residence had no option, see Oppenheimer v. Minister of Transport, [1942] 1 K. B. 242; [1941] 3 All E. R. 485.

Verdict and judgment to be recorded.

50. The sheriff before whom such inquiry shall be held shall give judgment for the purchase-money or compensation assessed by such jury (a); and the verdict and judgment shall be signed by the sheriff, and being so signed shall be kept by the clerk of the peace among the records of the general or quarter sessions of the county in which the lands or any part thereof shall be situate in respect of which such purchase-money or compensation shall have been awarded; and such verdicts and judgments shall be deemed records, and the same or true copies thereof shall be good evidence in all courts and elsewhere; and all persons may inspect the said verdicts and judgments, and may have copies thereof or extracts therefrom, on paying for each inspection thereof one shilling, and for every one hundred words copied or extracted therefrom sixpence, which copies or extracts the clerk of the peace is hereby required to make out, and to sign and certify the same to be true copies (b).

(a) Where a claimant has given particulars of his claim with items, he is not bound by such particulars, and the jury may award him more in respect of any particular item than the sum actually claimed in respect of it. It is doubtful, however, whether the verdict may be for a greater total sum than the total amount claimed (Robertson v. City and South London Rail. Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 280). Interest is payable not from date of verdict, but from the time when the promoters might prudently have taken possession, i.e., in a case where the title has not been accepted before verdict, when a good title is shown (In re Pigott and G. W. Rail. Co. (1881), 18 Ch. D. 146; 11 Digest 226, 1125, disapproving Re Eccleshill L. B. (1879), 13 Ch. D. 365).

(b) Form of verdict, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

The recording of the verdict and judgment is not a condition precedent to their validity (Chabot v. Lord Morpeth (1850), 15 Q. B. 446). And if not recorded, parol evidence may be given of the finding, and of the grounds on which it proceeded (Manning v. Eastern Counties Rail. Co. (1843), 12 M. & W. 237; 8 J. P. 107; 22 Digest 310, 3020). The record is available as a title, no conveyance being necessary on possession being taken by the promoters after payment of the sum assessed (Bruce v. Willis (1840), 11 A. & E. 463; 4 J. P. 152; 38 Digest 511, 650). And the verdict and judgment may be enforced by mandamus, although the record is a record of quarter sessions (R. v. Nottingham Old Waterworks Co. (1837), 6 Ad. & El. 355; 1 J. P. 244; 16 Digest 280, 922).

Section 50.

51. On every such inquiry before a jury, where the verdict of the jury shall be given for a greater sum than the sum previously offered (a) by the promoters of the undertaking, all the costs of such inquiry shall be borne by the promoters of the undertaking; but if the verdict of the jury be given for the same or a less sum than the sum previously offered by the promoters of the undertaking, or if the owner of the lands shall have failed to appear at the time and place appointed for the inquiry, having received due notice thereof, one-half of the costs of summoning, impannelling, and returning the jury, and of taking the inquiry and recording the verdict and judgment thereon, in case such verdict shall be taken, shall be defrayed by the owner of the lands, and the other half by the promoters of the undertaking, and each party shall bear his own costs, other than as aforesaid, incident to such inquiry (b).

inquiry, how to be borne.

(a) This applies only to an offer made under s. 38 (R. v. Manley Smith (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 481).

(b) The claimant is not entitled to any costs if an award is made in his favour in respect of a claim for which he has no right to compensation (Todd v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co. (1871), 24 L. T. 435; 19 W. R. 720). As to the offer of compensation, see s. 38, ante, p. 4117. As to costs of an abortive inquiry, see R. v. North London Rail. Co. (1881), 51 L. J. Q. B. 241; 30 W. R. 272. The conveyance by the owner is not a condition precedent to the payment of costs due to him (Capell v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 459; 47 J. P. 246; on appeal (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 345; 11 Digest 202, 818). Where the sum awarded was paid into court and the taxed costs paid to the claimant who afterwards was found to have no title, it was held that the costs so paid could not be recovered back (London C. C. v. Campbell (1890), 6 T. L. R. 420).

52. The costs of any such inquiry shall, in case of difference, be settled by one of the masters of the Court of Queen's Bench of England or Ireland, according as the lands are situate, on the application of either party, and such costs shall include all reasonable costs, charges and expenses incurred in summoning, impannelling, and returning the jury, taking the inquiry, the attendance of witnesses, the employment of counsel and attorneys, recording the verdict and judgment thereon, and otherwise incident to such inquiry (a).

Particulars of the costs.

(a) The Chancery taxing masters whose office is amalgamated with and who are themselves transferred to the Central Office by general rules pursuant to the Supreme Court of Judicature (Officers) Act, 1879, which came into operation on January 11th, 1902, now have jurisdiction to tax these costs (Covington v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co., [1903] 1 K. B. 231; 16 Digest 182, 877). The decision of the master cannot be reviewed (Sandback Charity Trustees v. North Staffordshire Rail. Co. (1877), 3 Q. B. D. 1).

See also as to the taxation of the costs the Lands Clauses (Taxation of Costs) Act, 1895, post p. 4938.

53. If any such costs shall be payable by the promoters of the undertaking, and if within seven days after demand such costs be not paid to the party entitled to receive the same, they shall be recoverable by distress, and on application to any justice he shall issue his warrant accordingly (a); and if any such costs shall be payable by the owner of the lands, or of any interest therein the same may be deducted and retained by the promoters of the undertaking, out of any money awarded by the jury to such owner, or determined by the valuation of a surveyor under the provision hereinafter contained; and the payment or deposit of the remainder, if any, of such money shall be deemed payment and satisfaction of the whole thereof, or if such costs shall costs.

Section 53. exceed the amount of the money so awarded or determined the excess shall be recoverable by distress, and on application to any justice he shall issue his warrant accordingly.

(a) On proof of the allocatur, of the demand for payment, and non-compliance within seven days, the justice is bound to issue his warrant (Metropolitan Rail. Co. v. Turnham (1863), 14 C. B. N. S. 212; 11 Digest 210, 931). As regards the warrant and its execution the S. J. Acts will apply. See, particularly, the S. J. A., 1879, ss. 39 (4) and 43 (1), (8); 11 Halsbury's Statutes 344, 346, 347.

Special jury to be summoned at the request of either party.

54. If either party desire any such question of disputed compensation as aforesaid to be tried before a special jury, such question shall be so tried, provided that notice of such desire, if coming from the other party, be given to the promoters of the undertaking before they have issued their warrant to the sheriff; and for that purpose the promoters of the undertaking shall by their warrant to the sheriff require him to nominate a special jury for such trial; and thereupon the sheriff shall, as soon as conveniently may be after the receipt by him of such warrant, summon both the parties to appear before him, by themselves or their attorneys, at some convenient time and place appointed by him, for the purpose of nominating a special jury (not being less than five nor more than eight days from the service of such summons); and at the place and time so appointed the sheriff shall proceed to nominate and strike a special jury, in the manner in which such juries shall be required by the laws for the time being in force to be nominated or struck by the proper officers of the superior courts, and the sheriff shall appoint a day, not later than the eighth day after striking of such jury, for the parties or their agents to appear before him to reduce the number of such jury, and thereof shall give four days notice to the parties; and on the day so appointed the sheriff shall proceed to reduce the said special jury to the number of twenty in the manner used and accustomed by the proper officers of the superior courts (a).

(a) Form of warrant for special jury, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts"; Form of notice of time and place of nomination, ibid.

The special jury must be summoned if notice is given within twenty-one days limited by s. 68 without any further extension of time (Glyn v. Aberdare Valley Rail. Co. (1859), 6 C. B. (N. S.) 359).

Deficiency of special jurymen.

55. The special jury on such inquiry shall consist of twelve of the said twenty who shall first appear on the names being called over, the parties having their lawful challenges against any of the said jurymen; and if a full jury do not appear, or if after such challenges a full jury do not remain, then, upon the application of either party, the sheriff shall add to the list of such jury the names of any other disinterested persons qualified to act as special or common jurymen, who shall not have been previously struck off the aforesaid list, and who may then be attending the court, or can speedily be procured, so as to complete such jury, all parties having their lawful challenges against such persons; and the sheriff shall proceed to the trial and adjudication of the matters in question by such jury; and such trial shall be attended in all respects with the like incidents and consequences, and the like penalties shall be applicable, as hereinbefore provided in the case of a trial by common jury.

Other inquiries before same special jury by consent.

56. Any other inquiry than that for the trial of which such special jury may have been struck and reduced as aforesaid may be tried by such jury, provided the parties thereto respectively shall give their consent to such trial.

Jurymen not to attend more than once a year.

57. No jurymen shall, without his consent, be summoned or required to attend any such proceeding as aforesaid more than once in any year.

58. The purchase-money or compensation to be paid for any lands to be purchased or taken by the promoters of the undertaking from any party who, by reason of absence from the kingdom, is prevented from treating, or who cannot after diligent inquiry be found, or who shall not appear at the time appointed for the inquiry before the jury as hereinbefore provided for, after due notice thereof, and the compensation to be paid for any permanent injury to such lands, shall be such as shall be determined by the valuation of such able practicable surveyor as two justices shall nominate for that purpose as hereinafter mentioned.

Section 58.

Compensation to absent parties to be determined by a surveyor appointed by two justices.

59. Upon application (a) by the promoters of the undertaking to two justices, and upon such proof as shall be satisfactory to them that any such party is, by reason of absence from the kingdom, prevented from treating, or cannot after diligent inquiry be found, or that any such party fail to appear on such inquiry before a jury as aforesaid, after due notice to him for that purpose, such justices shall, by writing under their hands (b), nominate an able practicable surveyor for determining such compensation as aforesaid, and such surveyor shall determine the same accordingly, and shall annex to his valuation a declaration in writing, subscribed by him, of the correctness thereof.

Two justices to nominate a surveyor.

(a) Form of application, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

(b) Form of nomination, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, ubi supra. This need not specify the lands to be valued (Poynder v. G. N. Rail. Co. (1847), 16 Sim. 3; 16 L. J. Ch. 444; 11 Digest 220, 1049).

60. Before such surveyor shall enter upon the duty of making such valuation as aforesaid he shall, in the presence of such justices, or one of them, make and subscribe the declaration following at the foot of such nomination; (that is to say,)

Declaration to be made by the surveyor.

"I A. B. do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I will faithfully, impartially, and honestly, according to the best of my skill and ability, execute the duty of making the valuation hereby referred to me.

" A. B.

"Made and subscribed in the presence of . . ."

And if any surveyor shall corruptly make such declaration, or having made such declaration shall wilfully act contrary thereto, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

61. The said nomination and declaration shall be annexed to the valuation to be made by such surveyor, and shall be preserved together therewith by the promoters of the undertaking, and they shall at all times produce the said valuation and other documents, on demand, to the owner of the lands comprised in such valuation, and to all other parties interested therein.

Valuation, etc. to be produced to the owner of the lands on demand.

62. All the expenses of and incident to every such valuation shall be borne by the promoters of the undertaking.

Expenses to be borne by promoters.

63. In estimating the purchase-money or compensation to be paid by the promoters of the undertaking, in any of the cases aforesaid, regard shall be had by the justices, arbitrators, or surveyors, as the case may be, not only to the value of the land to be purchased or taken by the promoters of the undertaking, but also to the damage, if any, to be sustained by the owner of the lands by reason of the severing of the lands taken from the other lands of such owner, or otherwise injuriously affecting such other lands by the exercise of the powers of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith (a).

Purchase-money and compensation, how to be estimated.

Note to
Section 63.

(a) Compensation under this section may be awarded in one sum (In re Bradshaw (1848), 12 Q. B. 562; 11 Digest 190, 703). It must always be assessed on the basis of the value to the particular claimant of the lands taken or injuriously affected (Bailey v. Isle of Thanet Light Rails. Co., [1900] 1 Q. B. 722), and not with reference to the value to the persons taking them, see Stebbing v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1870), L. R. 6 Q. B. 37; 35 J. P. 437; 7 Digest 550, 284 (churchyard). The latter case was cited as an authority to show that when a public body compelled a man to part with his property for public purposes, they ought to pay him what the property was worth to him because he was not a willing seller, and Keeble v. J., upheld this contention (In re Smart and Stepney Borough Council (1903), 25 M. C. C. 56). See also Re Morgan and L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1896] 2 Q. B. 469 (public park); Trent-Stoughton v. Barbados Water Supply Co., [1893] A. C. 502; 43 Digest 1069, k (streams of water); Re Gough and Aspatria, Silloth and District Joint Water Board, [1904] 1 K. B. 417; 68 J. P. 229; 11 Digest 127, 168; Re Tynemouth Corporation and Duke of Northumberland (1903), 67 J. P. 425; 89 L. T. 557; Re Lucas and Chesterfield Gas and Water Board, [1909] 1 K. B. 16; 72 J. P. 437; 11 Digest 127, 169 (land for reservoir); City and South London Rail. Co. v. United Parishes of St. Mary Woolnoth and St. Mary Woolchurch Haw, [1905] A. C. 1; 69 J. P. 101; 11 Digest 125, 159 (site of church). See also as to "special adaptability," Cedars Rapids. etc. Co. v. La Coste, [1914] A. C. 569; 30 T. L. R. 293; 11 Digest 130, 187; Sidney v. N. E. Ry., [1914] 3 K. B. 629; 11 Digest 128, 171. These cases were considered in Fraser v. Fraserville City, [1917] A. C. 187; 11 Digest 124, e. It was there decided that the value to be ascertained is the value to the seller of his property in its actual condition at the time of expropriation with all its existing advantages, and with all its possibilities, excluding any advantage due to the carrying out of the scheme for which the property is compulsorily acquired, the question of what is the scheme being a question of fact for the arbitrator in each case. See also Pastoral Finance Association v. The Minister, [1914] A. C. 1083; 11 Digest 127, n, as to the elements to be considered in ascertaining the value of the land to the seller. And on the same question see per Eve, J., in Re S. E. Ry. and L. C. Co., [1915] 2 Ch. at p. 258; 11 Digest 124, 156. A claim for disturbance of business cannot be made where the value of the land is estimated by reference to its value as building land available for development (Horn v. Sunderland Corporation, [1941] 2 K. B. 26; [1941] 1 All E. R. 480). The Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2 (3), post, p. 5217, which provides for the assessment of compensation in respect of lands acquired compulsorily for public purposes, provides that the special suitability or adaptability of the land for any purpose shall not be taken into account if that purpose is a purpose to which it could be applied only in pursuance of statutory powers, or for which there is no market apart from the special needs of a particular purchaser, or the requirements of any Government Department or any local or public authority; provided that any bona fide offer for the purchase of the land made before the passing of the Act which may be brought to the notice of the arbitrator, shall be taken into consideration. And see, as to the effect of this clause, Percival v. Peterborough Corporation, [1921] 1 K. B. 414; 85 J. P. 77; 11 Digest 128, 173; Metropolitan Water Board v. Berton, [1921] 1 Ch. 299; 36 T. L. R. 834.

As to the compensation payable in respect of land held subject to restrictions, see Corrie v. MacDermott, [1914] A. C. 1056; 11 Digest 124, 157. And as to the case where the owner holds adjoining properties of which part of one only is acquired, see S. E. Rail. Co. v. L. C. Co., ante, p. 4113.

Compensation is payable under this section in respect of land not taken which is the property of a person some of whose other land is taken, but which is separated from the land taken by intervening land belonging to other owners, e.g., a line of railway (Cowper Essez v. Acton L. B. (1888), 14 App. Cas. 153; 53 J. P. 756; 11 Digest 135, 216). The case last mentioned was distinguished in Holditch v. Canadian Northern Ontario Ry., [1916] 1 A. C. 536; 11 Digest 131, z. So where windows were obstructed, some of which were ancient lights and some not, it was held that compensation must be paid in respect of the whole (Re L. T. & S. Rail. Co. and Gower's Walk Schools (Trustees) (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 326; 11 Digest 144, 287). But no compensation is payable in respect of land not taken where no other land belonging to the claimant is taken or used for the purposes of the undertaking (Horton v. Colwyn Bay and Colwyn U. D. C., [1908] 1 K. B. 327; 72 J. P. 57; 11 Digest 135, 223; R. v. Mountford, [1906] 2 K. B. 814; 70 J. P. 511; 11 Digest 135, 219), unless there is a special agreement to that effect (Re L. & N. W. Rail. Co. and Reddaway (1907), 71 J. P. 150; 23 T. L. R. 279).

See also as to damage by severance, R. v. Brown (1867), L. R. 2 Q. B. 630; 32 J. P. 54; 11 Digest 125, 160; Re Gonty and Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Rail. Co., [1896] 2 Q. B. 439; 11 Digest 131, 197; Ripley v. G. N. Rail. Co. (1875), 10 Ch. App. 435; 11 Digest 126, 161.

64. When the compensation payable in respect of any lands, or any interest therein, shall have been ascertained by the valuation of a surveyor, and deposited in the Bank under the provisions herein contained, by reason that the owner of or party entitled to convey such lands or such interest therein as aforesaid could not be found or was absent from the kingdom, if such owner or party shall be dissatisfied with such valuation it shall be lawful for him, before he shall have applied to the Court of Chancery for payment or investment of the moneys so deposited under the provisions herein contained, by notice in writing (a) to the promoters of the undertaking, to require the question of such compensation to be submitted to arbitration, and thereupon the same shall be so submitted accordingly, in the same manner as in other cases of disputed compensation hereinbefore authorised or required to be submitted to arbitration.

Section 64.

determined by a surveyor, the party may have the same submitted to arbitration.

(a) Form of notice, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

65. The question to be submitted to the arbitrators in the case last aforesaid shall be, whether the said sum so deposited as aforesaid by the promoters of the undertaking was a sufficient sum, or whether any and what further sum ought to be paid or deposited by them.

Question to be submitted to the arbitrators.

66. If the arbitrators shall award that a further sum ought to be paid or deposited by the promoters of the undertaking, they shall pay or deposit, as the case may require, such further sum within fourteen days after the making of such award, or in default thereof the same may be enforced by attachment, or recovered, with costs, by action or suit in any of the superior courts.

If further sum awarded promoters to pay or deposit same within fourteen days.

67. If the arbitrators shall determine that the sum so deposited was sufficient, the costs of and incident to such arbitration, to be determined by the arbitrators, shall be in the discretion of the arbitrators; but if the arbitrators shall determine that a further sum ought to be paid or deposited by the promoters of the undertaking, all the costs of and incident to the arbitration shall be borne by the promoters of the undertaking.

Costs of the arbitration.

68. If any party shall be entitled to any compensation in respect of any lands, or of any interest therein, which shall have been taken for or injuriously affected (a) by the execution of the works, and for which the promoters of the undertaking shall not have made satisfaction under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, and if the compensation claimed in such case shall exceed the sum of fifty pounds, such party may have the same settled either by arbitration or by the verdict of a jury, as he shall think fit; and if such party desire to have the same settled by arbitration, it shall be lawful for him to give notice in writing (b) to the promoters of the undertaking of such his desire, stating in such notice the nature of the interest in such lands in respect of which he claims compensation, and the amount of the compensation so claimed therein; and unless the promoters of the undertaking be willing to pay the amount of compensation so claimed, and shall enter into a written agreement for that purpose within twenty-one days after the receipt of any such notice from any party so entitled, the same shall be settled by arbitration in the manner herein provided; or if the party so entitled as aforesaid desire to have such question of compensation settled by jury, it shall be lawful for him to give notice in writing of such his desire to the promoters of the undertaking, stating such particulars as aforesaid, and unless the promoters of the undertaking be willing to pay the amount of compensation so claimed, and enter into a written agreement for that purpose, they shall, within twenty-one days after the receipt of such notice, issue their warrant to the sheriff to summon a jury for settling the same in the manner herein provided, and in default thereof they shall be liable to pay to the party so entitled as aforesaid the amount of compensation so claimed, and the same may be recovered by him, with costs, by action in any of the superior courts (c).

Compensation to be settled by arbitration or jury, at the option of the party claiming compensation.

Note to
Section 68.

(a) The damage awarded under this section must be damage in respect of which an action would have lain but for the statutory powers justifying it, and must arise from the execution of the works, not from the use of them when executed (Ricket v. Metropolitan Rail. Co. (1867), L. R. 2 H. L. 175; 31 J. P. 484; 11 Digest 140, 265; Hammersmith Rail. Co. v. Brand (1869), L. R. 4 H. L. 171; 34 J. P. 36; 11 Digest 106, 28; E. v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 358; 33 J. P. 710; 11 Digest 142, 271; Metropolitan Board of Works v. McCarthy (1874), L. R. 7 H. L. 243; 38 J. P. 820; 11 Digest 142, 272; Buccleuch (Duke) v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1872), L. R. 5 H. L. 418; 36 J. P. 724; 11 Digest 134, 215; Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Walker's Trustees (1881), 7 App. Cas. 259; 46 J. P. 676; 11 Digest 140, 259; Canadian Pacific Co. Rail. v. Roy, [1902] A. C. 220; 38 Digest 27, 142; but see University College, Oxford v. Secretary of State for Air, [1938] 1 K. B. 648; [1938] 1 All E. R. 69; Digest Supp. For the numerous cases decided upon this section reference should be made to Browne and Allan on Compensation.

Work executed on land appropriated under s. 163 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 989, is to be deemed for purposes of this section to have been authorised by the enactment or statutory order under which the land was acquired (s. 163 (2), ibid., ante, p. 992).

A county council, in the exercise of statutory powers, compulsorily acquired from a freeholder one-third of his land upon which two cottages were standing. This part of the premises constituted a strip thereof fronting a public road. The freeholder elected to retain the remaining two-thirds of his property. The council also acquired the leasehold interest in the whole of the property and pulled down all the cottages and not merely the two which stood on the strip. Upon action by the freeholder to enforce his right of re-entry and for damages for breach of covenants, it was held that the remedy by compensation under this section was not applicable as the damage was not the result of the proper exercise of statutory powers (Piggott v. Middlesex C. C., [1909] 1 Ch. 134; 72 J. P. 461; 31 Digest 430, 5754). Compensation can only be awarded in respect of an interest in lands, therefore a contract merely giving exclusive personal rights cannot be the basis of a claim for compensation (Warr & Co., Ltd. v. L. C. C., [1904] 1 K. B. 713; 68 J. P. 335; 11 Digest 124, 155; Walton Harvey, Ltd. v. Walker and Homfrays, Ltd., [1931] 1 Ch. 145; 29 L. G. R. 64).

A house may have a special value, e.g., a hotel or public-house, and if so, the owner is entitled to be compensated for depreciation in value of the house as having that special value (Re Wadham and N. E. Rail. Co. (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 227; 49 J. P. 599; 11 Digest 141, 266).

As to compensation for the right of a local authority to access to a sewer, see Birkenhead Corporation v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 572; 50 J. P. 84; 41 Digest 20, 156. But see also Thurrock, Grays, etc. Sewerage Board v. Goldsmith (1914), 79 J. P. 17; 41 Digest 20, 157, where that case was distinguished, and see as to the application of the Acquisition of Land, etc., Act, 1919, post, p. 5215, to the assessment of compensation for laying a sewer in private land under s. 16, P. H. A., 1875 (now repealed), Thurrock, Grays, etc. Sewerage Board v. Thames Land Co. (1925), 90 J. P. 1; 23 L. G. R. 648; Digest Supp.

Compensation is payable for injuriously affecting land during the execution of the works if the injury is sufficient to lessen the value of the property (Ford v. Metropolitan Rail. Co. (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 12; 50 J. P. 661; 11 Digest 143, 276).

As to compensation for a subsequent alteration in the construction of the works, see Att.-Gen. v. Metropolitan Rail. Co., [1894] 1 Q. B. 384; 58 J. P. 348; 38 Digest 49, 235.

As to compensation for cutting off access to houses, see Furness Rail. Co. v. Cumberland Co-operative Society (1885), 49 J. P. 292; 11 Digest 139, 258, and cf. Re G. N. Rail. Co. and London C. C. (1907), 72 J. P. 1; 98 L. T. 116; 11 Digest 131, 194.

As to compensation for injuriously affecting ancient lights, when the Act authorised the purchase of easements, see Wigram v. Fryer (1887), 36 Ch. D. 87; 42 Digest 666, 772.

Where a lessee, pursuant to a power in his lease, determined his lease before injury had actually been done to him, it was held that he could not recover compensation by reason of his having had to remove to other premises (R. v. Poulter (1887), 20 Q. B. D. 132; 52 J. P. 244; 11 Digest 149, 323). If the reversion expectant on the determination of a lease is acquired by arrangement, but the lessee's interest is not acquired, and he is afterwards injuriously affected by the works, his remedy for breach of the covenant for quiet enjoyment is by compensation, not by action (Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire Rail. Co. v. Anderson, [1898] 2 Ch. 394; 11 Digest 146, 299). The mere probability of the continuance of a tenancy without disturbance is not ground for compensation (Lynch v. Glasgow Corporation (1903), 5 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 1154; 11 Digest 276, 2040 ii).

For a case of "injuriously affecting," by reason of dealing with a highway, so as to divert the traffic, see Metropolitan Board of Works v. Howard (1887), 5 T. L. R. 732; and as to interfering with a private occupation road, see Barnard v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1902), 36 J. P. 568; 86 L. T. N. S. 798; and as to interference with a private wharf, see Hewett v. Essex C. C. (1928), 138 L. T. 742.

As to injuriously affecting mills by taking water, see Page v. Kettering Waterworks Co. (1892), 8 T. L. R. 228. A contention that this section could not apply in the case of acquisition of land was rejected in Wright v. Air Council (1929), 143 L. T. 43; Digest Supp.

An option to purchase is an interest in land within this section (Oppenheimer v. Minister of Transport, [1942] 1 K. B. 242; [1941] 3 All E. R. 485).

As to compensation in respect of reserved water rights, see Re Simeon and Isle of Wight R. D. C., [1937] Ch. 525; [1937] 3 All E. R. 149; Digest Supp.

Compensation is not payable in respect of loss of profits where part of a building estate is acquired by a local authority (George Wimpey & Co., Ltd. v. Middlesex C. C., [1938] 3 All E. R. 781; Digest Supp.).

(b) Form of notice, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. IX., title "Lands and Railways Clauses Consolidation Acts".

(c) A claim for compensation under this section is capable of assignment (Dawson v. G. N. Rail. Co., [1905] 1 K. B. 260; 69 J. P. 29; 8 Digest 432, 96). The period within which an action may be brought is six years from the date of the award (Turner v. Midland Rail. Co., [1911] 1 K. B. 832; 75 J. P. 283; 32 Digest 327, 133).

And with respect to the purchase money or compensation coming to parties having limited interests, or prevented from treating, or not making title, be it enacted as follows :

Note to Section 68.

Application of compensation.

69. If the purchase money or compensation which shall be payable in respect of any lands, or any interest therein, purchased or taken by the promoters of the undertaking from any corporation, tenant for life or in tail, married woman seised in her own right or entitled to dower, guardian, committee of lunatic or idiot, trustee, executor or administrator, or person having a partial or qualified interest only in such lands, and not entitled to sell or convey the same except under the provisions of this or the special Act, or the compensation to be paid for any permanent damage to any such lands, amount to or exceed the sum of two hundred pounds, the same shall be paid into the Bank, in the name and with the privity of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery (b) to be placed to the account there of such Accountant-General, ex parte the promoters of the undertaking, (describing them by their proper name,) in the matter of the special Act, (citing it,) pursuant to the method prescribed by any Act for the time being in force for regulating moneys paid into the said courts; and such moneys shall remain so deposited until the same be applied to some one or more of the following purposes; (that is to say,)

Purchase money or compensation payable to parties under disability (a) amounting to £200 to be deposited in the Bank.

In the purchase or redemption of the land tax (c), or the discharge of any debt or incumbrance affecting the land in respect of which such money shall have been paid, or affecting other lands settled therewith to the same or the like uses, trusts, or purposes (d); or moneys deposited*

In the purchase of other lands to be conveyed, limited, and settled upon the like uses, trusts, and purposes, and in the same manner, as the lands in respect of which such money shall have been paid stood settled (e); or

If such money shall be paid in respect of any buildings taken under the authority of this or the special Act, or injured by proximity of the works, in removing or replacing such buildings, or substituting others in their stead, in such manner as the Court of Chancery shall direct (f); or

In payment to any party becoming absolutely entitled to such money (g).

(a) See note (a) to s. 7, on p. 4108, ante.

(b) Now the Accountant-General of the Supreme Court (Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, s. 133; 4 Halsbury's Statutes 183). Some words are here repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1892.

Where purchase money or compensation payable under Part VII. of the L. G. A., 1933, by a local authority in respect of land acquired from another local authority, would, but for s. 177 of that Act, be required to be paid into court under this section, such money may, if the M. of H. consents, instead of being paid into court be paid and applied as the Minister may determine (L. G. A., 1933, s. 177 (1), ante, p. 1004).

(c) A tenant for life having redeemed before the passing of the special Act may be reimbursed (Ex parte Northwick (1834), 1 Y. & C. Ex. 166; 30 Digest 312, 124). Costs of the purchase or redemption are chargeable on the promoters under s. 80, post, p. 4132. (Re L. B. & S. C. Rail. Co. (1854), 18 Beav. 608).

It is in the discretion of the court whether money will be ordered to be paid out to trustees of settled lands (In re Smith (1888), 40 Ch. D. 386; 11 Digest 245, 1445). The purchase-money of lands allotted by an inclosure award to the surveyor of highways for road materials was, subject to the consent of the L. G. But see Ex parte Waitford U. D. C. (1914), 78 J. P. N. 160. An apportionment cannot be made under this section between a tenant for life and remainderman (Re Robinson's Settlement Trusts, [1891] 3 Ch. 129).

application and investment
meanwhile.

70. Such money may be so applied as aforesaid upon an order of the Court of Chancery made on the petition of the party who would have been entitled to the rents and profits of the lands in respect of which such money shall have been deposited; and until the money can be so applied it may, upon the like order, be invested by the said Accountant-General in the purchase of Three Per Centum Consolidated or Three Per Centum Reduced Bank Annuities, or in Government or real securities, and the interest, dividends, and annual proceeds thereof paid to the party who would for the time being have been entitled to the rents and profits of the lands (a).

(a) It may also be invested in any securities in which cash under the control of the court may be invested (Ex parte St. John Baptist College, Oxford (1882), 22 Ch. D. 93; 11 Digest 236, 1272). See R. S. C., Order XXVI., r. 17. As to the costs of investments, see s. 80, post, p. 4132, and notes thereto.

71. If such purchase money or compensation shall not amount to the sum of two hundred pounds, and shall exceed the sum of twenty pounds, the same shall either be paid into the Bank, and applied in the manner hereinbefore directed with respect to sums amounting to or exceeding two hundred pounds, or the same may lawfully be paid to two trustees, to be nominated by the parties entitled to the rents or profits of the lands in respect whereof the same shall be payable, such nomination to be signified by writing under the hands of the party so entitled; and in case of the coverture, infancy, lunacy, or other incapacity of the parties entitled to such moneys, such nomination may lawfully be made by their respective husbands, guardians, committees, or trustees; but such last-mentioned application of the moneys shall not be made unless the promoters of the undertaking approve thereof, and of the trustees named for the purpose; and the moneys so paid to such trustees, and the produce arising therefrom, shall be by such trustees applied in the manner hereinbefore directed with respect to money paid into the Bank, but it shall not be necessary to obtain any order of the Court for that purpose (a).

Section 71.

Sums from £20 to £200 to be deposited, or paid to trustees.

(a) Under this section, where a sum of £34 had been paid into court, payment out was directed to be made to a tenant for life who undertook to spend it in permanent improvements (Ex parte Smith, Re Kells Union Guardians (1888), 21 L. R. Ir. 346; 11 Digest 241, 1367 i).

72. If such money shall not exceed the sum of twenty pounds, the same shall be paid to the parties entitled to the rents and profits of the lands in respect whereof the same shall be payable, for their own use and benefit; or in case of the coverture, infancy, idiotcy, lunacy, or other incapacity of any such parties, then such money shall be paid, for their use, to the respective husbands, guardians, committees, or trustees of such persons.

Sums not exceeding £20 to be paid to parties.

73. All sums of money exceeding twenty pounds which may be payable by the promoters of the undertaking in respect of the taking, using, or interfering with any lands under a contract or agreement with any person who shall not be entitled to dispose of such lands, or of the interest therein contracted to be sold by him, absolutely for his own benefit, shall be paid into the Bank or to trustees in manner aforesaid; and it shall not be lawful for any contracting party not entitled as aforesaid to retain to his own use any portion of the sums so agreed or contracted to be paid for or in respect of the taking, using, or interfering with any such lands, or in lieu of bridges, tunnels or other accommodation works, or for assenting to or not opposing the passing of the Bill authorising the taking of such lands, but all such moneys shall be deemed to have been contracted to be paid for and on account of the several parties interested in such lands, as well in possession as in remainder, reversion, or expectancy: Provided (a) always, that it shall be in the discretion of the Court of Chancery, or the said trustees, as the case may be, to allot to any tenant for life, or for any other partial or qualified estate, for his own use, a portion of the sum so paid into the Bank or to such trustees as aforesaid, as compensation for any injury, inconvenience, or annoyance which he may be considered to sustain, independently of the actual value of the lands to be taken, and of the damage occasioned to the lands held therewith, by reason of the taking of such lands and the making of the works.

All sums payable under contract with persons not absolutely entitled, to be paid into Bank or to trustees.

(a) For an instance of the application of this proviso, see Re Saunderton Glebe Lands, Ex parte Saunderton (Rector), [1903] 1 Ch. 480.

74. Where any purchase money or compensation paid into the Bank under the provisions of this or the special Act shall have been paid in respect of any lease for a life or lives or years, or for a life or lives and years, or any estate

Court of Chancery may direct application of money

Section 74. in lands less than the whole fee simple thereof, or of any reversion dependent on any such lease or estate, it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery, on the petition of any party interested in such money, to order that the same shall be laid out, invested, accumulated, and paid in such manner as the said court may consider will give to the parties interested in such money the same benefit therefrom as they might lawfully have had from the lease, estate, or reversion in respect of which such money shall have been paid, or as near thereto as may be (a).

in respect of leases or reversions as they may think just.

(a) See Re Barrington, Gamlen v. Lyon (1886), 33 Ch. D. 523; 34 Digest 631, 280. This case was discussed and distinguished in Re Robinson's Settlement Trusts, [1891] 3 Ch. 129. A lessor having a right of re-entry in respect of non-payment of rent was held to be a person interested in compensation to the lessee paid into court, such right being an incumbrance on the leasehold interest (Re London Street, Greenwich (1888), 57 L. T. 673).

Upon deposit being made, the owners of the lands to convey, or in default the lands to vest in taking upon a deed poll being executed.

75. Upon deposit in the Bank in manner hereinbefore provided of the purchase money or compensation agreed or awarded to be paid in respect of any lands purchased or taken by the promoters of the undertaking under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, the owner of such lands, including in such term all parties by this Act enabled to sell or convey lands, shall, when required so to do by the promoters of the undertaking, duly convey such lands to the promoters of the undertaking, or as they shall direct; and in default thereof, or if he fail to adduce a good title to such lands to their satisfaction, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll under their common seal if they be a corporation, or if they be not a corporation, under the hands and seals of the promoters, or any two of them, containing a description of the lands in respect of which such default shall be made, and reciting the purchase or taking thereof by the promoters of the undertaking, and the names of the parties from whom the same were purchased or taken, and the deposit made in respect thereof, and declaring the fact of such default having been made, and such deed poll shall be stamped with the stamp duty which would have been payable upon a conveyance to the promoters of the undertaking of the lands described therein; and thereupon all the estate and interest in such lands of or capable of being sold and conveyed by the party between whom and the promoters of the undertaking such agreement shall have been come to, or as between whom and the promoters of the undertaking such purchase money or compensation shall have been determined by a jury, or by arbitrators, or by a surveyor appointed by two justices, as herein provided, and shall have been deposited as aforesaid, shall vest absolutely in the promoters of the undertaking; and as against such parties, and all parties on behalf of whom they are herein-before enabled to sell and convey, the promoters of the undertaking shall be entitled to immediate possession of such lands (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 160 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 979, as to the effect of this section where owners cannot give a good title. The promoters are bound both under the ordinary law of specific performance, and, where the property is not vested in them by the special Act, also by s. 12 of the Finance Act, 1895, to take a conveyance which must be settled by the court if the parties differ (Re Cary-Elwes' Contract, [1906] 2 Ch. 143; 70 J. P. 345; 17 Digest 232, 470). In a case decided under Michael Angelo Taylor's Act, 1817, it was held that a vendor is entitled to have the dimensions of the property inserted in the conveyance (Monighetti v. Wandsworth Borough Council (1908), 73 J. P. 91; 40 Digest 277, 2414).

Where parties refuse to convey or do not show title, or

refuse to accept the same, or neglect or fail to make out a title to such lands, or to the interest therein claimed by him, to the satisfaction of the promoters of the undertaking, or if he refuse to convey or release such lands as directed by the promoters of the undertaking, or if any such owner be absent from the Kingdom, or cannot after diligent inquiry be found, or fail to appear on the inquiry before a jury, as herein provided for, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to deposit the purchase money or compensation payable in respect of such lands, or any interest therein, in the Bank, in the name and with the privity of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery (a), to be placed, except in the cases herein otherwise provided for, to his account there, to the credit of the parties interested in such lands, (describing them, so far as the promoters of the undertaking can do,) subject to the control and disposition of the said court (b).

77. Upon any such deposit of money as last aforesaid being made the cashier of the Bank shall give to the promoters of the undertaking, or to the party paying in such money by their direction, a receipt for such money, specifying therein for what and for whose use (described as aforesaid) the same shall have been received, and in respect of what purchase the same shall have been paid in; and it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, under their common seal if they be a corporation, or if they be not a corporation under the hands and seals of the said promoters, or any two of them, containing a description of the lands in respect whereof such deposit shall have been made, and declaring the circumstances under which and the names of the parties to whose credit such deposit shall have been made, and such deed poll shall be stamped with the stamp duty which would have been payable upon a conveyance to the promoters of the undertaking of the lands described therein; and thereupon all the estate and interest in such lands of the parties for whose use and in respect whereof such purchase money or compensation shall have been deposited shall vest absolutely in the promoters of the undertaking, and as against such parties they shall be entitled to immediate possession of such lands.

Upon deposit being made a receipt to be given, and the lands to vest in the promoters upon a deed poll being executed.

78. Upon the application by petition of any party making claim to the money so deposited as last aforesaid, or any part thereof, or to the lands in respect whereof the same shall have been so deposited, or any part of such lands, or any interest in the same, the said Court of Chancery may, in a summary way, as to such court shall seem fit, order such money to be laid out or invested in the public funds, or may order distribution thereof, or payment of the dividends thereof, according to the respective estates, titles, or interests of the parties making claim to such money or lands, or any part thereof, and may make such other order in the premises as to such court shall seem fit (a).

(a) See Ex parte Chamberlain (1880), 14 Ch. D. 323, which was followed in Re Harris, Hansler v. Harris, [1909] W. N. 181. In the latter case it was held that a person showing title by adverse possession for twelve years after the expiration of a long term of years to land taken under the Lands Clauses Act will, in the absence of any valid claim by the reversioner, be deemed to be the owner of the land and entitled to the payment out of the purchase-money. As to the right to the value of a reversion after the expiration of a term when the reversioner is unknown, see Gedye v. Commissioners of Works, [1891] 2 Ch. 630; 11 Digest 242, 1384; Re Harris, Ex parte London C. C., [1901] 1 Ch. 931.

Costs in cases
deposited (d).

80. In all cases of moneys deposited in the Bank under the provisions of this or the special Act, or an Act incorporated therewith, except (a) where such moneys shall have been so deposited by reason of the wilful refusal (b) of any party entitled thereto to receive the same (c), or to convey or release the lands in respect whereof the same shall be payable, or by reason of the wilful neglect of any party to make out a good title to the land required, it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery to order the costs of the following matters, including therein all reasonable charges and expenses incident thereto, to be paid by the promoters of the undertaking; (that is to say,) the costs of the purchase or taking (d) of the lands, or which shall have been incurred in consequence thereof, other than such costs as are herein otherwise provided for, and the costs of the investment of such moneys in Government or real securities (e), and of the re-investment thereof in the purchase of other lands (f), and also the costs of obtaining the proper orders (g) for any of the purposes aforesaid, and of the orders for the payment of the dividends and interest of the securities upon which such moneys shall be invested, and for the payment out of court of the principal of such moneys, or of the securities whereon the same shall be invested, and of all proceedings relating thereto, except such as are occasioned by litigation between adverse claimants (h): Provided always, that the costs of one application only for re-investment in land shall be allowed, unless it shall appear to the Court of Chancery that it is for the benefit of the parties interested in the said moneys that the same should be invested in the purchase of lands in different sums and at different times, in which case it shall be lawful for the court, if it think fit, to order the costs of any such investments to be paid by the promoters of the undertaking.

Section 80.

(a) The court has now, by virtue of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, s. 50; 13 Halsbury's Statutes 216 (re-enacting Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1890, s. 5), a discretionary power to order payment of costs in the excepted cases (In re Schmarr, [1902] 1 Ch. 326; 11 Digest 255, 1607).

(c) See Re Leeds Grammar School, [1901] 1 Ch. 228; 65 J. P. 88; In re Dublin Corporation and Baker, [1912] 1 I. R. 498.

(d) See note (g), ante, p. 4128, and note (a) to s. 82, post, p. 4134. Where the promoters avail themselves of this section and pay money into court they must bear all the costs of the legal steps necessary to be taken by the claimants in order to get the money paid to them. See In re Lloyd and North London Ry. (City Branch) Act, 1861, [1896] 2 Ch. 397; In re Griggs, Ex parte London School Board, [1914] 2 Ch. 547; 80 J. P. 35; 23 Digest 66, 492.

(e) See Charlton v. Rolleston (1884), 28 Ch. D. 237; and as to costs of brokerage, see In re Gaslee, [1901] 1 Ch. 923; Re Magdalen College, Oxford, [1901] 2 Ch. 786; 66 J. P. 23. Where a petition is presented for the payment out of court of two funds of unequal value representing the purchase-money of lands acquired by two railway companies respectively, the brokerage on selling the two funds must be borne by the two companies equally and ought not to be apportioned according to the relative amounts of the two funds (Ex parte Emmanuel Hospital (1908), 24 T. L. R. 261). A petition was presented to obtain payment out of a fund which represented moneys paid into court by a railway company under this section and asked further for the payment out of another fund representing proceeds of enfranchisement of copyholds, and that the costs of the petitioner and all other necessary parties might be taxed and paid by the railway company, except such amount of the costs as should be certified as arising from the inclusion in the petition of the fund representing the enfranchisement of the copyholds. It was held that there was no difference between the case and one of an application for re-investment in land, and that the order asked for as to costs was a proper one (In re Lynn and Fakenham Railway Extension Act, 1880, [1909] W. N. 24; 73 J. P. 163; 11 Digest 268, 1895).

R. 442.

(g) Where a summons is only partly successful the costs payable by the promoters must be confined to the costs of obtaining the particular order which is made (In re Jacobs, Baldwin v. Pescott, [1908] 2 Ch. 691). Where schools had been taken, the costs of settling a new scheme for applying the purchase-money in buying a new site and erecting fresh schools were held too remote to be recoverable under this provision (Re St. Paul's Schools, Finsbury (1883), 52 L. J. Ch. 454). But compare Re Butchers' Co. (1885), 53 L. T. 491. Where a local authority in pursuance of the compulsory powers conferred on them by the Act take land belonging to a charity, and as a direct result the trustees of the charity apply to the Charity Commissioners for a scheme for the regulation of the charity, the costs of the trustees so incurred are payable by the local authority (In re Wood Green Gospel Hall Charity, Ex parte Middlesex C. C., [1909] 1 Ch. 263). The allowance of two fees for attendance before the Accountant-General, on an application under the Supreme Court Funds Rules, 1905, rr. 34, 35, for payment out of funds paid in under the Act, which originated when under the practice in Chancery under the old consolidated orders it was necessary for the solicitor to attend both before the Registrar and also before the Accountant-General, was held to be common form to-day and such fees were accordingly allowed (In re Butler's Will, Ex parte Metropolitan Board of Works, [1912] W. N. 50; 106 L. T. 673). See also In re Piggyn, Ex parte Mansfield Rail. Co., [1913] 2 Ch. 326; 43 Digest 795, 2321, as to the persons to be made parties to a petition.

taking, and paid the purchase-money into court in consequence of the title to the land being in dispute. The dispute was subsequently settled without actual litigation. It was held that the costs of the negotiations for the settlement of the dispute as to the title were costs occasioned by adverse litigation within the meaning of the section (In re Hood and In re West Ham Corporation Act, 1902, [1910] W. N. 80; 74 J. P. 179).

Conveyances.

And with respect to the conveyances of lands, be it enacted as follows :

Form of conveyances (a).

81. Conveyances of lands to be purchased under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, may be according to the forms in the Schedules (A.) and (B.) respectively to this Act annexed, or as near thereto as the circumstances of the case will admit, or by deed in any other form which the promoters of the undertaking may think fit; and all conveyances made according to the forms in the said schedules, or as near thereto as the circumstances of the case will admit, shall be effectual to vest the lands thereby conveyed in the promoters of the undertaking, and shall operate to merge all terms of years attendant by express declaration (b), or by construction of law, on the estate or interest so thereby conveyed, and to bar and to destroy all such estates tail, and all other estates, rights, titles, remainders, reversions, limitations, trusts, and interests whatsoever, of and in the lands comprised in such conveyances, which shall have been purchased or compensated for by the consideration therein mentioned; but although terms of years be thereby merged, they shall in equity afford the same protection as if they had been kept on foot, and assigned to a trustee for the promoters of the undertaking to attend the reversion and inheritance.

(a) As to the effect of the statutory form of conveyance, see Caledonian Ry. Co. v. Heriot's Trust, [1915] A. C. 1046. The schedules containing the statutory forms are set out at p. 4155, post.

(b) See s. 5, Law of Property Act, 1925; Vol. V. and 15 Halsbury's Statutes 187.

Costs of conveyances.

82. The costs of all such conveyances shall be borne by the promoters of the undertaking; and such costs shall include all charges and expenses, incurred on the part as well of the seller as of the purchaser, of all conveyances and assurances of any such lands, and of any outstanding terms or interest therein, and of deducing, evidencing, and verifying the title to such lands, terms, or interests, and of making out and furnishing such abstracts and attested copies as the promoters of the undertaking may require, and all other reasonable expenses incident to the investigation, deduction, and verification of such title (a).

(a) Costs of proving their incumbrances were refused to mortgagees of reversionary interests in the funds in court, the mortgages being subsequent to the payment into court (Re Gough's Trusts (1883), 24 Ch. D. 569; 35 Digest 689, 4321). But this decision was dissented from in Re Olive's Estate (1890), 44 Ch. D. 316; 35 Digest 689, 4322. See, as to costs of adverse litigation, Re Outling's Estate, W. N. (1890) 75; Ex parte Cooper (1865), 34 L. J. Ch. 373; 11 L. T. 661; 11 Digest 277, 2044. See, as to the right to costs in the case of a lessor having a right of re-entry in respect of unpaid rent, Re London Street, Greenwich (1887), 57 L. T. 673; in the case of the trustee of a settlement relating to land taken, Re English's Settlement (1888), 39 Ch. D. 556. As to costs of a disentailing deed, see Re Navan and Kingscourt Rail. Co. and Fingall, [1906] 1 I. R. 557; 11 Digest 286, 1851 i. As to the costs of successive orders for payment of dividends, see In re Ryder (1887), 37 Ch. D. 595; 33 Digest 210, 1170. As to costs for purpose of conveyance of copyholds under s. 95 after decease of vendor, see Re Thames Tunnel (Rotherhithe and Ratchiff) Act, 1900, [1908] 1 Ch. 493; 72 J. P. 153; 11 Digest 235 1258, overruling on this point Re London United Tramways Act, 1900, [1906] 1 Ch. 534; and of leaseholds in similar conditions, In re Elementary Education Acts, 1870 and 1873, [1909] 1 Ch. 55; 73 J. P. 22. As to procedure by petition or summons, see Re Hargreave's Trust, Ex parte Bradford Corporation (1888), 58 L. T. 367; Re De Grey's Entailed Estate, W. N. (1887), 241. The undertakers take the risk of having to pay the costs in cases where money in court is dealt with under powers contained in a settlement (Re Brooschoff's Settlement 1889), 42 Ch. D. 250). Undertakers were ordered to pay costs of re-investing consols in which purchase-money had been invested, on their being redeemed by Government (Re Brown (1890), 59 L. J. Ch. 530; 63 L. T. 131; 11 Digest 237, 1273). As to the costs of payment out when there has been a refusal to show title, see Re St. Luke's Vestry, Middlesex, W. N. (1889), 102. As to interest on costs and the form of order, see Re Bird's Estate, W. N. (1889), 182.

The costs of conveyance include costs of taking out letters of administration necessary to make a legal title (Ex parte Keatley (1890), 25 L. R. Ir. 265; 11 Digest 235, 1247 i; Ex parte Kelly (1893), 31 L. R. Ir. 137; 23 Digest 180, o; Ex parte Rorke, [1894] 1 I. R. 146; Re Lloyd and North London Rail. (City Branch) Act, 1861, [1896] 2 Ch. 397; Re Liverpool Improvement Act (1868), L. R. 5 Eq. 282). And see Re Griggs, Ex parte London School Board, [1914] 2 Ch. 547; 80 J. P. 35; 23 Digest 66, 492.

See also s. 42, Law of Property Act, 1925; Vol. V. and 15 Halsbury's Statutes 218.

Note to Section 82.

83. If the promoters of the undertaking and the party entitled to any such costs shall not agree as to the amount thereof, such costs shall be taxed by one of the taxing masters of the Court of Chancery, upon an order of the same court, to be obtained upon petition in a summary way by either of the parties; and the promoters of the undertaking shall pay what the said master shall certify to be due in respect of such costs to the party entitled thereto, or in default thereof the same may be recovered in the same way as any other costs payable under an order of the said court, or the same may be recovered by distress in the manner hereinbefore provided in other cases of costs; and the expense of taxing such costs shall be borne by the promoters of the undertaking, unless upon such taxation one-sixth part of the amount of such costs shall be disallowed, in which case the costs of such taxation shall be borne by the party whose costs shall be so taxed, and the amount thereof shall be ascertained by the said master, and deducted by him accordingly in his certificate of such taxation (a).

costs of conveyances.

(a) The promoters cannot tax these costs after payment (Ex parte Somerville (1883), 23 Ch. D. 167).

Rule 11 of Sched. I., Part 1, of the General Order under the Solicitors Remuneration Act, 1881, does not apply to vendor's costs under this section (In re Stewart (1889), 41 Ch. D. 494; 42 Digest 233, 2663). And see In re Burdekin, [1895] 2 Ch. 136; 11 Digest 236, 1263; In re Middlesex County Light Railways Order, 1903, [1908] W. N. 167.

And with respect to the entry upon lands by the promoters of the undertaking, be it enacted as follows (a):

Entry on lands.

(a) The provisions of this group of sections need not be complied with in the case of land acquired for purposes of the Housing Act. See the Housing Act, 1936, s. 145 (2), ante, p. 1743. See also s. 157, ibid., ante, p. 1750, which gives a power of entry similar to that given by this Act for purposes of the Housing Act. And see the exclusion of this group of sections by the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, s. 13 (5), ante, p. 2029. See also the former Unemployment (Relief Works) Act, 1920, for an even more speedy method of obtaining possession of lands to be compulsorily purchased.

84. The promoters of the undertaking shall not, except by consent of the owners and occupiers, enter upon any lands which shall be required to be purchased or permanently used for the purposes and under the powers of this or the special Act, until they shall either have paid to every party having any interest in such lands, or deposited in the Bank, in the manner herein mentioned, the purchase money or compensation agreed or awarded to be paid to such parties respectively for their respective interests therein: Provided always, that for the purpose merely of surveying and taking levels of such lands, and of probing or boring to ascertain the nature of the soil, and of setting out the line of the works, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, after giving not less than three nor more than fourteen days

price to be made previous to entry, except to survey, etc.

Section 84. notice to the owners or occupiers thereof, to enter upon such lands without previous consent, making compensation for any damage thereby occasioned to the owners or occupiers thereof (a).

(a) It is to be observed that the promoters are empowered to enter upon the lands for the purpose of "probing or boring." They are not apparently enabled to sink and keep open for a time trial holes such as are required by the M. of H. in cases of sewage disposal schemes. A local authority should endeavour in these cases to obtain the consent of the owners and to pay for any damage that may be done. In cases of compulsory purchase, this power of entry for examination of soil does not seem to arise until the compulsory purchase powers in respect of the land have been obtained.

Promoters to be allowed to enter on lands before purchase, on making deposit by way of security and giving bond.

85. Provided also, that if the promoters of the undertaking shall be desirous of entering upon and using any such lands before an agreement shall have been come to or an award made or verdict given for the purchase money or compensation to be paid by them in respect of such lands, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to deposit in the Bank by way of security, as hereinafter mentioned, either the amount of purchase money or compensation claimed by any party interested in or entitled to sell and convey such lands, and who shall not consent to such entry, or such a sum as shall, by a surveyor appointed by two justices in the manner hereinbefore provided (a) in the case of parties who cannot be found, be determined to be the value of such lands (b), or of the interest therein which such party is entitled to or enabled to sell and convey, and also to give to such party a bond, under the common seal of the promoters if they be a corporation, or if they be not a corporation under the hands and seals of the said promoters, or any two of them, with two sufficient sureties, to be approved of by two justices in case the parties differ (c), in a penal sum equal to the sum so to be deposited, conditioned for payment to such party, or for deposit in the Bank for the benefit of the parties interested in such lands as the case may require, under the provisions herein contained, of all such purchase money or compensation as may in manner hereinbefore provided be determined to be payable by the promoters of the undertaking in respect of the lands so entered upon, together with interest thereon at the rate of five pounds per centum per annum from the time of entering on such lands until such purchase money or compensation shall be paid to such party, or deposited in the Bank for the benefit of the parties interested in such lands, under the provisions herein contained; and upon such deposit by way of security being made as aforesaid, and such bond being delivered or tendered to such non-consenting party as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to enter upon and use such lands, without having first paid or deposited the purchase money or compensation in other cases required to be paid or deposited by them before entering upon any lands to be taken by them under the provisions of this or the special Act (d).

(a) Section 59, ante, p. 4123.

(b) Including compensation for severance, etc. (Field v. Carnarvon and Llanberis Rail. Co. (1867), L. R. 5 Eq. 190).

(c) The words in italics are omitted from incorporation into an order made under the L. G. A., 1933, by reason of ibid., Sched. VI., modification 1, ante, p. 1263.

(d) If no actual entry be made after deposit of security, then the lands cannot be considered to have been taken under this section (R. v. Manley Smith (1892), 56 J. P. 729; 67 L. T. 197). As to entry under this section when the time for the execution of the works was about to expire, see Tiverton, etc. Rail. Co. v. Loosemore (1884), 9 App. Cas. 480; 48 J. P. 372; 11 Digest 219, 1035, which was explained and followed in Midland Rail. Co. v. G. W. Rail. Co., [1909] A. C. 445; 38 Digest 263, 70. As to entry on land when the promoters were entitled to acquire only an easement of tunnelling, see Hill v. Midland Rail. Co. (1882), 21 Ch. D. 143; 19 Digest 11, 13.

Under the corresponding section of the Land Clauses Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1845, it was held that where the owner of lands entered upon under that section dispensed with the giving of a bond, he was nevertheless entitled to 5 per cent. interest upon the compensation from the date of the promoters entering upon his land till the compensation was paid; and was entitled to payment of such interest out of the sum deposited by the promoters (West Highland Rail. Co. v. Place (1894), 21 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 576; 11 Digest 231, d).

If lands are taken under this section for an unauthorised purpose the landowner can recover possession with damages for any injury done to the premises (Batson v. London School Board (1903), 67 J. P. 457; 20 T. L. R. 22; 19 Digest 573, 120).

Entry by mistake on lands not included in the notice to treat is a trespass, although notice to treat is subsequently given in respect of such lands (Cardwell v. Midland Rail. Co. 1904), 21 T. L. R. 22; 11 Digest 281, 2101).

Note to
Section 85.

86. The money so to be deposited as last aforesaid shall be paid into the Bank in the name and with the privy of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery (a), to be placed to his account there to the credit of the parties interested in or entitled to sell and convey the lands so to be entered upon, and who shall not have consented to such entry, subject to the control and disposition of the said court; and upon such deposit being made the cashier of the Bank shall give to the promoters of the undertaking, or to the party paying in such money by their direction, a receipt for such money specifying therein for what purpose and to whose credit the same shall have been paid in.

Upon deposit being made cashier to give receipt.

(a) Now the Accountant-General of the Supreme Court (Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, s. 133; 4 Halsbury's Statutes 183).

87. The money so deposited as last aforesaid shall remain in the Bank, by way of security to the parties whose lands shall so have been entered upon for the performance of the condition of the bond to be given by the promoters of the undertaking, as hereinbefore mentioned, and the same may, on the application by petition of the promoters of the undertaking, be ordered to be invested in Bank annuities or Government securities, and accumulated; and upon the condition of such bond being fully performed it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery, upon a like application, to order the money so deposited, or the funds in which the same shall have been invested, together with the accumulation thereof, to be repaid or transferred to the promoters of the undertaking, or if such condition shall not be fully performed it shall be lawful for the said court to order the same to be applied, in such manner as it shall think fit, for the benefit of the parties for whose security the same shall so have been deposited (a).

Deposit to remain as a security, and to be applied under the direction of the court.

(a) On proof that the condition of the bond has been fulfilled by payment to the party to whom it was given, and that it has been delivered up to the promoters, the promoters are entitled upon petition by themselves and the obligee of the bond, to have the deposit paid out to them without showing that payment of the purchase-money of the land has been made to the persons really entitled to it (Ex parte Midland Rail. Co., [1904] 1 Ch. 61; 11 Digest 222, 1073).

88. If at any time the company be unable, by reason of the closing of the office of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, to obtain his authority in respect of the payment of any sum of money so authorised to be deposited in the Bank by way of security as aforesaid, it shall be lawful for the company to pay into the Bank to the credit of such party or matter as the case may require (subject nevertheless to being dealt with as hereinafter provided, and not otherwise,) such sum of money as the promoters of the undertaking shall, by some writing signed by their secretary or solicitors for the time being addressed to the Bank in that behalf, request, and upon any such payment being made the cashier of the Bank shall give a certificate thereof; and in every such case, within ten days after the re-opening of the said Accountant-General's office, the solicitor for the promoters of the undertaking shall there bespeak the direction for the payment of such sum into the

The company may pay the deposit-money into the Bank by way of security during the time that the office of the Accountant-General is closed.

Section 88. name of the Accountant-General, and upon production of such direction at the Bank of England the money so previously paid in shall be placed to the credit of the said Accountant-General accordingly, and the receipt for the said payment be given to the party making the same in the usual way, for the purpose of being filed at the Report Office.

Penalty on the promoters of the undertaking entering upon lands without consent before payment of the purchase-money.

89. If the promoters of the undertaking or any of their contractors shall, except as aforesaid, wilfully (a) enter upon and take possession of any lands which shall be required to be purchased or permanently used for the purposes of the special Act, without such consent as aforesaid, or without having made such payment for the benefit of the parties interested in the lands or such deposit by way of security as aforesaid, the promoters of the undertaking shall forfeit to the party in possession of such lands the sum of ten pounds, over and above the amount of any damage done to such lands by reason of such entry and taking possession as aforesaid, such penalty and damage respectively to be recovered before two justices (b); and if the promoters of the undertaking or their contractors shall, after conviction in such penalty as aforesaid, continue in unlawful possession of any such lands, the promoters of the undertaking shall be liable to forfeit the sum of twenty-five pounds for every day they or their contractors shall so remain in possession as aforesaid, such penalty to be recoverable by the party in possession of such lands, with costs, by action in any of the superior courts: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be held to subject the promoters of the undertaking to the payment of any such penalties as aforesaid, if they shall bonâ fide and without collusion have paid the compensation agreed or awarded to be paid in respect of the said lands to any person whom the promoters of the undertaking may have reasonably believed to be entitled thereto, or shall have deposited the same in the Bank for the benefit of the parties interested in the lands, or made such deposit by way of security in respect thereof as herein-before mentioned, although such person may not have been legally entitled thereto.

(a) This does not include an entry under a mistaken belief of right (Steele v. Midland Rail. Co. (1869), 34 J. P. 502; 21 L. T. 387). See also Hutchinson v. Manchester, Bury, and Rossendale Rail. Co. (1846), 15 M. & W. 314; 15 L. J. Ex. 293.

(b) See s. 136, post, p. 4152.

Decision of justices not conclusive as to the right of the promoters.

90. On the trial of any action for any such penalty as aforesaid the decision of the justices under the provision hereinbefore contained shall not be held conclusive as to the right of entry on any such lands by the promoters of the undertaking.

Proceedings in case of refusal to deliver possession of lands.

91. If in any case in which, according to the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, the promoters of the undertaking are authorised to enter upon and take possession of any lands required for the purposes of the undertaking, the owner or occupier of any such lands or any other person refuse to give up the possession thereof, or hinder the promoters of the undertaking from entering upon or taking possession of the same, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to issue their warrant to the sheriff to deliver possession of the same to the person appointed in such warrant to receive the same, and upon the receipt of such warrant the sheriff shall deliver possession of any such lands accordingly; and the costs accruing by reason of the issuing and execution of such warrant, to be settled by the sheriff, shall be paid by the person refusing to give possession; and the amount of such costs shall be deducted and retained by the promoters of the undertaking from the compensation, if any, then payable by them to such party, or if no such compensation be payable to such party, or if the same be less than the amount of such costs, then such costs, or the excess thereof beyond such compensation, if not paid on demand, shall be levied by distress, and upon application to any justice for that purpose he shall issue his warrant accordingly (a). Section 91.

(a) The aid of the sheriff is not necessary unless the entry is actually resisted (Tiverton, etc. Rail. Co. v. Loosemore). See also In re Way and London United Tramways, Ltd. (1908), 125 L. T. Jo. 594, the facts of which are set out at p. 4111, ante; Piggott v. Middlesex C. C., [1909] 1 Ch. 134; 72 J. P. 461; 31 Digest 430, 5754.

92 (a). Parties not to be required to sell part of a house, etc.

(a) This section is excluded from those incorporated into orders for the compulsory purchase of land made under sections 160, 161 and Sched. VI. of L. G. A., 1933, ante, pp. 978—988, 1263; for the substituted section, see ante, p. 1263, which reads as follows:—

“No person shall be required to sell a part only of any house, building or manufactory, or of any land which forms part of a park or garden belonging to a house, if he is willing and able to sell the whole of the house, building or manufactory, park or garden, unless the tribunal by whom compensation is to be assessed determine that, in the case of a house, building or manufactory, such part as is proposed to be taken can be taken without material detriment to the house, building or manufactory, or, in the case of a park or garden, that such part as aforesaid can be taken without seriously affecting the amenity or convenience of the house, and, if the tribunal so determine, compensation shall be awarded in respect of the severance of the part so proposed to be taken in addition to the value of that part, and thereupon the person interested shall be required to sell to the local authority that part of the house, building, manufactory, park or garden.”

A similar provision is inserted in the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, Sched., r. (4), post; the Public Works Facilities Act, 1930, Sched. I., Pt. II., 2; Vol. V. and 23 Halsbury's Statutes 777; the Agricultural Land (Utilisation) Act, 1931, s. 3, Sched. I., Pt. I.; Vol. V. and 24 Halsbury's Statutes 52, 66; the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, s. 25 (2), Sched. III., ante, pp. 1951, 1903; the Special Areas (Development and Improvement) Act, 1934, s. 4, Sched. III.; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 829, 834; the Housing Act, 1936, Sched. I., 8, ante, p. 1776; and the Air Navigation Act, 1936, Sched. I.; 29 Halsbury's Statutes 840.

House includes curtilage and garden (Grosvenor v. Hampstead Junction Rail. Co. (1857), 1 De G. & J. 446; 21 J. P. 547; 11 Digest 180, 574; Governors of St. Thomas's Hospital v. Charing Cross Rail. Co. (1861), 25 J. P. 771; 30 L. J. Ch. 395; 11 Digest 163, 417). In one case it was held that a paddock was part of a house within this section (Barnes v. Southsea Rail. Co. (1884), 27 Ch. D. 536). So, also, two houses which communicated internally, and were used as one (Seigenberg v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co. (1883), 49 L. T. 554; 32 W. R. 333). But not two houses at one of which a manufactory is carried on, and at the other of which, in another street, the goods are sold (Benington v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1886), 50 J. P. 740; 54 L. T. 837). See Reddin v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 532; 27 J. P. 4; 11 Digest 182, 597. A structure built at one time and architecturally one building although divided by party walls into fourteen parts let separately is one building within this section (Greswolde-Williams v. Newcastle-upon-Tyne Corporation (1927), 92 J. P. 13; 26 L. G. R. 26). If a structure was a building within s. 92, it was immaterial whether if part is acquired the remainder will be of less or equal value after truncation (ibid.). The acceptance by a company's solicitor of a notice under this section to take property, which the company is not compellable to take is not binding on the company (Treadwell v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1884), 54 L. J. Ch. 565; 42 Digest 70, 624). As to what is a manufactory, see Richards v. Swansea Improvement and Tramways Co. (1878), 9 Ch. D. 425; 43 J. P. 174; 11 Digest 178, 562; Brook v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Rail. Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 571. The case of Richards v. Swansea Improvement and Tramways Co., supra, was considered in Regent's Canal and Docks Co. v. London C. C., [1912] 1 Ch. 583; 76 J. P. 353, where it was held that the words “other building” mean other building in the nature of a house, although in ordinary language it would not be described as a house. They do not include the entire undertaking of a canal and dock company. The test whether the undertakers are compellable to take along with a garden, stables, etc., for which they have given notice to treat, a house enjoyed therewith but separated therefrom by a road, is whether the garden, stables, etc., would have passed by a conveyance of the house simply (Kerford v. Seacombe Rail. Co. (1888), 57 L. J. Ch. 270; 52 J. P. 487; Allhusen v. Ealing and South Harrow Rail. Co. (1898), 78 L. T. 396; 44 W. R. 483; 11 Digest 181, 594; Low v. Staines Reservoirs Joint Committee (1900), 64 J. P. 212; 11 Digest 180, 572). A notice referring to one tenement and part of another tenement, but abandoned altogether

Section 92.

when the owner demands that the whole of the other tenement shall be taken, cannot be treated as still existing in respect of the first-mentioned tenement (Thompson v. Tottenham and Forest Gate Rail. Co. (1892), 57 J. P. 181; 67 L. T. 416). On receipt of a counter-notice under this section, a notice to treat may be withdrawn, and thereupon the promoters of the undertaking will be put in the same position as if no notice to treat had ever been given by them. They may issue fresh notice to treat, and withdraw that also with the like result, as often as counter-notice is given (Ashton Vale Iron Co. v. Bristol Corporation, [1901] 1 Ch. 591; 11 Digest 173, 509). A notice under this section may be given even after notice of claim has been made in answer to the notice to treat, and after prolonged negotiations as to such claim (Lavers v. London C. C. (1905), 69 J. P. 362; 93 L. T. 233; Pollard v. Middlesex C. C. (1906), 71 J. P. 85; 11 Digest 183, 615). And a notice under this section may even be given after the surveyors on both sides have agreed on the compensation under the notice to treat (Pollard v. Middlesex C. C. (1906), 71 J. P. 85; 95 L. T. 870; 11 Digest 183, 615). When on the compulsory sale of part of a property the owner may require the promoters to purchase the whole and does so, this does not constitute a compulsory sale of the whole so as to entitle the owner to the extra allowance for compulsory sale (Jervis v. Newcastle and Gateshead Water Co. (1897), 13 T. L. R. 14, 312).

In issuing Provisional Orders under s. 176 of the P. H. A., 1875 (now repealed), for the compulsory purchase of lands by local authorities, the L. G. B. and M. of H. have declined to insert any provision releasing the authority from their obligation to purchase whole properties if so required under this section, but in recent legislation it has, in cases of compulsory purchase by local authorities, in many cases been left to the arbitrator to decide whether part of a building can be severed without material detriment to the remainder, and if he so decides, an owner cannot insist on the whole being taken (see supra).

Intersected
lands.

And with respect to small portions of intersected land, be it enacted as follows (a) :

(a) See Genders v. L. C. C., [1915] 1 Ch. 1; 79 J. P. 121; 11 Digest 178, 563, a case which arose on the construction of a special Act which enabled the L. C. C. to acquire part of any property but so as not to interfere with the main structure of any house or building.

Owners of intersected lands may insist on sale.

93. If any lands, not being situate in a town (a) or built upon, shall be so cut through and divided by the works as to leave, either on both sides or on one side thereof, a less quantity of land than half a statute acre, and if the owner of such small parcel of land require the promoters of the undertaking to purchase the same along with the other land required for the purposes of the special Act, the promoters of the undertaking shall purchase the same accordingly, unless the owner thereof have other land adjoining to that so left into which the same can be thrown, so as to be conveniently occupied therewith; and if such owner have any other land so adjoining, the promoters of the undertaking shall, if so required by the owner, at their own expense, throw the piece of land so left into such adjoining land, by removing the fences and levelling the sites thereof, and by soiling the same in a sufficient and workmanlike manner.

Promoters of the undertaking may insist on purchase where expense of bridges, etc., exceeds the value.

94. If any such land shall be so cut through and divided as to leave on either side of the works a piece of land of less extent than half a statute acre, or of less value than the expense of making a bridge, culvert, or such other communication between the land so divided as the promoters of the undertaking are, under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, compellable to make, and if the owner of such lands (a) have not other lands adjoining such piece of land, and require the promoters of the undertaking to make such communication, then the promoters of the undertaking may require such owner to sell to them such piece of land; and any dispute as to the value of such piece of land, or as to what would be the expense of making such communication, shall be ascertained as herein provided for cases of disputed compensation; and on the occasion of ascertaining the value of the land required to be taken for the purposes of the works the jury or the arbitrators, as the case may be, shall, if required by either party, ascertain by their verdict or award the value of any such severed piece of land, and also what would be the expense of making such communication.

(a) Whether situate in a town or elsewhere (Eastern Counties, etc. Rail. Cos. v. Marriage (1860), 9 H. L. Cas. 32; 11 Digest 106, 29).

And with respect to copyhold lands, be it enacted as follows (a):

Copyhold.

(a) It may be noticed here that by the Law of Property Act, 1922, all copyhold and customary tenure is abolished and all copyhold lands are enfranchised subject to compensation. See that Act printed at 3 Halsbury's Statutes 633. Ss. 95—98, which dealt with copyhold lands, are accordingly omitted.

* * * * *

And with respect to any such lands being common or waste lands, be it enacted as follows (a):

Common lands.

(a) This part of the Act has been amended in some important particulars by the Commonable Rights Compensation Act, 1882, post, p. 4622.

Commonable rights in respect of copyhold land, enfranchised by the Law of Property Act, 1922, are expressly saved by Sched. XII., para. (4), ibid.

99. The compensation in respect of the right in the soil of any lands subject to any rights of common shall be paid to the lord of the manor, in case he shall be entitled to the same, or to such party, other than the commoners, as shall be entitled to such right in the soil; and the compensation in respect of all other commonable and other rights in or over such lands, including therein any commonable or other rights to which the lord of the manor may be entitled other than his right in the soil of such lands, shall be determined and paid and applied in manner hereinafter provided with respect to common lands the right in the soil of which shall belong to the commoners; and upon payment or deposit in the Bank of the compensation so determined all such commonable and other rights shall cease and be extinguished.

Compensation for common lands, where held of a manor, etc. how to be paid.

100. Upon payment or tender to the lord of the manor, or such other party as aforesaid, of the compensation which shall have been agreed upon or determined in respect of the right in the soil of any such lands, or on deposit thereof in the Bank in any of the cases hereinbefore in that behalf provided, such lord of the manor, or such other party as aforesaid, shall convey such lands to the promoters of the undertaking, and such conveyance shall have the effect of vesting such lands in the promoters of the undertaking, in like manner as if such lord of the manor, or such other party as aforesaid, had been seised in fee simple of such lands at the time of executing such conveyance; and in default of such conveyance it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, duly stamped, in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the purchase of lands by them, and thereupon the lands in respect whereof such last-mentioned compensation shall have been deposited as aforesaid shall vest absolutely in the promoters of the undertaking, and they shall be entitled to immediate possession thereof, subject nevertheless to the commonable and other rights theretofore affecting the same, until such rights shall have been extinguished by payment or deposit of the compensation for the same in manner hereinafter provided.

Lord of the manor, etc. to convey to the promoters of the undertaking, on receiving compensation for his interest.

Deed poll to be executed in certain cases.

Section 101. 101. The compensation to be paid with respect to any such lands, being common lands, or in the nature thereof, the right to the soil of which shall belong to the commoners, as well as the compensation to be paid for the commonable and other rights in or over common lands the right in the soil whereof shall not belong to the commoners, other than the compensation to the lord of the manor, or other party entitled to the soil thereof, in respect of his right in the soil thereof, shall (a) be determined by agreement between the promoters of the undertaking and a committee of the parties entitled to commonable or other rights in such lands, to be appointed as next hereinafter mentioned.

Compensation for common lands where not held of a manor, how to be ascertained.

(a) Nevertheless an agreement entered into for the determination of the compensation otherwise than as hereinafter provided is valid and may be enforced (Bee v. Stafford and Uttoxeter Rail. Co. (1875), 23 W. R. 863; 11 Digest 39, 545).

A meeting of the parties interested to be convened.

102. It shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to convene a meeting of the parties entitled to commonable or other rights over or in such lands to be held at some convenient place in the neighbourhood of the lands, for the purpose of their appointing a committee (a) to treat with the promoters of the undertaking for the compensation to be paid for the extinction of such commonable or other rights; and every such meeting shall be called by public advertisement, to be inserted once at least in two consecutive weeks in some newspaper circulating in the county or in the respective counties and in the neighbourhood in which such lands shall be situate, the last of such insertions being not more than fourteen nor less than seven days prior to any such meeting; and notice of such meeting shall also, not less than seven days previous to the holding thereof, be affixed upon the door of the parish church where such meeting is intended to be held, or if there be no such church some other place in the neighbourhood to which notices are usually affixed; and if such lands be parcel or holden of a manor, a like notice shall be given to the lord of such manor.

(a) The court has no jurisdiction to inquire whether the committee are properly constituted. It is sufficient that it is a de facto committee (Salmon v. Edwards, [1910] 1 Ch. 552; 74 J. P. 177; 11 Digest 40, 556).

Meeting to appoint a committee.

103. It shall be lawful for the meeting so called to appoint a committee, not exceeding five in number, of the parties entitled to any such rights; and at such meeting the decision of the majority of the persons entitled to commonable rights present shall bind the minority and all absent parties.

Committee to agree with the promoters of the undertaking.

104. It shall be lawful for the committee so chosen to enter into an agreement with the promoters of the undertaking for the compensation to be paid for the extinction of such commonable and other rights, and all matters relating thereto, for and on behalf of themselves and all other parties interested therein; and all such parties shall be bound by such agreement; and it shall be lawful for such committee to receive the compensation so agreed to be paid, and the receipt of such committee, or of any three of them, for such compensation shall be an effectual discharge for the same; and such compensation, when received, shall be apportioned by the committee among the several persons interested therein, according to their respective interests (a), but the promoters of the undertaking shall not be bound to see to the apportionment or to the application of such compensation, nor shall they be liable for the misapplication or non-application thereof.

Statutes 555, 556. Special provisions being thereby made for the apportionment of claims, no action lies for an apportionment (Richards v. De Winton, [1901] 2 Ch. 566; 65 J. P. 696; settled on appeal, [1903] 1 Ch. 507; 11 Digest 40, 555; and see Salmon v. Edwards, [1910] 1 Ch. 552; 74 J. P. 177; 11 Digest 40, 556).

As to the application of compensation money for recreation grounds and field gardens, see the Commonable Rights Compensation Act, 1882, s. 3, post, p. 4623.

Note to
Section 104.

105. If upon such committee being appointed they shall fail to agree with the promoters of the undertaking as to the amount of the compensation to be paid as aforesaid, the same shall be determined as in other cases of disputed compensation.

Disputes to be settled as in other cases.

106. If, upon being duly convened by the promoters of the undertaking, no effectual meeting of the parties entitled to such commonable or other rights shall take place, or if, taking place, such meeting fail to appoint such committee, the amount of such compensation shall be determined by a surveyor, to be appointed by two justices, as hereinbefore provided in the case of parties who cannot be found.

If no committee be appointed, the amount to be determined by a surveyor.

107. Upon payment or tender to such committee, or any three of them, or if there shall be no such committee then upon deposit in the Bank in the manner provided in the like case of the compensation which shall have been agreed upon or determined in respect of such commonable or other rights, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, duly stamped, in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the purchase of lands by them, and thereupon the lands in respect of which such compensation shall have been so paid or deposited shall vest in the promoters of the undertaking freed and discharged from all such commonable or other rights, and they shall be entitled to immediate possession thereof (a); and it shall be lawful for the Court of Chancery, by an order to be made upon petition, to order payment of the money so deposited to a committee to be appointed as aforesaid, or to make such other order in respect thereto, for the benefit of the parties interested, as it shall think fit.

Upon payment of compensation payable to commoners the lands to vest.

(a) Compliance with these provisions is a condition precedent to the right to interfere with the rights of the commoners, and if the rights of any commoner are disturbed before such compliance he may maintain an action (Stoneham v. L. B. and S. C. Rail. Co. (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 1; 11 Digest 39, 543).

And with respect to lands subject to mortgage, be it enacted as follows (a) :

Lands in mortgage.

(a) As to equitable mortgagees and their rights, see Martin v. L. C. and D. Rail. Co. (1866), 1 Ch. App. 501; 11 Digest 274, 2019; R. v. Middlesex (Clerk of the Peace of), [1914] 3 K. B. 259; 79 J. P. 7, and ante, p. 4112. As to a mortgagee's rights when promoters have obtained possession without notice to him, see Cooke v. London C. C., p. 4150, post.

108. It shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to purchase or redeem the interest of the mortgagee of any such lands which may be required for the purposes of the special Act, and that whether they shall have previously purchased the equity of redemption of such lands or not, and whether the mortgagee thereof be entitled thereto in his own right or in trust for any other party, and whether he be in possession of such lands by virtue of such mortgage or not, and whether such mortgage affect such lands solely, or jointly with any other lands not required for the purposes of the special Act; and in order thereto the promoters of the undertaking may pay or tender to such mortgagee the principal and interest due on such mortgage, together with his costs and charges, if any, and also six months additional interest, and thereupon such mortgagee shall immediately convey his interest

Power to redeem mortgages.

Section 108. in the lands comprised in such mortgage to the promoters of the undertaking, or as they shall direct; or the promoters of the undertaking may give notice in writing to such mortgagee that they will pay off the principal and interest due on such mortgage at the end of six months, computed from the day of giving such notice; and if they shall have given any such notice, or if the party entitled to the equity of redemption of any such lands shall have given six months notice of his intention to redeem the same, then at the expiration of either of such notices, or at any intermediate period, upon payment or tender by the promoters of the undertaking to the mortgagee of the principal money due on such mortgage, and the interest which would become due at the end of six months from the time of giving either of such notices, together with his costs and expenses, if any, such mortgagee shall convey or release his interest in the lands comprised in such mortgage to the promoters of the undertaking, or as they shall direct (a).

(a) Interest is payable under this section from the time when possession might have been taken if a good title could be shown. In the case of land subject to mortgage interest is payable by the vendor to the mortgagee in lieu of notice (Spencer-Bell to L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1885), 33 W. R. 771; 11 Digest 275, 2023).

Deposit of mortgage money on refusal to accept.

109. If, in either of the cases aforesaid, upon such payment or tender any mortgagee shall fail to convey or release his interest in such mortgage as directed by the promoters of the undertaking, or if he fail to adduce a good title thereto to their satisfaction, then it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to deposit in the Bank, in the manner provided by this Act in like cases, the principal and interest, together with the costs, if any, due on such mortgage, and also, if such payment be made before the expiration of six months notice as aforesaid, such further interest as would at that time become due; and it shall be lawful for them, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, duly stamped, in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the purchase of lands by them; and thereupon, as well as upon such conveyance by the mortgagee, if any such be made, all the estate and interest of such mortgagee, and of all persons in trust for him, or for whom he may be a trustee, in such lands, shall vest in the promoters of the undertaking, and they shall be entitled to immediate possession thereof in case such mortgagee were himself entitled to such possession.

Sum to be paid when mortgage exceeds the value of the lands.

110. If any such mortgaged lands shall be of less value than the principal, interest, and costs secured thereon, the value of such lands, or the compensation to be made by the promoters of the undertaking in respect thereof, shall be settled by agreement between the mortgagee of such lands and the party entitled to the equity of redemption thereof on the one part, and the promoters of the undertaking on the other part; and if the parties aforesaid fail to agree respecting the amount of such value or compensation, the same shall be determined as in other cases of disputed compensation; and the amount of such value or compensation, being so agreed upon or determined, shall be paid by the promoters of the undertaking to the mortgagee, in satisfaction of his mortgage debt, so far as the same will extend; and upon payment or tender thereof the mortgagee shall convey or release all his interest in such mortgaged lands to the promoters of the undertaking, or as they shall direct.

Deposit of such sum when refused on tender.

111. If upon such payment or tender as aforesaid being made any such mortgagee fail so to convey his interest in such mortgage, or to adduce a good title thereto to the satisfaction of the promoters of the undertaking, it shall be lawful for them to deposit the amount of such value or compensation in the Bank, in the manner provided by this Act in like cases ; and every such payment or deposit shall be accepted by the mortgagee in satisfaction of his mortgage debt, so far as the same will extend, and shall be a full discharge of such mortgaged lands from all money due thereon ; and it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, duly stamped, in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the purchase of lands by them ; and thereupon such lands, as to all such estate and interest as were then vested in the mortgagee, or any person in trust for him, shall become absolutely vested in the promoters of the undertaking, and they shall be entitled to immediate possession thereof in case such mortgagee were himself entitled to such possession ; nevertheless all rights and remedies possessed by the mortgagee against the mortgagor, by virtue of any bond or covenant or other obligation, other than the right to such lands, shall remain in force in respect of so much of the mortgage debt as shall not have been satisfied by such payment or deposit. Section 111.

112. If a part only of any such mortgaged land be required for the purposes of the special Act, and if the part so required be of less value than the principal money, interest, and costs secured on such lands, and the mortgagee shall not consider the remaining part of such lands a sufficient security for the money charged thereon, or be not willing to release the part so required, then the value of such part, and also the compensation (if any) to be paid in respect of the severance thereof or otherwise, shall be settled by agreement between the mortgagee and the party entitled to the equity of redemption of such land on the one part, and the promoters of the undertaking on the other ; and if the parties aforesaid fail to agree respecting the amount of such value or compensation the same shall be determined as in other cases of disputed compensation ; and the amount of such value or compensation, being so agreed upon or determined, shall be paid by the promoters of the undertaking to such mortgagee (a) in satisfaction of his mortgage debt, so far as the same will extend ; and thereupon such mortgagee shall convey or release to them, or as they shall direct, all his interest in such mortgaged lands the value whereof shall have been so paid ; and a memorandum of what shall have been so paid shall be indorsed on the deed creating such mortgage, and shall be signed by the mortgagee ; and a copy of such memorandum shall at the same time (if required) be furnished by the promoters of the undertaking, at their expense, to the party entitled to the equity of redemption of the lands comprised in such mortgage deed. Sum to be paid where part only of mortgaged lands taken.

(a) An arbitrator cannot determine that the money should be paid to any one other than the mortgagee (Ex parte Strabane R. D. C. (No. 1), [1910] 1 I. R. 135 ; 11 Digest 275 j).

113. If upon payment or tender to any such mortgagee of the amount of the value or compensation so agreed upon or determined such mortgagee shall fail to convey or release to the promoters of the undertaking, or as they shall direct, his interest in the lands in respect of which such compensation shall so have been paid or tendered, or if he shall fail to adduce a good title thereto to the satisfaction of the promoters of the undertaking, it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking to pay the amount of such value or compensation into the Bank, in the manner provided by this Act in the case of moneys required to be deposited in such Bank ; and such payment or deposit shall be accepted by such mortgagee in satisfaction of his mortgage debt, so far as the same will extend, and shall be a full discharge of the portion of the mortgaged lands so required from all money due thereon ; and it shall be lawful for the promoters of the undertaking, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, duly stamped, in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of Deposit of such sum when refused on tender.

Section 113. the purchase of lands by them; and thereupon such lands shall become absolutely vested in the promoters of the undertaking, as to all such estate and interest as were then vested in the mortgagee, or any person in trust for him, and in case such mortgagee were himself entitled to such possession they shall be entitled to immediate possession thereof; nevertheless every such mortgagee shall have the same powers and remedies for recovering or compelling payment of the mortgage money, or the residue thereof, (as the case may be,) and the interest thereof respectively, upon and out of the residue of such mortgaged lands, or the portion thereof not required for the purposes of the special Act, as he would otherwise have had or been entitled to for recovering or compelling payment thereof upon or out of the whole of the lands originally comprised in such mortgage.

Powers of mortgagee for recovery of residue of mortgage debt.

Compensation to be made in certain cases if mortgage paid off before the stipulated time.

114. Provided always, that in any of the cases hereinbefore provided with respect to lands subject to mortgage, if in the mortgage deed a time shall have been limited for payment of the principal money thereby secured, and under the provisions hereinbefore contained the mortgagee shall have been required to accept payment of his mortgage money, or of part thereof, at a time earlier than the time so limited, the promoters of the undertaking shall pay to such mortgagee, in addition to the sum which shall have been so paid off, all such costs and expenses as shall be incurred by such mortgagee in respect of or which shall be incidental to the re-investment of the sum so paid off, such costs, in case of difference, to be taxed, and payment thereof enforced, in the manner herein provided with respect to the cost of conveyances; and if the rate of interest secured by such mortgage be higher than at the time of the same being so paid off can reasonably be expected to be obtained on re-investing the same, regard being had to the then current rate of interest, such mortgagee shall be entitled to receive from the promoters of the undertaking, in addition to the principal and interest hereinbefore provided for, compensation in respect of the loss to be sustained by him by reason of his mortgage money being so prematurely paid off, the amount of such compensation to be ascertained, in case of difference, as in other cases of disputed compensation; and until payment or tender of such compensation as aforesaid the promoters of the undertaking shall not be entitled, as against such mortgagee, to possession of the mortgaged lands under the provision hereinbefore contained (a).

(a) The promoters will be restrained by injunction from proceeding until the value of the mortgagee's interest has been ascertained and paid or secured (Ranken v. East and West India Docks (1849), 12 Beav. 298; 19 L. J. Ch. 153).

Rent-charges.

And with respect to lands charged with any rent service, rent-charge, or chief or other rent, or other payment or incumbrance not hereinbefore provided for, be it enacted as follows:

Consideration to be paid for release of lands from rent-charges.

115. If any difference shall arise between the promoters of the undertaking and the party entitled to any such charge upon any lands required to be taken for the purposes of the special Act, respecting the consideration to be paid for the release of such lands therefrom, or from the portion thereof affecting the lands required for the purposes of the special Act, the same shall be determined as in other cases of disputed compensation.

Release of part of land from charge.

116. If part only of the lands charged with any such rent service, rent-charge, chief or other rent, payment, or incumbrance, be required to be taken for the purposes of the special Act, the apportionment of any such charge may be settled by agreement between the party entitled to such charge and the owner of the lands on the one part, and the promoters of the undertaking on the other part, and if such apportionment be not so settled by agreement the same shall be settled by two justices; but if the remaining part of the lands so jointly subject be a sufficient security for such charge, then, with consent of the owner of the lands so jointly subject, it shall be lawful for the party entitled to such charge to release therefrom the lands required, on condition or in consideration of such other lands remaining exclusively subject to the whole thereof. Section 116.

117. Upon payment or tender of the compensation so agreed upon or determined to the party entitled to any such charge as aforesaid, such party shall execute to the promoters of the undertaking a release of such charge; and if he fail so to do, or if he fail to adduce good title to such charge, to the satisfaction of the promoters of the undertaking, it shall be lawful for them to deposit the amount of such compensation in the Bank, in the manner hereinbefore provided in like cases, and also, if they think fit, to execute a deed poll, duly stamped, in the manner hereinbefore provided in the case of the purchase of lands by them, and thereupon the rent service, rent-charge, chief or other rent, payment or incumbrance or the portion thereof in respect whereof such compensation shall so have been paid, shall cease and be extinguished. Deposit in case of refusal to release.

118. If any such lands be so released from any such charge or incumbrance or portion thereof, to which they were subject jointly with other lands, such last-mentioned lands shall alone be charged with the whole of such charge, or with the remainder thereof, as the case may be, and the party entitled to the charge shall have all the same rights and remedies over such last-mentioned lands, for the whole or for the remainder of the charge, as the case may be, as he had previously over the whole of the lands subject to such charge; and if upon any such charge or portion of charge being so released the deed or instrument creating or transferring such charge be tendered to the promoters of the undertaking for the purpose, they or two of them shall subscribe, or if they be a corporation shall affix their common seal to a memorandum of such release endorsed on such deed or instrument, declaring what part of the lands originally subject to such charge shall have been purchased by virtue of the special Act, and if the lands be released from part of such charge, what proportion of such charge shall have been released, and how much thereof continues payable, or if the lands so required shall have been released from the whole of such charge, then that the remaining lands are thenceforward to remain exclusively charged therewith; and such memorandum shall be made and executed at the expense of the promoters of the undertaking, and shall be evidence in all courts and elsewhere of the facts therein stated, but not so as to exclude any other evidence of the same facts. Charge to continue on lands not taken.

And with respect to lands subject to leases, be it enacted as follows:

119. If any lands shall be comprised in a lease for a term of years unexpired, part only of which lands shall be required for the purposes of the special Act, the rent payable in respect of the lands comprised in such lease shall be apportioned between the lands so required and the residue of such lands; and such apportionment may be settled by agreement between the lessor and lessee of such lands on the one part, and the promoters of the undertaking on the other part, and if such apportionment be not so settled by agreement between the parties such apportionment shall be settled by two justices; and after such apportionment the lessee of such lands shall, as to all future accruing rent, be liable only to so much of the rent as shall be so apportioned in respect of the lands not required for the purposes of the special Act; and as to the lands not so required, and as against the lessee, the lessor Leases.
Where part only of lands under lease taken, the rent to be apportioned.

Section 119. shall have all the same rights and remedies for the recovery of such portion of rent as previously to such apportionment he had for the recovery of the whole rent reserved by such lease : and all the covenants, conditions, and agreements of such lease, except as to the amount of rent to be paid, shall remain in force with regard to that part of the land which shall not be required for the purposes of the special Act, in the same manner as they would have done in case such part only of the land had been included in the lease (a).

(a) An interest created by an owner after notice to treat is not a subject for compensation (Re Marylebone Improvement Act (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 389; Wilkins v. Birmingham Corporation (1883), 25 Ch. D. 78; 48 J. P. 231), even if created in land adjoining the land purchased which may be injuriously affected (Mercer v. Liverpool, St. Helens and South Lancashire Rail. Co., [1904] A. C. 461; 68 J. P. 533; 11 Digest 276, 2033); Wilkins v. Birmingham Corporation was considered in L. C. C. v. Wilson's Executors, [1916] 1 K. B. at p. 844; 80 J. P. at p. 255. See, however, Cardiff Corporation v. Cook, [1923] 2 Ch. 115; 87 J. P. 90; Digest Supp., the facts of which are set out at p. 4112, ante.

Agreement to an apportionment of rent under this section does not preclude the party from requiring the whole to be taken (Lavers v. London C. C. (1905), 69 J. P. 362; 93 L. T. 233).

If reversion to the whole has been acquired by the undertakers by private agreement before obtaining their Act they may exercise their compulsory powers afterwards against the tenant in respect of part only without the tenant being able to insist on his interest in the whole being taken (Stevenson v. North British Rail. Co. (1902), 4 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 244).

As to the date from which the apportioned rent becomes payable, see Ball v. Graves (1886), 18 L. R. Ir. 224. It runs from the date of the apportionment (Re Secretary of State for War and Hurley's Contract, [1904] 2 I. R. 354; 11 Digest 278, w).

Tenants to be compensated.

120. Every such lessee as last aforesaid shall be entitled to receive from the promoters of the undertaking compensation for the damage done to him in his tenancy by reason of the severance of the lands required from those not required or otherwise by reason of the execution of the works.

Compensation to be made to tenants from year to year, etc.

121. If any such lands shall be in the possession of any person having no greater interest therein than as tenant for a year or from year to year, and if such person be required to give up possession of any lands so occupied by him before the expiration of his term or interest therein, he shall be entitled to compensation for the value of his unexpired term or interest in such lands, and for any just allowance which ought to be made to him by an incoming tenant, and for any loss or injury he may sustain, or if a part only of such lands be required, compensation for the damage done to him in his tenancy by severing the lands held by him, or otherwise injuriously affecting the same; and the amount of such compensation shall be determined by two justices (a), in case the parties differ about the same; and upon payment or tender of the amount of such compensation all such persons shall respectively deliver up to the promoters of the undertaking, or to the person appointed by them to take possession thereof, any such lands in their possession required for the purposes of the special Act.

(a) That is, if the land be taken (R. v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Rail. Co. (1854), 4 E. & B. 88; 2 W. R. 591; 19 Digest 592, 224; Knapp v. L. C. & D. Rail. Co. (1863), 32 L. J. Ex. 236; 8 L. T. 541; 11 Digest 217, 1017); but if the lands are injuriously affected, the proceedings are under s. 68, ante, p. 4125 (R. v. Sheriff of Middlesex (1862), 31 L. J. Q. B. 261; and see R. v. Stone (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 529; 30 J. P. 488; 11 Digest 175, 539; Bexley Heath Rail. Co. v. North, [1894] 2 Q. B. 579; 58 J. P. 832; 11 Digest 281, 2093). The complaint need not be made within six months under S. J. A., 1848, s. 11; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 278 (R. v. Hanmay (1877), 44 L. J. M. C. 27; 39 J. P. 534; R. v. Edwards, ante, p. 4114). The jurisdiction of the justices is limited to determining the amount of the compensation on the basis of the interest alleged by the tenant, and does not extend to inquiring whether that interest is his true interest; but in determining the compensation the justices have jurisdiction to inquire, and are bound to inquire, whether the claimant has been required to give up possession of the land before the expiration of his term or interest, that being a condition precedent to the right to compensation (G. N. and City Rail. Co. v. Tillet, [1902] 1 K. B. 874; 66 J. P. 742).

Compensation for the residue of a lease which will expire in less than a year must be determined by justices under this section, and not by arbitration (R. v. G. N. Rail. Co. (1876), 2 Q. B. D. 151; 41 J. P. 197). It is otherwise with regard to the interest of a tenant having an agreement for a lease for years void at law, but equivalent to a lease in equity (Sweetman v. Metropolitan Rail. Co. (1864), 1 Hem. & M. 543; 22 J. P. 295; Rogers v. Kingston-upon-Hull Dock Co. (1865), 34 L. J. Ch. 165; 10 Jur. N. S. 1245; 32 Digest 259, 430; In re King's Leasehold Estates (1873), L. R. 16 Eq. 521; 30 Digest 344, 28). As to the right of a parent company to claim in respect of land occupied by a subsidiary company, see Smith, Stone and Knight, Ltd. v. Birmingham Corporation, [1939] 4 All E. R. 121; Digest Supp.

Section 121.

If a notice to treat be given, but nothing done thereunder, and the lands are afterwards taken under s. 85, then the interest of the tenant at the time when the lands are so taken is to be considered, and not his interest at the time when the notice to treat was given (R. v. Kennedy, [1893] 1 Q. B. 533; 57 J. P. 346). See Bexley Heath Rail. Co. v. North, ante, p. 4148.

122. If any party, having a greater interest than as tenant at will, claim compensation in respect of any unexpired term or interest under any lease or grant of any such lands, the promoters of the undertaking may require such party to produce the lease or grant in respect of which such claim shall be made, or the best evidence thereof in his power, and if, after demand made in writing by the promoters of the undertaking, such lease or grant, or such best evidence thereof, be not produced within twenty-one days, the party so claiming compensation shall be considered as a tenant holding only from year to year, and be entitled to compensation accordingly.

Where greater interest claimed than from year to year, lease or grant to be produced.

123. And be it enacted, that the powers of the promoters of the undertaking for the compulsory purchase or taking of lands for the purposes of the special Act shall not be exercised after the expiration of the prescribed period, and if no period be prescribed not after the expiration of three years from the passing of the special Act (a).

Limit of time for compulsory purchase.

(a) It is sufficient if notice to treat is given within the three years. See Salisbury v. G. N. Rail. Co. (1852), 17 Q. B. 840; 11 Digest 219, 1039. In computing the time, the date on which the special Act received the Royal Assent must be excluded, but the day on which the notice to treat is given must be included (Goldsmiths' Co. v. West Metropolitan Rail. Co., [1904] 1 K. B. 1; 68 J. P. 41; 11 Digest 170, 478). The M. of H. do not ordinarily allow a longer period than three years in cases of compulsory purchase.

And with respect to interests in lands which have by mistake been omitted to the purchased, be it enacted as follows:

Interests omitted to be purchased.

124. If at any time after the promoters of the undertaking shall have entered (a) upon any lands which under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, they were authorised to purchase, and which shall be permanently required for the purposes of the special Act, any party shall appear to be entitled to any estate, right, or interest in or charge affecting such lands which the promoters of the undertaking shall through mistake or inadvertence (b) have failed or omitted duly to purchase or to pay compensation for, then, whether the period allowed for the purchase of lands shall have expired or not, the promoters of the undertaking shall remain in the undisturbed possession of such lands, provided within six months (c) after notice of such estate, right, interest, or charge, in case the same shall not be disputed by the promoters of the undertaking, or in case the same shall be disputed then within six months after the right thereto shall have been finally established by law in favour of the party claiming the same, the promoters of the undertaking shall purchase or pay compensation for the same, and shall also pay to such party, or to any other party who may establish a right thereto, full compensation for the mesne profits or interest which would have accrued to such parties respectively in respect thereof during the interval between the entry of the promoters of the undertaking Purchase by promoters of the undertaking, after entry on lands, of interests the purchase whereof may have been omitted by mistake.

Mesne profits to be accounted for.

Section 124. thereon and the time of the payment of such purchase-money or compensation by the promoters of the undertaking, so far as such mesne profits or interest may be recoverable in law or equity; and such purchase-money or compensation shall be agreed on or awarded and paid in like manner as according to the provisions of this Act, the same respectively would have been agreed on or awarded and paid in case the promoters of the undertaking had purchased such estate, right, interest, or charge before their entering upon such land, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit.

(a) The mere fact that the promoters have already taken possession of the property does not preclude them from their statutory right to give notice to treat (Cooke v. London C. Co., [1911] 1 Ch. 604; 75 J. P. 309).

(b) As to what amounts to mistake or inadvertence within the meaning of this section, see Martin v. L. C. & D. Rail. Co. (1866), 1 Ch. App. 501; 11 Digest 274, 2019; Stretton v. G. W. and Brentford Rail. Co. (1870), 5 Ch. App. 751; 35 J. P. 183; 11 Digest 216, 1002; Hyde v. Manchester Corporation (1852), 16 Jur. 180; Thomas v. Barry Dock and Rails. Co. (1889), 5 T. L. R. 360; Omagh U. D. C. v. Henderson, [1907] 2 J. R. 310; 11 Digest 281, h. As to the effect of the section, see Salisbury (Marquis) v. (t. N. Rail. Co. (1858), 5 C. B. N. S. 174; 23 J. P. 22; 26 Digest 319, 518; Jolly v. Wimbledon and Dorking Rail. Co. (1861), 1 B. & S. 815; 26 J. P. 340; 11 Digest 282, 2106.

(c) The six months do not run from a judgment referring the matter to arbitration, but from the award in the arbitration (Caledonian Railway v. Davidson, [1903] A. C. 22; 11 Digest 282, 2104).

It has been held that the corresponding section of the Lands Clauses Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1845, does not apply to cases in which the promoters do not, prior to the expiry of the period allowed for compulsory purchase, intend to acquire the omitted estate, right, interest or charge (Davidson's Trustees v. Caledonian Rail. Co. (1894), 21 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 1060).

How value of such interests and mesne profits shall be estimated.

125. In estimating the compensation to be given for any such last-mentioned lands, or any estate or interest in the same, or for any mesne profits thereof, the jury, or arbitrators, or justices, as the case may be, shall assess the same according to what they shall find to have been the value of such lands, estate or interest, and profits, at the time such lands were entered upon by the promoters of the undertaking, and without regard to any improvements or works made in the said lands by the promoters of the undertaking, and as though the works had not been constructed.

Promoters of the undertaking to pay the costs of litigation as to such interests.

126. In addition to the said purchase-money, compensation, or satisfaction, and before the promoters of the undertaking shall become absolutely entitled to any such estate, interest, or charge, or to have the same merged or extinguished for their benefit, they shall, when the right to any such estate, interest or charge shall have been disputed by the company, and determined in favour of the party claiming the same, pay the full (a) costs and expenses of any proceedings at law or in equity for the determination or recovery of the same to the parties with whom any such litigation in respect thereof shall have taken place; and such costs and expenses shall, in case the same shall be disputed, be settled by the proper officer of the court in which such litigation took place.

(a) As between solicitor and client (Hyde v. Manchester Corporation (1862), 12 C. B. 475).

Sale of superfluous land.

And with respect to lands acquired by the promoters of the undertaking under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, but which shall not be required for the purposes thereof, be it enacted as follows (a):

(a) As to what are superfluous lands, see Betts v. G. E. Rail. Co. (1879), 44 J. P. 281; 49 L. J. Ex. 197; 11 Digest 285, 2128; In re Metropolitan District Rail. Co. and Cosh (1880), 13 Ch. D. 607; 44 J. P. 393; 11 Digest 283, 2110; Hooper v. Bourne (1879), 5 App. Cas. 1; 44 J. P. 327; 11 Digest 283, 2120; L. & S. W. Rail. Co. v. Gomm (1882), 20 Ch. D. 562; 11 Digest 286, 2141; Hobbs v. Midland Rail. Co. (1882), 20 Ch. D. 418; 11 Digest 285, 2126; Thackwray and Young's Contract (1889), 40 Ch. D. 34; 40 Digest 151, 1204; Ray v. Walker, [1892] 2 Q. B. 88; 11 Digest 286, 2142; Dunhill v. N. E. Rail. Co., [1896] 1 Ch. 121; 60 J. P. 228; 11 Digest 286, 2136; Brown v. North British Railway (1906), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 534; 11 Digest 283, j; In re L. & Y. Rail. Co. and Earl of Derby's Contract (1908), 100 L. T. 44. The vesting of superfluous lands under s. 127 takes place by way of conditional limitation and not of forfeiture (Miller v. Waterford Harbour Commissioners, [1904] 2 I. R. 421; 18 Digest 238, k).

Note to
Section 126.

* * * * *

Ss. 127—132 are not incorporated into compulsory purchase orders made under the L. G. A., 1933, see ante, p. 1263, and are accordingly omitted.

133. And be it enacted, that if the promoters of the undertaking become possessed by virtue of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, of any lands charged with the land tax, or liable to be assessed to the poor's rate, they shall from time to time, until the works shall be completed and assessed to such land tax or poor's rate, be liable to make good the deficiency in the several assessments for land tax and poor's rate by reason of such lands having been taken or used for the purposes of the works; and such deficiency shall be computed according to the rental at which such lands, with any building thereon, were valued or rated at the time of the passing of the special Act; and on demand of such deficiency the promoters of the undertaking, or their treasurer, shall pay all such deficiencies to the collector of the said assessments respectively; nevertheless, if at any time the promoters of the undertaking think fit to redeem such land tax, they may do so, in accordance with the powers in that behalf given by the Acts for the redemption of the land tax (a).

Until completion of works promoters shall make good any deficiency of land tax and poor's rate caused by lands being taken.

Land tax may be redeemed.

(a) This section is to have effect as though references to the general rate were substituted for the poor rate and as though the amount required to be made good by the promoters were in the case of land situated in an urban rating area, one-half of the deficiency in the several assessments to the general rate. The assessment on which any payment made by the promoters under the section in the text is based is to be inserted in the valuation list and any such payment is to be taken into account for the purpose of ascertaining the proceeds of any rate (R. and V. Act, 1925, s. 2 (7), ante, p. 2123, and see Railways (Valuation for Rating) Act, 1930, s. 20, ante, p. 2328). But the promoters are not liable to be rated (London Corporation v. St. Andrew, Holborn (1867), L. R. 2 C. P. 574). As to this section, see East London Rail. Co. v. Whitechurch (1874), L. R. 7 H. L. 81; 38 J. P. 484; 11 Digest 108, 48; Stratton v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 76; 39 J. P. 167. Where the works consisted in making new streets, it was held that the works were completed within the meaning of this section when the streets were fully made, and such of the lands taken as might be liable to assessment had become assessable, and that the deficiency was to be computed from time to time by comparing the assessed value at the time of the special Act of the lands taken with the assessed value at the time of computation of such of the lands taken as might have again become assessable (Governor, etc. of Poor of City of Bristol v. Bristol Corporation (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 549; 51 J. P. 676; 11 Digest 108, 50). In the county of London it includes only so much of the general rate as represents the poor rate (Islington Borough Council v. London School Board, [1903] 2 K. B. 354; 68 J. P. 35; 11 Digest 107, 42). Where a company purchased houses beyond the limits of deviation to obtain the withdrawal of opposition by the owners to the passing of the special Act, it was held that the deficiency in the poor rate in respect of the houses must be made good, and that it was immaterial that some of them were unoccupied (Putney Overseers v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co., [1891] 1 Q. B. 440; 55 J. P. 422; 11 Digest 108, 57). For the construction of a similar clause in a local Act, see Burrup v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1890), 64 L. T. 112; St. Stephen Churchwardens v. Great Northern & City Rail. Co. (1902), 66 J. P. 373; 86 L. T. 390; 11 Digest 110, 61. Where the promoters of an undertaking took land and pulled down the houses thereon and were called upon under this section to make good the deficiency in the rates caused by their works, it was held that they were liable to pay the rates according to the full rateable value of the houses and lands taken, notwithstanding the fact that the former owners of some of the houses had made agreements with the rating authority of the district under

Section 133.

s. 3 of the Poor Rate Assessment and Collection Act, 1869; 14 Halsbury's Statutes 546 (cf. s. 11 of the R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2142), to pay the rates instead of the occupiers subject to a deduction of 25 per cent., and that the promoters were not entitled to make a similar deduction (St. Leonard, Shoreditch, Vestry v. London C. C., [1895] 2 Q. B. 104; 59 J. P. 423; 11 Digest 109, 52). It is doubtful whether the section has any application at all on a purchase of lands by agreement. See Barony Parish Council v. Glasgow School Board (1896), 23 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 221.

This section does not apply to lands acquired by a local authority under the Housing Act, 1936, or any enactment repealed by that Act (s. 146, ibid., ante, p. 1744), and may be excluded from incorporation in compulsory purchase orders made under the L. G. A., 1933, if the M. of H. so determines (see ante, p. 1263).

Notices.

Service of notices upon promoters.

134. And be it enacted, that any summons or notice (a), or any writ or other proceeding at law or in equity, requiring to be served upon the promoters of the undertaking, may be served by the same being left at or transmitted through the post directed to the principal office of the promoters of the undertaking, or one of the principal offices where there shall be more than one, or being given or transmitted through the post directed to the secretary, or in case there be no secretary the solicitor of the said promoters.

(a) For any purpose, and not only in an action (In re South Yorkshire, etc. Rail. Co. (1849), 18 L. J. Q. B. 333; 7 D. & L. 36). But see, as to the service of notices on local authorities, the L. G. A., 1933, s. 286, ante, pp. 1168—9.

Tender of amends.

135. And be it enacted, that if any party shall have committed any irregularity, trespass, or other wrongful proceeding in the execution of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, or by virtue of any power or authority thereby given, and if, before action brought in respect thereof, such party make tender of sufficient amends to the party injured, such last-mentioned party shall not recover in any such action; and if no such tender shall have been made it shall be lawful for the defendant, by leave of the court where such action shall be pending, at any time before issue joined, to pay into court such sum of money as he shall think fit, and thereupon such proceedings shall be had as in other cases where defendants are allowed to pay money into court.

Payment into court.

Recovery of penalties.

And with respect to the recovery of forfeitures, penalties, and costs, be it enacted as follows (a):

Penalties to be summarily recovered before two justices.

136. Every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this or the special Act, or by any byelaw made in pursuance thereof, the recovery of which is not otherwise provided for, may be recovered by summary proceeding before two justices . . .

137. [Penalties to be levied by distress.]

Distress, how to be levied.

138. Where in this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, any sum of money, whether in the nature of penalty, costs, or otherwise, is directed to be levied by distress, such sum of money shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the party liable to pay the same; and the overplus arising from the sale of such goods and chattels, after satisfying such sum of money, and the expenses of the distress and sale, shall be returned, on demand, to the party whose goods shall have been distrained.

Application of penalties.

139. The justices by whom any such penalty or forfeiture shall be imposed may, where the application thereof is not otherwise provided for, award not more than one-half thereof to the informer, and shall award the remainder to the overseers of the poor of the parish in which the offence shall have been committed to be applied in aid of the poor's rate of such parish, . . . (a). Section 139.

(a) See the Overseers Order, 1927, Art. 13, ante, p. 3599. The remainder of this section was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875.

140. If any such sum shall be payable by the promoters of the undertaking, and if sufficient goods of the said promoters cannot be found whereon to levy the same, it may, if the amount thereof do not exceed twenty pounds, be recovered by distress of the goods of the treasurer of the said promoters, and the justices aforesaid, or either of them, on application, shall issue their or his warrant accordingly; but no such distress shall issue against the goods of such treasurer unless seven days previous notice in writing, stating the amount so due, and demanding payment thereof, have been given to such treasurer, or left at his residence; and if such treasurer pay any money under such distress as aforesaid, he may retain the amount so paid by him, and all costs and expenses occasioned thereby, out of any money belonging to the promoters of the undertaking coming into his custody or control, or he may sue them for the same.

Distress against the treasurer.

Notice to treasurer.

Reimbursement of treasurer.

141. No distress levied by virtue of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, warrant of distress, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser ab initio on account of any irregularity afterwards committed by him, but all persons aggrieved by such defect or irregularity may recover full satisfaction for the special damage in an action upon the case.

Distress not unlawful for want of form, etc.

142. [Penalties to be sued for within six months] (a).

(a) Repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1892. See now the S. J. A., 1848, s. 11.

143. It shall be lawful for any justice to summon any person to appear before him as a witness in any matter in which such justice shall have jurisdiction, under the provisions of this or the special Act, at a time and place mentioned in such summons, and to administer to him an oath to testify the truth in such matter; and if any person so summoned shall, without reasonable excuse, refuse or neglect to appear at the time and place appointed for that purpose, having been paid or tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, or if any person appearing shall refuse to be examined upon oath or to give evidence before such justice, every such person shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence (a).

Penalty on witnesses making default.

(a) This section is repealed as to England so far as it relates to any matter to which the S. J. Acts apply (S. J. A., 1884).

144. [Form of conviction] (a).

(a) This section and Schedule (C.) containing the form of conviction were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1892.

145. No proceeding in pursuance of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, shall be quashed or vacated for want of form, nor shall the same be removed by certiorari or otherwise into any of the superior courts (a).

Proceedings not to be quashed for want of form, etc.

(a) See the notes to the corresponding section of the L. G. A., 1933, as to certiorari, s. 162, ante, p. 988. This section does not apply in cases where acts are done without jurisdiction. See R. v. South Wales Rail. Co. (1849), 13 Q. B. 988; 14 J. P. 6; R. v.

Appeal.

Parties allowed to appeal to quarter sessions on giving security.

146. If any party shall feel aggrieved by any determination or adjudication of any justice with respect to any penalty or forfeiture under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, such party may appeal to the general quarter sessions . . . (a).

(a) The remainder of this section is repealed as to England by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 4.

Court to make such order as they think reasonable.

147. At the quarter sessions for which such notice shall be given the court shall proceed to hear and determine the appeal in a summary way, or they may, if they think fit, adjourn it to the following sessions; and upon the hearing of such appeal the court may, if they think fit, mitigate any penalty or forfeiture, or they may confirm or quash the adjudication, and order any money paid by the appellant, or levied by distress upon his goods, to be returned to him, and may also order such further satisfaction to be made to the party injured as they may judge reasonable; and they may make such order concerning the costs both of the adjudication and of the appeal, as they may think reasonable.

metropolitan police district to receive penalties incurred within his district.

148. Provided always, that notwithstanding any thing herein or in the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, contained, every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, or by any byelaw in pursuance thereof, in respect of any offence which shall take place within the metropolitan police district, shall be recovered, enforced, accounted for, and, except where the application thereof is otherwise specially provided for, shall be paid to the receiver of the metropolitan police district, and shall be applied, in the same manner as penalties or forfeitures, other than fines upon drunken persons, or upon constables for misconduct, or for assaults upon police constables, are directed to be recovered, enforced, accounted for, paid, and applied by the Metropolitan Police Courts Act, 1839; and every order or conviction of any of the police magistrates in respect of any such forfeiture or penalty shall be subject to the like appeal and upon the same terms as is provided in respect of any order or conviction of any of the said police magistrates by the said last-mentioned Act; and every magistrate by whom any order or conviction shall have been made shall have the same power of binding over the witnesses who shall have been examined, and such witnesses shall be entitled to the same allowance of expenses, as he or they would have had or been entitled to in case the order, conviction, and appeal had been made in pursuance of the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act.

2 & 3 Vict. c. 71.

149. [False evidence] (a).

(a) Repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911.

Access to special Act.

And with respect to the provision to be made for affording access to the special Act by all parties interested, be it enacted as follows (a) :—

(a) These sections, with respect to access to the special Act, were not incorporated by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 176, but are incorporated with the L. G. A., 1933.

Copies of special Act to be kept and deposited, and allowed to be inspected.

150. The company shall at all times after the expiration of six months after the passing of the special Act keep in their principal office of business a copy of the special Act, printed by the printers to Her Majesty, or some of them; and where the undertaking shall be a railway, canal or other like undertaking, the works of which shall not be confined to one town or place, shall also Section 150.

 within the space of such six months deposit in the office of each of the [clerks of the county council] of the several counties into which the works shall extend a copy of such special Act, so printed as aforesaid; and the said [clerks of the county council] shall receive, and they and the company respectively shall retain, the said copies of the special Act, and shall permit all persons interested to inspect the same, and make extracts or copies therefrom, in the like manner and upon the like terms and under the like penalty for default as is provided in the case of certain plans and sections by an Act passed in the first year of the reign of her present Majesty intituled "An Act to compel Clerks of the 7 Will. 4 & Peace for counties and other Persons to take the custody of such Documents 1 Vict. c. 83. as shall be directed to be deposited with them under the Standing Orders of either House of Parliament."

See Parliamentary Documents Deposit Act, 1837; 12 Halsbury's Statutes 472.

The substitution in square brackets was made by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 101, ante, p. 867.

151. If the company shall fail to keep or deposit, as hereinbefore mentioned, any of the said copies of the special Act, they shall forfeit twenty pounds Penalty on company failing to keep or deposit copies.
 for every such offence, and also five pounds for every day afterwards during which such copy shall not be so kept or deposited.

THE RAILWAYS CLAUSES CONSOLIDATION ACT, 1845.

(8 & 9 VICT. c. 20) (a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain provisions usually inserted in Acts authorising the making of Railways. [8th May, 1845.]

* * * * *

mines.*

And with respect to mines lying under or near the railway, be it enacted as follows (a) :—

(a) These sections were not incorporated with the P. H. A., 1875, but are incorporated in orders made under the L. G. A., 1933, by ibid., Sched. VI., 2, ante, p. 1263.

Company not to be entitled to minerals.

77. The company shall not be entitled to any mines of coal, ironstone, slate, or other minerals under any land purchased by them, except only such parts thereof as shall be necessary to be dug or carried away or used in the construction of the works, unless the same shall have been expressly purchased (a) ; and all such mines, excepting as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be excepted out of the conveyance of such lands, unless they shall have been expressly named therein and conveyed thereby.

Ss. 77—85 of this Act are a code as to the rights of a company to mines and minerals, but they do not get rid of the ordinary law on the subject ; by inference they affirm the continuing application of the ordinary common law right of support but, in certain events, supersede it (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Howley Park Coal and Cannel Co., [1911] 2 Ch. 97, per BUCKLER, L.J., at pp. 126, 129 ; affd., [1913] A. C. 11 ; 11 Digest 153, 353). They do not take away the power of the company to purchase the minerals under s. 6 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4107, but are for the benefit not of the mine owner but of the company and only exempt the company from the obligation of buying the minerals at once together with the surface (Errington v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co. (1882), 19 Ch. D. 559 ; 11 Digest 107, 39). As to what are mines and minerals within the section, see Glasgow Corporation v. Farie, post, p. 4180 ; North British Rail. Co. v. Budhill Coal and Sandstone Co., post, p. 4180 ; Hext v. Gill, post, p. 4179 ; Great Western Rail. Co. v. Blades, post, p. 4180 ; Re Todd, Birleston & Co. and N. E. Rail. Co., post, p. 4180 ; Midland Rail. Co. and Kettering, Thrapston and Huntingdon Rail. Co. v. Robinson, post, p. 4180 ; Midland Rail. Co. v. Haunchwood Brick and Tile Co. (1882), 20 Ch. D. 552 ; 34 Digest 603, 3 ; Ruabon Brick Co. v. Great Western Rail. Co., post, p. 4182 ; Great Western Rail. Co. v. Carpalla Clay Co., post, p. 4179. This section applies whether the minerals are got by underground or surface workings (Midland Rail. Co., Ltd. v. Haunchwood Brick and Tile Co., supra).

(a) These words are not confined to purchases by agreement (Errington v. Metropolitan District Rail. Co., supra).

*Mines lying near the railway not to be worked if the company are willing to make

78. If the owner, lessee, or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under the railway, or any of the works connected therewith, or within the prescribed distance, or, where no distance shall be prescribed, forty yards therefrom, be desirous of working the same, such owner, lessee, or occupier shall give to the company notice in writing of his intention so to do, thirty days before the commencement of working (a) ; and upon the receipt of such notice it shall be lawful for the company to cause such mines to be inspected by any person appointed by them for the purpose ; and if it appear to the company that the working of such mines or minerals is likely to damage the works of the railway, and if the company be willing to make compensation (b) for such mines or any part thereof to such owner, lessee, or occupier thereof, then he shall not work or get the same ; and if the company, and such owner, lessee, or occupier, do not agree as to the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled as in other cases of disputed compensation (c).

By the Mines (Working Facilities and Support) Act, 1923, s. 15, Schedules I—III ; 14 Halsbury's Statutes 389—398, certain sections are substituted for ss. 78—85 of this Act where it is incorporated in any Act, order or other instrument relating to a railway company.

passed or made after 18th July, 1923. The L. G. A., 1933, was passed after that date but does not relate to a railway company, and consequently it is the original and not the substituted sections which are incorporated by ibid., Sched. VI., ante, p. 1263.

Note to
Section 78.

The question of how far a railway company acquires a right of support for the strata purchased from the strata not purchased has been discussed in a number of cases. The section simpliciter only applies to mines within forty yards of a railway and does not apply to mines outside that limit, though of course the acquiring authority may acquire by voluntary agreement more than it could acquire compulsorily. The general position appears to be as follows:—(1) If the company purchase the minerals within the 40 yards, they have the ordinary common law right of lateral support for their railway from mines beyond the 40 yards; (2) if they do not purchase the minerals within the 40 yards, the section deprives them of any common law right of support from such minerals; (3) if they purchase a stratum of minerals lying under the railway in lieu of paying compensation, they acquire no additional right of support from strata subjacent or adjacent to that purchased; (4) the section is not confined to compulsory purchase, but extends also to lands acquired voluntarily beyond the limits of the compulsory powers (L. & N. W. Rail. Co. v. Houley Park Coal and Cannel Co., [1911] 2 Ch. 97, affd., [1913] A. C. 11; 11 Digest 153, 353; Great Western Rail. Co. v. Bennett (1867), L. R. 2 H. L. 27; 11 Digest 152, 349; Ruabon Brick and Terra Cotta Co. v. Great Western Rail. Co., post, p. 4182).

(a) It is not necessary, for a notice to be given under this section, that the owner should intend to work the minerals himself, but there must be a real and bonâ fide desire to work either by himself or by his lessees or licensees (Midland Rail. Co. v. Robinson (1889), 15 App. Cas. 19; 11 Digest 150, 328).

(b) The company indicate willingness to make compensation by giving a counter notice. In Smith v. Great Western Rail. Cos. (1877), 3 App. Cas. 165, at p. 182; 42 J. P. 404; 11 Digest 156, 363, it was suggested that the counter notice must be given within thirty days, but this remark must be considered obiter (Dixon, Ltd. v. Caledonian and Glasgow and South Western Rail. Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 820; 11 Digest 155, 366), and the notice may be given at any time (ibid.).

(c) Compensation under this section is assessed under the Lands Clauses Acts (Smith v. Great Western Rail. Co., supra; R. v. London and North Western Rail. Co., [1894] 2 Q. B. 512; 58 J. P. 719); cf. s. 81, post, p. 4158, and notes thereto. For measure of compensation, see Eden v. North Eastern Rail. Co., [1907] A. C. 400; 71 J. P. 450; 11 Digest 157, 374; Rugby Portland Cement Co. v. London and North Western Rail. Co., [1908] 2 K. B. 606; 72 J. P. 245; 11 Digest 162, 411.

79. If before the expiration of such thirty days (a) the company do not state their willingness to treat with such owner, lessee, or occupier for the payment of such compensation, it shall be lawful for him to work the said mines or any part thereof for which the company shall not have agreed to pay compensation, so that the same be done in a manner proper and necessary for the beneficial working thereof, and according to the usual manner of working such mines in the district where the same shall be situate (b); and if any damage or obstruction be occasioned to the railway or works by improper working of such mines, the same shall be forthwith repaired or removed, as the case may require, and such damage made good, by the owner, lessee, or occupier of such mines or minerals, and at his own expense; and if such repair or removal be not forthwith done, or, if the company shall so think fit, without waiting for the same to be done by such owner, lessee, or occupier, it shall be lawful for the company to execute the same, and recover from such owner, lessee, or occupier the expense occasioned thereby, by action in any of the superior courts.

If company are not willing to make compensation, owner may work the mines—
Damage or obstruction to railway caused by improper working to be made good.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

(a) See note (b) to s. 78, ante, and note that the fact that the 30 days has expired does not prevent the company from giving counter notice subsequently.

(b) The owner may work the minerals by open workings if such is the usual manner of working the mines in the district in which they are situate (Midland Rail. Co. v. Robinson, post, p. 4180). This is so even though, in so doing, he destroys the railway (Ruabon Brick and Terra Cotta Co. v. Great Western Rail. Co., post, p. 4182). But the company cannot thereafter be compelled to restore the railway (R. v. Great Western Rail. Co. (1893), 58 J. P. 74; 62 L. J. Q. B. 572; 38 Digest 258, 34).

Section 80.

Mining communications between mines lying on both sides of railway.

80. If the working of any such mines under the railway or works, or within the above-mentioned distance therefrom, be prevented as aforesaid by reason of apprehended injury to the railway, it shall be lawful for the respective owners, lessees and occupiers of such mines, and whose mines shall extend so as to lie on both sides of the railway, to cut and make such and so many airways, headways, gateways, or water levels through the mines, measures, or strata the working whereof shall be so prevented as may be requisite to enable them to ventilate, drain, and work their said mines, but no such airway, headway, gateway, or water level shall be of greater dimensions or section than the prescribed dimensions and sections, and where no dimensions shall be described not greater than eight feet wide and eight feet high, nor shall the same be cut or made upon any part of the railway or works, or so as to injure the same, or to impede the passage thereon.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

The owner may not pass over the railway, but is entitled to compensation under s. 81, infra, for the additional expense he will have to incur in tunnelling under it (Midland Rail. Co. v. Miles (1886), 33 Ch. D. 632; 19 Digest 100, 628).

Company to make compensation for injury done to mines.

81. The company shall from time to time pay to the owner, lessee, or occupier or any such mines extending so as to lie on both sides of the railway all such additional expenses and losses as shall be incurred by such owner, lessee, or occupier by reason of the severance of the lands lying over such mines by the railway, or of the continuous working of such mines being interrupted as aforesaid, or by reason of the same being worked in such manner and under such restrictions as not to prejudice or injure the railway, and for any minerals not purchased by the company which cannot be obtained by reason of the making and maintaining the railway; and if any dispute or question shall arise between the company and such owner, lessee, or occupier as aforesaid, touching the amount of such losses or expenses, the same shall be settled by arbitration.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

In the case of this section, the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts do not apply (R. v. London and North Western Rail. Co., [1894] 2 Q. B. 512; 58 J. P. 719); cf. notes to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

Company to make compensation also to owner, etc., of surface for damage caused by any airway or other work made necessary by the railway.

82. If any loss or damage be sustained by the owner or occupier of the lands lying over any such mines the working whereof shall have been so prevented as aforesaid (and not being the owner, lessee, or occupier of such mines) by reason of the making of any such airway or other work as aforesaid, which or any like work would not have been necessary to be made but for the working of such mines having been so prevented as aforesaid, the company shall make full compensation to such owner or occupier of the surface lands for the loss or damage so sustained by him.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

Power to company to enter and inspect the working of mines.

83. For better ascertaining whether any such mines are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the railway or works, it shall be lawful for the company, after giving twenty-four hours notice in writing, to enter upon any lands through or near which the railway passes wherein any such mines are being worked or are supposed so to be, and to enter into and return from any such mines or the works connected therewith; and for that purpose it shall be lawful for them to make use of any apparatus or machinery belonging to the owner, lessee, or occupier or such mines, and to use all necessary means for discovering the distance from the railway to the parts of such mines which are being worked or about so to be.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

84. If any such owner, lessee, or occupier of any such mine shall refuse to allow any person appointed by the company for that purpose to enter into and inspect any such mines or works in manner aforesaid, every person so offending shall for every such refusal forfeit to the company a sum not exceeding twenty pounds.

Section 84.

Penalty for refusal to allow inspection.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

85. If it appear that any such mines have been worked contrary to the provisions of this or the special Act, the company may, if they think fit, give notice to the owner, lessee, or occupier thereof to construct such works and to adopt such means as may be necessary or proper for making safe the railway, and preventing injury thereto; and if after such notice any such owner, lessee, or occupier do not forthwith proceed to construct the works necessary for making safe the railway, the company may themselves construct such works, and recover the expense thereof from such owner, lessee, or occupier, by action in any of the superior courts.

If mines improperly worked, the company may require means to be adopted for the safety of the railway.

See first note to s. 78, ante, p. 4156.

* * * * *

And with respect to the recovery of damages not specially provided for, and of penalties, and to the determination of any other matter referred to justices, be it enacted as follows (b):

Recovery of damages and penalties.

(a) The following sections of this Act are here set out as being incorporated with the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 40, post, p. 4175, and the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 85.

(b) This part of the Act is printed as it is left unrepealed by the S. J. A., 1884, which substitutes for the repealed sections the corresponding provisions of the S. J. Acts. Most of the same sections are again repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1892.

140. In all cases where any damages, costs, or expenses are by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, directed to be paid, and the method of ascertaining the amount or enforcing the payment thereof is not provided for (a), such amount, in case of dispute, shall be ascertained and determined by two justices; and if the amount so ascertained be not paid by the company or other party liable to pay the same within seven days after demand the amount may be recovered by distress of the goods of the company or other party liable as aforesaid; and the justices by whom the same shall have been ordered to be paid, or either of them, or any other justice on application, shall issue their or his warrant accordingly (b).

Provision for ascertainment of damages not otherwise provided for.

Enforcement by distress.

(a) See Harpur v. Swansea Corporation, [1913] A. C. 597; 77 J. P. 381; 43 Digest 1097, 272.

(b) These damages, costs, and expenses are now apparently civil debts within the S. J. A., 1879, ss. 6, 35, as being sums recoverable on complaint to a court of summary jurisdiction.

141. If sufficient goods of the company cannot be found whereon to levy any such damages, costs, and expenses payable by the company, the same may, if the amount thereof do not exceed twenty pounds, be recovered by distress of the goods of the treasurer of the company; and the justices aforesaid, or either of them, on application, shall issue their or his warrant accordingly; but no such distress shall issue against the goods of such treasurer unless seven days previous notice in writing, stating the amount so due, and demanding payment thereof, have been given to such treasurer, or left at his residence; and if such treasurer pay any money under such distress as aforesaid, he may retain the amount so paid by him, and all costs and expenses occasioned thereby, out of any money belonging to the company coming into his custody or control, or he may sue the company for the same.

Distress against the treasurer.

Notice to treasurer.

Reimbursement of treasurer.

Section 142.

Method of proceeding before justices in questions of damages, etc.

142. Where in this or the special Act any question of compensation, expenses, charges, or damages, or other matter, is referred to the determination of any one justice, or more, it shall be lawful for any justice, upon the application of either party, to summon the other party to appear before one justice, or before two justices, as the case may require, at a time and place to be named in such summons; and upon the appearance of such parties, or in the absence of any of them, upon proof of due service of the summons, it shall be lawful for such one justice, or such two justices, as the case may be, to hear and determine such question, and for that purpose to examine such parties or any of them, and their witnesses, on oath; and the cost of every such inquiry shall be in the discretion of such justices, and they shall determine the amount thereof.

Publication of penalties.

143. The company shall publish the short particulars of the several offences for which any penalty is imposed by this or the special Act, or by any byelaw of the company affecting other persons than the shareholders, officers, or servants of the company, and of the amount of every such penalty, and shall cause such particulars to be painted on a board, or printed upon paper and pasted thereon, and shall cause such board to be hung up or affixed on some conspicuous part of the principal place of business of the company, and where any such penalties are of local application shall cause such boards to be affixed in some conspicuous place in the immediate neighbourhood to which such penalties are applicable or have reference; and such particulars shall be renewed as often as the same or any part thereof is obliterated or destroyed; and no such penalty shall be recoverable unless it shall have been published and kept published in the manner hereinbefore required.

Penalty for defacing boards used for such publication.

144. If any person pull down or injure any board put up or affixed as required by this or the special Act for the purpose of publishing any byelaw or penalty, or shall obliterate any of the letters or figures thereon, he shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds and shall defray the expenses attending the restoration of such board.

Penalties to be summarily recovered before two justices.

145. Every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this or the special Act, or by any byelaw made in pursuance thereof, the recovery of which is not otherwise provided for, may be recovered by summary proceedings (a) before two justices (b).

(a) See Metropolitan Water Board v. Bunn, [1913] 3 K. B. 181; 77 J. P. 353; 38 Digest 119, 860.

(b) The remainder of this section and the whole of the two following sections are repealed by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 4, and Schedule, and again by the S. L. R. A., 1892.

146. [Penalties to be levied by distress.]

147. [Imprisonment in default of distress.]

Distress how to be levied.

148. Where in this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith any sum of money, whether in the nature of penalty or otherwise, is directed to be levied by distress, such sum of money shall be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the party liable to pay the same; and the overplus arising from the sale of such goods and chattels, after satisfying such sum of money, and the expenses of the distress and sale, shall be returned, on demand, to the party whose goods shall have been distrained.

Distress not unlawful for want of term, etc.

149. No distress levied by virtue of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, shall be deemed unlawful, nor shall any party making the same be deemed a trespasser, on account of any defect or want of form in the summons, conviction, warrant of distress, or other proceeding relating thereto, nor shall such party be deemed a trespasser ab initio on account of any irregularity afterwards committed by him, but all persons aggrieved by such defect or irregularity may recover full satisfaction for the special damage in an action upon the case. Section 149.

150. The justices by whom any such penalty or forfeiture shall be imposed may, where the application thereof is not otherwise provided for, award not more than one half thereof to the informer, and shall award the remainder to the overseers of the poor of the parish in which the offence shall have been committed, to be applied in aid of the poor's rate of such parish, . . . (a). Application of penalties.

(a) The remainder of this section relating to extra-parochial places is repealed as obsolete by the S. L. R. A., 1875. Overseers having been abolished by s. 62, R. and V. Act, 1925, see now as to the application of these penalties the Overseers Order, 1927 (S. R. & O., 1927, No. 55), Art. 13 (1) (b), ante, p. 3599.

151. [Penalties to be sued for within six months] (a).

(a) This section is repealed by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 4, and Schedule, and again by the S. L. R. A., 1892. See now the S. J. A., 1848, s. 11.

152. If, through any act, neglect, or default, on account whereof any person shall have incurred any penalty imposed by this or the special Act, any damage to the property of the company shall have been committed by such person, he shall be liable to make good such damage as well as to pay such penalty; and the amount of such damages shall, in case of dispute, be determined by the justices by whom the party incurring such penalty shall have been convicted; and on non-payment of such damages, on demand, the same shall be levied by distress, and such justices, or one of them, shall issue their or his warrant accordingly. Damage to be made good in addition to penalty.

153. It shall be lawful for any justice to summon any person to appear before him as a witness in any matter in which such justice shall have jurisdiction under the provisions of this or the special Act, at a time and place mentioned in such summons, and to administer to him an oath to testify the truth in such matter; and if any person so summoned shall, without reasonable excuse, refuse or neglect to appear at the time and place appointed for that purpose, having been paid or tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, or if any person appearing shall refuse to be examined upon oath or to give evidence before such justice, every such person shall forfeit a sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence (a). Penalty on witnesses making default.

(a) This section is repealed so far as relates to any matter to which the S. J. Acts apply (47 & 48 Vict. c. 43).

154. It shall be lawful for any officer or agent of the company, and all persons called by him to his assistance, to seize and detain any person who shall have committed any offence against the provisions of this or the special Act, and whose name and residence shall be unknown to such officer or agent, and convey him with all convenient despatch before some justice, without any warrant or other authority than this or the special Act; and such justice shall proceed with all convenient despatch to the hearing and determining of the complaint against such offender. Transient offenders.

155. [Form of conviction] (a).

(a) This section is repealed by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 4, and Schedule, and again by the S. L. R. A., 1892.

Section 156. 156. No proceeding in pursuance of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, shall be quashed or vacated for want of form, nor shall the same be removed by certiorari or otherwise into any of the superior courts (a).

Proceedings not to be quashed for want of form. etc.

(a) See the notes to s. 162 (2) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 988.

Appeal.

Parties allowed to appeal to quarter sessions, on giving security.

157. If any party shall feel aggrieved by any determination or adjudication of any justice with respect to any penalty or forfeiture under the provisions of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, such party may appeal to the general quarter sessions . . . (a).

(a) The remainder of this section is repealed as to England by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 4, and Schedule. See now s. 6 of that Act, and the S. J. A., 1879, s. 31.

Court to make such order as they think reasonable.

158. At the quarter sessions for which such notice shall be given the court shall proceed to hear and determine the appeal in a summary way, or they may, if they think fit, adjourn it to the following sessions; and upon the hearing of such appeal the court may, if they think fit, mitigate any penalty or forfeiture, or they may confirm or quash the adjudication, and order any money paid by the appellant, or levied by distress upon his goods, to be returned to him, and may also order such further satisfaction to be made to the party injured as they may judge reasonable; and they may make such order concerning the costs, both of the adjudication and of the appeal, as they may think reasonable.

Receiver of metropolitan police district to receive penalties incurred within his district.

159. Provided always, that notwithstanding anything herein or in the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, contained, every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, or by any byelaw in pursuance thereof, in respect of any offence which shall take place within the metropolitan police district, shall be recovered, enforced, accounted for, and, except where the application thereof is otherwise specially provided for, shall be paid to the receiver of the metropolitan police district, and shall be applied, in the same manner as penalties or forfeitures, other than fines upon drunken persons, or upon constables for misconduct, or for assaults upon police constables, are directed to be recovered, enforced, accounted for, paid, and applied by the Metropolitan Police Courts Act, 1839; and every order or conviction of any of the police magistrates in respect of any such forfeiture or penalty shall be subject to the like appeal, and upon the same terms, as is provided in respect of any order or conviction of any of the said police magistrates by the said last-mentioned Act; and every magistrate by whom any order or conviction shall have been made shall have the same power of binding over the witnesses who shall have been examined, and such witnesses shall be entitled to the same allowance of expenses, as he or they would have had or been entitled to in case the order, conviction, and appeal had been made in pursuance of the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act.

2 & 3 Vict. c. 71.

160. [False evidence] (a).

(a) Repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911.

THE GASWORKS CLAUSES ACT, 1847.

Section 1.

(10 & 11 Vict. c. 15) (a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain provisions usually contained in Acts authorising the making of Gasworks for supplying Towns with Gas.

[23rd April, 1847.]

[1.] This Act shall extend only to such gasworks as shall be authorised by any Act of Parliament hereafter to be passed which shall declare that this Act shall be incorporated therewith, and all the clauses of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by any such Act, shall apply to the undertaking authorised thereby, so far as the same shall be applicable to such undertaking, and shall, with the clauses of every other Act which shall be incorporated therewith, form part of such Act, and be construed therewith as forming one Act (b).

Incorporation with special Act.

(a) The P. H. A., 1875, s. 161, post, enabled an urban authority to obtain a Provisional Order authorising a gas undertaking under the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, and any Act amending the same (36 & 37 Vict. c. 89). These Acts, which are set out, post, pp. 4264, 4328, incorporate this Act, and in consequence the amending Act of 1871, post, p. 4307, both of which are, therefore, included in this work. Reference should, however, be made to the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, which contains important provisions relating to the manufacturing and sale of gas, the charges made for gas supplied, the testing of gas, etc., and the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, Vol. V., post. A Provisional Order is now replaced by a "special" order and the Board of Trade have replaced the G. B. as the central authority.

As to the powers of gas undertakers in relation to residuals, see Deuchar v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1925] A. C. 691; 89 J. P. 177; 25 Digest 471, 10; and s. 4 of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, Vol. V., post.

(b) As to the limits of supply, see Gas Light and Coke Co. v. South Metropolitan Gas Co. (1889), 54 J. P. 373; 62 L. T. 126; 25 Digest 491, 114. A water company was authorised to give a supply of water within certain specified parishes, and extended its water main to the boundary of the district within which it was authorised to supply water, and from thence continued it at the cost of the consumer to a place beyond its district. When they erected a hydrant and meter from which pipes were laid to the consumer's house. It was held that a "supply" of water covered the delivery of water for use at the terminals, wherever they might be, at which a consumer took possession of the water and devoted it to his own use, and that the company was not entitled to give such supply and must be restrained by injunction (Att.-Gen. v. West Gloucestershire Water Co., [1909] Ch. 338; 73 J. P. 453; 28 Digest 460, 150). Gas undertakers may obtain an order from the Board of Trade to supply premises outside their limits of supply under s. 5, Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, Vol. V., post.

And with respect to the construction of this Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, be it enacted as follows:

"Interpretation."

2. The expression "the special Act" used in this Act shall be construed to mean any Act which shall be hereafter passed authorising the construction of gasworks, and with which this Act shall be so incorporated as aforesaid; and the word "prescribed," used in this Act in reference to any matter herein stated, shall be construed to refer to such matter as the same shall be prescribed or provided for in the special Act, and the sentence in which such word occurs shall be construed as if instead of the word "prescribed" the expression "prescribed for that purpose in the special Act" had been used; and the expression "the lands" shall mean the lands which shall by the special Act be authorised to be taken or used for the purposes thereof: and the expression "the undertaking" shall mean the gasworks, and the works connected therewith, by the special Act authorised to be constructed; and the expression "the undertakers" shall mean the persons by the special Act authorised to construct the gasworks.

"The special Act."

"Prescribed."

"The lands."

"The undertaking."

"The undertakers."

Section 3. 3. The following words and expressions in both this and the special Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say,)

Number.	Words importing the singular number only shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number only shall include also the singular number :
Gender.	Words importing the masculine gender shall include females :
" Person."	The word " person " shall include corporation, whether aggregate or sole :
" Lands."	The word " lands " shall include messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, or heritages of any tenure :
" Street."	The word " street " shall include any square, court, or alley, highway, lane, road, thoroughfare, or public passage or place, within the limits of the special Act (a) :
" The gas-works."	The expression " the gasworks " shall mean the gasworks, and the works connected therewith, by the special Act authorised to be constructed (b) :
" Gas rate."	The expression " gas rate " shall include any rent, reward, or payment to be made to the undertakers for a supply of gas :
" Month."	The word " month " shall mean calendar month :
" Superior courts."	The expression " superior courts," where the matter submitted to the cognizance of the superior courts arises in England . . . shall mean Her Majesty's superior courts of record at Westminster . . . (c).
" Oath."	The word " oath " shall include affirmation in the case of Quakers, and any declaration lawfully substituted for an oath in the case of any other persons allowed by law to make a declaration instead of taking an oath :
" County."	The word " county " shall include riding or other division of a county having a separate commission of the peace . . . (c) and it shall also include county of a city or county of a town :
" Justice."	The word " justice " shall mean justice of the peace acting for the place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any such justice arises; and where any matter shall be authorised or required to be done by two justices, the expression " two justices " shall be understood to mean two or more justices met and acting together (c) :
" Two justices."
" Quarter sessions."	The expression " quarter sessions " shall mean quarter sessions as defined in the special Act; and if such expression be not there defined it shall mean the court of general or quarter sessions of the peace which shall be held at the place nearest to the gasworks, or the principal office thereof, for the county or place in which the gasworks are situate, or for some division of such county having a separate commission of the peace.

(a) This definition was held not to include an open tract of land above mean high water-mark, which belonged to the owner of enclosed land fronting the shore. It appeared that the inhabitants of two villages on the shore had always gone to and fro between them along the shore, and at high water passed over this land as they chose, but by no defined track (Maddock v. Wallasey L. B. (1886), 50 J. P. 404; 55 L. J. Q. B. 267; 25 Digest 472, 15).

(b) The expression " gasworks and plant " in s. 46 of the Hamilton Gas Works Act, 1895, was held to include not only the works themselves in the material sense, but the undertaking as a going concern (Hamilton Gas Co. v. Hamilton Corporation, [1910] A. C. 300; 74 J. P. 185; 25 Digest 493, b; Perth Gas Co. v. Perth Corporation, [1911] A. C. 506; 27 T. L. R. 526; 25 Digest 493, a).

(c) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

Citing the Act. And with respect to citing this Act, or any part thereof, be it enacted as follows:

4. In citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament, and in legal instruments, Section 4. it shall be enough to use the expression "The Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847."

Short title of this Act.

5. For the purpose of incorporating part only of this Act with any Act hereafter to be passed, it shall be enough to describe the clauses of this Act with respect to any matter in the words introductory to the enactment with respect to such matter, and to enact that the clauses so described, or that this Act, with the exception of the clauses so described, shall be incorporated with such Act; and thereupon all the clauses of this Act so incorporated shall, save so far as they are expressly varied or excepted by such Act, form part of such Act; and such Act shall be construed as if such clauses were set forth therein with reference to the matter to which such Act relates.

Incorporation of parts of this Act with other Acts.

And with respect to the breaking up of streets for the purpose of laying pipes, be it enacted as follows (a): Laying of pipes.

6. The undertakers, under such superintendence as is hereinafter specified, may open and break up the soil and pavement of the several streets and bridges within the limits of the special Act, and may open and break up any sewers, drains, or tunnels (b) within or under such streets and bridges, and lay down and place within the same limits, pipes, conduits, service pipes, and other works (c), and from time to time repair, alter, or remove the same, and also make any sewers that may be necessary for carrying off the washings and waste liquids which may arise in the making of the gas, and for the purposes aforesaid may remove and use all earth and materials in and under such streets and bridges, and they may in such streets erect any pillars, lamps, and other works, and do all other acts which the undertakers shall from time to time deem necessary for supplying gas to the inhabitants of the district included within the said limits, doing as little damage as may be (d) in the execution of the powers hereby or by the special Act granted, and making compensation for any damage which may be done in the execution of such powers (e).

Power to break up streets, etc. under superintendence, and to open drains, and to lay pipes, make sewers, erect lamps, etc.

(a) See on this subject the cases cited in the notes to the P. H. A., 1875, s. 149, post. See also s. 80 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1152, and notes thereto. As to the liability of the company for an accident caused while breaking up a pavement, see Hornby v. Liverpool United Gas Light Co. (1883), 47 J. P. 231; 25 Digest 483, 80. As to what is a street, see Maddock v. Wallasey L. B., ante, p. 4164.

(b) A tunnel, with brick sides and a roof of girders set in concrete, which is constructed by the owner of the soil on either side of a public highway, is not a tunnel within the meaning of the section with which the undertakers may interfere (Schweder v. Worthing Gas Light and Coke Co. (No. 1), [1912] 1 Ch. 83; 76 J. P. 3; 25 Digest 473, 23).

(c) A corporation, empowered to supply gas within a township, of which the local board, as undertakers within the meaning of this section, had the exclusive right of laying gas mains therein and was compelled to repair them and to allow the corporation to use them, was held to have a mere easement in the mains and not liable to be rated in respect of them (Southport Corporation v. Ormskirk Assessment Committee, [1894] 1 Q. B. 196; 58 J. P. 212; 19 Digest 17, 47). As to the meaning, in a local Act, of the term "mains," see Whittington Gas Light and Coke Co. v. Chesterfield Gas and Water Board, [1914] 2 Ch. 146; 78 J. P. 379; 25 Digest 471, 13.

(d) As to this phrase, see R. v. East and West India Docks, etc. Rail. Co. (1853), 2 E. & B. 466; 17 J. P. 807; 38 Digest 267, 92.

(e) As to the assessment of compensation, see 64 J. P. 291.

7. Provided always, that nothing herein shall authorise or empower the undertakers to lay down or place any pipe or other works into, through, or against any building (a), or in any land, not dedicated to public use (b), without the consent of the owners and occupiers thereof; except that the undertakers may at any time enter upon and lay or place any new pipe in Undertakers not to enter on private land without consent.

Section 7. the place of an existing pipe in any land wherein any pipe hath been already lawfully laid down or placed in pursuance of this or the special Act or any other Act of Parliament, and may repair or alter any pipe so laid down (c).

(a) Arches in a roadway occupied as cellars are buildings (Thompson v. Sunderland Gas Co. (1877), 2 Ex. D. 429; 42 J. P. 198; 25 Digest 473, 21). So is a brick tunnel with a roof constructed of girders set in concrete (Schweder v. Worthing Gas Light and Coke Co. (No. 1), [1912] 1 Ch. 83; 76 J. P. 3; 25 Digest 473, 23, following Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Glasgow Corporation (1901), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 526).

(b) The dedication of a road to public use brings it within s. 6 (supra), and no part of it can for the purposes of gas or water undertakings be properly held to be land "not dedicated to public use" under this section. Dedication as between the owner of the soil on the one hand and the controlling authority on the other, involves not merely the occupation by the public of the surface, but also the dedication of so much of the subjacent soil as is necessary for the proper maintenance of the surface as a road or street (Schweder v. Worthing Gas Light and Coke Co. (No. 2), [1913] 1 Ch. 118; 77 J. P. 41; 25 Digest 472, 16). As to breaking up occupation roads not dedicated to the public, see Selby v. Crystal Palace District Gas Co. (1862), 30 Beav. 606; 31 L. J. Ch. 592; 25 Digest 472, 19. Power is now given to local authority undertakers upon application by the owner or occupier of premises abutting on a street to lay gas and water pipes in streets laid out but not dedicated (P. H. A., 1926, s. 80, Vol. V., post; P. H. A., 1936, s. 119, ante, p. 367). As to what constitutes such a street, see Davies v. Ripon Corporation, [1928] Ch. 884; 92 J. P. 163; 43 Digest 1062, 36.

(c) This section does not preclude the undertakers from taking a pipe through a railway bridge under s. 6 without cutting into the structure of the bridge but laying the pipe in the soil (Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Cardiff Gas Light and Coke Co. (1907), 71 J. P. 350; 23 T. L. R. 528; 25 Digest 472, 17).

In view of this section the undertakers are not liable to penalties under s. 36 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, post, p. 4316, for neglect or refusal to supply gas to a lamp in a private passage where the owner objects to their laying the pipe (Bellamy v. Liverpool United Gas Light Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 540; 2 L. G. R. 1182; 25 Digest 472, 20).

8. Before the undertakers proceed to open or break up any street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel, they shall give to the persons (a) under whose control or management the same may be, or to their clerk, surveyor, or other officer notice in writing of their intention to open or break up the same, not less than three clear days before beginning such work, except in cases of emergency arising from defects in any of the pipes or other works, and then so soon as is possible after the beginning of the work, or the necessity for the same shall have arisen (b).

(a) A rural district council as "highway authority" under s. 25, L. G. A., 1894, was held not to be, and a county council in respect of a rural district is therefore not a "person under whose control or management" a highway, dedicated to the public, but not repairable by the inhabitants at large, is within the meaning of this section (Redhill Gas Co. v. Reigate R. D. C., [1911] 2 K. B. 565; 75 J. P. 358; 25 Digest 473, 24). Within the area of an urban district council there were three streets or roads which were open for public use, but which were not repairable by the inhabitants at large. The Post Office authorities were desirous of placing telegraph wires along these streets, and applied to the district council for their consent, but the council refused to give consent on the ground that the streets were not under their control within the meaning of s. 13 of the Telegraph Act, 1863. It was held that the council "had not the control over the roads" and were not therefore entitled to give consent (Postmaster-General v. Hendon U. D. C., [1914] 1 K. B. 564; 78 J. P. 145; 42 Digest 888, 19). See also Postmaster-General v. Huichings, [1916] 1 K. B. 774; 80 J. P. 246; 42 Digest 892, 38.

(b) Consent is not necessary (Dover Gaslight Co. v. Dover Corporation (1855), 7 De G. M. & G. 545; 19 J. P. 615; 25 Digest 471, 12). As to what notice must be given, see Edgware Highway Board v. Colne Valley Water Co. (1877), 46 L. J. Ch. 889; 43 Digest 1072, 97. As to the right of support of pipes laid in a highway, see Normanton Gas Co. v. Pope (1883), 52 L. J. Q. B. 629; 49 L. T. 798; 25 Digest 474, 27.

9. No such street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel shall except in the cases of emergency aforesaid, be opened or broken up except under the superintendence of the persons having the control or management thereof, or of their officer, and according to such plan as shall be approved of by such persons or their officer, or in case of any difference respecting such plan, then according to such plan as shall be determined by two justices; and such

Notice to be served on persons having control, etc., before breaking up streets or opening drains.

Streets or drains not to be broken up except under superintendence of persons having control of the same.

Section 9.

ustices may, on the application of the persons having the control or management of any such sewer or drain, or their officer, require the undertakers to make such temporary or other works as they may think necessary for guarding against any interruption of the drainage during the execution of any works which interfere with any such sewer or drain: Provided always, that if the persons having such control or management as aforesaid, and their officer, fail to attend at the time fixed for the opening of any such street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel, after having had such notice of the undertakers' intention as aforesaid, or shall not propose any plan for breaking up or opening the same, or shall refuse or neglect to superintend the operation, the undertakers may perform the work specified in such notice without the superintendence of such persons or their officer (a).

(a) See Edgware Highway Board v. Colne Valley Water Co. (1877), 46 L. J. Ch. 889; 43 Digest 1072, 97; East Molesey L. B. v. Lambeth Waterworks Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 289; 43 Digest 1072, 96; and note (a) to s. 12 at p. 4168, post.

Where a local authority in the metropolis employ a contractor to reinstate streets broken up by a company under statutory powers, they cannot recover from the company under s. 114 of the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, any sum in addition to the amount actually paid to the contractor, in respect of supervision exercised by their officers over the work, if in fact no expense has been incurred for supervision beyond that which would have been incurred if the company had executed the work of reinstatement (Metropolitan Water Board v. Westminster City Council (1905), 70 J. P. 52; 75 L. J. K. B. 384; 43 Digest 1097, 271).

A metropolitan borough council purporting to act under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 114, passed a resolution that they would in all cases where any pavement was opened by a gas company do the work of reinstatement themselves. Subsequently a gas company having opened the pavement of a street and finished laying their pipes, gave notice to the council that reinstatement was necessary. It was held that the resolution did not, upon the mere expiry of a reasonable time after receipt of the notice, ipso facto release the company from the duty imposed by the above section. To effect such release it was necessary that the council should dismiss the company from the control of the reinstatement, and in fact take charge of the work themselves (Brame v. Commercial Gas Co., [1914] 3 K. B. 1181; 79 J. P. 55; 25 Digest 491, 117).

10. When the undertakers open or break up the road or pavement of any street or bridge, or any sewer, drain, or tunnel, they shall with all convenient speed complete the work for which the same shall be broken up, and fill in the ground, and reinstate and make good the road or pavement, or the sewer, drain, or tunnel, so opened or broken up, and carry away the rubbish occasioned thereby, and shall at all times, whilst any such road or pavement shall be so opened or broken up, cause the same to be fenced and guarded, and shall cause a light sufficient for the warning of passengers to be set up and maintained against or near such road or pavement, where the same shall be open or broken up, every night during which the same shall be continued open or broken up, and shall keep the road or pavement which has been so broken up in good repair for three months after replacing and making good the same, and for such further time, if any, not being more than twelve months in the whole, as the soil so broken up shall continue to subside.

Streets, etc. broken up to be reinstated without delay.

Roads, etc. to be fenced and lighted while opened;

and to be kept in repair for a certain time afterwards.

11. If the undertakers open or break up any street or bridge, or any sewer, drain, or tunnel, without giving such notice as aforesaid, or in a manner different from that which shall have been approved of or determined as aforesaid, or without making such temporary or other works as aforesaid when so required, except in the cases in which the undertakers are hereby authorised to perform such works without any superintendence or notice, or if the undertakers make any delay in completing any such work, or in filling in the ground, or reinstating and making good the road or pavement, or the sewer, drain, or tunnel, so opened or broken up, or in carrying away the rubbish occasioned thereby, or if they neglect to cause the place where

Section 11. such road or pavement has been broken up to be fenced, guarded, and lighted, or neglect to keep the road or pavement in repair for the space of three months next after the same is made good, or such further time as aforesaid, they shall forfeit to the persons having the control or management of the street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel, in respect of which such default is made, a sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence, and they shall forfeit an additional sum of five pounds for each day during which any such delay as aforesaid shall continue after they shall have received notice thereof (a).

(a) Notwithstanding this section the undertakers may be liable in damages to a person injured in consequence of careless or defective filling in of the ground (Goodson v. Sunbury Gas Co. (1896), 60 J. P. 585; 75 L. T. 251; 25 Digest 483, 77). In the metropolis the local authority may claim to reinstate the street under s. 114 of the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, instead of permitting a gas company to do it, and in that case the gas company are not liable if it is done negligently (Cressy v. South Metropolitan Gas Co. (1906), 70 J. P. 405; 94 L. T. 790; 25 Digest 483, 78). This case was distinguished in Brame v. Commercial Gas Co., cited in the note to s. 9, supra. Recovery of expenses of reinstatement from the gas company in such cases is provided for by s. 82 of the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862. See Commercial Gas Co. v. Poplar Borough Council (1906), 70 J. P. 178; 94 L. T. 222; 25 Digest 473, 25.

In case of delay, persons having control of streets, etc. may reinstate them.

12. If any such delay or omission as aforesaid take place, the persons having the control or management of the street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel, in respect of which such delay or omission shall take place, may cause the work so delayed or omitted to be executed, and the expense (a) of executing the same shall be repaid to such persons by the undertakers; and such expenses may be recovered in the same manner as damages are recoverable under this or the special Act.

(a) This includes a reasonable charge for the supervision of the work (New River Co. v. Westminster Corporation (1904), 68 J. P. 358).

Supply of gas.

And with respect to the supply of gas, and the recovery of the rent to be paid for the same, be it enacted as follows (a):

(a) It should be mentioned here that important alterations in the mode of charging for gas supplied are introduced by the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, and the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, s. 6, Vol. V., post.

Power of the undertakers to contract for lighting buildings, streets, etc.

(a) See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 161. Sections 14 and 15 of this Act are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875, except in so far as incorporated with the special Acts to which the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, post, p. 4307, does not apply. Section 14 related to the exemption of gas fittings from distress, as to which, see Gaslight and Coke Co. v. Hardy (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 619; 51 J. P. 6; 18 Digest 308, 438.

If rent is not paid, gas may be cut off and rent and expenses recovered.

16. If any person supplied with gas by virtue of this or the special Act, neglect to pay the rent due for the same to the undertakers, the undertakers may stop the gas from entering the premises of such person, by cutting off the service-pipe, or by such means as the undertakers shall think fit (a).

(a) The remainder of this section was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875, as also was s. 17, except in so far as incorporated with special Acts to which the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, post, p. 4307, does not apply. The liability under this section attaches to the person, not to the premises, and the undertakers may cut off the gas supplied to one set of premises of a customer for default made by him in respect of another set of premises (Montreal Gas Co. v. Cadieux, [1899] A. C. 589; 25 Digest 478, b).

The payment due to a gas company for gas supplied, though called a rent, is not really a rent, and consequently a gas company does not come within the words "or other person to whom any rent is due" in s. 34 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869 (now s. 35 (1) of the Bankruptcy Act, 1914 (Ex parte Harrison, Re Peake (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 753; 5 Digest 958, 7853).

An incoming tenant is not liable for arrears due from an outgoing tenant under the Gaslight and Coke Company's special Act (Cannon Brewery Co. v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1904] A. C. 331; 68 J. P. 461; 25 Digest 476, 37). But where a woman took and paid for gas supplied to her house and afterwards married, it was held that she continued liable for gas supplied after her marriage until she discontinued the supply or gave the gas company notice of her marriage (Lea Bridge District Gas Co. v. Malvern, [1917] 1 K. B. 803; 81 J. P. 141; 25 Digest 477, 43).

* * * * *

And with respect to waste or misuse of the gas, or injury to the pipes and other works, be it enacted as follows:

Note to
Section 16.

Undue use of gas.

18. Every person who shall lay or cause to be laid any pipe to communicate with any pipe belonging to the undertakers without their consent, or shall fraudulently injure any such meter as aforesaid, or who, in case the gas supplied by the undertakers is not ascertained by meter, shall use any burner other than such as has been provided or approved of by the undertakers, or of larger dimensions than he has contracted to pay for, or shall keep the lights burning for a longer time than he has contracted to pay for, or who shall otherwise improperly use or burn such gas (a), or shall supply any other person with any part of the gas supplied to him by the undertakers, shall forfeit to the undertakers the sum of five pounds for every such offence, and also the sum of forty shillings for every day such pipe shall so remain, or such works or burner shall be so used, or such excess be so committed or continued, or such supply furnished; and the undertakers may take off the gas from the house and premises of the person so offending, notwithstanding any contract which may have been previously entered into (b).

Penalty for fraudulently using the gas of the undertakers.

(a) I.e., in respect of gas ascertained otherwise than by meter (Falkirk Corporation v. Russell, [1911] S. C. (J.) 99; 25 Digest 475, h).

(b) As to larceny of gas, see R. v. White (1853), 3 Car. & Kir. 363; 17 J. P. 391; 15 Digest 883, 9686; R. v. Foster (1865), L. R. 1 C. C. R. 172. As to the operation of the Statute of Limitations, when there has been a fraudulent concealment of an improper using of gas within this section, see Imperial Gas Light and Coke Co. v. London Gas Light Co. (1854), 10 Exch. 39; 32 Digest 526, 1815. The appellants, on their own premises, substituted for part of a gas pipe belonging to the respondents a larger pipe, in order to increase their supply, without having first obtained the respondents' consent, though notice under the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, s. 15, post, p. 4311, to disconnect the pipe from the meter was duly given. There was no proof of any fraud, or misuse of the gas. It was held that the appellants had committed an offence under the above section (Wood v. West Ham Gas Co. (1885), 49 J. P. 662; 52 L. T. 817; 25 Digest 479, 55).

19. Every person who shall wilfully remove, destroy, or damage any pipe, pillar, post, plug, lamp, or other work of the undertakers for supplying gas, or who shall wilfully extinguish any of the public lamps or lights, or waste or improperly use any of the gas supplied by the undertakers, shall for each such offence forfeit to the undertakers any sum not exceeding five pounds, in addition to the amount of the damage done.

Penalty for wilfully removing or damaging pipes,
etc.

20. Every person who shall carelessly or accidentally break, throw down, or damage any pipe, pillar, or lamp belonging to the undertakers, or under their control, shall pay such sum of money by way of satisfaction to the Satisfaction for accidentally damaging pipes,

etc.

Section 20. undertakers for the damage done, not exceeding five pounds, as any two justices or the sheriff shall think reasonable (a).

(a) Under this section a person may be made responsible although the lamp is placed by the local authority in an unsafe or improper position and is broken by such person without any negligence on his part (Burgess v. Morris (1897), 61 J. P. 553; 25 Digest 480, 59). But a master is not liable for damages to a lamp caused accidentally by his servant (Harding v. Barker (1888), 53 J. P. 308; 37 W. R. 78; 25 Digest 480, 58). He is liable to an action at common law for damages caused by the negligence of his servant (Crystal Palace Gas Co. v. Idris & Co. (1900), 64 J. P. 452; 25 Digest 480, 61). If the summons charge damage as done unlawfully and carelessly it need not say "carelessly or accidentally," and a conviction will be good if there be evidence of carelessness, though short of what might be called negligence (Ashton v. Eccles Corporation (1906), 71 J. P. 55; 25 Digest 480, 60). See also Gibbons v. Vanguard Motor Bus Co. (1908), 72 J. P. 505; 25 T. L. R. 13; 36 Digest 60, 381; Barnes U. D. C. v. London General Omnibus Co. (1909), 73 J. P. 68; 100 L. T. 115; 36 Digest 60, 382; Isaac Walton & Co. v. Vanguard Motor Bus Co. (1908), 72 J. P. 505; 25 T. L. R. 13; 36 Digest 60, 381. Where the damage was caused by a van being blown over by an exceptional gale, it was held that the driver of the van was not liable under the corresponding section of a Scots local Act (Hogg v. Macpherson, [1928] S. L. T. 35; Digest Supp.). See also per SCRUTTON, and ATKIN, L.JJ., in P. M. G. v. Beck and Pollitzer, [1924] 2 K. B. 308; 88 J. P. 137; 43 Digest 895, 61.

The words of the section "in satisfaction" mean "in full satisfaction." Therefore where the Justices have awarded a sum under the section, the undertakers cannot recover a further sum in an action for negligence (Birmingham Corporation v. Allsopp (1918), 88 L. J. K. B. 549; 25 Digest 431, 65).

Nuisance from gas. And with respect to the provision for guarding against fouling water, or other nuisance from the gas, be it enacted as follows (a):

(a) See also the provisions of the P. H. A., 1875, s. 68, post, and the notes thereon; the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ss. 61—67, post, pp. 4193 et seq.; and the Rivers Pollution Prevention Act, 1876, post. As to the liability of a gas company for damage caused by an escape of gas, see Jones v. Carshalton Gas Co. (1888), 5 T. L. R. 69; Burrows v. March Gas and Coke Co. (1872), L. R. 7 Ex. 96; 36 J. P. 517; 25 Digest 484, 83, and by the discharge of noxious waste products into a trout river, see Granby (Marquis of) v. Bakewell U. D. C. (1923), 87 J. P. 105; 21 L. G. R. 329; 36 Digest 221, 630.

Penalty on undertakers allowing washings, etc. produced in making gas to flow into streams, reservoirs, etc.

21. If the undertakers shall at any time cause or suffer to be brought or to flow into any stream, reservoir, or aqueduct, pond, or place for water, or into any drain communicating therewith, any washing or other substance produced in making or supplying gas, or shall wilfully do any act connected with the making or supplying of gas whereby the water in any such stream, reservoir, aqueduct, pond, or place for water shall be fouled, the undertakers shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of two hundred pounds.

Penalty to be sued for in superior court within six months.

22. The said penalty of two hundred pounds shall be recovered, with full costs of suit, in any of the superior courts, by the person into whose water such wasting or other substance shall be conveyed or shall flow, or whose water shall be fouled, by any such act as aforesaid; but such penalty shall not be recoverable unless it be sued for during the continuance of the offence, or within six months after it shall have ceased (a).

(a) As to the effect of this section on a local Act, see Parry v. Croydon Commercial Gas Co. (1863), 15 C. B. (N. S.) 568; 28 J. P. 86; 25 Digest 487, 99.

Daily penalty during the continuance of the offence.

23. In addition to the said penalty of two hundred pounds (and whether such penalty shall have been recovered or not) the undertakers shall forfeit the sum of twenty pounds (to be recovered in the like manner) for each day during which such washing or other substance shall be brought or shall flow as aforesaid, or the act by which such water shall be fouled shall continue, after the expiration of twenty-four hours from the time when notice of the offence shall have been served on the undertakers by the person into whose water such washing or other substance shall be brought or shall flow, or whose water shall be fouled thereby, and such penalty shall be paid to such person-mentioned person. Section 23.

24. Whenever any gas shall escape from any pipe laid down or set up by or belonging to the undertakers, they shall, immediately after receiving notice thereof in writing, prevent such gas from escaping; and in case the undertakers shall not within twenty-four hours next after service of such notice effectually prevent the gas from escaping, and wholly remove the cause of complaint, they shall for every such offence forfeit the sum of five pounds for each day during which the gas shall be suffered to escape after the expiration of twenty-four hours from the service of such notice (a). Daily penalty during escape of gas after notice.

(a) See Mose v. Hastings and St. Leonards Gas Co. (1864), 4 F. & F. 324; 25 Digest 485, 55; Burrows v. March Gas and Coke Co. (1872), L. R. 7 Ex. 96; 36 J. P. 517; 25 Digest 84, 83; Price v. South Metropolitan Gas Co. (1896), 65 L. J. Q. B. 126; 25 Digest 485, 86. As to a nuisance arising from gasworks, see Wood v. Conway Corporation, [1914] 2 Ch. 47; 8 J. P. 249; 25 Digest 486, 94; Herring v. Lincoln Corporation (1920), 42 M. C. C. 41; and Granby v. Bakewell U. D. C. (1923), 87 J. P. 105; 21 L. G. R. 329; 36 Digest 221, 630.

25. Whenever any water within the limits of the special Act shall be fouled by the gas of the undertakers, they shall forfeit to the person whose water shall be so fouled for every such offence a sum not exceeding twenty pounds, and a further sum not exceeding ten pounds for each day during which the offence shall continue after the expiration of twenty-four hours from the service of notice of such offence. Penalty for fouling water by gas.

26. For the purpose of ascertaining whether such water be fouled by the gas of the undertakers, the person to whom the water supposed to be fouled shall belong may dig up the ground and examine the pipes, conduits, and works of the undertakers; provided that such person, before proceeding so to dig and examine, shall give twenty-four hours notice in writing to the undertakers of the time at which such digging and examination is intended to take place, and shall give the like notice to the persons having the control or management of the road, pavement, or place where such digging is to take place; and they shall be subject to the like obligation of reinstating the said road and pavement, and the same penalties for delay or any nonfeasance or misfeasance therein, as are hereinbefore provided with respect to roads and pavements broken up by the undertakers for the purpose of laying their pipes. Power to open ground and examine gas pipes to ascertain whether water is fouled by gas.

27. If upon any such examination it appear that such water has been fouled by any gas belonging to the undertakers, the expenses of the digging, examination, and repair of the street or place disturbed in any such examination shall be paid by the undertakers; but if upon such examination it appear that the water has not been fouled by the gas of the undertakers, the person causing such examination to be made shall pay all such expenses, and shall also make good to the undertakers any injury which may be occasioned to their works by such examination. Ground, etc. to be reinstated.

28. The amount of the expenses of every such examination and repair and of any injury done to the undertakers, shall, in case of any dispute about the same, together with the cost of ascertaining and recovering the same, be ascertained and recovered in the same manner as damages for the ascertaining and recovery whereof no special provision is made are to be ascertained and recovered. Expenses to abide result of examination.

29. The amount of the expenses of every such examination and repair and of any injury done to the undertakers, shall, in case of any dispute about the same, together with the cost of ascertaining and recovering the same, be ascertained and recovered in the same manner as damages for the ascertaining and recovery whereof no special provision is made are to be ascertained and recovered. How expenses shall be ascertained and recovered.

Section 29.

Nothing to exempt undertakers from being indicted for a nuisance

29. Nothing in this or the special Act contained shall prevent the undertakers from being liable to an indictment for nuisance, or to any other legal proceeding to which they may be liable, in consequence of making or supplying gas (a).

(a) See section 9 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, post, p. 4309, and Jordeson v. Sutton, Southcoates and Drypool Gas Co., [1899] 2 Ch. 217; 63 J. P. 692; 25 Digest 486, 92; Batcheller v. Tunbridge Wells Gas Co. (1901), 65 J. P. 680; 84 L. T. 765; 25 Digest 487, 100. A company cannot justify a nuisance by setting up incapacity to make or supply gas without so doing (Att.-Gen. v. Gas Light and Coke Co. (1877), 7 Ch. D. 217; 42 J. P. 391; 25 Digest 492, 118). But compare with this the decision in Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., [1891] 2 Ch. 409; 36 Digest 162, 44, where it was held that a statutory authority to sink a shaft included all things reasonably necessary, though causing a temporary nuisance. This case was distinguished in Knight v. Isle of Wight Electric Light and Power Co., Ltd. (1904), 73 L. J. Ch. 299; 68 J. P. 266; 36 Digest 201, 413, where the nuisance complained of was a continuing nuisance; see also Midwood v. Manchester Corporation, [1905] 2 K. B. 597; 69 J. P. 348; 38 Digest 50, 288 (decided with reference to a similar section in the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, Sched., clause 81), in which it was held that the undertakers were liable in damages for an explosion occasioned by a leakage of electricity from one of their mains which ignited gas escaping into the plaintiff's premises in an adjoining street; see also Farrell v. Limerick Corporation (1911), 45 Ir. L. T. 169; Elliott v. Battersea Corporation (1910), 74 J. P. N. 627; Charing Cross, Electricity Supply Co. v. Hydraulic Power Co., [1914] 3 K. B. 772; 78 J. P. 305; 36 Digest 189, 315; Manchester Corporation v. Farnworth, [1930] A. C. 171; 94 J. P. 62; Digest Supp.; and see the note to clause 81 of Schedule to the Electric Lighting (Clauses) Act, 1899, post, p. 4980.

But where gas escaped from a main not belonging to a local authority and was ignited by a spark in a box belonging to the local authority as part of their electrical equipment, it was held that the local authority were not liable for injury to a passer-by as the result of the explosion (Goodbody v. Poplar Borough Council (1914), 79 J. P. 218; 84 L. J. K. B. 1230; 36 Digest 198, 383).

Profits of the
undertakers.

And with respect to the amount of profit to be received by the undertakers when the gasworks are carried on for their benefit, be it enacted as follows:

Profits of the
limited.

30. The profits of the undertaking to be divided amongst the undertakers in any year shall not exceed the prescribed rate, or where no rate is prescribed they shall not exceed the rate of ten pounds in the hundred by the year on the paid-up capital in the undertaking, which in such case shall be deemed the prescribed rate, unless a larger dividend be at any time necessary to make up the deficiency of any previous dividend which shall have fallen short of the said yearly rate (a).

(a) See Chelsea Waterworks Co. v. Metropolitan Water Board, [1904] 2 K. B. 77; 43 Digest 1100, 297; Kent Waterworks v. Lamplough, [1904] A. C. 27; 68 J. P. 361; 43 Digest 1101, 300; Metropolitan Water Board v. New River Co. (1904), 20 T. L. R. 687; 43 Digest 1100, 294; Ashton Gas Co. v. Att.-Gen., [1906] A. C. 10; 70 J. P. 49; 10 Digest 1162, 8225.

If profits exceed the amount limited, excess to be invested and form a reserved fund.

31. If the clear profits of the undertaking in any year amount to a larger sum than is sufficient, after making up the deficiency in the dividends of any previous year as aforesaid, to make a dividend at the prescribed rate, the excess beyond the sum necessary for such purpose shall from time to time be invested in Government or other securities, and the dividends and interest arising from such securities shall also be invested in the same or like securities, in order that the same may accumulate at compound interest until the fund so formed amounts to the prescribed sum, or if no sum be prescribed a sum equal to one-tenth of the nominal capital of the undertakers(a), which sum shall form a reserved fund to answer any deficiency which may at any time happen in the amount of divisible profits, or to meet any extraordinary claim or demand which may at any time arise against the undertakers; and if such fund be at any time reduced, it may thereafter be again restored to the said sum, and so from time to time as often as such reduction shall happen (b).

- (a) This amount is varied in the case of undertakers, other than local authorities, by s. 3, Gas Undertaking Act, 1929, Vol. V., post.
 (b) See Metropolitan Water Board v. New River Co. (1904), 20 T. L. R. 687; 43 Digest 100, 294.

Section 31.

32. Provided always, that no sum of money shall be taken from the said fund for the purpose of meeting any extraordinary claim, unless it be first certified in England . . . by two justices . . . that the sum so proposed to be taken is required for the purpose of meeting an extraordinary claim within the meaning of this or the special Act (a).

Reserved fund not to be resorted to to meet an extraordinary claim except on certificate.

(a) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

33. When such fund shall, by accumulation or otherwise, amount to the prescribed sum, or one-tenth of the nominal capital of the company (a), as the case may be, the interest and dividends thereon shall no longer be invested, but shall be applied to any of the general purposes of the undertaking to which the profits thereof are applicable (b).

When fund amounts to prescribed sum, interest to be applied to purposes of the undertaking.

(a) This amount is varied in the case of undertakers, other than local authorities, by s. 3, Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, Vol. V., post.

(b) Certain consumers of gas brought an action against the company which supplied them on the ground that the company had created a reserve fund greatly in excess of that authorised by its special Acts, and had carried over from year to year large undivided profits, thereby avoiding the obligation upon it to reduce the price of the gas which it so supplied:—Held, that no such duty as alleged was imposed by the Acts on the company; that the consumers had not control over the affairs of the company, and were not, therefore, entitled to raise the question, the shareholders alone being interested, and that the court would not order the reserve fund and undivided profits to be applied in reduction of the price of the gas in the manner suggested (Mason v. Ashton Gas Co. (1886), 50 J. P. 628; 1 L. T. 708; 25 Digest 488, 105).

34. If in any year the profits of the undertaking divisible amongst the undertakers shall not amount to the prescribed rate, such a sum may be taken from the reserved fund as, with the actual divisible profits of such year, will enable the undertakers to make a dividend of the amount aforesaid, and so from time to time as often as the occasion shall require.

If profits are less than the prescribed rate, deficiency may be supplied from the reserved fund.

35. In England . . . the court of quarter sessions . . . may, on the petition of any two gas ratepayers within the limits of the special Act, nominate and appoint some accountant or other competent person, not being a proprietor of any gasworks, to examine and ascertain, at the expense of the undertakers, the amount of such expense to be determined by the said court . . . , the actual state and condition of the concerns of the undertakers, and to make report thereof to the said court at the then present or some following sessions . . . ; and the said court . . . may examine any witnesses upon oath touching the truth of the said accounts and the matters therein referred to; and if it thereupon appear to the said court . . . that the profits of the undertakers for the preceding year have exceeded the prescribed rate, the undertakers shall, in case the whole of the said reserved fund has been and then remains invested as aforesaid, and in case dividends to the amount hereinbefore limited have been paid, make such a rateable reduction in the rate for gas to be furnished by them as in the judgment of the said court . . . shall be proper, but so as such rates, when reduced, shall ensure to the undertakers (regard being had to the amount of profit before received) a profit as near as may be to the prescribed rate (a).

If profits are more than the amount prescribed, a rateable deduction to be made in the price of gas.

(a) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted from this and the two following sections. The court of quarter sessions has no jurisdiction under this section to appoint a gas engineer to assist an accountant appointed thereunder to examine and ascertain the actual state and condition of the concerns of the gas company, and where such order is made a writ of certiorari will lie to bring the order up to be quashed (R. v. Brindley (1885), 50 J. P. 534; 54 L. T. 435; 25 Digest 489, 108).

Note to
Section 35.

An order cannot be made to reduce the price of gas under this section unless the whole of the reserve fund has been invested and the prescribed dividend paid; nor can an order be made for the payment of costs by the company to the petitioners. The quarter sessions may inquire into the accounts of past years for the purpose of ascertaining the actual condition of the concern, but they cannot disallow and recast them so as to vary the accounts of the year into which they are inquiring (R. v. Hanley (Recorder of) (1837), 19 Q. B. D. 481; 52 J. P. 100; 25 Digest 489, 109). Where a corporation supply gas they are not bound to give credit for the value of gas supplied for lighting streets or other public purposes (Att.-Gen. v. Oldham Corporation (1892), 14 M. C. C. 195).

Court may order petitioner to pay costs of groundless petition.

36. Provided always, that if, in the case of any petition so presented, it appear to the said court . . . that there was no sufficient ground for presenting the same, the said court . . . may, if they or he think fit, order the petitioner to pay the whole or any part of the costs of or incident to such petition (the amount thereof to be determined by the said court . . .) and the costs so ordered to be paid shall be recoverable in the same way as damages are recoverable under this or the special Act.

Penalty on undertakers for refusing to produce books, vouchers, etc.

37. If the undertakers shall, for seven days after being required to produce to the said court . . ., or to the said accountant or other person as aforesaid, any books of account or other books, bill, receipts, vouchers, or papers relating to the pecuniary affairs of the undertakers, refuse or neglect to produce such books, bills, receipts, vouchers, or papers, they shall forfeit the sum of one hundred pounds for every such refusal or wilful neglect, and the further sum of ten pounds for every day such refusal or wilful neglect shall continue after the expiration of the said seven days; such respective penalties to be recovered by any person who will sue for the same, with full costs of suit, in any of the superior courts.

Account.
Annual account to be made up by undertakers.

38. And with respect to the yearly receipt and expenditure of the undertakers, be it enacted, that the undertakers shall, in each year after they have begun to supply gas under the provisions of this or the special Act, cause an account in abstract to be prepared of the total receipts and expenditure of all rents or funds levied under the powers of this or the special Act for the year preceding, under the several distinct heads of receipt and expenditure, with a statement of the balance of such account, duly audited and certified by the chairman of the undertakers, and also by the auditors thereof, if any; and a copy of such annual account, if the gasworks be situated in England . . . shall be transmitted, free of charge, to the clerk of the peace for the county in which the gasworks are situate . . . and such transmission shall be made on or before the thirty-first day of January in each year, under a penalty of twenty pounds for each default; and the copy of such account so sent to the said clerk of the peace . . . shall be kept by him, and shall be open to inspection by all persons at all seasonable hours, on payment of one shilling for each inspection (a).

(a) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted from this section. The section is now superseded by section 15 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post. As to the annual account under a local Act, see Leamington Priors Gas Co. v. Davis (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 107; 51 J. P. 360; 25 Digest 470, 6, the facts of which are stated in the note to the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871, s. 35, post, p. 4316.

39 (a). . . .

(a) Section 39 as to tender of amends was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894. See now the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, post.

Recovery of damages and penalties.

And with respect to the recovery of damages not specially provided for, and of penalties, and to the determination of any other matter referred to justices or to the sheriff, be it enacted as follows:

40. If the gasworks be in England . . . the clauses of the Railways Section 40. Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), with respect to the recovery of damages not specially provided for, and of penalties, and to the determination of any other matter referred to justices, shall be incorporated with this and the special Act . . . (b).

Railway Clause Acts, as to damages, etc. to be incorporated with this and the special Act.

(a) See ante, p. 4159.

(b) The parts of this section relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

41 (a). . . .

(a) Section 41 related only to Ireland, and was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875.

42. All things herein or in the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, authorised or required to be done by two justices, may and shall be done in England . . . by any one magistrate having by law authority to act alone for any purpose with the powers of two or more justices . . . (a)

Acts which may be done by one magistrate.

(a) The parts of this section relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

43. Every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, or by any byelaw in pursuance thereof, in respect of any offence which shall take place within the metropolitan police district, shall be recovered, enforced, accounted for, and, except where the application thereof is otherwise specially provided for, shall be paid to the receiver of the metropolitan police district, and shall be applied, in the same manner as penalties or forfeitures, other than fines upon drunken persons, or upon constables for misconduct, or for assaults upon police constables, are directed to be recovered, enforced, accounted for, paid, and applied by the Metropolitan Police Courts Act, 1839; and every order or conviction of any of the police magistrates in respect of any such forfeiture or penalty shall be subject to the like appeal, and upon the same terms, as is provided in respect of any order or conviction of any of the said police magistrates by the said last-mentioned Act; and every magistrate by whom any order or conviction shall have been made shall have the same power of binding over the witnesses who shall have been examined; and such witnesses shall be entitled to the same allowance of expenses as they would have had or been entitled to in case the order, conviction, and appeal had been made in pursuance of the provisions of the said last-mentioned Act.

Penalties, etc. within metropolitan police district. 2 & 3 Vict. c. 71. Appeal, etc.

44. [False evidence] (a).

(a) Repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911.

And with respect to access to the special Act, be in enacted as follows :

45. The undertakers shall at all times after the expiration of six months after the passing of the special Act keep in their principal office of business a copy of the special Act, printed by the printers to her Majesty, or some of them, and shall also within the space of such six months deposit in the office of the [clerk of the county council] in England . . . of the county in which the undertaking is situated, a copy of such special Act, so printed as aforesaid; and the said [clerk of the county council] . . . shall receive, and they and the undertakers respectively shall keep, the said copies of the special Act, and shall permit all persons interested to inspect the same, and make extracts or copies therefrom, in the like manner, and upon the like terms, and under the like penalty for default, as is provided in the case of certain plans and sections by the Parliamentary Documents Deposit Act, 1837 (a).

Access to special Act.

Copies of special Act.

(a) The parts of this section relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

The words in square brackets were substituted by s. 101, L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 867.

7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 83.

Section 46.

Penalty on undertakers failing to keep or deposit such copies.

Saving as to 57 Geo. 3, c. xxix., etc.

46. If the undertakers fail to keep or deposit, as hereinbefore mentioned, any of the said copies of the special Act, they shall forfeit twenty pounds for every such offence, and also five pounds for every day afterwards during which such copy shall be not so kept or deposited.

47. And be it enacted, that nothing in this Act contained shall be deemed to exempt the undertakers from the provisions of an Act passed in the fifty-seventh year of the reign of his late Majesty King George the Third, intituled An Act for better paving, improving, and regulating the Streets of the Metropolis, and removing and preventing Nuisances and Obstructions therein (a), or from the laws of sewers for the time being in force within ten miles from the Royal Exchange in the city of London.

(a) Now called the Metropolitan Paving Act, 1817, but better known as Michael Angelo Taylor's Act.

Saving as to the rights of the Crown.

48. Nothing in this or the special Act shall be deemed to extend to or affect any Act of Parliament relating to her Majesty's duties of customs or excise, or any other revenue of the Crown, or to extend to or affect any claim of her Majesty in right of her Crown, or otherwise howsoever, or any proceedings at law or in equity, by or on behalf of her Majesty, in any part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.

Saving as to future Acts.

49. Nothing herein or in the special Act contained shall be deemed to exempt the undertakers from any general Act relating to gasworks, or any Act for improving the sanitary conditions of towns and populous districts, which may be passed in the same session in which the special Act is passed, or any future session of Parliament (a).

(a) The Public Health (Buildings in Streets) Act, 1888, post, p. 4777, is an "Act for improving the sanitary conditions of towns and populous districts" within the meaning of this section (Grand Junction Waterworks Co. v. Hampton U. D. C., [1898] 2 Ch. 331; 62 J. P. 566; 26 Digest 562, 2568). The corresponding section of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 93, does not exempt a water company from the provisions of the P. H. A., 1875, and they are bound to comply with the byelaws made under s. 157 of the latter Act (Uckfield R. D. C. v. Crowborough District Water Co., [1899] 2 Q. B. 664; 43 Digest 1067, 63). See also London C. C. v. Wandsworth and Putney Gas Co. (1900), 64 J. P. 500; 82 L. T. 562; 26 Digest 510, 2153. Section 50 is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875.

THE WATERWORKS CLAUSES ACT, 1847.

(10 & 11 VICT. c. 17) (a).

An Act for consolidating in One Act certain Provisions usually contained in Acts authorising the making of Waterworks for supplying Towns with Water.
[23rd April, 1847.]

Incorporation with special Act.

[1.] This Act shall extend only to such waterworks as shall be authorised by any Act of Parliament hereafter to be passed which shall declare that this Act shall be incorporated therewith; and all the clauses of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by any such Act, shall apply to the undertaking authorised thereby, so far as the same shall be applicable to such undertaking, and shall, with the clauses of every other Act which shall be incorporated therewith, form part of such Act, and be construed therewith as forming one Act.

(a) Incorporated in part by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 120, ante, p. 368 (together with the amending Act of 1863, post, p. 4256), and also by the P. H. A., 1875 (Support of Sewers), Amendment Act, 1883, post. See notes to those Acts.

For other incorporations, see Supply of Water in Bulk Act, 1934, Vol. V., post, and Water Supplies (Exceptional Shortage Orders) Act, 1934, s. 2 (a), Vol. V., post.

Note to
Section 1.

And with respect to the construction of this Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, be it enacted as follows :

2. The expression "the special Act" used in this Act shall be construed to mean any Act which shall be hereafter passed authorising the construction of waterworks, and with which this Act shall be incorporated; and the word "prescribed" used in this Act in reference to any matter herein stated shall be construed to refer to such matter as the same shall be prescribed or provided for in the special Act, and the sentence in which such word occurs shall be construed as if instead of the word "prescribed" the expression "prescribed for that purpose in the special Act" had been used; and the expression "the lands and streams" shall mean the lands and streams of water which shall by the special Act be authorised to be taken or used for the purposes thereof; and the expression "the undertaking" shall mean the waterworks, and the works connected therewith, by the special Act authorised to be constructed; and the expression "the undertakers" shall mean the persons by the special Act authorised to construct the waterworks.

3. The following words and expressions in both this and the special Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say,)

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number only shall include also the singular number:

Words importing the masculine gender shall include females:

The word "person" shall include a corporation, whether aggregate or sole:

The word "lands" shall include messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, or heritages, of any tenure:

The word "streams" shall include springs, brooks, rivers, and other running waters:

The word "street" shall include any square, court or alley, highway, lane, road, thoroughfare, or public passage or place, within the limits of the special Act (a):

The expression "the waterworks" shall mean the waterworks, and the works connected therewith, by the special Act authorised to be constructed (b):

The expression "water rate" shall include any rent, reward, or payment to be made to the undertakers for a supply of water:

The word "month" shall mean calendar month:

The expression "superior courts," where the matter submitted to the cognizance of the court arises in England . . . shall mean her Majesty's superior courts of record at Westminster . . . (c).

The word "oath" shall include affirmation in the case of Quakers, and any declaration lawfully substituted for an oath in the case of any other persons allowed by law to make a declaration instead of taking an oath:

The word "county" shall include riding or other division of a county having a separate commission of the peace . . . (c), and it shall also include county of a city or county of a town:

The word "justice" shall mean justice of the peace acting for the place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any such justice arises; and if such matter arise in respect of lands or streams situated not

Section 3.

"Two justices."

wholly in one jurisdiction shall mean a justice acting for the county or place where any part of such lands or streams shall be situated; and where any matter is authorised or required to be done by two justices, the expression "two justices" shall be understood to mean two or more justices met and acting together (c) :

"Quarter sessions."

The expression "quarter sessions" shall mean quarter sessions as defined in the special Act; and if such expression be not there defined it shall mean the court of general or quarter sessions of the peace which shall be held at the place nearest to the waterworks, or the principal office thereof, for the county or place in which the waterworks, or the principal office thereof, is situate, or for some division of such county having a separate commission of the peace :

"The town commissioners."

The expression "the town commissioners" shall mean the parties defined under that title in the special Act, and where no such parties shall be there defined shall mean the commissioners, trustees, or other parties having the control or management of the streets under any Act for paving or improving the town or district to be supplied with water under the special Act :

"Inspector."

The word "inspector" shall mean an officer appointed under any local Act relating to the town or district supplied with water under the special Act for the purpose of inspecting or superintending works connected with the paving, drainage, or supply of water of such town or district, or an officer appointed under any general Act for executing the like duties with respect to such town or district together with other towns or districts.

(a) See Maddock v. Wallasey L. B., ante, p. 4164. See also as to the meaning of the word "street" in a local Act, incorporating this Act, Bristol Waterworks Co. v. Bristol Corporation (1889), 5 T. L. R. 551. For the purposes of the application of this Act under s. 57 of the P. H. A., 1875 (see now s. 120 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 368), the term "street" includes a private street (Hill v. Wallasey L. B., [1894] 1 Ch. 133; 43 Digest 1062, 34). As to the limits of supply, see Att.-Gen. v. West Gloucestershire Water Co., [1909] 2 Ch. 338; 73 J. P. 453; 28 Digest 460, 750. As to the delegation of statutory powers, see Ticehurst and District Water and Gas Co., Ltd. v. Gas and Waterworks Supply and Construction Co., Ltd. (1911), 55 Sol. Jo. 459; 43 Digest 1087, 202; In re Woking U. D. C. (Basingstoke Canal) Act, 1911, [1914] 1 Ch. 300; 78 J. P. 81; 13 Digest 357, 935. As to the limits of supply under the Metropolis Water Act, 1902, see Sutton District Water Co. v. Metropolitan Water Board (1926), 90 J. P. 61; 43 Digest 1101, 303.

(b) As to the power of the undertakers to construct works other than those authorised by the special Act, see Att.-Gen. v. Frimley and Farnborough District Water Co., [1908] 1 Ch. 727; 72 J. P. 204; 43 Digest 1067, 64; Att.-Gen. v. South Staffordshire Waterworks Co. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 408; Marriott v. East Grinstead Gas and Water Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 70; 72 J. P. 509; 43 Digest 1072, 95; Att.-Gen. v. Barnet District Gas and Water Co. (1910), 74 J. P. 193; 102 L. T. 546; 43 Digest 1067, 67.

(c) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted.

Citing the Act.

And with respect to citing this Act, or any part thereof, be it enacted as follows :

Short title of this Act.

4. In citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament, and in legal instruments, it shall be enough to use the expression "The Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847."

Forms in which portions of this Act may be incorporated in other Acts.

5. For the purpose of incorporating part only of this Act with any Act hereafter to be passed, it shall be enough to describe the clauses of this Act with respect to any matter in the words introductory to the enactment with respect to such matter, and to enact that the clauses so described, or that this Act, with the exception of the clauses so described, shall be incorporated with such Act; and thereupon all the clauses of this Act so incorporated shall, save so far as they are expressly varied or excepted by such Act, form part of such Act, and such Act shall be construed as if such clauses were set forth therein with reference to the matter to which such Act relates.

Section 5.

* * * * *

And with respect to mines, be it enacted as follows (a) :

Mines.

(a) These sections, 18—27, are incorporated by the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers), Amendment Act, 1883, post, p. 4664. These sections amount to a code defining and regulating the mutual rights of water companies and owners of minerals (South Staffordshire Waterworks Co. v. Mason (1886), 56 L. J. Q. B. 255; 57 L. T. 116; 11 Digest 153, 354). They very closely resemble ss. 77—82 of the Railway Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and the cases decided under that Act may be referred to:—particularly Midland Rail. Co. v. Miles (1885), 30 Ch. D. 634; Midland Rail. Co. v. Miles (1886), 33 Ch. D. 632; 11 Digest 100, 628, and Maritime Coal Co. v. Barry Dock and Rail. Co. (1886), 2 T. L. R. 803. As to the corresponding law in Canada, see Davies v. James Bay Ry., [1914] A. C. 1043; 11 Digest 153, w.

Where land is acquired by agreement for the purposes of constructing waterworks under a special Act which incorporates the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, and the undertakers purchase all the mines and minerals under the land so taken, they acquire all the rights of support from minerals under adjacent lands which the vendor had at common law at the time the land was taken. In such a case, ss. 18—27 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, do not take away the common law right of support from minerals under adjacent lands, or give the owners of such minerals any greater right to work them, so as to let down the surface of the land taken as against the undertakers, than they had against the vendor before the land was taken. In such a case, and, semble, in all cases these sections have no reference to lands outside the limit of forty yards, or other limit prescribed by the special Act. The rights of the undertakers and the owner of such minerals in relation to their working are governed by the common law (New Moss Colliery, Ltd. v. Manchester Corporation, [1908] A. C. 117; 72 J. P. 169; 11 Digest 154, 356; and see Howley Park Coal and Cannel Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1913] A. C. 11; 11 Digest 153, 353).

18. The undertakers shall not be entitled to any mines of coal, ironstone slate, or other minerals (a) under any land purchased by them, except only such parts thereof as shall be necessary to be dug or carried away or used in the construction of the waterworks, unless the same shall have been expressly purchased, and all such mines, excepting as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be excepted out of the conveyance of such lands, unless they shall have been expressly named therein and conveyed thereby.

Undertakers not entitled to mines unless expressly purchased.

(a) A great number of cases have been decided as to what substances are included in the term minerals. It is necessary to remember that the description of the mines in other Acts or in leases is not always the same, and that the words "other minerals" may not always be ejusdem generis with those set out in the text, although they are so in reference to the form of words used in the particular case. The following authorities should be consulted. As to freestone, it was held in Bell v. Wilson (1866), 1 Ch. App. 303; 34 Digest 603, 2, to be a mineral, but see now Symington v. Caledonian Rail. Co., [1912] A. C. 87; 11 Digest 150, l, where it was held to be a question of fact in each case. Minerals, stone got from quarries (Micklethwait v. Winter (1851), 6 Exch. 644; 11 Digest 61, 889); granite from quarries (Att.-Gen. v. Welsh Granite Co. (1887), 35 W. R. 617; 3 T. L. R. 573; 11 Digest 62, 891); slate (Cleveland v. Meyrick (1867), 37 L. J. Ch. 124; 17 L. T. 238; 34 Digest 604, 8); coprolites (Att.-Gen. v. Tomline (1877), 5 Ch. D. 750; 34 Digest 652, 502); oil shale (Marquis of Linlithgow v. North British Rail. Co., [1912] S. C. 1327; 11 Digest 151, t); every substance which can be got from underneath the surface of the earth for purposes of profit, such as china clay (per MELLISH, L.J., in Hest v. Gill (1872), 7 Ch. App. 669 at p. 712; 34 Digest 606, 41; G. W. Rail. Co. v. Carpalla United China Clay Co., Ltd., [1910] A. C. 83; 74 J. P. 57; 11 Digest 151, 333); all substances obtained from the crust of the earth, other than the surface soil (Anstruther v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, [1912] S. C. 1165; 39 Digest 224, h); clay (Midland Rail. Co. v. Checkley (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 19; 31 J. P. 500); brick-earth and clay below the surface (Jersey (Earl) v. Neath Guardians (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 555; 52 J. P. 404; 34 Digest 605, 26; Shaftesbury v. Wallace, [1897] 1 I. R. 381; fire-clay (Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Glenboig Union

Farie* (1888), 13 App. Cas. 657; 34 Digest 604, 12; Shaftesbury v. Wallace, [1897] 1 I. R. 381; Re Todd, Birlestone & Co. and N. E. Rail. Co., [1903] 1 K. B. 603; 67 J. (Ct. of Sess.) 900; 11 Digest 151, 537 i; clay which is not commercially workable and stone which is unfit for building purposes are not minerals (Skey v. Parsons (1909), 101 L. T. 103; 105 T. L. R. 708; 34 Digest 609, 79). Gravel and sand were held to be minerals in Scott v. Midland Rail. Co., [1901] 1 K. B. 317; 65 J. P. 135; 34 Digest 609, 74; but in Staples v. Young, [1908] 1 I. R. 135, it was held to be a question of fact in each case, and sand was held not to be a mineral when it was covered by a thin layer of soil only. See also Skey v. Parsons, supra. Sandstone was held to be a mineral in Greville v. Hemingway (1902), 87 L. T. 443; 34 Digest 609, 78; but not so in North British Rail. Co. v. Budhill Coal and Sandstone Co., [1910] A. C. 116; 34 Digest 607, 43. As to whinstone, see Forth Bridge Rail. Co. v. Dunfermline Guildry, [1910] S. C. 316. As to mounds of tap-cinder produced in working ironstone mines, see Boileau v. Heath, [1898] 2 Ch. 301; 34 Digest 608, 62. And as to what is included in an exception of mines and minerals in a lease, see Johnstone v. Crompton, [1899] 2 Ch. 190; 34 Digest 607, 49. The mines referred to in the section include those which can only be worked by open or surface operations (Midland Rail. Co. v. Robinson (1890), 15 App. Cas. 19; 54 J. P. 580; 11 Digest 150, 328).

It has been held that the right to pump brine is a right to work minerals for purposes of the Mineral Rights Duty (Att.-Gen. v. Salt Union, [1917] 2 K. B. 488; 34 Digest 609, 65).

Map and plan of underground works to be made, and corrected from time to time.

19. The undertakers shall from time to time, within six months from the time at which any pipes, conduits, or underground works shall have been laid down or formed by them, cause a survey and map to be made of the district within which any pipes or underground works shall be laid, on a scale not less than one foot to a mile, and shall cause to be marked thereon the course and situation of all existing pipes or conduits for the collection, passage, or distribution of water and underground works belonging to them, in order to show all such underground works within the said district, and shall, within six months from the making of any alterations or additions, cause the said map to be from time to time corrected, and such additions made thereto as may show the line and situation of all such pipes, conduits, and underground works as may be laid down or formed by them from time to time after the passing of the special Act; and such map and plan, or a copy thereof, with the date expressed thereon of the last time when the same shall have been so corrected as aforesaid, shall be kept in the office of the undertakers, and shall be open to the inspection of all persons interested in the same within the said district (a).

(a) The map required to be made by the Public Health Act, 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883, s. 3, post, p. 4664, was to be made before August 25th, 1884.

See and cf. note (a) to P. H. A., 1936, s. 32 (1), ante, p. 107.

Copies of such map or plan to be deposited with clerk of the peace, etc.

20. The undertakers shall from time to time, within three months from the time at which any such map or plan, or any such correction thereof or addition thereto, shall have been made as aforesaid, deposit with the [clerks of the county council] in England . . . of every county . . . in which such district or any part thereof may be situate, and also with the parish clerks of the several parishes in England . . . in which such underground work shall be situate, copies of the said map or plan, with all such particulars and all such corrections and additions as aforesaid, so far as relates to such counties . . . and parishes respectively (a).

(a) Words in this section relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted. A company who have not deposited a survey and map in accordance with this section have no right to the support of the soil in which their pipes are laid as against the owner of the minerals underneath (South Staffordshire Waterworks Co. v. Mason (1886), 56 L. J. Q. B. 255; 57 L. T. 116; 11 Digest 153, 354).

The words in square brackets are in consequence of L. G. A., 1933, s. 101, ante, p. 867.

21. The said [clerks of the county council] . . . and . . . parish clerks . . . shall receive the said copies of the said map and plan respectively, and shall keep the same, and shall allow all persons interested to inspect the same, and take copies or extracts of and from the same, in the like manner, and upon the like terms, and under the like penalty for default, as is provided in the case of maps and plans deposited under the Parliamentary Documents Deposit Act, 1837 (a).

Section 21.

Clerks of the peace, etc. to receive and keep copies of the map, etc. and allow inspection.
7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 83.

(a) Words in this section relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted.

As to words in square brackets, see L. G. A., 1933, s. 101, ante, p. 867.

22. Except where otherwise provided for by agreement between the undertakers and other parties, if the owner, lessee, or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under the reservoirs or buildings belonging to the undertakers, or under any of their pipes or works which shall be underground and shall be described in the map or plan which shall be so kept and deposited as hereinbefore mentioned, or within the prescribed distance, if any, and if no distance be prescribed within forty yards therefrom, be desirous of working the same, such owner, lessee, or occupier shall give the undertakers notice in writing of his intention so to do, thirty days before the commencement of working; and upon the receipt of such notice it shall be lawful for the undertakers to cause such mines to be inspected by any person appointed by them for the purpose, and if it appear to the undertakers that the working of such mines or minerals is likely to damage the said works, and if they be willing to make compensation for such mines to such owner, lessee, or occupier thereof, then he shall not work the same; and if the undertakers and such owner do not agree as to the amount of such compensation, the same shall be settled as in other cases of disputed compensation (a).

As to working of mines lying near the works

(a) See the P. H. A., 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883, s. 3, post, p. 4666, as to the power of a local authority to define the extent to which they require support to be left, and as to the mode of assessing compensation. To justify a notice under this section there must be a bonâ fide intention to work the mines by the owner or his lessees or licensees (Midland Rail. Co. v. Robinson, ante, p. 4108). The service of a notice under this section requiring the owner to abstain from working his minerals has, like a notice to treat under the Lands Clauses Acts, the effect of creating a statutory contract between the parties whereby the one party is bound to abstain from working his minerals and the other is bound to make compensation therefor. The award in the arbitration is final both as to the amount of compensation to be paid and (unless the title of the mineral owner is in dispute) as to the obligation of the undertakers to pay the amount (Clippens Oil Co., Ltd. v. Edinburgh and District Water Trustees (1901), 38 Sc. L. R. 354).

If the party entitled to the minerals begins working without giving the notice, the undertakers may bring an action for an injunction and damages, but the wrongful working does not debar the party from afterwards giving the notice and claiming compensation (Edinburgh Water Trustees v. Clippens Oil Co., Ltd. (1898), 25 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 504).

Where there has been a rise in the value of mineral since the notice, and but for the notice the mine owner would have obtained the benefit of the rise, consideration must be had to the rise in assessing the compensation (Bullfa and Merthyr Dare Steam Collieries (1891), Ltd. v. Pontypridd Waterworks Co., [1903] A. C. 426; 11 Digest 129, 186).

The compensation payable by a railway company under s. 78 of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, in respect of such mines as they require to be left unworked is the full value of the minerals required to be left unworked, namely, what the minerals would have sold for if worked, less the cost of working them (Eden v. N. E. Rail. Co., [1907] A. C. 400; 71 J. P. 450; 11 Digest 157, 374). Where the minerals had no marketable value but were of value to the claimants who had a cement factory close by, it was held that their value to the claimants was what they might fairly be expected to have made by working in the ordinary and reasonable manner in which they would have been worked but for the notices to treat; that the profits which they would have made by turning them into cement might properly be taken into consideration by an arbitrator as an indication, though not as a measure, of that value; and that the value was not affected by the fact that the claimants owned large quantities of the same minerals which they might have worked instead of the minerals in question (Rugby Portland Cement Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1908] 2 K. B. 606; 72 J. P. 245; 11 Digest 162, 417). A county council, acting under the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1903, and an Order of the Board of Agriculture which incorporated ss. 77 and 78 of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, gave notice to treat to the owner of a farm. In arbitration proceedings it was contended that the arbitrator should take into consideration the fact that the council merely acquired an interest in the surface without a right to support. It was held, that in assessing the value of the land the arbitrator was to deal with it as if there were no mines to be considered, and nothing but the surface; that the legislature had conferred rights upon purchasers in substitution for the common law right of support, and that the arbitrator was entitled, although he might not be actually bound, to disregard the absence of a right to support when assessing the value (Carlisle (Executrix of Earl) v. Northumberland C. C. (1911), 75 J. P. 539; 105 L. T. 797; 42 Digest 2, 6). See also Butterley Co., Ltd. v. New Hucknall Colliery Co., Ltd., [1910] A. C. 381; 34 Digest 706, 940; Howley Park Coal and Cannel Co. v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co., ante, p. 4179.

As to the right to interest upon an award of compensation, see Fletcher v. L. & Y. Rail. Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 901; 66 J. P. 631; 40 Digest 197, 1650; and Re Richard & G. W. Rail. Co., [1905] 1 K. B. 68; 69 J. P. 17; 11 Digest 156, 367.

If undertakers do not state their willingness to treat for payment of compensation owner may work the mines.

23. If before the expiration of such thirty days the undertakers do not state their willingness to treat with such owner, lessee, or occupier for the payment of such compensation, it shall be lawful for him to work the said mines, and to drain the same, by means of engines or otherwise, as if this Act and the special Act had not been passed, so that no wilful damage be done to the said works, and so that the said mines be not worked in an unusual manner; and if any damage or obstruction be occasioned to the works of the undertakers by the working of such mines in an unusual manner, the same shall be forthwith repaired or removed (as the case may require), and such damage made good by the owner, lessee, or occupier of such mines or minerals, and at his own expense; and if such repair or removal be not forthwith done, or if the undertakers shall so think fit, without waiting for the same to be done by such owner, lessee, or occupier, it shall be lawful for the undertakers to execute the same, and recover from such owner, lessee, or occupier the expense occasioned thereby, by action in any of the superior courts (a).

(a) The mines may be worked by open workings if that is usual in the district (Midland Rail. Co. v. Miles, ante, p. 4179); and see Midland Rail. Co. v. Robinson, ante, p. 4180; Ruabon Brick and Terra Cotta Co. v. G. W. Rail. Co., [1893] 1 Ch. 427; 11 Digest 155, 364; In re An Arbitration between Lord Gerard and L. & N. W. Rail. Co., [1895] 1 Q. B. 459; 34 Digest 715, 995. See, further, as to the right to work the mines so as to let down the surface, Consett Waterworks Co. v. Ritson (1888), 22 Q. B. D. 318; 53 J. P. 373; on appeal (1889) 22 Q. B. D. 702; 59 J. P. 199; 11 Digest 153, 355. For a case involving a claim to work mines under a canal in pursuance of a special Act, see Knowles & Sons v. L. & Y. Rail. Co. (1889), 14 App. Cas. 248; 54 J. P. 103; 11 Digest 160, 399. Apparently the undertakers could not be compelled by mandamus to reinstate the waterworks if damaged by the working of the mines. See R. v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1893), 58 J. P. 74; 62 L. J. Q. B. 572; 42 Digest 714, 1325.

Mining communications.

24. If the working of any such mines under the said works of the undertakers or within the above-mentioned distance therefrom be prevented as aforesaid by reason of apprehended injury to such works, it shall be lawful for the respective owners, lessees, and occupiers of such mines to cut and make such and so many airways, headways, gateways, or water levels through the mines, measures, or strata, the working whereof shall be so prevented, as may be requisite to enable them to ventilate, drain, and work any mines or minerals on each or either side thereof, but no such airway, headway, gateway, or water level shall be of greater dimensions or sections than the prescribed dimensions or sections, and where no dimensions are prescribed eight feet wide and eight feet high, nor shall the same be cut or made upon any part of the said works so as to injure the same.

Undertakers to make compensation to owner lessee, or occupier of mines for expenses incurred by severance of mines, or by interruptions of or restric-

25. Except where otherwise provided for by agreement, the undertakers shall from time to time pay to the owner, lessee, or occupier of any mines of coal, ironstone, and other minerals extending so as to lie on both sides of any reservoirs, buildings, pipes, conduits, or other works, all such additional expenses and losses as shall be incurred by such owner, lessee, or occupier by reason of the severance of the lands over such mines or minerals by such reservoirs or other works, or of the continuous working of such mines or minerals being interrupted as aforesaid, or by reason of the same being worked under the restrictions contained in this or the special Act, and for any mines or minerals not purchased by the undertakers which cannot be obtained by reason of making and maintaining the said works, or by reason of such apprehended injury from the working thereof as aforesaid, and if any dispute or question shall arise between the undertakers and such owner, lessee, or occupier as aforesaid touching the price of such minerals, the same shall be settled by arbitration in such manner as is provided by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, if the undertaking shall be situate in England . . . (a).

Section 25.

tions on works, and for minerals not obtained. Disputes to be settled by arbitration.

(a) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted. See the P. H. A., 1875 (Support of Sewers) Amendment Act, 1883, s. 3 (4), post, p. 4666, as to the method of settling disputes as to compensation. As to the compensation which may be claimed, see Whitehouse v. Wolverhampton and Walsall Rail. Co. (1869), L. R. 5 Ex. 6; 21 L. T. 558; Barnsley Canal Co. v. Twibell (1844), 7 Beav. 19; 11 Digest 162, 410; Ex parte Neath and Brecon Rail. Co. (1876), 2 Ch. D. 201; Holliday v. Wakefield Corporation, [1891] A. C. 81; 55 J. P. 325; 11 Digest 157, 378.

26. For better ascertaining whether any such mines are being worked or have been worked so as to damage the said works, it shall be lawful for the undertakers, after giving twenty-four hours notice in writing, to enter upon any lands through or near which the said works are situate, and wherein any such mines are being worked or are supposed so to be, and to enter into and return from any such mines or the works connected therewith, and for that purpose it shall be lawful for them to make use of any apparatus or machinery belonging to the owner, lessee, or occupier of such mines, and to use all necessary means for discovering the distance from the said works to the parts of such mines which are being worked or about to be worked.

Power to undertakers to enter and inspect the working of mines, after giving notice of the same.

27. Nothing in this or the special Act shall prevent the undertakers from being liable to any action or other legal proceeding to which they would have been liable for any damage or injury done or occasioned to any mines by means or in consequence of the waterworks, in case the same had not been constructed or maintained by virtue of this Act or the special Act (a).

Nothing to prevent undertakers from being liable to actions for injury done to mines.

(a) This section is limited to damage to mines (per VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, J., in Harrison v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co., [1891] 2 Ch., at p. 415). See also Graigola Merthyr Co. v. Swansea Corporation, [1928] Ch. 31; on appeal, [1928] Ch. 235; 92 J. P. 8; 43 Digest 1076, 122. This case went to the House of Lords on another point ([1929] A. C. 344).

And with respect to the breaking up of streets for the purpose of laying pipes, be it enacted as follows (a):

Laying of pipes.

(a) Sections 28—34 are incorporated by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 279, ante, p. 568 (see also ibid., s. 119, ante, p. 367). See also s. 149, P. H. A., 1875, and the notes thereto, post; s. 80 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1152, and the corresponding clauses of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4165.

28. The undertakers, under such superintendence as is hereinafter specified, may open and break up the soil and pavement of the several streets and bridges within the limits of the special Act, and may open and break up any sewers, drains, or tunnels within or under such streets and bridges, and lay down and place within the same limits pipes conduits, service pipes (a), and other works and engines, and from time to time repair, alter, or remove the same, and for the purposes aforesaid remove and use all earth and materials in and under such streets and bridges, and do all other acts which the undertakers shall from time to time deem necessary for supplying water to the inhabitants of the district included within the said limits, doing as little damage as can be in the execution of the powers hereby (b) or by the Power to break up streets, etc. under superintendence, and to open drains, and to lay pipes, etc.

Section 28. special Act granted, and making compensation for any damage which may be done in the execution of such powers (c).

T. 398 ; 43 Digest 1086, 193 ; Parnell v. Portsmouth Waterworks Co. (1910), 75 J. P. 99 ; 8 L. G. R. 1029 ; 43 Digest 1086, 194. And as to "mains," see Whittington Gas Light and Coke Co. v. Chesterfield Gas and Water Board, ante, p. 4165.

(b) See Harpur v. Swansea Corporation, [1913] A. C. 597 ; 77 J. P. 381 ; 43 Digest 1097, 272.

(c) Where under a special Act incorporating this Act, a water company has within the period fixed by the special Act for the completion of its works laid a main according to deposited plans, the company may, after the expiration of that period, lay down a second main having regard to this Act, and particularly where the special Act gives them power to "extend, enlarge or alter any of their mains or pipes at any time and from time to time as occasion may require, for the purpose of supplying the inhabitants within the limits of the Act with water," due regard being had to the requirements of the special and general Acts as to notice and otherwise before breaking up the road for the purpose (East Molesey L. B. v. Lambeth Waterworks Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 289 ; 43 Digest 1072, 96). The power given by this section includes any works which the undertakers may deem necessary for the purpose of regulating the supply of water, and is not confined to the laying down of apparatus underground, but enables the undertakers to place such works on the surface of the street as may not be inconsistent with the substantial reinstatement of the road in its previous condition or create a nuisance ; and it was held, therefore, that a water company was authorised by the section to place in the pavement of a street covers or guard-boxes to protect stop-valves placed for the purpose of regulating the supply of water in the communication pipes by which water was supplied to premises in the street, such covers or guard-boxes not creating a nuisance or being inconsistent with the substantial reinstatement of the pavement (East London Waterworks Co. v. St. Matthew, Bethnal Green, Vestry (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 475 ; 50 J. P. 820 ; 43 Digest 1071, 94). Where the cover of such a guard-box to a stop-cock attached to a service pipe supplying a private house was out of repair and could not be repaired without breaking up the street, and an accident occurred by a foot passenger tripping over it, the company were held liable, even assuming that the property in the guard-box was in the occupier of the private house, because the company had power to break up the street to repair it, which the occupier could not do (Chapman v. Fylde Waterworks Co., [1894] 2 Q. B. 599 ; 59 J. P. 5 ; 43 Digest 1085, 188). The case of Batt v. Metropolitan Water Board, [1911] 2 K. B. 965 ; 75 J. P. 545 ; 43 Digest 1099, 288, does not apply to a borough where this Act is in force for it was decided with reference only to s. 8 of the Metropolitan Water Board (Charges) Act, 1907, and the same observation applies to Mist v. Metropolitan Water Board (1915), 79 J. P. 495 ; 84 L. J. K. B. 2041 ; 43 Digest 1098, 282. See also Osborn v. Metropolitan Water Board (1910), 74 J. P. 190 ; 102 L. T. 217 ; 43 Digest 1099, 287 ; Rosenbaum v. Metropolitan Water Board (1910), 75 J. P. 12 ; 103 L. T. 739 ; 43 Digest 1099, 288 ; Stacey v. Gas Light and Coke Co. and Metropolitan Water Board (1910), 9 L. G. R. 174 ; 43 Digest 1085, 197. The section merely enables a water company to lay pipes under streets in connection with the undertaking authorised by their special Acts, and if they are being laid in connection with unauthorised works the owner of the soil can sue the water company in trespass, raise the question of ultra vires and obtain an injunction without joining the Attorney-General (Marriott v. East Grinstead Gas and Water Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 70 ; 72 J. P. 509 ; 43 Digest 1072, 95).

Public water commissioners in Scotland had statutory authority to lay a line of water pipes along a road which passed over two girder bridges belonging to a railway company. These bridges were constructed of several flat girders with spaces between them. Small transverse girders were placed on these main girders and supported iron sole plates forming a floor on which the material for the roadway was placed. This construction gave the bridges a very thin skin, within which there was not sufficient space to lay the water mains. Accordingly, the commissioners wanted to remove the sole plates and hang their water mains by iron bars attached to the cross-girders, carrying the pipes through the stone abutments forming the solid ends of the bridges on either side above the cuttings :—Held, that the powers conferred by ss. 28 and 29 of this Act did not entitle the commissioners to interfere with the weight-bearing portions of the bridges and they were interdicted from doing what they proposed (Glasgow Corporation v. Glasgow and South Western Rail. Co., [1895] A. C. 376 ; 59 J. P. 788 ; 43 Digest 1072, 100). This case was followed in another Scotch case, Caledonian Rail. Co. v. Glasgow Corporation (1901), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 526, where it was also held that "tunnels" meant tunnels similar in character to sewers and drains and did not apply to a railway tunnel, and that the right to interfere with did not warrant the permanent displacement or removal of tunnels.

Undertakers
not to enter on

29. Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall authorise or empower the undertakers to lay down or place any pipe, conduit, service pipe, or other work in any land not dedicated to public use (a) without the consent of the owners and occupiers thereof, except that the undertakers at any time may enter upon and lay or place any new pipe in the place of an existing pipe in any land wherein any pipe hath been already lawfully laid down or placed in pursuance of this or the special Act, or any other Act of Parliament, and may repair or alter any pipe so laid down. Section 29.

private land without consent.

(a) A public street or footpath is "land dedicated to public use," so that pipes in connection with authorised works could be laid without the consent of the owner of the soil (Marriott v. East Grinstead Gas and Water Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 70; 72 J. P. 509; 43 Digest 1072, 95). See, further, note (b) to s. 7 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4166.

30. Before the undertakers open or break up any street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel, they shall give to the persons under whose control or management the same may be, or to their clerk, surveyor, or other officer notice in writing of their intention to open or break up the same, not less than three clear days before beginning such work, except in cases of emergency arising from defects in any of the pipes or other works, and then so soon as is possible after the beginning of the work, or the necessity for the same shall have arisen (a). Notice to be served on persons having control, etc. before breaking up streets or opening drains.

(a) See the notes to s. 8 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4166.

31. No such street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel shall, except in the cases of emergency aforesaid, be opened or broken up, except under the superintendence of the persons having the control or management thereof (a), or of their officer, and according to such plan as shall be approved of by such persons or their officer, or in case of any difference respecting such plan, then according to such plan as shall be determined by two justices; and such justices may, on the application of the persons having the control or management of any such sewer or drain, or their officer, require the undertakers to make such temporary or other works as they may think necessary for guarding against any interruption of the drainage during the execution of any works which interfere with any such sewer or drain: Provided always, that if the persons having such control or management as aforesaid, and their officer, fail to attend at the time fixed for the opening of any such street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel, after having had such notice of the intention of the undertakers as aforesaid, or shall not propose any plan for breaking up or opening the same, or shall refuse or neglect to superintend the operation, the undertakers may perform the work specified in such notice without the superintendence of such persons, or their officer (b). Streets or drains not to be broken up except under superintendence of persons having control of the same.

(a) That is, after notice to the highway authority sufficient to enable them to judge whether what is proposed ought to be done without modification (Edgware Highway Board v. Colne Valley Water Co. (1877), 46 L. J. Ch. 889; 43 Digest 1072, 97). In the same case it was held that the plan should show not only the mode and manner of opening the street, but also the depth and position of the cutting, and such other particulars as would enable the road authority to judge whether what was proposed to be done should be accepted without modification without going to the justices. This was approved of by the Court of Appeal in East Molesey L. B. v. Lambeth Waterworks Co., [1892] 3 Ch. 289; 43 Digest 1072, 96. See also the notes to s. 8 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4166.

(b) Compare Metropolitan Water Board v. Bradley (1910), 74 J. P. 331; 102 L. T. 893; 43 Digest 1102, 312.

32. When the undertakers open or break up the road or pavement of any street or bridge, or any sewer, drain or tunnel, they shall with all convenient speed complete the work for which the same shall be broken up, and fill in the ground, and reinstate and make good the road or pavement, or the sewer, drain, or tunnel, so opened or broken up, and carry away the rubbish occasioned thereby, and shall at all times, whilst any such road or pavement shall be so opened or broken up, cause the same to be fenced and guarded, and shall Streets, etc. broken up to be reinstated without delay.

Section 32. cause a light sufficient for the warning of passengers to be set up and kept thereagainst, every night during which such road or pavement shall be continued open or broken up, and shall, after replacing and making good the road or pavement which shall have been so broken up, keep the same in good repair for three months thereafter, and such further time, if any, not being more than twelve months in the whole, as the soil so broken up shall continue to subside (a).

(a) The mere passive omission by a road authority to rectify a subsidence in a road in their area which has been originally occasioned by the neglect of a water company to make the road after having broken it up for the purposes of their undertaking does not exonerate the water company from liability for an injury caused to a person using the road by reason of the subsidence (Hartley v. Rochdale Corporation, [1908] 2 K. B. 594; 72 J. P. 343; 43 Digest 1098, 235). This section imposes a continuing duty upon undertakers to remedy any neglect in an improper filling in of the ground and accordingly time does not begin to run under the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, post, so long as that duty remains undischarged (Huyton and Roby Gas Co. v. Liverpool Corporation, [1926] 1 K. B. 146; 90 J. P. 45; 43 Digest 1097, 269). As to the reinstatement of an unadopted street, see Withington v. Bolton B. C., [1937] 3 All E. R. 108; Digest Supp.

Penalty for delay in reinstating streets, etc.

33. If the undertakers open or break up any street or bridge, or any sewer, drain, or tunnel, without giving such notice as aforesaid, or in a manner different from that which shall have been approved of or determined as aforesaid, or without making such temporary or other works as aforesaid, when so required, except in the cases in which the undertakers are authorised to perform such works without any superintendence or notice, or, if the undertakers make any unnecessary delay in completing any such work, or in filling in the ground, or reinstating and making good the road or pavement, or the sewer, drain, or tunnel, so opened or broken up, or in carrying away the rubbish occasioned thereby, or if they neglect to cause the place where such road or pavement has been broken up to be fenced, guarded, and lighted, or neglect to keep the road or pavement in repair for the space of six months next after the same is made good, or such further time as aforesaid, they shall forfeit to the persons having the control or management of the street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel in respect of which such default is made a sum not exceeding five pounds for every such offence, and an additional sum of five pounds for each day during which any such delay as aforesaid shall continue after they shall have received notice thereof.

In case of delay, persons having control of streets, etc. may reinstate them.

34. If any such delay or omission as aforesaid shall take place, the persons having the control or management of the street, bridge, sewer, drain, or tunnel in respect of which such delay or omission shall take place may cause the work so delayed or omitted to be executed, and the expense of executing the same shall be repaid to such persons by the undertakers; and such expenses may be recovered in the same way as damages are recoverable under this and the special Act (a).

(a) See the P. H. A., 1936, s. 293, ante, p. 610. It would seem that if the local authority employ a contractor to do the work they may recover from the undertakers not only the sums paid to the contractor for the work actually done by him, but also the expenses reasonably incurred in superintending the work done by the contractor (New River Co. v. Westminster City Council (1904), 68 J. P. 358; 73 L. J. K. B. 1009); but they cannot recover any sum in respect of such supervision, if in fact they have incurred no expense in respect thereof (S. C. sub nom. Metropolitan Water Board v. Westminster City Council (1905), 70 J. P. 52; 75 L. J. K. B. 384; 43 Digest 1097, 271).

Supply of water.

And with respect to the supply of water to be furnished by the undertakers, be it enacted as follows:

Constant supply of water to be kept for domestic use of

35. The undertakers shall provide and keep in the pipes to be laid down by them a supply of pure and wholesome water, sufficient for the domestic use of all the inhabitants (a) of the town or district within the limits of the Special Act, who, as hereinafter provided, shall be entitled to demand a supply, and shall be willing to pay water rate for the same (b); and such supply shall be constantly laid on at such a pressure as will make the water reach the top story of the highest houses within the said limits, unless it be provided by the special Act that the water to be supplied by the undertakers need not be constantly laid on under pressure; and the undertakers shall cause pipes to be laid down and water to be brought to every part of the town or district within the limits of the special Act whereunto they shall be required by so many owners or occupiers of houses in that part of the town or district as that the aggregate amount of water rate payable by them annually, at the rates specified in the special Act, shall be not less than one tenth part of the expence of providing and laying down such pipes; provided that no such requisition shall be binding on the undertakers, unless such owners or occupiers shall severally execute an agreement binding themselves to take such supply of water for three successive years at least (c).

Section 35.

all inhabitants entitled to demand a supply.

(a) This section was fully discussed in Read v. Croydon Corporation, [1938] 4 All E. R. 631; 103 J. P. 25; Digest Supp. In that case a ratepayer and his daughter contracted typhoid through drinking water supplied by a local authority, and it was found on the facts that the authority had not been negligent in the selection of the gathering ground nor in selection and supervision of its workmen but that they had been negligent in that, during the carrying out of certain work at a well, precautions in the form of continual analysis of the water, searching inquiry into the antecedents of the workmen, and incessant supervision over them, were not taken. It was held that the authority were guilty of negligence at common law and also of a breach of statutory duty under this section, and further that the penalty imposed by this Act was not an exclusive remedy and that an action for damages for breach of the statutory duty might also be brought; but that such last-mentioned action might be brought only by a ratepayer, with the result that the ratepayer succeeded and the daughter failed. The words of this section "sufficient for the domestic use of all the inhabitants" do not define the class to which the duty is owed, but prescribe the quantity and quality of the water to be supplied; but the class of persons entitled to demand a supply under this section must be the same as the class of persons to whom there is a duty to supply under s. 53, post, p. 4180, and accordingly both duties are owed to the class of persons described in s. 53 (Read v. Croydon Corporation, supra).

(b) The only statutory duty owed by a supplying authority to a ratepayer in regard to the quality of water to be supplied is that imposed upon them by this section, namely, to provide and keep in the pipes laid down by them a supply of pure and wholesome water, and if this is complied with the authority are not liable for any breach of statutory duty (Barnes v. Irwell Valley Water Board, [1939] 1 K. B. 21; [1938] 2 All E. R. 650; 102 J. P. 373; Digest Supp.).

(c) This section is not incorporated with the P. H. A., 1936, and was not with the P. H. A., 1875. See, however, as to the giving of guarantees by district councils under this section, s. 123 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 373.

And with respect to the communication pipes to be laid by the undertakers be it enacted as follows (a):

Pipes to be laid by the undertakers.

(a) Sections 44—51, 53—71, 73—74, are incorporated by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 120, ante, p. 368. Proviso (a) to that section provides that the provisions with respect to the communication pipes to be laid by the undertakers and the inhabitants respectively shall apply only in districts or parts of districts where the local authority lay any pipes for the supply of any of the inhabitants thereof.

44. The undertakers shall, upon the request of the owner of any dwelling-house in any street in which pipes shall have been laid down by them, the annual value of which house shall not exceed ten pounds, or upon request of the occupier with the consent in writing of the owner, or reputed owner, of any such house, or of the agent of such owner (a), and upon payment or tender of the proportion of water rate in respect of such house by this or the special Act, made payable in advance, lay down communication pipes and other necessary works for the supply of such house with water for domestic or other purposes, and shall keep the same in repair, and thereupon the occupier of such house shall be entitled to have a sufficient supply of water for his domestic purposes from the undertakers; and the undertakers may charge

Undertakers to lay down communication pipes, on request of occupier and with consent of owners.

Section 44. for such pipes and works, in addition to the water rate, such reasonable annual rent (b) as shall be agreed upon, or, in case of dispute, as shall be settled by such inspector as aforesaid, when appointed, and in the meantime as shall in England . . . be settled by two justices . . . and such rent shall be chargeable on and recoverable from the occupier, or, in his default, from the owner of such house, at the same times and in the same manner as water rates ; and such pipes and other works shall not be subject to distress . . . nor to be taken in execution under any process of a court of law or equity, or under any fiat or sequestration in bankruptcy, against such occupier or against such owner, unless he shall have become the proprietor of the said pipes and works under the provisions hereinafter contained (c).

(a) These words are to be omitted. See the P. H. A., 1936, s. 120, proviso (d), ante, p. 368. As to the meaning of the expression "consumer" in a special Act, see Cooke, Sons & Co. v. New River Governor & Co. (1889), 14 App. Cas. 698; 54 J. P. 260; 43 Digest 1091, 229.

(b) This rent may be deducted from the rent paid to the owner. See the P. H. A., 1936, s. 120, proviso (d), ante, p. 368.

(c) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted from this section.

Penalty on undertakers for neglect, etc. to lay communication pipes.

45. If, upon such request and consent, and upon tender or payment of such proportion of rate as aforesaid, the undertakers for seven days neglect or refuse to lay down such communication pipes or other works, they shall be liable to forfeit to the person so making such request the sum of five pounds and a further sum of forty shillings for every day during which such refusal or neglect shall continue after seven days from the making of such request and tender as aforesaid.

On non-payment of rate, or if house be unoccupied, undertakers may remove pipes, etc. provided by them.

46. If the occupier for the time being of the house in which any such communication pipes or other works and engines shall have been laid down by the undertakers refuse to pay for a supply of water, or if such house be unoccupied for twelve months, the undertakers may demand from the owner thereof payment of the amount of the principal money invested by them in providing and laying down such communication pipes and other works and engines ; and if such owner, after ten days notice given to him by the undertakers, neglect or refuse to pay such principal money, the undertakers may enter the house and remove such pipes and other works ; and the balance of such principal money, after deducting the value of such pipes and other works, with all arrears of rent for such pipes and works, shall, in default of payment, be recovered, with the costs incurred, from the owner or from the occupier for the time being, in the same manner as water rates are directed by this or the special Act to be recovered : Provided always, that no greater sum shall be recovered from any such occupier than the amount of rent for the time being owing by him, unless he refuse to discover the amount of rent owing by him ; and that every such occupier shall be entitled to deduct from the amount of rent payable by him the sum so recovered from him, or which he shall have paid, on demand.

Owner to be at liberty to purchase the pipes.

47. The owner or reputed owner of any house where any such communication pipes or other works shall have been laid down by the undertakers may at any time pay off the amount then due to the undertakers in respect of the costs of providing and laying down such pipes and works, and all rent at that time due in respect thereof, and thereupon such pipes and works shall become the property of such owner, and all further rent in respect thereof shall cease to accrue to the undertakers.

Pipes to be laid by the inhabitants.

And with respect to the communication pipes to be laid by the inhabitants (a), be it enacted as follows :

(a) These provisions, as incorporated with the P. H. A., 1936, are to have effect subject to the provisions of s. 121 of that Act (see ibid., s. 120, proviso (b)). Further, they only apply in districts, or parts of districts, where the local authority lay any pipes for the supply of any of the inhabitants thereof (ibid., s. 120, proviso (a), ante, p. 368).

Note to
Section 47.

48. Any owner or occupier of any dwelling-house, or part of a dwelling-house within the limits of the special Act who shall wish to have water from the waterworks of the undertakers brought into his premises, and who shall have paid or tendered to the undertakers the portion of water rate in respect of such premises by this or the special Act directed to be paid in advance, may open the ground between the pipes of the undertakers and his premises, having first obtained [as respects any ground not forming part of the street (a)] the consent of the owners and occupiers of such ground (b), and lay any leaden or other pipes from such premises, to communicate with the pipes of the undertakers, such pipes to be of a strength and material to be approved of by the undertakers, or, in case of dispute, to be settled in England . . . by two justices . . . or in either case by the inspector to be appointed as aforesaid: Provided always, that every such owner or occupier shall, before he begins to lay any such pipe, give to the undertakers fourteen days notice of his intention to do so (c).

Power to inhabitants to lay service pipes from houses to pipes of undertakers.

(a) The words in square brackets are not part of the section as enacted, but are to be read in for purposes of the P. H. A., 1936 (see P. H. A., 1936, s. 120, proviso (e)).

(b) The ground referred to must be private ground intervening between his premises to be supplied and the water main. Power to open streets is given in express terms by s. 52, post, p. 4190.

(c) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland are omitted from this section. An action lies for cutting off by the undertakers of a connection lawfully and properly made without lawful cause (Gale v. Rhymney and Aber Valleys Gas and Water Co. (1903), 67 J. P. 430; 89 L. T. 399; 43 Digest 1084, 178). As to the liability to repair communication pipes, see Parnell v. Portsmouth Waterworks Co. (1910), 75 J. P. 99; 8 L. G. R. 1029; 43 Digest 1086, 194, and compare Colne Valley Water Co. v. Hall (1907), 72 J. P. 25; 43 Digest 1086, 193. See also Batt v. M. W. B., [1911] 2 K. B. 965; 43 Digest 1099, 286; Chapman v. Fylde Waterworks Co., ante, p. 4184.

49. Before any pipe is made to communicate with the pipes of the undertakers, the person intending to lay such pipe shall give two days notice to the undertakers of the day and hour when such pipe is intended to be made to communicate with the pipes of the undertakers; and every such pipe shall be so made to communicate under the superintendence and according to the directions of the surveyor or other officer appointed for that purpose by the undertakers, unless such surveyor or officer fail to attend at the time mentioned in the said notice; and in case of any dispute as to the manner in which such pipe shall be so made to communicate, it shall in England . . . be settled by two justices . . . or in either case by the inspector to be appointed as aforesaid (a).

Communication with the pipes of the undertakers to be made under the superintendence of their surveyor.

(a) See note (b) to s. 48, supra.

50. The bore of any such pipe as last aforesaid shall not exceed the prescribed limits, and where no limit shall be prescribed it shall not exceed half an inch, except with the consent of the undertakers.

Bore of service pipes.

51. Any person who shall have laid down any pipe or other works, or who shall have become the proprietor thereof, may remove the same, after having first given six days' notice in writing to the undertakers of his intention so to do, and of the time of such proposed removal, and every such person shall make compensation to the undertakers for any injury or damage to their pipes or works which may be caused by such removal; and every person who shall remove any such pipe or other works without giving such notice as aforesaid shall forfeit to the undertakers a sum not exceeding five pounds, over and above the damage which he may be found liable to pay

Service pipes may be removed after giving notice.

Penalty for removing pipes without notice.

Section 51. in any action at law, at the suit of the undertakers, for the damage done to their pipes or works.

Power to inhabitants to break up pavements, etc.

52. (a) Any such owner or occupier may open or break up so much of the pavement of any street as shall be between the pipe of the undertakers and his house, building, or premises (b), and any sewer or drain therein, for any such purpose as aforesaid, doing as little damage as may be (c), and making compensation for any damage done in the execution of any such work: Provided always, that every such owner or occupier desiring to break up the pavement of any street, or any sewer or drain therein, shall be subject to the same necessity of giving previous notice, and shall be subject to the same control, restriction, and obligations in and during the time of breaking up the same, and also reinstating the same, and to the same penalties for any delay in regard thereto, as the undertakers are subject to by virtue of this or the special Act (d).

(a) This section is not incorporated with the P. H. A., 1936, by ibid., s. 120, but wider provisions to the same effect are made by ibid., s. 121, ante, p. 371.

(b) See Pearson v. Tenterden Corporation (1910), 74 J. P. 405; 43 Digest 1085, 187.

(c) See R. v. East and West India Docks, etc. Rail. Co., ante, p. 4165.

(d) A waterworks company is not liable for the negligence of an occupier in opening a street under this section. The word "pavement" as used in this section is not confined to the footpath only. See Glover v. East London Waterworks Co. (1867), 32 J. P. 280; 17 L. T. 475; 43 Digest 1085, 186.

As to the power of a company to require a consumer to fix a screw-down valve in the street to shut off water from the premises as apparatus for regulating the supply within the meaning of a special Act, see Ward v. Folkestone Waterworks Co. (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 334; 54 J. P. 628; 43 Digest 1096, 262.

Right of owners or occupiers to supply of water for domestic purposes.

53. Every owner and occupier of any dwelling-house (a) or part of a dwelling-house within the limits of the special Act shall, when he has laid such communication pipes as aforesaid, and paid or tendered (b) the water rate payable in respect thereof, according to the provisions of this and the special Act (c), be entitled to demand and receive from the undertakers (d) a sufficient supply of water for his domestic purposes (e).

(a) As to what is a "private dwelling-house," see Bristol Guardians v. Bristol Waterworks Co., [1914] 1 A. C. 379; 78 J. P. 217; 43 Digest 1066, 62. In that case it was held that the right to demand a supply was by the special Act limited to private dwelling-houses, and that a workhouse was not within this description. This case was followed in Northern Theatres Co. v. Shillito, [1925] 2 K. B. 100; 89 J. P. 101; 43 Digest 1079, 140 (a theatre).

(b) The occupier of premises used as a post office which were not rated has been held to be entitled to a supply of water for domestic purposes as of right without prepayment of the water rate (Postmaster-General v. Nenagh U. D. C., [1913] 1 I. R. 238; 43 Digest 1078, r).

(c) This class of persons is also the class to whom a duty is owed under s. 35, ante, p. 4186 (see Read v. Croydon Corporation, cited in the notes to that section).

(d) See Pitts v. Plymouth Corporation, [1912] 3 K. B. 301; 43 Digest 1091, 223.

(e) As to the duty of the company to supply water fit for domestic use, see Att.-Gen. v. North Shields Waterworks Co. (1892), Times, May 12th. The supply of water for the use of a horse and the washing of a carriage in a stable attached to a dwelling-house, and used for the sole accommodation of the occupier, was held to be for domestic use in Bushby v. Chesterfield Waterworks, etc. Co. (1858), El. B. & E. 176; 22 J. P. 689; 43 Digest 1081, 157. But see the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, s. 12, post, p. 4258. The guardians of a union are entitled under this section to supply to a workhouse, such a supply being for domestic purposes (Liskeard Union v. Liskeard Waterworks Co. (1881), 7 Q. B. D. 505; 45 J. P. 780; 43 Digest 1079, 141), but the court will distinguish between the different purposes for which water is supplied to such an institution (Chester Waterworks Co. v. Chester Union (1908), 72 J. P. 121; 98 L. T. 701; 43 Digest 1079, 142). This case was discussed and followed in Frederick v. Bognor Water Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 149; 72 J. P. 501; 43 Digest 1080, 145, decided under a special Act, in which it was held that the keeping of a boarding school in which water was used for the domestic purposes of all the inmates was not carrying on a "business for which water is required." The phrase "domestic purposes" includes a supply for a fixed bath (Weaver v. Cardiff Corporation (1883), 47 J. P. 599; 48 L. T. 906;

Note to
Section 53.

43 Digest 1092, 235), unless baths are excluded by express words (Walker v. Lambeth Waterworks Co. (1894), 58 J. P. 736; 71 L. T. 75; 43 Digest 1081, 151); and a supply of water for a swimming-bath erected and used for the purposes of the business of a school is not a supply for "domestic purposes" (Barnard Castle U. D. C. v. Wilson, [1902] 2 Ch. 746; 43 Digest 1080, 147, and see Frederick v. Bognor Water Co., [1909] 1 Ch. 149; 72 J. P. 501; 43 Digest 1080, 145). On the other hand, water supplied for domestic purposes is none the less so supplied because the house may be used as a boarding house (Pidgeon v. Great Yarmouth Waterworks Co., [1902] 1 K. B. 310; 66 J. P. 309; 43 Digest 1081, 155), or as a school (South-West Suburban Water Co. v. St. Marylebone Guardians, [1904] 2 K. B. 174; 68 J. P. 257; 43 Digest 1078, 139). It has been held that water for non-domestic purposes does not include water for watering a garden (per JESSEL, M.R., in Low v. Lambeth Waterworks Co., not reported, and see 26 & 27 Vict. c. 93, s. 12, post, p. 4258). See, however, Bristol Waterworks Co. v. Uren, post, p. 4197, and Grand Junction Waterworks v. Neal (1895), 30 L. J. Newsp. 85. And water used by a person carrying on the profession of a physician or surgeon for washing a motor car used in his profession is not supplied for a trade manufacture or business within 26 & 27 Vict. c. 93, s. 12, so as to be excluded from being considered as supplied for domestic purposes (Harrogate Corporation v. Mackay, [1907] 2 K. B. 211; 71 J. P. 458; 43 Digest 1081, 158). Water supplied for use in a dentist's surgery, or a medical practitioner's surgery and dispensary, is not used for non-domestic purposes (Manchester Corporation v. Buttle, infra; Kingston-upon-Hull Corp'n. v. Yuille, [1939] 2 K. B. 769; [1939] 2 All E. R. 48; Digest Supp.). A gas company provided at their works certain sanitary conveniences as required by the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901. No one resided at the works, which were exempt from inhabited house duty. It was held that the question was not the character of the premises, but the character of the purposes for which the water was used; that the supply in question was for domestic purposes; and that the company were not entitled to a supply by meter as for trade purposes under s. 16 of the Metropolitan Water Board (Charges) Act, 1907 (South Suburban Gas Co. v. Metropolitan Water Board, [1909] 2 Ch. 666; 73 J. P. 503; 43 Digest 1080, 149). This was approved in Metropolitan Water Board v. Avery, [1914] A. C. 118; 78 J. P. 121; 43 Digest 1080, 150, where it was held that under their local Act the Board were bound to supply water for washing up plates and dishes in a public-house where luncheons were served at the rate for domestic purposes. But where it was necessary to construe an Act which provided that the Board should not be bound to supply otherwise than by meter to a house used wholly or partly for any trade it was held that the test was the character of the building and not the use to which the water was put (Oddenino v. Metropolitan Water Board, [1914] 2 Ch. 734; 79 J. P. 89; 43 Digest 1081, 161). And this decision was followed in Barrett v. Ilkeston Corporation, [1917] 1 K. B. 827; 81 J. P. 133; 43 Digest 1079, 144 (Beer-house) and Manchester Corporation v. Buttle, [1929] 2 Ch. 390; 94 J. P. 33; Digest Supp. (Dentist's surgery). Water supplied to urinals and water-closets at a railway station and to a tap used for drinking purposes and for cleansing the platforms is not supplied for domestic purposes (Metropolitan Water Board v. L. B. & S. C. Rail. Co., [1910] 2 K. B. 890; 74 J. P. 409; 43 Digest 1082, 164). A supply of water to a factory for drinking and washing by workmen employed there and for urinals and water-closets provided for their use is a supply for domestic purposes (Colley's Patents, Ltd. v. Metropolitan Water Board, [1912] A. C. 24; 76 J. P. 33; 43 Digest 1081, 162). Water supplied for a public-house, where, in addition to the ordinary consumption of water in such a case, a catering business is carried on, is water supplied for domestic purposes (Metropolitan Water Board v. Avery, supra). It is not easy to reconcile with this decision the case of Airdrie, Coatbridge and District Water Trustees v. Flanagan (1906), 8 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 932, where water supplied for a public-house mainly for sanitary purposes and cooking was held not to be a supply for domestic purposes. A golf club-house in which no one slept was held not to be a "house," and therefore not entitled to a supply of water at the domestic rate (Fergusson v. Prestwick (Provost, etc. of), [1909] S. C. 94, decided under the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, ss. 4, 263, 264). Where such extra charges are expressly authorised for water-closets, that means water-closets used as such and having water laid on to them (Roberts v. South Essex Waterworks Co. (1903), 67 J. P. 404; 1 L. G. R. 719; 43 Digest 1092, 237).

Where a supply was cut off for non-payment of water rates, the company were held not warranted in refusing to supply a subsequent tenant until the arrears were paid (Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Wilkinson (1879), 4 C. P. D. 410; 43 J. P. 703; 43 Digest 1094, 249). See, further, as to the cutting off of a supply, the Water Companies (Regulation of Powers) Act, 1887, post, p. 4697.

As to the right of a company to cut off the supply when the consumer has failed to provide a meter for water supplied for purposes other than for "family use," see Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Carter (1882), 8 Q. B. D. 632; 46 J. P. 548; 43 Digest 1091, 230. And as to the obligation to provide a meter in such case, see Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Bingham (1883), 25 Ch. D. 443; 43 Digest 1092, 231.

The company are only bound to furnish a reasonable supply, that is, a supply which is reasonable according to the means at their disposal (Jackson v. Farnham Water Co. (1887), 3 T. L. R. 632).

Note to Section 53.

As to drought being an unavoidable cause preventing the supply and excusing the undertakers from furnishing a sufficient supply, see Industrial Dwellings Co. v. East London Waterworks Co. (1894), 58 J. P. 430; 43 Digest 1078, 133.

As to the meaning of the words "require a supply of water" in s. 17 of the Metropolitan Water Board (Charges) Act, 1907, see Metropolitan Water Board v. Johnson & Co., [1913] 3 K. B. 900; 77 J. P. 384; 43 Digest 1086, 199.

Protection of water.

And with respect to waste or misuse of the water supplied by the undertakers, be it enacted as follows:

Persons using water not required to be laid on at high pressure to provide cisterns,
etc.

54. If by the special Act it be provided that the water to be supplied by the undertakers need not be constantly laid on under pressure, every person supplied with water shall, when required by the undertakers, provide a proper cistern to hold the water with which he shall be so supplied, with a ball and stop-cock, in the pipe bringing the water from the works of the undertakers to such cistern, and shall keep such cistern, ball, and stop-cock in good repair so as effectually to prevent the water from running to waste; and in case any such person shall, when required by the undertakers, neglect to provide such cistern, ball, or stop-cock, or to keep the same in good repair, the undertakers may cut off the pipe or turn off the water from the premises of such person until such cistern and ball and stop-cock shall be provided or repaired, as the case may require (a).

neglect.

(a) Where a company were entitled to require the provision of "proper ball and stop-cocks, or other necessary apparatus for regulating the supply," it was held that they could not require a screw-down valve to be inserted in the communication pipe laid in the street so that the water might be shut off from the premises on any indication of waste (Ward v. Folkestone Waterworks Co., ante, p. 4190).

As to the conditions of constant supply in the metropolis, see West Middlesex Waterworks Co. v. Tappenden (1888), 5 T. L. R. 477.

Penalty for suffering cistern, etc.
to be out of repair so that water is wasted.

55. Every person supplied with water by the undertakers who shall suffer any such cistern, pipe, ball, or stop-cock to be out of repair, so that the water supplied to him by the undertakers shall be wasted, shall forfeit to the undertakers for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds (a).

(a) Section 55 was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875, so far as it relates to special Acts with which the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, post, p. 4256, is incorporated. The owner of a house let to a tenant upon a weekly tenancy, but himself liable to payment of the water rate by reason of the house being under the annual value of £10 (see s. 72, post, p. 4199), is "a person supplied with water" within the meaning of this section (Brock v. Harrison, [1899] 1 Q. B. 958; 63 J. P. 455; 43 Digest 1096, 265).

Undertakers
may repair cisterns, etc.

56. The undertakers may repair any such cistern, pipe, ball, or stop-cock, so as to prevent any such waste of water, and the expenses of such repair shall be repaid to them by the person so allowing the same to be out of repair, and may be received (a) as damages.

(a) Sic in Parliament Roll. It should of course be "recovered." It was held that the work of repair for the expenses of which the owner of a defective communication pipe was liable under the M. W. B. (Various Powers) Act, 1907, s. 71, was limited to work done after the Board had ascertained that it was from his pipe that the leakage of water came, and did not include an exploratory opening of the ground for the purpose of locating the source of the leakage (David v. Metropolitan Water Board, [1919] 1 K. B. 44; 83 J. P. 58; 43 Digest 1086, 195).

Power to undertakers' surveyor to enter houses
to inspect, etc.

57. The surveyor, or any other person acting under the authority of the undertakers, may, between the hours of nine of the clock in the forenoon and four of the clock in the afternoon [on producing, if required, evidence of his authority (a)], enter into any house or premises supplied with water by virtue of this or the special Act in order to examine if there be any waste or misuse of such water; and if [after production of his authority (a)] such surveyor or other person at any such time be refused admittance into such dwelling-house or premises for the purpose aforesaid, or be prevented from making such examination as aforesaid, the undertakers may turn off the water supplied by them from such house or other premises. Section 59.

(a) Neither of the phrases in square brackets occur in the section as enacted, but are to be read in where the section is incorporated with the P. H. A., 1936, by ibid., s. 120 (see ibid., s. 120, proviso (f), ante, p. 368).

58. Every owner or occupier of any tenement supplied with water under this or the special Act who shall supply to any other person or wilfully permit him to take any such water from any cistern or pipe in such tenement, unless for the purpose of extinguishing any fire, or unless he be a person supplied with water by the undertakers, and the pipes belonging to him be, without his default, out of repair, shall forfeit to the undertakers for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds (a). Penalty for allowing persons to use water supplied by undertakers.

(a) A covenant to repair or renew a pipe is broken if in consequence of the pipe becoming furred by encrustation the flow of water is substantially diminished although it is still sufficient for ordinary purposes. Where a railway company has obtained a supply of water by meter to a railway station, this does not authorise the use of such supply for another station. Knowledge of such wrongful use over a long period cannot be imputed to the principals supplying the water by reason of their agent having from time to time read a meter which happened to be side by side with the meter which measured the wrongful uses of the supply (G. N. Ry. v. Bradford Corporation (1918), 83 J. P. 33 ; 88 L. J. Ch. 101).

59. Every person who, not having agreed to be supplied with water by the undertakers, shall take any water from any reservoir, watercourse, or conduit belonging to the undertakers, or any pipe leading to any such reservoir, watercourse, or conduit, or from any cistern or other like place containing water belonging to the undertakers, other than such as may have been provided for the gratuitous use of the public, shall forfeit to the undertakers for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds (a). Penalty for taking water belonging to undertakers without agreement.

(a) Section 59 is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875, to the same extent as s. 55, ante p. 4192. This section provides no penalty for taking water from an unoccupied house. See Piercy v. Pope (1881), 46 J. P. 102 ; 45 L. T. 477 ; 43 Digest 1095, 256. See also, with reference to this section, Hildreth v. Adamson, ante, p. 376, and Burns v. Scholfield (1922), 87 J. P. 54 ; 128 L. T. 382 ; 43 Digest 1096, 264. As to larceny of water, see Ferens v. O'Brien, ante, p. 380.

A section in a special Act provided that if any person should wilfully waste the water of the company, or apply it to any purpose other than that agreed upon, he should be liable to a penalty. It was held that this section did not apply to a case where water, after being used for ordinary domestic purposes, was conveyed into an apparatus for flushing a water-closet (Evans v. Gornall (1892), 8 T. L. R. 602).

60. Every person who shall wilfully or carelessly break, injure, or open any lock, cock, valve, pipe, work, or engine belonging to the undertakers, or shall flush or draw off the water from the reservoirs or other works of the undertakers, or shall do any other wilful act whereby such water shall be wasted, shall forfeit to the undertakers for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds. Penalty for destroying valves, drawing off water, etc.

And with respect to the provisions for guarding against fouling the water of the undertakers, be it enacted as follows (a) : Fouling the water.

(a) See also the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, ss. 16–20, post, pp. 2267–9.

61. Every person who shall commit any of the offences next hereinafter enumerated shall for every such offence forfeit to the undertakers a sum not exceeding five pounds ; (that is to say,) Penalties for causing the water of the undertakers to be fouled, etc.

Every person who shall bathe in any stream, reservoir, aqueduct, or other waterworks belonging to the undertakers, or wash, throw, or cause to enter therein any dog or other animal :

Every person who shall throw any rubbish, dirt, filth, or other noisome thing into any such stream, reservoir, aqueduct, or other waterworks

as aforesaid, or wash or cleanse therein any cloth, wool, leather, or skin of any animal, or any clothes or other thing :

Every person who shall cause the water of any sink, sewer, or drain, steam engine, boiler, or other filthy water belonging to him or under his control, to run or be brought into any stream, reservoir, aqueduct, or other waterworks belonging to the undertakers, or shall do any other act whereby the water of the undertakers shall be fouled :

And every such person shall forfeit a further sum of twenty shillings for each day (if more than one) that such last-mentioned offence shall be continued.

Penalty for permitting substances produced in making gas to flow into the streams or works of the undertakers.

62. Every person making or supplying gas within the limits of the special Act who shall at any time cause or suffer to be brought or to flow into any stream, reservoir, aqueduct, or waterworks belonging to the undertakers, or into any drain communicating therewith, any washing or other substance which shall be produced in making or supplying gas, or who shall wilfully do any act connected with the making or supplying of gas whereby the water in any such stream, reservoir, aqueduct, or waterworks shall be fouled, shall forfeit to the undertakers for every such offence the sum of two hundred pounds; and such penalty shall be recovered, with full costs of suit, in any of the superior courts; but such penalty shall not be recoverable unless it be sued for during the continuance of the offence, or within six months after it has ceased (a).

Daily penalty during the continuance of the offence.

63. In addition to the said penalty of two hundred pounds, and whether such penalty have been recovered or not, the person making or supplying gas as aforesaid shall forfeit to the undertakers the sum of twenty pounds, to be recovered in like manner, for each day during which such washing or substance shall be brought or shall flow as aforesaid, or during which the act shall continue by which such water is fouled, after the expiration in either case of twenty-four hours from the time when notice of the offence has been served on such person by the undertakers.

Penalty on gas makers causing water to be fouled.

64. Whenever the water supplied by the undertakers shall be fouled by the gas of any person making or supplying gas within the limits of the special Act, such person shall forfeit to the undertakers for every such offence a sum not exceeding twenty pounds, and a further sum not exceeding ten pounds for each day during which the offence shall continue after the expiration of twenty-four hours from the service of notice of such offence.

Power to open ground and examine gas pipes, to ascertain whether water is being fouled by gas.

65. For the purpose of ascertaining whether the water of the undertakers be fouled by the gas of any person making or supplying gas within the limits of the special Act, the undertakers may dig up the ground, and examine the pipes, conduits, and works of the persons making or supplying gas: provided that before proceeding so to dig and examine the undertakers shall give twenty-four hours notice in writing to the person so making or supplying gas of the time at which such digging and examination is intended to take place, and they shall give the like notice to the persons having the control or management of the pavements or place where such digging shall take place, and they shall be subject to the like obligation of reinstating the road and pavement, and to the same penalties for delay or any nonfeasance or misfeasance therein, as hereinbefore provided with respect to roads and pavements broken up by them for laying their pipes (a).

(a) See also ss. 28—34, ante, pp. 4183—6.

66. If upon such examination it appear that such water has been fouled by any gas belonging to such person, the expenses of the digging, examination, and repair of the street or place disturbed in any such examination shall be paid by the person making or supplying gas; but if upon such examination it appear that the water has not been fouled by the gas of such person, then the undertakers shall pay all the expenses of the examination and repair, and also make good to the said person any injury which may be occasioned to his works by such examination. Section 66.
Expenses to abide the result of the examination.

67. The amount of the expenses of every such examination and repair, and any injury done to the undertakers, shall, in case of any dispute about the same, together with the costs of ascertaining and recovering the same, be ascertained and recovered in the same manner as damages for the ascertaining and recovery whereof no special provision is made are directed to be ascertained and recovered. Recovery of expenses.

And with respect to the payment and recovery of the water rates (a), be it enacted as follows: Water rates.

(a) For purposes of incorporation with the P. H. A., 1936, these provisions are to have effect subject to ss. 126—131 of that Act (see ibid., s. 120, proviso (g), ante, p. 369).

68. The water rates, except as hereinafter (a) and in the special Act mentioned, shall be paid by and be recoverable from the person requiring, receiving or using the supply of water, and shall be payable according to the annual value of the tenements (b) supplied with water, and if any dispute arise as to such value the same shall be determined by two justices (c). Rates to be recoverable from person supplied with water.

(a) See s. 72, post, p. 4199.

(b) See Metropolitan Water Board v. Baker (G. P. & J.), Ltd. (1910), 74 J. P. 337; 102 L. T. 536; 43 Digest 1103, 316; Metropolitan Water Board v. Phillips, [1913] A. C. 86; 77 J. P. 73; 38 Digest 636, 1548.

(c) Water rates under the P. H. A., 1936, s. 126, ante, p. 377, are to be assessed upon the net annual value appearing in the valuation list under the R. and V. Act, 1925, but if no such value appears therein (see the notes to s. 126 at p. 378) then that value is to be ascertained, in case of dispute, by a court of summary jurisdiction. Section 77 of the L. G. A. 1929, post, contains a general modification of the provisions of all Acts requiring the assessment of water rates upon a value shown in the valuation list.

In the application of these modifications the decisions upon the provisions in the text may be useful. They are, therefore, set out here.

By their local Act, 16 Vict. c. xxii., s. 79, the plaintiffs were bound to supply the houses within a certain district with water "at the following rate per annum, that is to say, where the rent" of such dwelling-houses should not amount to £7 per annum, at a rate not exceeding 6 per cent. per annum on such rent, but not exceeding 7s. 2d. per annum; and so on in a graduated scale. The defendant was owner of several small houses supplied with water by the plaintiffs, in respect of which he paid, either under statutory obligation or by voluntary agreement, the poor rate, water rate, and district rate. It was held that "rent" in s. 79 was equivalent to "annual value," and that in estimating the rent on which the water rate was payable, the defendant was entitled to deduct the water rates so paid by him (Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Bennett (1872), L. R. 7 Ex. 409; 43 Digest 1088, 209).

By s. 56 of the New River Company's Act, 1852, which incorporates the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, it is enacted that "nothing in this Act or in any Act incorporated herewith contained shall prevent the company from recovering any sum of money not exceeding £50, which shall be due to them for water rates or rents, or for damages, costs or expenses, by action or proceeding in such manner as is by law provided for the recovery of debts not exceeding £50." It was held that where a bona fide dispute arises as to the annual value, the company must, before they can sue for the rate, obtain a decision of justices in that dispute under s. 68 of the Act of 1847, supra (New River Co. v. Mather (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 442; 39 J. P. 614; 43 Digest 1092, 238).

By the special Act of a water company which incorporated the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, save so far as the clauses or provisions thereof were expressly varied or excepted, the company were obliged to supply water to the occupiers of dwelling houses for domestic purposes at a rate not exceeding £6 per cent. per annum upon the annual "rack-rent or value" of the premises supplied. It was further provided by a subsequent section of the Act that the rate should be "payable according to the annual value at which the premises were from time to time assessed to the poor rate if the same were so assessed, or, if not, according to the net annual value of the premises." It was held that the water rate charged by the company must be calculated on the "rateable value," not on the "gross estimated rental" of the premises supplied with water (Warrington Waterworks Co. v. Longshaw (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 145; 46 J. P. 773; 43 Digest 1089, 216).

It was provided by a local Act that the charge to be made for the supply of water for domestic use should be at a rate varying according to the "annual rent" of the premises supplied. The appellant was the owner of certain houses supplied with water by the respondents under the Act. The houses were let at weekly rents, the appellant paying all rates charged thereon, and also for all repairs and insurances in respect thereof. He was allowed as an owner, under the Poor Rate Assessment and Collection Act, 1869, s. 4, a reduction of 30 per cent. from the full amount of the poor rate which an occupier if rated would have paid. The respondents charged the appellant with water rates calculated on the following basis: They multiplied the weekly rents by fifty-two and deducted from the amount the actual sums paid by the appellant for rates and then charged the water rates upon the balance. It was held that in order to arrive at the "annual rent" upon which the water rate was to be computed, an allowance should be made in respect of "voids," i.e. houses lying vacant from time to time; and that the actual amount of the poor rates and other rates paid by the appellant was rightly deducted, but that the appellant was not entitled to deduct the full amount of the rates which an occupier if rated would have paid; nor the amount he paid for repairs and insurances (Smith v. Birmingham Corporation (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 195; 47 J. P. 645; 43 Digest 1088, 210; and see Dobbs v. Grand Junction Waterworks Co., infra).

A water company by a special Act of 1826 was compellable to supply water to certain dwelling-houses in the metropolis for domestic purposes at certain rates per cent. per annum payable "according to the actual amount of the rent where the same can be ascertained, and where the same cannot be ascertained, according to the actual amount or annual value upon which the assessment to the poor's rate is computed in the parish or district where the house is situated." By a special Act of 1852, the company were compelled to furnish water "where the annual value of the dwelling-house or other place supplied shall not exceed £200 at a rate per cent. per annum on such value not exceeding £3." The occupier of one of the houses was lessee for a long term at a ground rent, and paid no rent except the ground rent:—Held, reversing the decision of the Court of Appeal, that whether the later Act repealed the provisions of the former Act or not the case must be dealt with under the later Act; and that the words "annual value" in the later Act meant "net annual value" as defined in the Parochial Assessments Act, 1836, s. 1:—Held also, that "annual value" had the same meaning in the earlier as in the later Act (Dobbs v. Grand Junction Waterworks Co. (1883), 9 App. Cas. 49; 48 J. P. 5; 43 Digest 1090, 219). See also Northampton Corporation v. Ellen, [1904] 1 K. B. 299; 68 J. P. 197; 43 Digest 1091, 227.

By the special Act of a water company it was provided that water should be supplied for domestic purposes by the company at a rate per cent. upon the annual value of the dwelling-house or other place supplied, that a supply of water for domestic purposes should not include a supply of water for, among other things, any trade or manufacture, or business requiring an extra supply of water, and that the company might furnish water for other than domestic purposes on such terms as might be agreed on between the company and the consumer. The company supplied water for domestic purposes to a house occupied as a licensed public house. The company contended that the annual value of the premises as a licensed public house should be taken as the basis of the water rate payable in respect of such supply, and that therefore the fact of the premises being licensed, and a premium which had been paid for the lease of the premises as a public house ought to be taken into consideration in fixing the value. The occupier contended that such water rate should be based upon the value of the premises for domestic purposes only. It was held that the contention of the company was correct (West Middlesex Waterworks Co. v. Coleman (1885), 14 Q. B. D. 529; 49 J. P. 341; 43 Digest 1090, 222).

Section 68 of the Bristol Waterworks Act, 1862, enacts that the company shall furnish to every occupier of a private dwelling-house within their limits a sufficient supply of water for the domestic use of such occupier, at certain annual rents or rates, according to the "annual rack-rent or value of the premises so supplied," such supply (by s. 71) not to include, amongst other things, a supply of water "for watering gardens by means of a tap, tube, pipe, or other such like apparatus." And s. 32 of the Bristol Waterworks Amendment Act, 1865, enacts that "if any dispute shall arise as to the amount of the annual rent or value of any dwelling-house or premises supplied with water by the company, such dispute shall be decided by two justices: provided that the amount of the annual rack-rent or value to be fixed by such justices shall not be less than the gross sum assessed to the poor rate or less than the sum actually paid for such dwelling-house or premises." A dwelling-house and garden in the occupation of the owner were assessed to the poor rate as follows : "Gross estimated rental £240"; "Rateable value, £204." It was proved that the value of the house without the garden would be 10 per cent. less, and that the owner contracted to pay, and did pay £1 1s. annually for the watering by means of a pipe and a tap in the garden which surrounded the dwelling-house, and was occupied and assessed therewith :—Held, by MATHEW and SMITH, JJ., upon a case stated by the justices that the words "gross sum assessed to the poor rate," meant the "gross estimated rental," and not "rateable or net value"; and that the water rent was chargeable upon the gross estimated rental of "the premises," including the pleasure garden occupied with the house, and not merely the dwelling-house itself, the extra charge for the garden supply being for using a pipe and a tap (Bristol Waterworks Co. v. Uren (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 637; 49 J. P. 564; 43 Digest 1089, 217). See Grand Junction Waterworks Co. v. Davies, post, p. 4198.

The owner of three cottages let them at weekly rents to separate tenants and paid all rates including water rates. By s. 32 of a special Act the water board were to supply water at the rates specified, that is to say, "where the annual rack-rent or value shall not exceed twenty pounds at a rate per cent. per annum not exceeding ten pounds." It was held that the owner was entitled to deduct the general district rate, the poor rate and the water rate from the gross rent of the cottages so as to arrive at the "annual rack-rent or value" on which the water rate was to be assessed (Wilkinson v. Bury Water Board (1905), 69 J. P. 214; 92 L. T. 417; 43 Digest 1089, 215).

Where a dispute had arisen as to the amount of the water rate payable by an occupier of premises to a water company (whose special Act incorporated the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847), it was held that the determination of the annual value of the premises supplied, by two justices, under s. 68 of the Act of 1847, was a condition precedent to the right of the occupier to sue the company for cutting off the water, and for the amount alleged to have been paid in excess (Whiting v. East London Waterworks Co. (1884), Cab. & El. 331; 43 Digest 1095, 252).

A local waterworks Act empowered a company to distrain for water rates for an agreed amount. A later Act limited the rates to such sums as should be "reasonable." Under the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, which incorporates the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 140, water rates under £20 are to be recovered by means of a distress warrant issued by justices. A third Act of the company in 1852 incorporated the Waterworks Clauses Act, but expressly preserved the powers conferred by the former Acts. It was held that the right of the company to levy their own distress was kept alive by the saving clause in the Act of 1852, and that the distress by justices' warrant was additional to, and not in substitution for, the company's original remedy (Richards v. West Middlesex Waterworks Co. (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 660; 49 J. P. 631; 18 Digest 417, 1560).

Although the statutory remedy provided by s. 68 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, for the settlement by two justices of disputes as to the annual value of a tenement supplied by water, and the special remedy by penalties given by s. 43 against a company for withholding water, have not ousted the general jurisdiction to restrain the company by injunction from cutting off the supply of water pending proceedings for settling a dispute as to value, such injunction will not be granted on the application of an owner or occupier who will not undertake to commence proceedings with due speed before the justices under s. 68 (Hayward v. East London Waterworks Co. (1884), 28 Ch. D. 138; 49 J. P. 452; 43 Digest 1094, 251).

Upon the hearing of a summons to enforce payment of a water rate, the justices have power under the above section to determine a dispute as to the annual value of the premises rated. It is not necessary to their jurisdiction before making an order for payment of the rate upon such summons that the dispute should have been previously determined in a separate proceeding before justices (Lea v. Abergavenny Improvement Commissioners (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 18; 50 J. P. 165; 43 Digest 1094, 244).

Where water rates had been paid for a number of years without objection it was held that the excess which had been charged in respect of an annual value beyond that prescribed in the section could not be recovered back (Henderson v. Folkestone Waterworks Co. (1885), 1 T. L. R. 329; 35 Digest 159, 552; cf. Meadows v. Grand Junction Waterworks Co., post, p. 4198).

So where water rate had been paid on gross value instead of net value in ignorance of the fact that the former was a wrong basis, it was held that the excess could not be recovered (Slater v. Burnley Corporation (1888), 53 J. P. 70; 43 Digest 1093, 240). And see Slater v. Burnley Corporation (No. 2) (1889), 53 J. P. 535; 35 Digest 159, 554. And see Stanley Brothers, Ltd. v. Nuneaton Corporation (1913), 77 J. P. 349; 108 L. T. 986; 35 Digest 152, 496.

Where a water company were authorised by their special Act to charge at agreed rates for water supplied for purposes other than domestic, it was held that they were not by implication prohibited from entering into agreements for the supply of water for domestic purposes at agreed rates (Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Dickenson (1889), 5 T. L. R. 251).

The Barnett Gas and Water Act, 1872 (with which is incorporated the Waterworks
P.H.—VOL. IV. H

Note to
Section 68.

Clauses Act, 1847), provides (inter alia): "Section 56. The company . . . shall furnish . . . a sufficient supply of water . . . at any rate, on the actual rack-rental of the house or part of a house or premises supplied if the same be let at rack-rent, and on the annual value if, and while, the same is not let at rack-rent, not exceeding" (so much):—Held, that "the annual rack-rent" means the same as "the annual value," and does not mean "net annual value" (Stevens v. Barnet Gas and Water Co. (1888), 57 L. J. M. C. 82; 52 J. P. Jo. 276; 43 Digest 1089, 211).

By 1 & 2 Geo. 4, c. cxiv., s. 8, the churchwardens of a parish were required to make a rate "on the full annual rent or value" of all houses rateable to the relief of the poor:—Held, that the full annual rent or value meant the full annual net value and that the rate could not be made on the gross estimated rental (Rose v. Watson, [1894] 2 Q. B. 90; 58 J. P. 589; 19 Digest 522, 3838).

In determining the annual value of a residential tenement under s. 68 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, for the purposes of water supply to the dwelling-house for domestic purposes only, it is not competent to justices to exclude a portion of the garden occupied and enjoyed with the dwelling-house. The section contemplates the valuation of the existing tenement as the owner and occupier choose to enjoy it (Grand Junction Waterworks Co. v. Davies, [1897] 2 Q. B. 209; 61 J. P. 484; 43 Digest 1090, 223).

If a statute which authorises a water company to charge its consumers with a water rate is ambiguous with regard to the amount of the rate to be charged or the mode of assessing it, it must be construed in favour of the consumer and against the company (South Staffordshire Waterworks Co. v. Barrow (1897), 61 J. P. 661; 43 Digest 1090, 224). But where a section of the special Act provided that the company should supply water at the yearly rates specified, namely, where the gross estimated rental of the premises should not exceed a certain amount, at a rate per cent. on the amount specified, it was held that the provision varied that in the text and that the rate must be calculated on the gross estimated rental (Woking Water and Gas Co. v. Parker, [1916] 1 K. B. 473; 80 J. P. 188; 43 Digest 1090, 218).

Where an owner was entitled by statute to a supply at a reduced rate by reason of his house standing on a particular estate, but he had for many years paid the full rate in ignorance that his house stood on that estate, he was held entitled to recover back the over-payments (Meadows v. Grand Junction Waterworks Co. (1905), 69 J. P. 255; 21 T. L. R. 538; 35 Digest 151, 484).

A water company, before the Education Act, 1902, came into operation supplied water by meter to the managers of a voluntary public elementary school for the non-domestic purposes of the school buildings, and continued to supply them after the Act of 1902 came into force. There was no written contract. The company continued, as they had done before the Act, to send the demand note for payment for the water supplied to the managers, who included the charges in their quarterly accounts of expenditure sent by them to the local education authority who paid the amount direct to the company. The company sent the receipts to the local education authority. The local education authority having made default in the payments, the company brought an action against them for water supplied. It was held by the Divisional Court that the local education authority had power to enter into a contract for the supply of water necessary for the maintenance of the school, and that there was evidence upon which the county court judge might properly find that they had in fact entered into such a contract with the company (Troubridge Water Co. v. Wilts C. C., [1909] 1 K. B. 824; 73 J. P. 280; 19 Digest 559, 30). See also Northern Theatres Co. v. Shillito, [1925] 2 K. B. 100; 89 J. P. 101; 43 Digest 1079, 140, and the cases of Metropolitan Water Board v. Baker (G. P. & J.), Ltd. (1910), 74 J. P. 337; 102 L. T. 536; 43 Digest 1103, 316, and Metropolitan Water Board v. Phillips, [1913] A. C. 86; 77 J. P. 73; 38 Digest 636, 1548, decided under the Metropolitan Water Board (Charges) Act, 1907, s. 8.

Where several houses are supplied by one pipe, each shall pay as if separately supplied.

69. When several houses or parts of houses in the separate occupation of several persons are supplied by one common pipe, the several owners or occupiers of such houses or parts of houses shall be liable to the payment of the same rates for the supply of water as they would have been liable to if each of such several houses or parts of houses had been supplied with water from the works of the undertakers by a separate pipe.

Rates to be paid quarterly in advance.

70. The rates shall be paid in advance (a) by equal quarterly payments in England . . . at Christmas Day, Lady Day, Midsummer Day, and Michaelmas Day, . . . and the first payment shall be made at the time when the pipe by which the water is supplied is made to communicate with the pipes of the undertakers, or at the time when the agreement to take water from the undertakers is made (b).

(a) Therefore no demand is necessary before proceedings for recovery (East London Waterworks Co. v. Kyffin, [1895] 1 Q. B. 55; 59 J. P. 405; 43 Digest 1094, 245). But see, per ALVERSTONE, L.C.J., in Elliott v. Russell, [1902] 2 K. B. 748, at p. 754; 67 J. P. 158, at p. 159; 43 Digest 1065, 52. See also notes to s. 74, post, p. 4200.

Note to
Section 70.

(b) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted from this section.

71. The occupier of any dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house liable to the payment of any water rate who shall give notice of his intention to discontinue the use of the water supplied by the undertakers, or who shall remove from his dwelling between any two quarterly days of payment, shall pay the water rate in respect of such dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house for the quarter ending on the quarterly day of payment next after his quitting the same or giving such notice.

Parties giving notice to discontinue use of water, or removing, to pay to the next quarter day.

72. The owners of all dwelling-houses or parts of dwelling-houses occupied as separate tenements, the annual value of which houses or tenements shall not exceed the sum of ten pounds, shall be liable to the payment of the rates instead of the occupiers thereof; and the powers and provisions herein or in the special Act contained for the recovery of rates from occupiers shall be construed to apply to the owners of such houses and tenements (a); and the person receiving the rents of any such house or tenement as aforesaid from the occupier thereof, on his own account, or as agent or receiver for any person interested therein, shall be deemed the owner of such house or tenement (b).

Owners of houses not exceeding £10 rent to be liable to water rates.

(a) The respondents, relying on s. 58 of their private Act (15 & 16 Vict. c. clviii.), which extended the provisions of s. 72 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, to houses not exceeding the annual value of £20, claimed water rates from the appellants, as owners of certain houses under the annual value of £20 each, for two quarters, during the whole of which time such houses were unoccupied:—Held, that an owner's liability for rates under s. 72 of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, ceases on the quarterly day of payment next after the house has become unoccupied, and that as s. 58 of the respondents' private Act merely extended the provisions of that section to houses not exceeding the annual value of £20, the respondents were not entitled to recover (British Empire Mutual Life Assurance Co. v. Southpark and Vauxhall Water Co. (1888), 52 J. P. 758; 59 L. T. 321; 43 Digest 1087, 205). When a house is unoccupied at the beginning of a quarter, and becomes occupied in the course of that quarter, the water rate is payable only for that portion of the quarter during which the house is occupied, although the company had no notice of the non-occupation, and continued to supply water (East London Waterworks Co. v. Foulkes, [1894] 1 Q. B. 819; 58 J. P. 384; 43 Digest 1087, 206). Where upon adjudication the trustee in bankruptcy takes possession of the debtor's premises, and carries on therein the business with a view to selling it as a going concern, he is in the position of an "incoming tenant" within s. 48 of the Metropolitan Water Act, 1871, and is not liable for arrears of water rate left unpaid by the debtor; and if he has paid such arrears under protest he is entitled to recover them back (Re Flack, Ex parte Berry, [1910] 2 Q. B. 32; 4 Digest 206, 1899).

It is sufficient to prove that the rateable value as settled by the local authority does not exceed the maximum sum under which the owner is liable (Metropolitan Water Board v. Streeton (1910), 74 J. P. 180; 102 L. T. 220; 43 Digest 1103, 315).

(b) Where the premises were mortgaged and a receiver was appointed, the mortgagee appointed another person to collect the rents. The collector handed over the rents intact, at first to the mortgagee and subsequently to the receiver. It was held that the collector and not the receiver was the person liable under a section of a special Act substantially identical with the text, to pay the water rate (Metropolitan Water Board v. Brooks, [1911] 1 K. B. 289; 75 J. P. 41; 43 Digest 1087, 207).

73. Provided always, that when any owner shall pay any such rate in respect of any such dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house which shall be in the occupation of any tenant under any lease or agreement made prior to the passing of the special Act, such tenant shall repay to the owner all sums which shall be so by him paid during the continuance of such lease, unless it have been agreed that the owner shall pay the water rates in respect of such dwelling-house or part of a dwelling-house (a); and every such sum of money payable by the tenant to the owner, under the provision hereinbefore con-

Sums paid by owner recoverable as rent from tenant.

Section 78. tained, may be recovered, if the same be not paid upon demand, as arrears of rent could be recovered from the occupier by the said owner.

(a) Under a covenant by a lessor to pay all water rates imposed or assessed upon the premises, or on the lessor or lessee in respect thereof, the lessor is not bound to pay for water supplied to the lessee for trade purposes (Re Floyd, Floyd v. Lyons (J.) & Co., [1897] 1 Ch. 633; 31 Digest 297, 4417). But under a covenant to pay all rates and taxes payable in respect of the demised premises a lessor is bound to pay water rate for water supplied for domestic purposes (Bourne and Tant v. Salmon and Gluckstein, Ltd., [1907] 1 Ch. 616; 71 J. P. 329; 31 Digest 295, 4404; Drieselman v. Winstanley (1909), 53 Sol. Jo. 631; 31 Digest 295, 4405).

If rates are not paid, water may be cut off, and rates and expenses recovered.

74. If any person supplied with water by the undertakers, or liable (a) as herein or in the special Act provided to pay the water rate, neglect to pay such water rate at any of the said times of payment thereof, the undertakers may stop the water from flowing into the premises in respect of which such rate is payable, by cutting off the pipe to such premises, or by such means as the undertakers shall think fit, and may recover the rate due from such person, if less than twenty pounds, with the expenses of cutting off the water, and costs of recovering the rate, in the same manner as any damages for the recovery of which no special provision is made are recoverable by this or the special Act; or if the rate so due amount to twenty pounds or upwards, the undertakers may recover the same, with the expenses of cutting off the water, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction (b).

(a) I.e., liable at the time the water rate became due. Provided that there was at that date an occupier other than the owner and that the owner and not the occupier was liable for the payment of the rate, s. 4 of the Water Companies (Regulation of Powers) Act, 1887, post, p. 4697, prohibits the water company from cutting off the supply for non-payment of the rate even after the occupier has given up possession and the premises have become vacant (Metropolitan Water Board v. Bibbey, [1911] 2 K. B. 74; 75 J. P. 322; 43 Digest 1095, 254).

(b) See also Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863, s. 21, post, p. 4261. See Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Wilkinson, ante, p. 4191. With reference to the particular mode of recovering the rates here prescribed, it may be stated that damages not specially provided for are by s. 85 recoverable under the sections of the Railways Clauses Act, 1845, ante, p. 4156. In such case the claim of a water company for arrears of rates is a complaint within s. 11 of the S. J. A., 1848, and the summons must be issued within six months from the date when the rate was due and demanded (East London Waterworks Co. v. Charles, [1894] 2 Q. B. 730; 58 J. P. 764; 43 Digest 1094, 247; see, per WILLS, J., in Elliot v. Russell, [1902] 2 K. B. 748, at p. 755; 67 J. P. 158, at p. 160; 43 Digest 1065, 52). The limitation of six months imposed in respect of summary proceedings does not apply to proceedings in the county court when both remedies are open to the company (Metropolitan Water Board v. Bunn, [1913] 3 K. B. 181; 77 J. P. 353; 43 Digest 1093, 243). The rates being payable quarterly in advance no demand is necessary (East London Waterworks Co. v. Kyffin, ante, p. 4199; but see, per ALVERSTONE, L.C.J., in Elliot v. Russell, [1902] 2 K. B. 748, at 754; 67 J. P. 158, at p. 159; 43 Digest 1065, 52).

See, as to the right to cut off the water when the rates are payable by the owner, the Water Companies (Regulation of Powers) Act, 1887, s. 4, and the notes thereto, post, p. 4698. It is not a condition precedent to the right to recover the rate that the power of cutting off the water should first have been exercised (R. v. Hutton, [1907] 2 K. B. 578; 71 J. P. 424; 43 Digest 1093, 247).

As to the discretion of the justices in respect of costs, see Ruabon Water Co. v. Evans (1906), 22 T. L. R. 541; 43 Digest 1094, 248.

THE TOWNS IMPROVEMENT CLAUSES ACT, 1847.

(10 & 11 VICT. c. 34) (a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain Provisions usually contained in Acts for Paving, Draining, Cleansing, Lighting, and Improving Towns.

[21st June, 1847.]

Incorporation of this Act

[1.] This Act shall extend only to such towns or districts in England or Ireland as shall be comprised in any Act of Parliament hereafter to be passed which shall declare that this Act shall be incorporated therewith ; and all the clauses of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by any such Act, shall apply to the town or district which shall be comprised in such Act, and to the commissioners appointed for improving and regulating the same, so far as such clauses shall be applicable thereto respectively, and shall, with the clauses of every other Act which shall be incorporated therewith, form part of such Act, and be construed therewith as forming one Act.

Section 1.

with special Act.

(a) Sections 64—74, 79—83 are incorporated, in urban districts only, by the P. H. A., 1875, s. 160, post. As to ss. 75—78, see post, p. 4207.

And with respect to the construction of this Act, whether incorporated in whole or in part with any other Act, and of any Act incorporated therewith, be it enacted as follows :

Interpretation.

2. The expression “the special Act” used in this Act shall be construed to mean any Act which shall be hereafter passed for the improvement or regulation of any town or district, or of any class of towns or districts, defined or comprised therein, and with which this Act shall be incorporated ; and the word “prescribed” used in this Act in reference to any matter herein stated shall be construed to refer to such matter as the same shall be prescribed or provided for in the special Act, and the sentence in which such word shall occur shall be construed as if instead of the word “prescribed” the expression “prescribed for that purpose in the special Act” had been used ; and the expression “the commissioners” shall mean the commissioners, trustees, or other persons or body corporate intrusted by the special Act with powers of executing the purposes thereof.

3. The following words and expressions in both this and the special Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction ; (that is to say,)

Interpretations in this and the special Act.

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number shall include the singular number :

Number.

Words importing the masculine gender shall include females :

Gender.

The word “person” shall include a corporation, whether aggregate or sole :

“Person.”

The word “lands” shall include messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, of any tenure :

“Lands.”

The word “street” shall extend to and include any road, square, court, alley, and thoroughfare, within the limits of the special Act :

“Street.”

The word “month” shall mean calendar month :

The expression “superior courts” shall mean her Majesty’s superior courts of record at Westminster . . .

“Superior courts.”

The word “oath” shall include affirmation in the case of Quakers, and any declaration lawfully substituted for an oath in the case of any other persons allowed by law to make a declaration instead of taking an oath :

“Oath.”

The word “county” shall include riding or other division of a county having a separate commission of the peace, and shall also include county of a city or county of a town :

“County.”

The word “justice” shall mean justice of the peace acting for the place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any such justice arises ; and where any matter is authorised or required to be done by two justices, the expression “two justices” shall be understood to mean two or more justices met and acting together :

“Justice”

“Two justices.”

- Section 3. The expression "quarter sessions" shall mean quarter sessions as defined in the special Act, and if such expression be not there defined shall mean the court of general or quarter sessions of the peace which shall be held in or at the place nearest to the district in which the matter arises requiring the cognizance of any such court, and having jurisdiction over such district :
- "Quarter sessions."
- "Owner." The word "owner" used with reference to any lands or buildings in respect of which any work is required to be done, or any rate to be paid, under this or the special Act shall mean the person for the time being entitled to receive, or who, if such lands or buildings were let to a tenant at rack-rent, would be entitled to receive, the rack-rent from the occupier thereof :
- "Cattle." The word "cattle" shall include horses, asses, mules, sheep, goats, and swine.
- Citing the Act. And with respect to citing this Act or any part thereof, be it enacted as follows :
- Short title of this Act. 4. In citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament, and in legal instruments, it shall be enough to use the expression "The Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847."
- Form in which portions of this Act may be incorporated with other Acts. 5. For the purposes of incorporating part only of this Act with any Act hereafter to be passed, it shall be enough to describe the clauses of this Act with respect to any matter in the words introductory to the enactment with respect to such matter, and to enact that the clauses so described, or that this Act, with the exception of the clauses so described, shall be incorporated with such Act; and thereupon all the clauses of this Act so incorporated shall, save so far as they are expressly varied or excepted by such Act, form part of such Act, and such Act shall be construed as if such clauses were set forth therein with reference to the matter to which such Act relates.
- * * * * *
- Naming streets. And with respect to naming the streets and numbering the houses, be it enacted as follows (a) :
- (a) These clauses are incorporated, in urban districts only, with the P. H. A., 1875, by s. 160, post. See also notes to that section. Where s. 19 of the P. H. A., 1926, Vol. V., post, has been adopted the incorporation of these clauses by s. 160 of the P. H. A., 1875, ceases to have effect in so far as it relates to the naming of the streets (s. 19 (3), P. H. A., 1925). The provisions with respect to the numbering of houses still remain operative.
- Houses to be numbered and streets named. 64. The commissioners shall from time to time cause the houses and buildings in all or any of the streets to be marked with numbers as they think fit, and shall cause to be put up or painted on a conspicuous part of some house, building, or place, at or near each end, corner, or entrance of every such street, the name by which such street is to be known (a); and every person who destroys, pulls down, or defaces any such number or name, or puts up any number or name different from the number or name put up by the commissioners, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every such offence (b).
- (a) This gives the local authority no power to change the names of streets, and if the proposed change is likely to be injurious to the owners or occupiers of houses in the street, the local authority may be restrained from making it (Anderson v. Dublin Corporation (1884), 15 L. R. Ir. 510). But although the local authority have approved of plans for a new street, giving it a name, they may afterwards, when the street is actually laid out, give it another name (Collins v. Hornsey U. C., [1901] 2 K. B. 180; 65 J. P. 600; 26 Digest 567, 2604). See also on the subject of altering the names of streets, s. 21 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, and s. 18 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V. and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1120, which when adopted supersedes s. 21 of the 1907 Act.
- It is not a violation of any legal right of the owner of a house for the owner of another house to call it by the same name. There is no legal right to the exclusive use of any particular name for a particular house (Day v. Brownrigg (1879), 10 Ch. D. 294; 28 Digest 485, 899).

(b) As to the recovery of this penalty, see s. 316 of the P. H. A., 1875, which is not repealed so far as material for the purposes of the P. H. A., 1875, or any Act directed to be construed therewith (see ante, p. 729). The numbers must be provided at the expense of the occupiers, and there is no distinct legal authority for charging them to the rates.

Note to
Section 64.

65. The occupiers of houses and other buildings in the streets shall mark their houses with such numbers as the commissioners approve of, and shall renew such numbers as often as they become obliterated or defaced; and every such occupier who fails, within one week after notice for that purpose from the commissioners, to mark his house with a number approved of by the commissioners, or to renew such number when obliterated, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings, and the commissioners shall cause such numbers to be marked or to be renewed, as the case may require, and the expense thereof shall be repaid to them by such occupier, and shall be recoverable as damages (a).

Numbers of houses to be renewed by occupiers.

(a) See note (b), s. 64, supra.

And with respect to improving the line of the streets, and removing obstructions, be it enacted as follows (a):

Improving streets.

(a) These clauses are incorporated, in urban districts only, with the P. H. A., 1875, by s. 160, post. See also notes to that section. See also the P. H. (Buildings in Streets) A., 1888, post, the P. H. A., 1925, s. 33, Vol. V., post, and the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, s. 5, Vol. V., post.

66. The commissioners may allow, upon such terms as they think fit, any building within the limits of the special Act to be set forward, for improving the line of the street in which such building, or any building adjacent thereto, is situated (a).

Houses may be set forward for improving line of street.

(a) The word street is here used in its popular acceptance of a line of buildings, and does not include a highway generally. This section gives no power to divert a highway, not being a street; that can only be done under the Highway Acts (R. v. Platts (1880), 44 J. P. 765; 49 L. J. Q. B. 848 26 Digest 519, 2206); or under Inclosure Acts, as in Hornby v. Sylvestor (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 797; 52 J. P. 468; or by an improvement or reconstruction scheme under the Housing Act, 1936, ss. 34 et seq., ante, pp. 1641 et seq. See also s. 155 of the P. H. A., 1875, post, and note thereto.

67. The commissioners may agree with the owners of any lands within the limits of the special Act for the absolute purchase thereof, for the purpose of widening, enlarging, or otherwise improving any of the streets, and they shall resell any parts of the land so purchased which shall not be wanted for the enlargement of the street (a).

Commissioners may purchase lands for widening streets, etc.
and sell the parts not wanted.

(a) A similar power is conferred upon urban authorities by s. 154 of the P. H. A., 1875, post, as interpreted by s. 83 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post. See also L. G. A., 1933, s. 165, ante, p. 993, as to the disposal of surplus lands.

68. When any house or building, any part of which projects beyond the regular line of the street (a), or beyond the front of the house or building on either side thereof, has been taken down in order to be rebuilt or altered, the commissioners may require the same to be set backwards to or towards the line of the street, or the line of the adjoining houses or buildings, in such manner as the commissioners direct, for the improvement of such street: Provided always, that the commissioners shall make full compensation to the owner of any such house or building for any damage he thereby sustains (b).

Houses projecting beyond line of street, when taken down, to be set back.

(a) This does not mean a strict mathematical line, but a substantially regular line (Tear (or Fear or Sear) v. Freebody (1858), 4 C. B. N. S. 228; 22 J. P. 707; 26 Digest 501, 2086). No general line of buildings may exist in some cases. See Ecclesiastical Commissioners v. St. James, Clerkenwell Vestry (1861), 25 J. P. 580; 7 Jur. (N.S.) 326; 26 Digest 501, 2088. Tear (or Fear or Sear) v. Freebody was explained by WILLES, J., in Simpson v. Smith, post, p. 4204, and see Lord Manners v. Johnson (1875), 1 Ch. D. 673; 40 J. P. 345; 40 Digest

Note to
Section 68.

320, 2717. When houses project and are pulled down, and the land sold for building purposes, new houses may be built on the same line as before, unless compensation be given. In determining the general line, therefore, regard ought to be had to the frontage of houses previously existing, and which may be rebuilt, as well as those still standing (Lord Auckland v. Westminster District Board of Works (1872), 7 Ch. App. 597; 26 Digest 501, 2087).

As to the right of an adjoining owner to sue in respect of a building erected contrary to this section, see Brooks v. Terry (1888), 4 T. L. R. 678; 26 Digest 513, 2178.

As to the determination of the general line of buildings in the metropolis, see St. George, Hanover Square Vestry v. Sparrow (1864), 16 C. B. (N.S.) 209; 26 Digest 504, 2110; Bauman v. St. Pancras Vestry (1867), L. R. 2 Q. B. 528; 31 J. P. 676; 26 Digest 504, 2111; Wandsworth Board of Works v. Hall (1868), L. R. 4 C. P. 85; 33 J. P. 183; 26 Digest 507, 2128; *Simpson v. Future projections of houses, etc. to be removed on notice.

69. The commissioners may give notice to the occupier (a) of any house or building to remove or alter any porch, shed, projecting window, step, cellar, cellar door or window, sign, sign post, sign iron, showboard, window shutter, wall, gate, or fence, or any other obstruction or projection erected or placed, after the passing of the special Act, against or in front of any house or building within the limits of the special Act, and which is an obstruction to the safe and convenient passage along any street; and such occupier shall, within fourteen days after the service of such notice upon him, remove such obstruction, or alter the same in such manner as shall have been directed by the commissioners, and in default thereof shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings; and the commissioners in such case may remove such obstruction or projection, and the expense of such removal shall be paid by the occupier so making default, and shall be recoverable as damages: Provided always, that, except in the case in which such obstructions or projections were made or put up by the occupier, such occupier shall be entitled to deduct the expense of removing the same from the rent payable by him to the owner of the house or building (b).

(a) Or owner. See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 160, post.

The local authority are not obliged to give notice to the owner or occupier before passing a resolution to send him notice to remove a projection, but if he objects to their order, his proper course is to apply to the local authority to be heard and lay his objections before them (Att.-Gen. v. Hooper, [1893] 3 Ch. 483; 57 J. P. 564; 26 Digest 566, 2597).

(b) Any projection erected or placed against or in front of any house or building which by reason of being insecurely fixed or of defective construction or otherwise is a source of danger to persons lawfully using a street in an urban district, where s. 24 of the P. H. A., 1925, has been adopted, is to be deemed to be an obstruction to the safe and convenient passage along the street for the purposes of this and the next section (s. 24, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post). As to area railings, see Bouverie v. Miles (1830), 1 B. & Ad. 38; 26 Digest 513, 2171; Barker v. Herbert, infra; as to a projecting shop front, see R. v. Ingham (1852), 17 Q. B. 884. As to a projecting porch, see Gordon v. St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington Vestry, [1894] 2 Q. B. 742; Coburg Hotel Co. v. London C. C. (1899), 63 J. P. 805; 81 L. T. 450; 26 Digest 503, 2103; as to a show-case on the footway, Openshaw v. Pickering (1912), 77 J. P. 27; 26 Digest 296, 278. A corresponding section of the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, was held not to justify the removal of a shed and seats erected by a publican upon a piece of ground between the footway and the roadway, the intervening space being found not to be part of the street, and the shed and seats not being against or in front of any house (Le Neve v. Mile End Old Town Vestry (1858), 8 E. & B. 1054; 22 J. P. 657; 26 Digest 443, 1594). And see Hoare & Co., Ltd. v. Lewisham Corpn. (1902), 67 J. P. 20; 87 L. T. 464; 26 Digest 310, 429. A shopkeeper placed goods on the pavement in front of his shop for sale, and was summoned under s. 28 of the Towns Police Clauses Act, 1847. He contended that he bona fide claimed the right to put the goods there, and the justices considered that their jurisdiction was ousted, but stated a case:—Held, that the justices ought to determine whether the land on which the goods were placed was part of the highway or not; and that unless the defendant established a restricted dedication no question as to a claim of right arose (Leicester Urban Sanitary Authority v. Holland (1888), 52 J. P. 788; 57 L. J. M. C. 75; 26 Digest 308, 398). Where a question arises as to whether the portion of the highway obstructed had ever been dedicated, the justices must determine this point and their jurisdiction is not ousted (Williams v. Depiford U. D. C. (1924), 41 T. L. R. 47; Digest Supp.). As to proof of dedication of embayments adjoining the foot pavement, see Piggott v. Goldstraw (1901), 65 J. P. 259; 26 Digest 299, 304. As to a dedication of a street subject to existing obstructions or projections, see Fisher v. Prowse, Cooper v. Walker (1862), 2 B. & S. 770; 26 J. P. 613; 26 Digest 265, 66, where such dedication was held to be an answer in actions for accidents caused by cellar flaps and projecting doorsteps. And see Brackley v. Midland Rail. Co. (1916), 80 J. P. 369; 85 L. J. K. B. 1596; 26 Digest 302, 333. It is a good defence that the footway was dedicated to the public subject to the right of the defendant to commit the acts of obstruction complained of, and such defence if raised bona fide ousts the jurisdiction of the justices. The evidence, however, to establish such a defence should be of a cogent character (R. v. Londonderry J.J., [1902] 2 L. R. 266; 26 Digest 440, b). And see R. (Kennedy) v. Cork County J.J. (1911), 45 Ir. L. T. 217. There may be a dedication subject to the right to erect and maintain gates (Ath.-Gen. v. Meyrick (1915), 70 J. P. 515; 26 Digest 304, 357). As to projections existing before the passing of the local Act, see Wilson v. Cunliffe (1874), 38 J. P. 231; 29 L. T. 913; 26 Digest 565, 2593; Whittaker v. Rhodes (1881), 46 J. P. 182; 26 Digest 443, 1598. As to the liability of the occupier for accidents caused by projections, see Tarry v. Ashton (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 314; 40 J. P. 439; 26 Digest 433, 1519; Watson v. Ellis (1885), 1 T. L. R. 317; 26 Digest 419, 1379, where the plaintiff tripped over a carpet laid across a pavement to a carriage; De Tyron v. Waring (1884), 1 T. L. R. 414; Hoare v. Kearley (1885), 1 T. L. R. 426; 26 Digest 441, 1576; Strute v. Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. (1889), 53 J. P. 424; 5 T. L. R. 638, where the plaintiff fell in consequence of having put his staff into a stop-cock box negligently left uncovered in the road; Braithwaite v. Watson (1889), 5 T. L. R. 331, where the plaintiff was injured by reason of a coal-cellar plate in the pavement being insecurely fastened; Stiefsohn v. Brooke (1889), 53 J. P. 790; 5 T. L. R. 684; 36 Digest 50, 310, where the plaintiff was injured by a lift inside an aperture adjoining the highway; Barker v. Herbert, [1911] 2 K. B. 633; 75 J. P. 481; 36 Digest 197, 374, where a child was injured when climbing on defective railings. As to overhead wires, see Wandsworth Board of Works v. United Telephone Co. (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 904; 48 J. P. 676; 26 Digest 328, 607.

It will be for the magistrate to decide whether the thing complained of is an obstruction to the passage. See Gabriel v. St. James's, Westminster Vestry (1859), 23 J. P. N. 372; 26 Digest 513, 2174, where the court intimated that this could be decided without calling a person to prove he had been actually obstructed. This was also decided in Read v. Perrett (1876), 1 Ex. D. 349; 41 J. P. 135; 26 Digest 513, 2175. But see Hill v. Somerset (1887), 51 J. P. 742; 26 Digest 436, 1538. A projection consisting of an oriel window, the lowest part of which is fifteen feet above the pavement, is not an obstruction. See Goldstraw v. Duckworth (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 275; 44 J. P. 410; 26 Digest 565, 2594. In the Scotch case of McMillan v. Bennett (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 23, the appellant, a bill poster, was convicted under s. 381 of the Burgh Police (Scotland) Act, 1892, for affixing a projecting advertising board to a building without the consent of the burgh commissioners. The building in question was the back wall of a workshop, on which the appellant fixed a board or wooden lining on which to post his bills, that board being about 102 feet long, 7 feet 6 inches high, and (taking into account the straps to which the board was affixed) it projected from the wall to the extent of 1½ inches. Section 159 of the Act was in much the same terms as this section:—Held, following Goldstraw v. Duckworth, supra, that it was not a projecting advertising board in the sense of the statute, which was intended to strike only at such projections as constituted an obstruction to the free passage of the street. See also Hull v. London C. C., [1901] 1 K. B. 580; 65 J. P. 309; 26 Digest 503, 2105; Winsborrow v. London Joint Stock Bank, Ltd. (1903), 67 J. P. 289; 88 L. T. 803; 26 Digest 424, 1438; London C. C. v. Illuminated Advertisements Co., [1904] 2 K. B. 886; 68 J. P. 445; 26 Digest 503, 2106; London C. C. v. Scheuzik, [1905] 2 K. B. 695; 69 J. P. 409; 26 Digest 503, 2104; London C. C. v. Hancock and James, [1907] 2 K. B. 45; 71 J. P. 268; 26 Digest 502, 2099; R. v. Denman (1907), 71 J. P. 279; 96 L. T. 672; 26 Digest 504, 2107.

Apart from statute there may be a legal easement to have a projection such as a sign-board affixed to the wall of an adjoining house. See Moody v. Steggles (1879), 12 Ch. D. 261; 19 Digest 66, 381.

Commissioners may cause existing projections to be removed, on giving notice and making compensation.

70. If any such obstructions or projections were erected or placed against or in front of any house or building in any such street before the passing of the special Act, the commissioners may cause the same to be removed or altered as they think fit (a); provided that they give notice of such intended removal or alteration to the occupier (b) of the house or building against or in front of which such obstruction or projection shall be thirty days before such alteration or removal is begun, and, if such obstructions or projections shall have been lawfully made, they shall make reasonable compensation to every person who suffers damage by such removal or alteration.

(a) See Bagshaw v. Buxton L. B. of Health (1875), 1 Ch. D. 220; 40 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 565, 2596.

(b) Or owner. See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 160, post. As to the liability of the owner of the premises and of the local authority for injuries caused by a gate opening outwards, see Evans v. Edinburgh Corporation, [1916] 2 A. C. 45; 26 Digest 566, n.

Doors, etc. in future not to be made to open outwards, except when so allowed in case of public buildings.

71. All doors, gates, and bars put up after the passing of the special Act within the limits thereof, and which open upon any street, shall be hung or placed so as not to open outwards, except when, in the case of public buildings, the commissioners allow such doors, gates, or bars to be otherwise hung or placed; and if, except as aforesaid, any such door, gate, or bar be hung or placed so as to open outwards on any street, the occupier (a) of such house, building, yard, or land shall, within eight days after notice from the commissioners to that effect, cause the same to be altered so as not to open outwards; and in case he neglect so to do, the commissioners may make such alteration, and the expenses of such alteration shall be paid to the commissioners by such occupier (a), and shall be recoverable from him as damages (b), and he shall, in addition, be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

(a) See note (b) to s. 70, supra.

(b) See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 160, post, as to the recovery of these costs from the owner, and the deduction of them from the rent, as in the case of private improvement rates.

Existing doors, etc. opening outwards may be altered.

72. If any such door, gate, or bar was before the passing of the special Act hung so as to open outwards upon any street, the commissioners may alter the same, so that no part thereof when open shall project over any public way.

Coverings for cellar doors to be made by occupiers.

73. When any opening is made in any pavement or footpath within the limits of the special Act, as an entrance to any vault or cellar, a door or covering shall be made by the occupier (a) of such vault or cellar, of iron or such other materials, and in such manner as the commissioners direct, and such door or covering shall from time to time be kept in good repair by the occupier of such vault or cellar; and if such occupier do not within a reasonable time make such door or covering, or if he make any such door or covering contrary to the directions of the commissioners, or if he do not keep the same when properly made in good repair, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

(a) See note (b) to s. 70, supra.

74. The occupier (a) of every house or building in, adjoining, or near to any street shall, within seven days next after service of an order of the commissioners for that purpose, put up and keep in good condition a shoot or trough of the whole length of such house or building, and shall connect the same either with a similar shoot on the adjoining house or with a pipe or trunk to be fixed to the front or side of such building from the roof to the ground, to carry the water from the roof thereof, in such manner that the water from such house, or any portico or projection therefrom, shall not fall upon the persons passing along the street, or flow over the foot-path; and in default of compliance with any such order within the period aforesaid, such occupier shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day that he shall so make default (b).

Section 74.

Water spouts to be affixed to houses or buildings.

(a) Or owner. See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 160, post.

(b) Further powers, which are in addition to those conferred by this section, may be obtained by the adoption of s. 21 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post.

And with respect to ruinous or dangerous buildings (a), be it enacted as follows:

Ruinous or dangerous buildings.

(a) Ss. 75—78, relating to ruinous or dangerous buildings, were incorporated into the P. H. A., 1875, by s. 160 (3). That paragraph was repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III, Pt. I (1), ante, p. 728, except in so far as the enactments incorporated thereby relate to buildings or other things which are dangerous to passengers, and the sections must now be read with that limitation; see now s. 58, P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 181.

As to fencing lands adjoining streets, which lands are, owing to the absence or inadequate repair of fences, a source of danger to passengers, see ss. 30 and 31 of the P. H. A., 1907, post. And as to the securing of dangerous ground or cliffs under a local Act, see Gaby v. Palmer (1916), 80 J. P. 212; 85 L. J. K. B. 1240; 38 Digest 209, 436.

75. If any building or wall, or anything affixed thereon, within the limits of the special Act, be deemed by the surveyor of the commissioners to be in a ruinous state, and dangerous to passengers (a) or to the occupiers of the neighbouring buildings, such surveyor shall immediately cause a proper hoard or fence to be put up for the protection of passengers (b), and shall cause notice in writing to be given to the owner (c) of such building or wall, if he be known and resident within the said limits, and shall also cause such notice to be put on the door or other conspicuous part of the said premises, or otherwise to be given to the occupier thereof, if any, requiring such owner or occupier forthwith to take down, secure, or repair such building, wall, or other thing, as the case shall require; and if such owner or occupier do not begin to repair, take down, or secure such building, wall, or other thing within the space of three days after any such notice has been so given or put up as aforesaid, and complete such repairs, or taking down or securing, as speedily as the nature of the case will admit, the said surveyor may make complaint thereof before two justices (d), and it shall be lawful for such justices to order the owner, or in his default the occupier (if any), of such building, wall, or other thing, to take down, rebuild, repair, or otherwise secure, to the satisfaction of such surveyor, the same, or such part thereof as appears to them to be in a dangerous state (e), within the time to be fixed by such justices; and in case the same be not taken down, repaired, rebuilt, or otherwise secured within the time so limited, or if no owner or occupier can be found on whom to serve such order, the commissioners shall with all convenient speed cause all or so much of such building, wall, or other thing as shall be in a ruinous condition, and dangerous as aforesaid, to be taken down, repaired, rebuilt, or otherwise secured, in such manner as shall be requisite; and all the expenses (f) of putting up every such fence, and of taking down, repairing, rebuilding, or securing such building, wall, or other thing, shall be paid by the owner thereof.

Ruinous or dangerous buildings to be taken down or secured by owners, etc.

Note to
Section 75.

(a) The similar provisions of s. 73 of the Metropolitan Building Act, 1855, applied to any dangerous structure, notwithstanding that it did not adjoin a public highway (London C. C. v. Herring, [1894] 2 Q. B. 522; 58 J. P. 721; 34 Digest 591, 112). That decision was followed in relation to a structure outside the metropolis, in Mellor v. Warden (1896), 40 Sol. J. 567. The liability of an owner is not affected by the fact that the London County Council has temporarily shored up the building in pursuance of the London Building Act, 1894, s. 106. In order that a house may be dangerous within the meaning of ss. 103, 106 and 107 (1) of that Act, it is not necessary that it should be dangerous to inmates or to the public passing along the highway. It is sufficient if there is an apprehension of danger or injury to adjoining houses or to their inhabitants, or even to trespassers (London C. C. v. Jones, [1912] 2 K. B. 504; 76 J. P. 293; 34 Digest 591, 113).

(b) The erection of a hoard is not a condition precedent to the institution of proceedings against the owner (R. v. Tyrone County JJ., [1928] N. I. 103).

(c) See R. v. Lee (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 75; 43 J. P. 302; 19 Digest 259, 411, where it was held that the incumbent of a church was not the owner so as to render him liable in respect of its dangerous condition. The owner may remain liable under this section though a notice has been served upon him for the purpose of compulsorily taking his buildings under the Artizans and Labourers Dwellings Improvement Act, 1875 (repealed and replaced by the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890, see now Part III. of the Housing Act, 1936) (Barnet v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1882), 46 J. P. 469; 46 L. T. 384; 38 Digest 189, 276). Although the justices have jurisdiction to inquire who is the owner of the wall in order to ascertain whether the proper notices have been given, that inquiry is one preliminary to the exercise of their jurisdiction, and their decision as to ownership is not conclusive in a subsequent proceeding to recover expenses (R. v. Cork Recorder, [1913] 2 I. R. 35).

(d) Compare the provisions of a local Act in Cheetham v. Manchester Corporation (1875), L. R. 10 C. P. 249; 39 J. P. 343; 38 Digest 188, 269. The section implies that on the surveyor's complaint a summons must issue.

(e) An order requiring an owner to "take down, rebuild and repair" a wall "to the satisfaction of" the surveyor is not bad for uncertainty (R. v. Tyrone JJ., [1928] N. I. 103).

(f) The expenses are recoverable, although the matter has never been actually before the local authority but has been entirely in the hands of their surveyor by their general directions to him (London C. C. v. Hobbs (1896), 61 J. P. 85; 75 L. T. 687). As to the expenses which may be recovered, see Debenham v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 112; 45 J. P. 190; 38 Digest 189, 272. They include the expenses of reinstating the pavement (Crisp v. London C. C., [1899] 1 Q. B. 720; 63 J. P. 484; 26 Digest 514, 2179). As between tenant for life of leaseholds and remainderman these expenses are chargeable against income (Re Copland's Settlement, Johns v. Carden, [1900] 1 Ch. 326; 34 Digest 592, 119; and see Re Willis, Willis v. Willis, [1902] 1 Ch. 15; 40 Digest 684, 2200). These expenses are "outgoings" within the meaning of a contract for sale (Tubbs v. Wynne, [1897] 1 Q. B. 74; 40 Digest 128, 1020). With regard to the liability as between vendor and purchaser of leaseholds, see Re Highett and Bird's Contract, [1903] 1 Ch. 287; 40 Digest 186, 1548. Where an owner was required to do work under this section, and he applied to the tenant for leave to enter, who vacated her premises and intimated an intention of surrendering them, and the owner accepted the key and executed the works, thereby rendering occupation impossible, it was held there had been an acceptance of the surrender (Smith v. Roberts, Times, April 13th, 1892). As to the tenant's liability under an ordinary covenant to repair, see Lister v. Lane, [1893] 2 Q. B. 212; 57 J. P. 725; 31 Digest 328, 4700; Wright v. Lawson (1903), 68 J. P. 34; 31 Digest 329, 4713.

expenses by distress.

76. If such owner can be found within the limits of the special Act, and if, on demand of the expenses aforesaid, he neglect or refuse to pay the same, then such expenses may be levied by distress, and any justice may issue his warrant accordingly (a).

(a) These expenses must be recovered within six months from the date of demand. See the cases in the notes to s. 252 of the P. H. A., 1875, post. But it is not necessary that three months should elapse between the date of the demand and the commencement of the proceedings for the recovery of the expenses, because s. 257 of the P. H. A., 1875, only applied in cases of apportionment (Usk U. D. C. v. Mortimer (1903), 68 J. P. 38; 90 L. T. 25; 33 Digest 404, 1150).

77. If such owner cannot be found within the said limits, or sufficient distress of his goods and chattels within the said limits cannot be made, the commissioners, after giving twenty-eight days notice of their intention to do so, by posting a printed or written notice in a conspicuous place on such building or on the land whereon such building stood, may take such building or land, provided that such expenses be not paid or tendered to them within the said twenty-eight days, making compensation to the owner of such building or land in the manner provided by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), in the case of lands taken otherwise than with the consent of the owners and occupiers thereof, and the commissioners shall be entitled to deduct out of such compensation the amount of the expenses aforesaid, and may thereupon sell or otherwise dispose of the said building or land for the purposes of this Act.

take the house or ground.
8 & 9 Vict. c. 18.

(a) Section 18 et seq., ante, pp. 4110 et seq.

78. If any such house or building as aforesaid, or any part of the same, be pulled down by virtue of the powers aforesaid, the commissioners may sell the materials thereof, or so much of the same as shall be pulled down, and apply the proceeds of such sale in payment of the expenses incurred in respect of such house or building; and the commissioners shall restore any overplus arising from such sale to the owner of such house or building, on demand; nevertheless, the commissioners, although they sell such materials for the purposes aforesaid, shall have the same remedies for compelling the payment of so much of the said expenses as may remain due after the application of the proceeds of such sale as are hereinbefore given to them for compelling the payment of the whole of the said expenses.

Commissioners may sell the materials for payment of expenses, restoring to the owner the overplus arising from the sale.

And with respect to precautions during the construction and repair of the sewers, streets, and houses, be it enacted as follows :

Precautions during repairs.

79. The commissioners shall, during the construction or repair of any of the streets vested in them, and during the construction or repair of any sewers or drains, take proper precaution for guarding against accident, by shoring-up and protecting the adjoining houses, and shall cause such bars or chains to be fixed across or in any of the streets, to prevent the passage of carriages and horses while such works are carried on, as to them shall seem proper; and the commissioners shall cause any sewer or drain or other works, during the construction or repair thereof by them, to be lighted and guarded during the night, so as to prevent accidents; and every person who takes down, alters, or removes any of the said bars or chains, or extinguishes any light, without the authority or consent of the commissioners shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds (a).

Houses to be protected, and bars to be erected across streets, during repairs.

(a) This section does not mean that the traffic in the street is to be entirely stopped during the execution of the works, but merely that bars and chains or other protection should be placed so as to prevent vehicles and persons from passing over the place where the works are being executed (Woodall v. Nuttall (1891), 56 J. P. 150; 8 T. L. R. 68; 26 Digest 390, 1172). As to the prohibition or restriction of traffic during road repairs, etc., see s. 47, Road Traffic Act, 1930.

80. Every person intending to build or take down any building within the limits of the special Act, or to cause the same to be so done, or to alter or repair the outward part of any such building, or to cause the same to be so done, where any street or footway will be obstructed or rendered inconvenient by means of such work, shall before beginning the same cause sufficient hoards or fences to be put up, in order to separate the building where such works are being carried on from the street, with a convenient platform and handrail, if there be room enough, to serve as a footway for passengers, outside of such hoard or fence, and shall continue such hoard or fence, with such platform and handrail as aforesaid, standing and in good condition, to the satisfaction of the commissioners, during such time as the public safety or convenience requires, and shall in all cases in which it is necessary, in order to prevent accidents, cause the same to be sufficiently lighted during Hoards to be set up during repairs, with footways and lights.

Section 80. the night; and every such person who fails to put up such fence or hoard, or platform with such handrail as aforesaid, or to continue the same respectively standing and in good condition as aforesaid during the time aforesaid, or who does not, while the said hoard or fence is standing, keep the same sufficiently lighted in the night, or who does not remove the same, when directed by the commissioners, within a reasonable time afterwards, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, and a further penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day while such default is continued (a).

(a) In districts where the P. H. A., 1890, has been adopted, this section has been superseded by s. 34 of that Act, post. And where Part II. of the P. H. A., 1907, applies, hoards must, under s. 32 of that Act, post, be securely fixed to the satisfaction of the local authority under penalties as therein provided. As to the right to erect a hoarding, though it may obstruct a highway to some extent, see Fisher v. Prowse, ante, p. 4205. As to the liability for damages for wrongfully erecting and continuing a hoarding, see Bradbee v. Christ's Hospital Governors (1842), 4 Man. & G. 714; 5 Scott, N. R. 79; 34 Digest 594, 147. As to a case where a licence for a hoarding was required by a local Act, see R. v. London Commissioners of Sewers (1870), 22 L. T. 582; 26 Digest 516, 2196; Barnett v. Covell (1903), 68 J. P. 93; 90 L. T. 29; 26 Digest 567, 2601; Rockleys, Ltd. v. Pritchard (1909), 74 J. P. 11; 101 L. T. 575; 26 Digest 567, 2602; Stockport Corporation v. Rollinson (1910), 74 J. P. 236; 102 L. T. 567; 26 Digest 567, 2603. As to the liability for injuries caused by negligently erecting and keeping a hoarding, see Hoare v. Kearley (1885), 1 T. L. R. 426; 26 Digest 441, 1576. As to rating of hoardings used as advertising stations, see the Advertising Stations (Rating) Act, 1889, and Chappell v. St. Botolph Overseers, [1892] 1 Q. B. 561; 56 J. P. 310; 38 Digest 431, 54; Shelley v. Dillon (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 304; Burton v. St. Giles and St. George's Assessment Committee, [1900] 1 Q. B. 389; 64 J. P. 213; 38 Digest 458, 228; and resolutions 23 and 53 of the Central Valuation Committee in the 1st and 4th series of representations made by that committee under s. 57 of the R. and V. Act, 1925.

When building materials are deposited in streets, etc. the same shall be lighted at night and fenced.

81. When any building materials, rubbish, or other things are laid, or any hole made, in any of the streets, whether the same be done by order of the commissioners or not, the person causing such materials or other things to be so laid, or such hole to be made, shall at his own expense cause a sufficient light to be fixed in a proper place upon or near the same, and continue such light every night from sun-setting to sun-rising, while such materials or hole remain; and such person shall, at his own expense, cause such materials or other things, and such hole, to be sufficiently fenced and inclosed, until such materials or other things are removed, or the hole filled up or otherwise made secure; and every such person who fails so to light, fence, or inclose such materials or other things, or such hole, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, and a further penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day while such default is continued (a).

(a) In Fearnley v. Ormsby (1879), 4 C. P. D. 136; 43 J. P. 384; 26 Digest 416, 1345, it was held that a surveyor of highways was rightly convicted under s. 72 of the Highway Act, 1835, for leaving materials for the repair of the road without lights and fences at night. As to personal knowledge being necessary for conviction, see Hardcastle v. Bielby, [1892] 1 Q. B. 709; 56 J. P. 549; 26 Digest 413, 1327.

Penalty for continuing deposits of building materials or excavations for an unreasonable time.

82. In no case shall any such building materials or other things or such hole be allowed to remain for an unnecessary time, under a penalty not exceeding five pounds to be paid for every such offence by the person who causes such materials or other things to be laid or such hole to be made, and a further penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day during which such offence is continued after the conviction for such offence; and in any such case the proof that the time has not exceeded the necessary time shall be upon the person so causing such materials or other things to be laid, or causing such hole to be made.

83. If any building or hole or any other place near any street (a) be, for want of sufficient repair, protection, or inclosure, dangerous to the passengers along such street, the commissioners shall cause the same to be repaired, protected, or inclosed, so as to prevent danger therefrom; and the expenses of such repair, protection, or inclosure shall be repaid to the commissioners by the owner of the premises so repaired, protected, or inclosed, and shall be recoverable from him as damages.

Section 83

Commissioners to cause dangerous places to be repaired or inclosed.

(a) A goit running by the side of an ancient public footpath was held not to be a hole or other place within the meaning of these words (Wilson v. Halifax Corporation, post).

Apart from this enactment the occupier of adjoining land is liable to be indicted for a nuisance if he leaves a dangerous excavation adjoining the highway without a fence (Barnes v. Ward (1850), 9 C. B. 392; 19 L. J. C. P. 195; 36 Digest 130, 862), unless the highway has been dedicated subject to the nuisance (Robbins v. Jones (1863), 15 C. B. (N.S.) 221; 33 L. J. C. P. 1; 26 Digest 442, 1590). This last mentioned case was followed in Horridge v. Makinson (1915), 79 J. P. 484; 84 L. J. K. B. 1294; 26 Digest 542, 2407. See also Att.-Gen. v. Roe, [1915] 1 Ch. 235; 79 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 451, 1666.

See also s. 31 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, as to fencing lands adjoining streets.

THE CEMETERIES CLAUSES ACT, 1847.

(10 & 11 VICT. c. 65) (a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain provisions usually contained in Acts authorising the making of Cemeteries. [9th July, 1847.]

[1.] This Act shall extend only to such cemeteries as shall be authorised by any Act of Parliament hereafter to be passed which shall declare that this Act shall be incorporated therewith; and all the clauses of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted in any such Act, shall apply to the cemetery authorised thereby, so far as they are applicable to such cemetery, and shall, with the clauses of every other Act incorporated therewith, form part of such Act, and be construed therewith as forming one Act.

Incorporation with special Act.

(a) This Act is incorporated with the P. H. (Interments) Act, 1879, post.

And with respect to the construction of this Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, be it enacted as follows: Interpretation.

2. The expression "the special Act" used in this Act shall be construed to mean any Act which shall be hereinafter passed authorising the making of a cemetery, and with which this Act shall be incorporated; and the word "prescribed" used in this Act in reference to any matter herein stated shall be construed to refer to such matter as the same shall be prescribed or provided for in the special Act, and the sentence in which such word occurs shall be construed as if instead of the word "prescribed" the expression "prescribed for that purpose in the special Act" had been used; and the expression "the lands" shall mean the lands which shall by the special Act be authorised to be taken or used for the purposes thereof; and the expression "the company" shall mean the person by the special Act authorised to construct the cemetery.

"The Special Act."

"Prescribed."

"The lands."

"The company."

3. The following words and expressions in both this and the special Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say,)

Interpretations in this and the special Act.

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and words importing the plural number only shall include also the singular number: Number.

Section 3.	Words importing the masculine gender shall include females :
Gender.	The word " person " shall include a corporation, whether aggregate or sole :
" Person."
" Lands."	The word " lands " shall include messuages, lands, and hereditaments, of any tenure :
" The cemetery."	The expression " the cemetery " shall mean the cemetery or burial ground, and the works connected therewith, by the special Act authorised to be constructed :
" Month."	The word " month " shall mean calendar month :
" Superior courts."	The expression " superior courts " shall mean her Majesty's superior courts at Westminster . . . as the case may require (a) :
" Oath."	The word " oath " shall include affirmation in the case of Quakers, and any declaration lawfully substituted for an oath in the case of any other persons allowed by law to make a declaration instead of taking an oath :
" Established Church."	The expression " Established Church " shall mean the . . . church of England . . . as by law established (a) :
" County."	The word " county " shall include any riding or other division of a county having a separate commission of the peace, and shall also include the county of a city or county of a town :
" Justice."	The word " justice " shall mean justice of the peace acting for the place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any such justice arises, and if such matter arise in respect of lands situated not wholly in one jurisdiction shall mean a justice acting for the place where any part of such lands shall be situated ; and where any matter is authorised or required to be done by " two justices," the expression " two justices " shall be understood to mean two or more justices met and acting together (b) :
" Two justices."
" Quarter sessions."	The expression " quarter sessions " shall mean the quarter sessions as defined by the special Act ; or if such expression be not therein defined it shall mean the general or quarter sessions of the peace which shall be held at the place nearest the cemetery for the county or place in which the cemetery or some part thereof is situated, or for some division of such county having a separate commission of the peace.

(a) Words relating to Ireland only are here omitted.

(b) And see s. 64, post, p. 4221.

Citing the Act. And with respect to citing this Act or any part thereof, be it enacted as follows :

Short title. 4. In citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament, and in legal instruments, it shall be sufficient to use the expression " The Cemeteries Clauses Act, 1847."

Form in which portions of this Act may be incorporated in other Acts. 5. For the purpose of incorporating part only of this Act with any Act hereafter to be passed, it shall be enough to describe the clauses of this Act with respect to any matter in the words introductory to the enactment with respect to such matter, and to enact that the clauses so described, or that this Act, with the exception of the clauses so described, shall be incorporated with such Act ; and thereupon all the clauses of this Act so incorporated shall, save so far as they are expressly varied or excepted by such Act, form part of such Act, and such Act shall be construed as if such clauses were set forth therein with reference to the matter to which such Act relates.

And with respect to the making of the cemetery, be it enacted as follows: Section 6.

6. Where by the special Act the company shall be empowered for the purpose of making the cemetery, to take or use any lands otherwise than with the consent of the owners and occupiers thereof, they shall, in exercising the power so given to them, be subject to the provisions and restrictions contained in this Act and the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), and shall make to the owners and occupiers of and all other parties interested in any lands taken or used for the purposes of the special Act, or injuriously affected by the construction of the works thereby authorised, full compensation for the value of the lands so taken or used, and for all damage sustained by such owners, occupiers, or other parties, by reason of the exercise, as regards such lands, of the powers vested in the company by this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith; and, except where otherwise provided by this or the special Act, the amount of such compensation shall be determined in the manner provided by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), for determining questions of compensation with regard to lands purchased or taken under the provisions thereof, and all the provisions of the last-mentioned Act shall be applicable to determine the amount of such compensation, and to enforce payment or other satisfaction thereof.

Making of cemetery.

Taking of lands for purposes of special Act to be subject to this Act and the Lands Clauses Act.

8 & 9 Vict. c. 12.

(a) Ante, p. 4104. A local authority may obtain a provisional order for the compulsory purchase of land under s. 160 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 978.

7. If any omission, mis-statement, or wrong description shall have been made of any lands, or of the owners, lessees, or occupiers of any lands, described in the special Act or the schedule thereto, the company, after giving ten days' notice to the owners of the lands affected by such proposed correction, may apply to two justices for the correction thereof; and if it appear to such justices that such omission, mis-statement, or wrong description arose from mistake, they shall certify the same accordingly, and shall in such certificate state the particulars of any such omission, mis-statement, or wrong description; and such certificate shall be deposited with the clerk of the peace of the county in which the lands affected thereby shall be situated, and thereupon the special Act or schedule shall be deemed to be corrected according to such certificate, and the company may take the lands according to such certificate, as if such omission, mis-statement, or wrong description had not been made.

Correction of errors and omissions in special Act.

8. Copies of any alteration or correction of the special Act, or the schedule thereto, or of any extract therefrom, certified by any such clerk of the peace in whose custody such alteration or correction may be, which certificate such clerk of the peace shall give to all parties interested, when required, shall be received in all courts of justice or elsewhere as evidence of the contents thereof.

Certified copies of alterations, etc., to be evidence.

9. The company shall not sell or dispose of any land which shall have been consecrated or used for the burial of the dead, or make use of such land for any purpose except such as shall be authorised by this (a) or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith.

Land used for burials not to be used for other than authorised purposes.

(a) See s. 40, post, p. 4218. See also R. v. Twiss (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 407; 33 J. P. 516; 7 Digest 553, 306; Campbell v. Liverpool Corporation (1870), L. R. 9 Eq. 579; 7 Digest 550, 235; Harper v. Forbes (1859), 5 Jur. (n.s.) 275; 7 Digest 534, 149. And see the Burial Act, 1900, s. 6, post, p. 4993, as to the necessity for leave of the M. of H. to the use of unconsecrated land for other purposes.

10. No part of the cemetery shall be constructed nearer to any dwelling-house than the prescribed distance, or if no distance be prescribed, two (a) Cemetery not to be within a certain distance of houses.

Section 10. hundred yards, except with the consent in writing of the owner, lessee, and occupier of such house (b).

(a) Now one hundred yards. See the Burial Act, 1906, s. 2, post, p. 5029.

(b) This distance is to be calculated from the house itself, not from the curtilage (Wright v. Wallasey L. B. (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 783; 52 J. P. 4; 7 Digest 549, 273). See also s. 9 of the Burial Act, 1855, which prevents land not already used or appropriated as a cemetery being used for actual burials within one hundred yards of a dwelling-house without the consent of the owner and occupier. This section is directed against actual burial, and did not prevent the inclusion of land within the prescribed distance in the cemetery, so long as it was not used for actual burials (Lord Cowley v. Byas (1877), 5 Ch. D. 944; 41 J. P. 804; 7 Digest 548, 272), but it was held to prevent a burial authority, who had laid out a burial ground since 1855, from using it for burials within two hundred yards of a dwelling-house erected after the burial ground had been laid out, without the consent mentioned (Godden v. Hythe Burial Board, [1906] 2 Ch. 270; 70 J. P. 285; 7 Digest 549, 275). The law as settled by this decision has, however, since been modified by s. 1 of the Burial Act, 1906, post, p. 5029, which enacts that the consent above mentioned shall not be and shall be deemed never to have been required in any case where the dwelling-house is or has begun to be erected, or is or was erected or completed after any part of the ground is or has been used or appropriated for a burial ground, subject to a proviso for certain vested rights. It seems that the necessary consents may be purchased, it is not required that they should in all cases be given for nothing. No action can be brought under s. 9 of the Act of 1855 by a person who is a mere nominee of one who has just sold the land to the local authority for a cemetery (Toms v. Clacton U. D. C. (1898), 62 J. P. 505; 78 L. T. 712; 7 Digest 549, 274). As to the position of an owner within an area where an Order in Council requires the consent of the L. G. B. (now M. of H.), see Clegg v. Metcalfe, [1914] 1 Ch. 808; 78 J. P. 251; 7 Digest 549, 276.

By s. 5 of the Cremation Act, 1902, post, p. 4999, no crematorium shall be constructed nearer to any dwelling-house than two hundred yards, except with the consent in writing of the owner, lessee, and occupier of such house, nor within fifty yards of any public highway, nor in the consecrated part of the burial ground of any burial authority.

Company may build chapels, and lay out their grounds.

11. The company, upon any land which by the special Act they are authorised to use for the purposes of the cemetery, may build such chapels for the performance of the burial service as they think fit, and may lay out and embellish the grounds of the cemetery as they think fit (a).

(a) See s. 25, post, p. 4216, and the Burial Act, 1900, s. 2, post, p. 4990.

Company may make or widen roads to cemetery.

12. The company, upon any land purchased by them under this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, may make any new roads to the cemetery, or widen or improve any existing roads thereto which they think fit.

No road to be widened without consent.

13. Provided always, that the company shall not widen or improve any existing road without the consent of the owner thereof, if the road be private, or, if the road be public, without the consent of the persons in whom the management of the road is vested by law.

Improvement of roads.

14. The company and the owners or persons having the management of any such road as aforesaid may enter into such agreements as they think fit, for enabling the company to widen or improve any such road, and for maintaining the same.

15. [Cemetery to be inclosed and fenced] (a).

(a) This section no longer applies to cemeteries provided under the Public Health (Interments) Act, 1879. See the Burial Act, 1900, s. 10, post, p. 4994. It required the provision of a wall or fence at least eight feet high. Burial grounds provided under the Burial Acts are not subject to any statutory requirements as to the height of fences; the L. G. B. and M. of H. have considered it sufficient to have a wall or fence so constructed as to exclude dogs and other animals.

Cemetery to be kept in repair.

16. The company shall keep the cemetery and the buildings and fences thereof in complete repair, and in good order and condition, out of the monies to be received by them by virtue of this and the special Act (a).

(a) The company are occupiers and rateable (R. v. St. Mary Abbot's, Kensington (1840), 12 Ad. & El. 824; 5 J. P. 178; 7 Digest 564, 387; and see R. v. Abney Park Cemetery Co. (1875), L. R. 8 Q. B. 515; 37 J. P. 822; 7 Digest 564, 385).

17. Provided always, that in the exercise of the powers by this and the special Act granted to the company they shall do as little damage as can be, and shall make full compensation to all parties interested for all damage sustained by them through the exercise of such powers (a). Section 17.
Compensation for damage.

(a) See also Crowhurst v. Amersham Burial Board (1878), 4 Ex. D. 5; 2 Digest 65, 412; and the observations on that case in Cheater v. Cater, [1918] 1 K. B. 247; 2 Digest 65, 413.

And with respect to preventing nuisance from the cemetery, be it enacted as follows :

18. The company shall make all necessary and proper sewers and drains in and about the cemetery, for draining and keeping the same dry, and they may from time to time, as occasion requires, cause any such sewer or drain to open into any existing sewer, with the consent in writing of the persons having the management of such sewer, and with the consent in writing of the persons having the management of the street or road, and of the owners and occupiers of the lands through which such opening is made, doing as little damage as possible to the road or ground wherein such sewer or drain may be made, and restoring it to the same or as good condition as it was in before being disturbed. Prevention of nuisances.
Power to make sewers, drains, etc. in and about the cemetery.

19. When any street or road or sewer shall be opened with such consent as aforesaid, the clauses of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847 (a), with respect to breaking up of streets for the purpose of laying pipes, so far as the same are consistent with this Act and applicable thereto, shall be incorporated with this Act, and shall apply to the company, and to any ground broken by them for making any such sewer or drain as aforesaid to open into any existing sewer. Provisions of 10 & 11 Vict. c. 17 incorporated with this Act.

(a) Sections 28—34, ante, pp. 4183—6.

20. If the company at any time cause or suffer to be brought or to flow into any stream, canal, reservoir, aqueduct, pond, or watering place, any offensive matter from the cemetery, whereby the water therein shall be fouled, they shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of fifty pounds (a). Penalty on company for allowing water to be fouled.

(a) See also Ballard v. Tomlinson (1885), 29 Ch. D. 115; 49 J. P. 692; 44 Digest 5, 7.

21. The said penalty, with full costs of suit, may be recovered by any person having right to use the water fouled by such offensive matter, in any of the superior courts, by action of debt or on the case : Provided always, that the said penalty shall not be recoverable unless the same be sued for during the continuance of the offence, or within six months after it has ceased. By whom, how, and within what time, such penalty may be recovered.

22. In addition to the said penalty of fifty pounds, (and whether such penalty is recovered or not,) any person having right to use the water fouled by such offensive matter may sue the company, in an action on the case, in any court of competent jurisdiction, for any damage specially sustained by him by reason of the water being so fouled; or if no special damage be alleged, for the sum of ten pounds for each day during which such offensive matter is brought or flows as aforesaid after the expiration of twenty-four hours from the time when notice of the offence is served on the company by such person. Damages, or a daily penalty during the continuance of the offence, after notice, may be recovered.

And with respect to burials in the cemetery, be it enacted as follows :

23. The bishop of the diocese in which the cemetery is situated may, on the application of the company (a), consecrate any portion of the cemetery Burials.
Part of cemetery may

Section 23. set apart for the burial of the dead according to the rites of the Established Church, if he be satisfied with the title of the company to such portion, and thinks fit to consecrate such portion; and the part which is so consecrated shall be used only for burials according to the rites of the Established Church.

be set apart for burial according to rites of Established Church.

(a) It did not appear to be obligatory on the company to make this application. Therefore it would seem that no mandamus would lie to make them do it as it would in the case of a burial board under s. 12 of the Burial Act, 1857. And if no part of the cemetery is consecrated, then ss. 24—34 of this Act have no application. But now under the Burial Act, 1900, s. 1, post, p. 4990, there is provision made for enforcing consecration of part in the case of a cemetery provided by a burial authority within the meaning of that Act.

Consecrated and unconsecrated ground to be defined.

24. The company shall define by suitable marks the consecrated and unconsecrated portions of the cemetery (a).

(a) No wall or fence between the consecrated and unconsecrated portions is necessary if sufficient boundary marks of iron or stone be maintained (Burial Act, 1857, s. 11). See also R. v. Tiverton Burial Board (1858), 22 J. P. 529; 31 L. T. (o.s.) 233; 7 Digest 543, 232. An urban district council acting as a burial board proposed to use the word "general" instead of the word "unconsecrated." The L. G. B. stated that they were advised that if unconsecrated ground was not so described in documents it was essential that these should be so framed as to leave no doubt as to the intention to denote unconsecrated ground by any other description which might be adopted.

Chapel for Established Church service.

25. The company shall build, within the consecrated part of the cemetery and according to a plan approved of by the bishop of the diocese, a chapel for the performance of the burial service according to the rights of the Established Church (a).

(a) See, however, the Burial Act, 1900, s. 2, post, p. 4990.

Removal of bodies from consecrated ground.

26. No body buried in the consecrated part of the cemetery shall be removed from its place of burial without the like authority as is by law required for the removal of any body buried in the churchyard belonging to a parish church (a).

(a) By s. 25 of the Burial Act, 1857, no body may be removed from a place of burial (except from one consecrated place of burial to another by faculty granted by the ordinary for that purpose), without licence under the hand of a Secretary of State. See also St. Helen's, Bishopsgate (Rector) v. Parishioners, [1892] P. 259; 7 Digest 560, 358; St. Mary-at-Hill (Rector) v. Parishioners, [1892] P. 394; 56 J. P. 824; 7 Digest 558, 340; St. Botolph Without, Aldgate, Vicar v. Parishioners (No. 1), [1892] P. 161; 7 Digest 555, 324; Lee v. Hawtrey, [1898] P. 63; 7 Digest 558, 342; St. Nicholas, Leicester (Vicar) v. Langton, [1899] P. 19; 7 Digest 556, 326. It is within the jurisdiction of the Consistory Court to grant a faculty for the examination of the contents of a coffin buried in consecrated ground, and s. 25 of the Burial Act, 1857, does not make the licence of the Home Secretary a condition precedent to such grant (R. v. Tristram, [1898] 2 Q. B. 371; 7 Digest 561, 363). But a consistory Court has no power to order the disinterment of a body, or to issue a citation to a cemetery company to show cause against the making of such an order (R. v. Tristram (1899), 63 J. P. 391; 80 L. T. 414; 7 Digest 561, 365).

27. [Appointment and licensing of chaplain] (a).

(a) By s. 7 of the Burial Act, 1900, post, p. 4993, the power of the burial authority to appoint a chaplain for a burial ground provided under the P. H. (Interments) Act, 1879, shall cease. This is because under the same section the incumbent of the parish is to perform the service for his own parishioners and those dying in his parish, as he does under the Burial Acts. The same section also provides for registration of the burials.

28. [Burial service over bodies entitled to burial in consecrated ground.]

Other clergy men of Established Church may be allowed to officiate.

29. Any clerk in holy orders of the Established Church, not being prohibited by the bishop, nor under ecclesiastical censure, at the request of the executor of the will of any deceased person, or any other person having the charge of the burial of the body of any deceased person, and with the consent of the chaplain for the time being of the cemetery, or if there be no chaplain with the consent of the bishop, may perform the said burial service over such body in the consecrated part of the cemetery. Section 29.

30. [Company to pay the chaplain a stipend approved by the bishop.]

31. [Stipend may be recovered by action at law.]

32. All burials in the consecrated part of the cemetery shall be registered in register books to be provided by the company, and kept for that purpose by the chaplain, according to the laws in force by which registers are required to be kept by the rectors, vicars, or curates of parishes or ecclesiastical districts in England (a); and such register books, or copies or extracts therefrom, shall be received in all courts in evidence of such burials; and copies or transcripts thereof shall be from time to time sent to the registrar of the ecclesiastical court of the bishop of the diocese in which the cemetery is situated, to be kept with the copies of the other register books of the parishes within his diocese.

Register of burials in the consecrated portion.

(a) That is, under the Parochial Registers Act, 1812. See Brooke Little's Law of Burials. This, however, does not apply to any burial in the consecrated part of a burial ground provided under the P. H. (Interments) Acts, 1879, but burials there are now under s. 7 of the Burial Act, 1900, post, p. 4993, registered like burials in the unconsecrated part.

33. The said register books, so far as respects searches to be made therein, and copies and extracts to be taken therefrom, shall be subject to the same regulations as are provided by the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, so far as such regulations relate to register books of burials kept by any rector, vicar, or curate.

Registers to be subject to the regulations of 6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 86, as to searches, etc.

34. The company may, with the consent of the chaplain for the time being, from time to time appoint a clerk to assist in performing the services for burials in the consecrated part of the cemetery, and allow to such clerk such stipend (a) as they think proper out of the monies to be received by virtue of this and the special Act, and they may remove such clerk at their pleasure.

Appointment of clerk for consecrated part of the cemetery.

(a) By s. 3 (5) of the Burial Act, 1900, post, p. 4992, no fee other than fees payable to a sexton for services rendered by him, shall be paid to any clerk or other ecclesiastical officer in respect of interments in a burial ground maintained by a burial authority. This, however, is subject to a proviso for compensation in respect of rights existing at the date of the passing of the Act.

35. The company may set apart the whole or a portion of that part of the cemetery which is not set apart for burials according to the rites of the Established Church as a place of burial for the bodies of persons not being members of the Established Church, and may allow such bodies to be buried therein, under such regulations as the company appoint (a).

Burial of persons not members of Established Church.

(a) By s. 9 of the Burial Act, 1900, post, p. 4994, the unconsecrated part of a burial ground provided under the P. H. (Interments) Act, 1879, shall be allotted in such manner and in such portions as may be sanctioned by one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State.

36. The company may allow, in any chapel built within the unconsecrated part of the cemetery (a), a burial service to be performed according to the rites of any church or congregation other than the Established Church, by any minister of such other church or congregation duly authorised by law to officiate in such church or congregation, or recognised as such by the religious community or society to which he belongs.

Any burial service may be performed in chapels on unconsecrated part.

(a) See the Burial Act, 1900, s. 2, post, p. 4990.

Section 37. 37. The company may appoint gravediggers and other servants necessary for the care and use of the cemetery, and may pay them such wages and allowances as they think fit out of the monies to be received by virtue of this and the special Act, and may remove them or any of them at their pleasure (a).

Power to appoint grave-diggers, etc.

(a) A byelaw of a cemetery prohibited any discharged servant from being admitted to the cemetery except by special leave of the directors, and it authorised his removal. D., the owner of a grave, employed W., a discharged servant, to do some work:—Held, that there was nothing unreasonable in the byelaw, and that W. was rightly excluded by force from the cemetery (Martin v. Wyatt (1883), 48 J. P. 215; 7 Digest 547, 267).

Regulations. 38. The company shall make regulations for ensuring that all burials within the cemetery are conducted in a decent and solemn manner.

No burials under or close to chapels. 39. No body shall be buried in any vault under any chapel of the cemetery, or within fifteen feet of the outer wall of any such chapel.

Exclusive rights of burials. And with respect to exclusive rights of burial, and monumental inscriptions, in the cemetery, be it enacted as follows:

Parts of the cemetery set apart for grant of exclusive rights of burial. 40. The company may set apart such parts of the cemetery as they think fit for the purpose of granting exclusive rights of burial therein, and they may sell, either in perpetuity or for a limited time, and subject to such conditions as they think fit, the exclusive right of burial in any parts of the cemetery so set apart, or the right of one or more burials therein, and they may sell the right of placing any monument or gravestone in the cemetery, or any tablet or monumental inscription on the walls of any chapel or other building within the cemetery (a).

(a) The sale of an exclusive right of burial under the Burial Act, 1852, s. 33, was held not to deprive the burial authority of the general control of the burial ground under s. 38, or to prevent their removing a wreath covered with a glass shade and wire frame which had been placed on the grave (McGough v. Lancaster Burial Board (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 323; 52 J. P. 740; 7 Digest 543, 231). The grantee of an exclusive right of burial in a space upon which a vault is constructed with the consent of the burial authority has no freehold interest in the vault, no right to use the vault for private ceremonies and no right to open and enter the vault except for purposes of repair and burial without the consent of the burial authority (Hoskyns-Abrahall v. Paington U. D. C., [1929] 1 Ch. 375; 93 J. P. 93; Digest Supp.). The company are liable to pay income tax on sums paid to them for keeping private graves in order (Paisley Cemetery Co. v. Reith, W. N. (1898), 196; 63 J. P. 806; 7 Digest 564, 386 i).

Plan of parts set apart for grant of exclusive rights, and book of reference thereto, to be kept.

41. The company shall cause a plan of the cemetery to be made upon a scale sufficiently large to show the situation of every burial place in all the parts of the cemetery so set apart, and in which an extensive right of burial has been granted; and all such burial places shall be numbered, and such numbers shall be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose, and such book shall contain the names and descriptions of the several persons to whom the exclusive right of burial in any such place of burial has been granted by the company; and no place of burial, with exclusive right of burial therein, shall be made in the cemetery without the same being marked out in such plan, and a corresponding entry made in the said book, and the said plan and book shall be kept by the clerk of the company.

Grant of exclusive right, etc., may be according to form in Schedule.

42. The grant of the exclusive right of burial in any part of the cemetery, either in perpetuity or for a limited time, and of the right of one or more burials therein, or of placing therein any monument, tablet, or gravestone, may be made in the form in the Schedule to this Act annexed, or to the like effect, and where the company are not incorporated it may be executed by the company or any two or more of them (a).

(a) Sic. As to the form, see an adaptation for the use of local authorities in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. 2, title BURIALS.

43. A register of all such grants shall be kept by the clerk to the company, and within fourteen days after the date of any such grant an entry or memorial of the date thereof and of the parties thereto, and also of the consideration for such grant, and also a proper description of the ground described in such grant, so as the situation thereof may be ascertained, shall be made by the said clerk in such register; and such clerk shall be entitled to demand such sum as the company think fit, not exceeding the prescribed sum, or if no sum be prescribed two shillings and sixpence, for every such entry or memorial; and the said register may be perused at all reasonable times by any grantee or assignee of any right conveyed in any such grant, upon payment of the prescribed sum, or if no sum be prescribed the sum of one shilling, to the clerk of the company.

Section 43.

Register of grants to be kept.

44. The exclusive right of burial in any such place of burial shall, whether granted in perpetuity or for a limited time, be considered as the personal estate of the grantee, and may be assigned in his lifetime or bequeathed by his will (a).

Rights of burial may be assigned or bequeathed.

(a) A burial company having erected a memorial stone, removed and sold it because it was not paid for:—Held, that the proper remedy of the company was to sue for the money, and that they had no right to remove the stone (Sims v. London Necropolis Co. (1885), 1 T. L. R. 584; 7 Digest 548, 268).

45. Every such assignment made in the lifetime of the assignor shall be by deed duly stamped, in which the consideration shall be duly set forth, and may be in the Form in the Schedule to this Act annexed, or to the like effect (a).

Form of assignments.

(a) See also form in the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. 2, title BURIALS.

46. Every such assignment shall, within six months after the execution thereof, if executed in Great Britain . . . or within six months after the arrival thereof in Great Britain . . . if executed elsewhere, be produced to the clerk of the company, and an entry or memorial of such assignment shall be made in the register by the clerk of the company, in the same manner as that of the original grant; and until such entry or memorial, no right of burial shall be acquired under any such memorial (a); and for every such entry or memorial the clerk shall be entitled to demand such sum as the company think fit, not exceeding the prescribed sum, or if no sum be prescribed two shillings and sixpence.

Assignments to be registered.

(a) Sic. Quere, a mistake for "assignment."

47. An entry or memorial of the probate of every will by which the exclusive right of burial within the cemetery is bequeathed, and in case there be any specific disposition of such exclusive right of burial in the said will an entry of such disposition, shall, within six months after the probate of such will, be made in the said register, in the same manner as that of the original grant; and until such entry no right of exclusive burial shall be acquired under such will; and for every such entry or memorial the clerk of the company shall be entitled to demand such sum as the company think fit, not exceeding the prescribed sum, or if no sum be prescribed two shillings and sixpence.

Probates of wills disposing of rights of burial to be registered.

48. No body shall be buried in any place wherein the exclusive right of burial shall have been granted by the company, except with the consent of the owner for the time being of such exclusive right of burial.

Burials in places where exclusive right has been granted.

49. No such grant as aforesaid shall give the right to bury within the consecrated part of the cemetery the body of any person not entitled to be buried in consecrated ground according to the rites and usage of the Estab-

No grant to give right in consecrated ground, etc. to Section 49. lished Church, or to place any monument, gravestone, tablet, or monumental inscription respecting any such body within the consecrated part of the cemetery.

persons not entitled to be buried according to rites of Established Church.

Power to remove monuments erected without authority.

50. The company may take down and remove any gravestone, monument, tablet, or monumental inscription which shall have been placed within the cemetery without their authority (a).

(a) If the right be granted to the grantee and his heirs, it is doubtful whether this section would apply. See Matthews v. Jeffrey (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 290; 45 J. P. 361; 7 Digest 547, 260. An exclusive right of burial is an easement, and can only be granted by deed (Bryan v. Whistler (1828), 8 B. & C. 288; 7 Digest 530, 97). See also the Burial Act, 1852, s. 33, and Ashby v. Harris (1868), L. R. 3 C. P. 523; 32 J. P. 567; 7 Digest 543, 230; McGough v. Lancaster, ante, p. 4218.

Rights of bishop to object to monumental inscriptions in consecrated part of cemetery.

51. The bishop of the diocese in which the cemetery is situated, and all persons acting under his authority, shall have the same right and power to object to the placing, and to procure the removal of any monumental inscription within the consecrated part of the cemetery as he by law (a) has to object to or procure the removal of any monumental inscription in any church or chapel of the Established Church, or the burial ground belonging to such church or chapel, or any other consecrated ground.

(a) See Maidman v. Malpas (1794), 1 Hag. Con. 205; 7 Digest 532, 124; Harper v. Forbes (1859), 5 Jur. (N. S.) 275; 7 Digest 534, 149; Ex parte Medwin (1853), 1 E. & B. 609; 17 J. P. 166; Keet v. Smith (1876), 1 P. D. 73; 40 J. P. 196; 7 Digest 533, 139.

Payments to incumbents of parishes.

And with respect to payments to incumbents of parishes or ecclesiastical districts, and to parish clerks, be it enacted as follows (a) :

(a) Sections 52—57 entitled incumbents and parish clerks only to such fees as were prescribed by the special Act. They were extended to the disposition or interment of the ashes of a cremated body by s. 13 of the Cremation Act, 1902, post, p. 5002. Where a cemetery has been provided by a local authority under the P. H. (Interments) Act, 1879, post, that Act is the special Act (s. 3), and in such case the special Act prescribes no sums as payable to incumbents. In such a cemetery, ss. 52—57 are wholly inapplicable. But the Burial Act, 1900, by s. 3, post, p. 4991, now requires the burial authority to prepare a table of fees to be approved by a Secretary of State, and these fees are to be collected by the authority, and paid over to the minister or sexton performing the services.

Protection of cemetery.

Penalty for damaging the cemetery.

And with respect to the protection of the cemetery, be it enacted as follows :

58. Every person who shall wilfully destroy or injure any building, wall, or fence belonging to the cemetery, or destroy or injure any tree or plant therein, or who shall daub or disfigure any wall thereof, or put up any bill therein or on any wall thereof or wilfully destroy, injure, or deface any monument, tablet, inscription, or gravestone within the cemetery, or do any other wilful damage therein, shall forfeit to the company for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Disturbances and nuisances in cemetery.

59. Every person who shall play at any game or sport, or discharge fire-arms, save at a military funeral, in the cemetery, or who shall wilfully and unlawfully disturb any persons assembled in the cemetery for the purpose of burying any body therein, or who shall commit any nuisance within the cemetery, shall forfeit to the company for every such offence a sum not exceeding five pounds.

Annual accounts.

60. And with respect to the accounts to be kept by the company, be it enacted, that the company shall every year cause an account to be prepared, showing the total receipt and expenditure of all monies levied by virtue of this or the special Act for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December, or some other convenient day in each year, under the several distinct heads of receipt and expenditure, with a statement of the balance of such account, certified by the chairman of the company, and duly audited, and shall send a copy of the said account, free of charge, to the clerk of the peace for the county in which the cemetery is situated, on or before the expiration of one month from the day on which such accounts end, which last-mentioned account shall be open to the inspection of the public at all reasonable hours, on payment of the sum of one shilling for every such inspection; and if the company omit to prepare or send such account as aforesaid, they shall forfeit for every such omission the sum of twenty pounds (a). Section 60.

* * * * *

And with respect to the recovery of damages not specially provided for, and of penalties, and to the determination of any other matter referred to justices, be it enacted as follows : Recovery of damages and penalties.

62. The clauses of the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a) with respect to the recovery of damages not specially provided for, and of penalties, and to the determination of any other matter referred to justices, shall be incorporated with this and the special Act; and such clauses shall apply to the cemetery and to the company respectively (b). Railways Clauses Consolidation Act (8 & 9 Vict. c. 20), incorporated as to damages, etc.

(a) Ante, p. 4156.

(b) Section 63 related only to penalties in Ireland, and was repealed by the S. L. R. A. 1875.

* * * * *

64. All things herein or in the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith, authorised or required to be done by two justices may and shall be done by any one magistrate having by law authority to act alone for any purpose with the powers of two or more justices. Powers of justices.

65. [False evidence] (a).

(a) Repealed by the Perjury Act, 1911.

And with respect to affording access to the special Act, be it enacted as follows : Access to special Act.

66. The company shall at all times after the expiration of six months after the passing of the special Act keep in their principal office of business a copy of the special Act, printed by the printers to her Majesty, or some of them, and shall also within the space of such six months deposit in the office of the clerk of the peace of the county in which the cemetery is situated a copy of such special Act, so printed as aforesaid; and the said clerk of the peace shall receive, and he and the company respectively shall keep, the said copies of the special Act, and shall allow all persons interested therein to inspect the same, and make extracts or copies therefrom, in the like manner, and upon the like terms, and under the like penalty for default, as is provided in the case of certain plans and sections by the Parliamentary Documents Deposits Act, 1837. Copies of special Act to be open to inspection.

67. If the company fail to keep or deposit any of the said copies of the special Act, as hereinbefore-mentioned, they shall forfeit twenty pounds for every such offence, and also five pounds for every day afterwards during which such copy shall be not so kept or deposited. Penalty on company failing to keep or deposit such copies.

7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 83.

THE TOWN POLICE CLAUSES ACT, 1847.

Section 68.

Saving as to future Acts.

68. Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to exempt the company from any general Act relating to burials in towns or populous places which may be passed in the same session of Parliament in which the special Act is passed, or any future session of Parliament.

THE TOWN POLICE CLAUSES ACT, 1847.

(10 & 11 VICT. c. 89)(a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain provisions usually contained in Acts for regulating the Police of Towns. [22nd July, 1847.]

Incorporation with special
Act.

[1.] This Act shall extend only to such towns or districts in England or Ireland as shall be comprised in any Act of Parliament hereafter to be passed which shall declare that this Act shall be incorporated therewith; and all the clauses of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by any such Act, shall apply to the town or district which shall be comprised in such Act, and to the commissioners appointed for improving and regulating the same, so far as such clauses shall be applicable thereto respectively, and shall, with the clauses of every other Act which shall be incorporated therewith, form part of such Act, and be construed therewith as forming one Act.

(a) For the incorporation of parts of this Act with the P. H. A., 1875, in urban districts, see s. 171 of that Act, ante, p. 4458. This Act is amended by the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, post, p. 4784, which extends to omnibuses the provisions of certain sections relating to hackney carriages, though, in view of the provisions of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, the reference is now substantially only to omnibuses excluded from that Act, i.e., those drawn by animals or birds (there has been an emu-bus).

And with respect to the construction of this Act, whether incorporated in whole or in part with any other Act, and of any Act incorporated therewith, be it enacted as follows: Section 1.
Interpretation.

2. The expression "the special Act" used in this Act shall be construed to mean any Act which shall be hereafter passed for the improvement or regulation of any town or district defined or comprised therein, and with which this Act shall be incorporated; and the word "prescribed" used in this Act in reference to any matter herein stated, shall be construed to refer to such matter as the same shall be prescribed or provided for in the special Act, and the sentence in which such word shall occur shall be construed as if instead of the word "prescribed" the expression "prescribed for that purpose in the special Act" had been used; and the expression "the commissioners" shall mean the commissioners, trustees, or other persons or body corporate intrusted by the special Act with powers for executing the purposes thereof. "The special Act."
"Prescribed."
"The commissioners."

3. The following words and expressions in both this and the special Act, and any Act incorporated therewith, shall have the meanings hereby assigned to them, unless there be something in the subject or context repugnant to such construction; (that is to say), Interpretations in this and the special Act.

Words importing the singular number shall include the plural number, and Number.

words importing the plural number shall include the singular number:

Words importing the masculine gender shall include females: Gender.

The word "person" shall include a corporation, whether aggregate or sole: "Person."

The word "lands" shall include messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, of any tenure: "Lands."

The word "street" shall extend to and include any road, square, court, alley, and thoroughfare, or public passage, within the limits of the special Act (a): "Street."

The word "month" shall mean calendar month: "Month."

The expression "superior courts" shall mean her Majesty's superior courts of record at Westminster. . . . "Superior courts."

The word "oath" shall include affirmation in the case of Quakers, and any declaration lawfully substituted for an oath in the case of any other persons allowed by law to make a declaration instead of taking an oath: "Oath."

The word "county" shall include riding or other division of a county having a separate commission of the peace, and shall also include county of a city or county of a town: "County."

The word "justice" shall mean justice of the peace acting for the county, city, borough, liberty, cinque port, or other place where the matter requiring the cognizance of any such justice arises; and where any matter shall be authorised or required to be done by two justices, the expression "two justices" shall be understood to mean two or more justices met and acting together: "Justice."
"Two justices."

The expression "quarter sessions" shall mean quarter sessions as defined in the special Act, and if such expression be not there defined shall mean the general or quarter sessions of the peace which shall be held in or at the place nearest to the district comprised within the special Act for the county in which such district or some part thereof is situated, or for some division of such county having a separate commission of the peace: "Quarter sessions."

Section 3. The word "cattle" shall include horses, asses, mules, sheep, goats, and swine.

"Cattle."

(a) It appears from Curtis v. Embery (1872), L. R. 7 Ex. 369; 42 Digest 856, 93, that in this Act the definition here given must be adopted. See also Jones v. Short (1900), 64 J. P. 247; 69 L. J. Q. B. 473; 42 Digest 856, 94.

See as to the meaning of this term, Madlock v. Wallasey L. B., ante, p. 4164; Heatherton v. Watson (1880), 7 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 5. These cases decide that the seashore or foreshore is not a street; see also the notes to ss. 38 and 45, post, pp. 4237, 4240.

The P. H. A., 1907, s. 81 post, p. 5056, where in force extends this definition for the purposes of s. 28 of this Act, post, p. 4226.

Citing the Act. And with respect to citing this Act, or any part thereof, be it enacted as follows:

Short title of this Act.

4. In citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament, and in legal instruments, it shall be enough to use the expression "The Town Police Clauses Act, 1847."

Form in which portions of this Act may be incorporated with other Acts.

5. For the purpose of incorporating part only of this Act with any Act hereafter to be passed, it shall be enough to describe the clauses of this Act with respect to any matter in the words introductory to the enactment with respect to such matter, and to enact that the clauses so described, or that this Act, with the exception of the clauses so described, shall be incorporated with such Act; and thereupon all the clauses of this Act so incorporated shall, save so far as they are expressly varied or excepted by such Act, form part of such Act, and such Act shall be construed as if such clauses were set forth therein with reference to the matter to which such Act relates.

* * * * *

Obstructions and Nuisances.

And with respect to obstructions and nuisances in the streets; be it enacted as follows (a):

(a) It is to be observed that many of the offences mentioned in the following sections are punishable under the provisions of the Highway Acts and the Vagrancy Acts, which should, therefore, be referred to in further illustration of the meaning of these sections.

Power to make orders for preventing obstructions in the streets during public processions, etc.

21. The commissioners may from time to time make orders (a) for the route to be observed by all carts, carriages, horses, and persons, and for preventing obstruction of the streets, within the limits of the special Act, in all times of public processions, rejoicings, or illuminations, and in any case where the streets are thronged or liable to be obstructed (b), and may also give directions to the constables for keeping order and preventing any obstruction of the streets in the neighbourhood of theatres and other places of public resort; and every wilful breach of any such order shall be deemed a separate offence against this Act, and every person committing any such offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

(a) An urban authority acting under this section made an order that the constables stationed at certain crossings should give directions to the drivers of vehicles for the purpose of regulating the traffic. The driver of a motor cab was summoned for failing to stop his cab in accordance with the directions of the police officer, on duty, and was convicted. The Divisional Court held that the order implied an obligation on the part of drivers to obey the directions of the constable, and that, therefore, the appellant was rightly convicted (Dudderidge v. Rawlings (1912), 77 J. P. 167; 108 L. T. 802; 42 Digest 842, 4). See also s. 74 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, and s. 9 of the London Traffic Act, 1924, Vol. V., post, as to the direction of traffic by police constables. As to the prohibition of hawking by costermongers at stated times, see Teale v. Williams, [1914] 3 K. B. 395; 78 J. P. 383; 42 Digest 842, 3; Edwards v. Wanstall (1929), 94 J. P. 51; 28 L. G. R. 38; Digest Supp. An order under this section does not require confirmation by the M. of H. (ibid.). An order prohibiting hawkers, pedlars, etc., from using certain named streets during five months of the year was held not to be invalid, although it did not specify the hours during which the streets might not be used for the sale of the articles mentioned (Etherington v. Carter, [1937] 2 All E. R. 528; Digest Supp.).

(b) See s. 28, post, p. 4226, and Fox v. Palmer (1858), 22 J. P. 449; 33 Digest 537, 141, in regard to an obstruction by running horses in the access to a market. As to obstruction by a theatre queue, see the cases cited in note (p), to s. 28, post, p. 4231.

Power to regulate the route of persons

22. On application to the commissioners by the minister or churchwardens or chapelwardens of any church, chapel, or other place of public worship within the limits of the special Act, the commissioners may make orders for regulating the route by which persons shall drive (a) any cart or carriage, or cattle, or the manner in which they shall drive them, in the neighbourhood of such places of worship, during the hours of Divine service on Sunday, Christmas Day, Good Friday, or any day appointed for a public fast or thanksgiving; and any orders so made shall be printed or put up on or near the church, chapel, or place of public worship to which the same refer, and in some conspicuous places near and leading thereto, and elsewhere as the commissioners direct; and every wilful breach of any such order shall be deemed a separate offence against this Act, and every person committing any such offence shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

Section 22.

driving stage carriages, etc. near places of worship during hours of Divine service.

(a) A local Act for a parish in which there was a large cattle market enacted that it shall not be lawful for any drover or other person to conduct or drive through any of the streets in the parish any oxen, sheep, or other cattle during Sunday:—Held, that a person driving a van with horses, in which were calves being conveyed to the market, was not driving or conducting cattle within the meaning of the statute (Triggs v. Lester (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 259; 30 J. P. 228; 42 Digest 842, 1).

23. No proprietor of any stage carriage duly licensed to carry passengers for hire shall be liable to any penalty for any deviation from the route or line of route specified in his licence which the driver of such stage carriage makes in consequence of any regulation or direction made or given by the commissioners (a).

Power to stage carriages to deviate from route under order of commissioners.

(a) See Chorlton v. Liggett (1910), 74 J. P. 458; 103 L. T. 543; 42 Digest 843, 11. As no stage carriages are now licensed under the general law, this section is now inoperative.

24. If any cattle be at any time found at large in any street within the limits of the special Act, without any person having the charge thereof (a), any constable or officer of police, or any person residing within the limits of the special Act, may seize and impound such cattle in any common pound within the said limits, or in such other place as the commissioners appoint for that purpose, and may detain the same therein until the owner thereof pay to the commissioners a penalty not exceeding forty shillings, besides the reasonable expenses of impounding and keeping such cattle (b).

Power to impound stray cattle.

(a) Under 4 Geo. 4, c. 95, s. 75, horses grazing on the side of a turnpike road with a man in charge of them were held not liable to be impounded as wandering, straying, or lying about the road (Morris v. Jeffries (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 261; 30 J. P. 198; 26 Digest 429, 1488).

(b) The Protection of Animals Act, 1911, s. 7 (1) (1 Halsbury's Statutes 377), requires persons impounding animals to supply them with food and water, and imposes a fine for neglect of the duty. This provision does not apply to the keeper of the pound (Dargan v. Davies (1877), 2 Q. B. D 118; 41 J. P. 468; 2 Digest 288, 589, decided under corresponding repealed provisions). The Act of 1911 also allows strangers to enter the pound and provide food and water under certain circumstances. The reasonable cost of food and water supplied is recoverable from the owners summarily (s. 7 (2), (3)). Under the Impounding of Distress Act, 1554, s. 2, no person may take for impounding more than fourpence for any one whole distress, under the pain of £5 to the party grieved.

25. If the said penalty and expenses be not paid within three days after such impounding, the pound-keeper or other person appointed by the commissioners for that purpose may proceed to sell or cause to be sold any such cattle; but previous to such sale seven days' notice thereof shall be given to or left at the dwelling-house or place of abode of the owner of such cattle, if he be known, or if not, then notice of such intended sale shall be given by advertisement, to be inserted seven days before such sale in some newspaper published or circulated within the limits of the special Act; and the money arising from such sale, after deducting the said sums and the expenses aforesaid, and all other expenses attending the impounding, advertising, keeping, and sale of any such cattle so impounded, shall be paid to the commissioners, and shall be by them paid, on demand, to the owner of the cattle so sold.

Power to sell cattle impounded for payment of penalty and expenses, after notice or advertisement

Section 26.

Persons guilty of pound breach to be committed for three months.

26. Every person who releases or attempts to release any cattle from any pound or place where the same are impounded under the authority of this or the special Act, or who pulls down, damages, or destroys the same pound or place, or any part thereof, with intent to procure the unlawful release of such cattle, shall, upon conviction of such offence before any two justices, be committed by them to some common gaol or house of correction for any time not exceeding three months (a).

(a) Compare the Pound-breach Act, 1843, s. 1 (5 Halsbury's Statutes 156), as to pound-breach, and see R. v. Gee (1885), 49 J. P. 212; 1 T. L. R. 388; 33 Digest 426, 1387, decided with reference to that Act.

Power to provide a pound.

27. The commissioners may purchase a piece of land within the limits of the special Act for the purpose of a pound for stray animals, and may erect a pound thereon, and such pound when made shall be kept in repair by the commissioners (a).

(a) A person who distrains cattle is bound to impound them in a proper pound; and if the usual pound is in an unfit state, he must find another (Bignell v. Clarke (1860), 5 H. & N. 485; 29 L. J. Ex. 257; 18 Digest 445, 1819). If the pound is wet and muddy, the distrainers are liable for any damage thereby caused to the distress (Wilder v. Speer (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 547; 7 L. J. Q. B. 249; 18 Digest 445, 1818). As to the distance which animals may be taken to a pound, see Coaker v. Willcocks, [1911] 2 K. B. 124; 27 T. L. R. 357; 7 Digest 295, 209.

Penalty on persons committing any of the offences herein named.

28. Every person who in any street (a), to the obstruction, annoyance or danger (b) of the residents or passengers (c), commits any of the following offences, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each offence, or, in the discretion of the justice before whom he is convicted, may be committed to prison, there to remain for a period not exceeding fourteen days; and any constable (d) or other officer appointed by virtue of this or the special Act shall take into custody, without warrant, and forthwith convey before a justice, any person who within his view commits any such offence; (that is to say,)

Every person who exposes for show, hire, or sale (except in a market or market place or fair lawfully appointed for that purpose) any horse or other animal, or exhibits in a caravan or otherwise any show or public entertainment, or shoes, bleeds, or farries any horse or animal (except in cases of accident), or cleans, dresses, exercises (e), trains, or breaks, or turns loose any horse or animal (f), or makes or repairs any part of any cart or carriage (except in cases of accident (g) where repair on the spot is necessary):

Every person who suffers to be at large any unmuzzled ferocious dog, or sets on or urges any dog or other animal to attack, worry, or put in fear any person or animal (h):

Every owner of any dog who suffers such dog to go at large, knowing or having reasonable ground for believing it to be in a rabid state, or to have been bitten by any dog or other animal in a rabid state (i):

Every person who after public notice given by any justice, directing dogs to be confined on account of suspicion of canine madness, suffers any dog to be at large during the time specified in such notice:

Every person who slaughters or dresses any cattle, or any part thereof, except in the case of any cattle over-driven which may have met with some accident, and which for the public safety or other reasonable cause ought to be killed on the spot (j):

Every person having the care of any waggon, cart, or carriage, who rides on the shafts thereof, or who without having reins, and holding the same, rides upon such waggon, cart, or carriage, or on any animal drawing the same, or who is at such a distance from such waggon, cart, or carriage, as not to have due control over every animal drawing the same (k), or who does not, in meeting any other carriage, keep his waggon, cart, or carriage to the left or near side (l), or who in passing any other carriage does not keep his waggon, cart, or carriage on the right or off side of the road, (except in cases of actual necessity, or some sufficient reason for deviation,) or who, by obstructing the street, wilfully prevents any person or carriage from passing him, or any waggon, cart, or carriage under his care :

Every person who at one time drives more than two carts or waggons, and every person driving two carts or waggons who has not the halter of the horse in the last cart or waggon securely fastened to the back of the first cart or waggon, or has such halter of a greater length from such fastening to the horse's head than four feet (m) :

Every person who rides or drives furiously any horse or carriage, or drives furiously any cattle (n) :

Every person who causes any public carriage, sledge, truck, or barrow, with or without horses, or any beast of burden, to stand longer than is necessary for loading or unloading goods, or for taking up or setting down passengers, (except hackney carriages, and horses and other beasts of draught or burthen, standing for hire in any place appointed for that purpose by the commissioners or other lawful authority,) and every person who, by means of any cart, carriage, sledge, truck, or barrow, or any animal, or other means (o) wilfully interrupts any public crossing, or wilfully causes any obstruction in any public footpath or other public thoroughfare (p) :

Every person who causes any tree or timber or iron beam to be drawn in or upon any carriage, without having sufficient means of safely guiding the same :

Every person who leads or rides any horse or other animal, or draws or drives any cart or carriage, sledge, truck, or barrow, upon any footway of any street, or fastens any horse or other animal so that it stands across or upon any footway :

Every person who places or leaves any furniture, goods, wares, or merchandise, or any cask, tub, basket, pail, or bucket, or places or uses any standing-place, stool, bench, stall, or showboard, on any footway (q), or who places any blind, shade, covering, awning, or other projection over or along any such footway, unless such blind, shade, covering, awning, or other projection is eight feet in height at least in every part thereof from the ground :

Every person who places, hangs up, or otherwise exposes to sale any goods, wares, merchandise, matter, or thing whatsoever, so that the same project into or over any footway, or beyond the line of any house, shop, or building at which the same are so exposed, so as to obstruct or incommodate the passage of any person over or along such footway (r) :

Every person who rolls or carries any cask, tub, hoop, or wheel, or any ladder, plank, pole, timber, or log of wood, upon any footway, except for the purpose of loading or unloading any cart or carriage, or of crossing the footway (s) :

Every person who places any line, cord, or pole across any street, or hangs or places any clothes thereon (t) :

Every common prostitute or nightwalker loitering and importuning passengers for the purpose of prostitution (u) :

Every person who wilfully and indecently exposes his person (x) :

Every person who publicly offers for sale or distribution, or exhibits to public view any profane, indecent, or obscene book, paper, print, drawing, painting, or representation, or sings any profane or obscene song or ballad, or uses any profane or obscene language (y) :

Section 28.

Every person who wantonly discharges any firearm, or throws or discharges any stone or other missile, or makes any bonfire, or throws or sets fire to any firework (z) :

Every person who wilfully and wantonly disturbs any inhabitant, by pulling or ringing any door bell, or knocking at any door (aa), or who wilfully and unlawfully extinguishes the light of any lamp :

Every person who flies any kite, or who makes or uses any slide upon ice or snow :

Every person who cleanses, hoops, fires, washes, or scalds any cask or tubs, or hews, saws, bores, or cuts any timber or stone, or slacks, sifts, or screens any lime :

Every person who throws or lays down any stones, coals, slate, shells, lime, bricks, timber, iron, or other materials (except building materials so inclosed as to prevent mischief to passengers) (bb) :

Every person who beats or shakes any carpet, rug, or mat (except door mats beaten or shaken before the hour of eight in the morning) :

Every person who fixes or places any flower-pot or box, or other heavy article, in any upper window, without sufficiently guarding the same against being blown down :

Every person who throws from the roof or any part of any house or other building any slate, brick, wood, rubbish, or other thing, except snow thrown so as not to fall on any passenger :

Every occupier of any house or other building, or other person, who orders or permits any person in his service to stand on the sill of any window, in order to clean, paint, or perform any other operation upon the outside of such window, or upon any house or other building within the said limits, unless such window be in the sunk or basement story (cc) :

Every person who leaves open any vault or cellar, or the entrance from any street to any cellar or room underground, without a sufficient fence or handrail, or leaves defective the door, window, or other covering of any vault or cellar, or who does not sufficiently fence any area, pit, or sewer left open, or who leaves such open area, pit, or sewer without a sufficient light after sunset to warn and prevent persons from falling thereinto (dd) :

Every person who throws or lays any dirt, litter, or ashes, or nightsoil, or any carrion, fish, offal, or rubbish, on any street, or causes any offensive matter to run from any manufactory, brewery, slaughter-house, butcher's shop, or dunghill, into any street (ee) : Provided always, that it shall not be deemed an offence to lay sand or other materials in any street in time of frost, to prevent accidents, or litter or other suitable materials to prevent the freezing of water in pipes, or in case of sickness to prevent noise, if the party laying any such things causes them to be removed as soon as the occasion for them ceases :

Every person who keeps any pigsty to the front of any street, not being shut out from such street by a sufficient wall or fence, or who keeps any swine in or near any street, so as to be a common nuisance (ff).

(a) See the definition in s. 3, ante, p. 4223, and compare the definition in the P. H. A., 1936, s. 343 (1), ante, p. 713. See also in relation to certain offences under this section the provisions of s. 81 of the P. H. A., 1907, post, p. 5056.

(b) These words govern the whole of the section. Compare the language of the Highway Act, 1835, s. 72 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 86), and the cases decided thereon : Stinson v. Browning (1866), L. R. 1 C. P. 321 ; 30 J. P. 312 ; 26 Digest 436, 1537 ; Hill v. Somerset (1887), 51 J. P. 742 ; 26 Digest 436, 1538. See also Brotherton v. Titensor (1896), 60 J. P. 72 ; 26 Digest 438, 1557 ; Strickland v. Hayes, [1896] 1 Q. B. 290 ; 60 J. P. 164 ; 38 Digest 164, 97 ; Mantle v. Jordan, [1897] 1 Q. B. 248 ; 61 J. P. 119 ; 38 Digest 159, 61. But in proceedings for an offence it is not necessary to call persons who have been actually annoyed, etc. (Woolley v. Corbishley (1860), 24 J. P. 173 ; 26 Digest 422, 1409 ; Read v. Perrett, ante, p. 4205 ; R. v. Fermanagh J.J. (1883), 14 L. R. Ir. 50 ; McDonald v. White (1882), 9 (Ct. of Sess.) 43; Black v. Simpson (1883), 5 Coup., Ct. of Justiciary Cas. (Scotland), p. 212; Semon v. Read (1879), 4 Coup. 221; Leisk v. Galloway (1885), 12 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J. C.) 5; Dunn v. Holt (1904), 68 J. P. 271; 26 Digest 415, 1340; Hinde v. Evans (1906), 70 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 415, 1341; Lees v. Stone (1919), 83 J. P. 163; 88 L. J. K. B. 1159; 26 Digest 434, 1523). See, however, Stanley v. Farndale (1892), 56 J. P. N. 709, where a conviction under a local Act was quashed on the ground that there was no evidence besides that of the constable that there was any annoyance. But where a byelaw of a borough provided that if any person should make any noise in the streets to the annoyance of the inhabitants he should be guilty of an offence, upon a summons against a newspaper boy for shouting out the name of a newspaper incessantly for six minutes, etc., it was held that it was not necessary to prove that more than one inhabitant had in fact been annoyed thereby (Innes v. Newman, [1894] 2 Q. B. 292; 58 J. P. 543; 38 Digest 166, 1178). But the information should state the name of the person alleged to have been annoyed; see per Lord Salvesen in Graham v. M'Lennan, [1911] S. C. (J.) 16.

(c) A byelaw contained the words "so as to constitute any reasonable ground of complaint to the passengers or the public," and the penalty was the same whichever class of persons had ground for complaint. Where an information and conviction described the offence as "contrary to the byelaw" without stating in terms any reasonable ground of complaint to the passengers or the public, or either of them, it was held that this statement was insufficient and the conviction was quashed (Cotterill v. Lempriere (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 634; 54 J. P. 583; 42 Digest 728, 1504).

(d) This term includes any superintendent of police, and any constable or officer of police acting for or in the district of any urban authority (the P. H. A., 1875, s. 171, post, p. 4458). The police who arrest an offender against this section were held to require no authority to prosecute under P. H. A., 1875, s. 253 (cf. P. H. A., 1936 s. 298) (Jobson v. Henderson (1900), 64 J. P. 425; 82 L. T. 260; 38 Digest 170, 139). See, however, the comments on that case in Sheffield Corporation v. Kitson, [1929] 2 K. B. 322; 93 J. P. 135; Digest Supp. In the last-mentioned case it was held that proceedings for a penalty under a provision of this Act incorporated with the P. H. A., 1875, must be recovered in accordance with s. 253 of that Act (now repealed). See notes, ante, p. 1114, and Errata.

(e) See Heatherton v. Watson, ante, p. 4224.

(f) The owner of land adjoining a highway claiming the herbage on the side of the latter put his cattle thereon:—Held, that this was not turning an animal loose thereon (Sherborn v. Wells (1863), 3 B. & S. 784; 27 J. P. 566; 26 Digest 429, 1487). See also the provisions of the Highway Acts as to animals straying upon highways, the Highway Act, 1835, s. 74, and the Highway Act, 1864, s. 25 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 149), and the cases decided on these sections: Morris v. Jeffries (1866), L. R. 1 Q. B. 261; 30 J. P. 198; 26 Digest 429, 1488; Lawrence v. King (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 345; 32 J. P. 310; 26 Digest 429, 1489; Golding v. Stocking (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 516; 33 J. P. 566; 26 Digest 429, 1490; Bothamley v. Danby (1871), 36 J. P. 135; 24 L. T. 656, 26 Digest 430, 1494. And see Higgins v. Searle (1909), 73 J. P. 185; 100 L. T. 280; 2 Digest 234, 223; Jones v. Lee (1911), 76 J. P. 137; 106 L. T. 123; 2 Digest 234, 224; Ellis v. Banyard (1911), 106 L. T. 51; 28 T. L. R. 122; 2 Digest 234, 225. See also the provisions of this Act as to impounding animals, ss. 24—27, ante, p. 4223—4. As to the liability of a person for damage caused by animals while being driven along a street, see Phillips v. Nicoll (1884), 11 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 592; 2 Digest 234, f; Tillet v. Ward (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 17; 47 J. P. 438; 2 Digest 224, 167; Goodwyn v. Cheveley (1859), 4 H. & N. 631; 23 J. P. 487; 2 Digest 226, 182; and generally as to leading or driving animals in streets, see s. 80 of the P. H. A., 1907; Turnbull v. Wieland (1916), 33 T. L. R. 143; 2 Digest 235, 229. It should be noticed that although the owner of animals may be liable to a penalty under the Highway Acts for allowing them to stray on a highway, these acts impose no civil liability on the owner. See Heath's Garage, Ltd. v. Hodges, [1916] 2 K. B. 370; 80 J. P. 321; 26 Digest 429, 1486.

(g) A motor omnibus broke down and was unable to proceed on its journey under its own mechanism. It was pushed into a side street and there repaired. It was held that this was not a case where repair on the spot was necessary, as if it could be pushed so far it could be pushed farther, and the owner was not protected by the excepting clause in a similar section (Chapman v. Rawlings (1909), 73 J. P. 512; 101 L. T. 605; 42 Digest 849, 49).

(h) See also the Diseases of Animals Act, 1894, s. 22 (xxx) (1 Halsbury's Statutes 403), as to the powers of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries to make muzzling orders, and the Dogs Act, 1906 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 351), which deals with the liability of owners of dogs for injury to cattle, enables the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries to make orders as to wearing of collars, etc., and provides for the seizure of stray dogs, etc. The Board made an Order as to the wearing of collars under the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1894—1909, dated February 8th, 1910. As to the proof of scienter, in case of damage to human beings, see Worth v. Gilling (1866), L. R. 2 C. P. 1; 2 Digest 245, 285; Baldwin v. Casella (1872), L. v. Teape (1884), 48 J. P. 757; 51 L. T. 263; 2 Digest 227, 188; Gould v. McAuliffe, [1941] 2 All E. R. 527. As to liability of master for injury to a third person caused by servant setting on dog, see Baker v. Snell, [1908] 2 K. B. 825; 2 Digest 240, 254. As to liability of the owner for injuries to cattle, sheep, and poultry, see the Dogs Acts, 1906 and 1928. The following cases as to the law as it stood under the now repealed Dogs Act, 1865, may also be referred to, viz.: Wright v. Pearson (1869), L. R. 4 Q. B. 582; 33 J. P. 534; 2 Digest 247, 307; Lewis v. Jones (1884), 49 J. P. 198; 2 Digest 228, 189; Grange v. Silcock (1897), 61 J. P. 709; 77 L. T. 340; 2 Digest 215, 111; Elliott v. Longden (1901), 17 T. L. R. 648; 2 Digest 247, 308; Gardner v. Hart (1896), 44 W. R. 527; 2 Digest 247, 309; M'Kone v. Wood (1831), 5 C. & P. 1; 2 Digest 239, 250. The removal of a dog which is dangerous and is not kept under proper control from the jurisdiction of a police court after the date of the alleged offence and before the date of the information or complaint, does not take away the power of the magistrates under s. 2 of the Dogs Act, 1871, to make an order against the owner that the dog is to be destroyed, provided that there has been no bona fide disposal of the dog (Lockett v. Withey (1908), 72 J. P. 492; 25 T. L. R. 16; 2 Digest 248, 316). Where justices made an order under the same section that a dangerous dog "should be kept under proper control and led by a leash by day and chained up at night," the court refused to make absolute a rule for a mandamus to state a case on the ground that the point could have been more conveniently raised by certiorari (R. v. Owen, Ex parte Scovell (1907), 72 J. P. 60; 52 Sol. J. 132; 2 Digest 248, 315).

(i) Proof that the defendant knew his dog had been bitten by a mad dog was held sufficient evidence of scienter in Jones v. Perry (1796), 2 Esp. 482; 2 Digest 244, 279.

(j) See the Protection of Animals Act, 1911 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 373), empowering the police to cause injured animals to be slaughtered, without the consent of the owner, after obtaining a veterinary certificate; and making the expenses recoverable from the owner as a civil debt.

(k) See Phythian v. Baxendale, [1895] 1 Q. B. 768; 59 J. P. 217; 26 Digest 437, 1548; Hinde v. Evans (1906), 70 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 415, 1341.

(l) There is not at common law any such rule of the road as to make the left always the proper side. See Finegan v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1889), 53 J. P. 663; 5 T. L. R. 598; 42 Digest 844, 17. But see now the "highway code" under the Road Traffic Act, 1930, and as to the power of the local authority to make regulations as to street traffic, see s. 78 of the P. H. A., 1907, post. The absence of other traffic on the road is a good defence to proceedings under a byelaw similar to the text (Bolton v. Everett (1911), 75 J. P. 534; 105 L. T. 830; 42 Digest 843, 12). And see Chorlton v. Liggett (1910), 74 J. P. 458; 103 L. T. 543; 42 Digest 843, 11; Nuttall v. Pickering, [1913] 1 K. B. 14; 77 J. P. 30; 42 Digest 844, 20. For a case of alleged obstruction in passing a tramway car in a street where there was a double set of lines, see Sleith v. Godfrey (1920), 85 J. P. 46; 18 L. G. R. 727; 42 Digest 844, 23. And as to passing led horses on a road, see per Lord Mackenzie in Umphray v. Ganson, [1917] S. C. 371.

(m) See Robertson v. Burkitt (1858), 7 W. R. 50; 26 Digest 438, 1551.

(n) See Chatterton v. Parker (1914), 78 J. P. 339; 26 Digest 438, 1558. Note that this clause, unlike the Highway Act, 1835, s. 78 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 91), includes riding as well as driving furiously. See Williams v. Evans (1876), 1 Ex. D. 277; 41 J. P. 151; 26 Digest 438, 1552. See also the Offences against the Person Act, 1861, s. 35 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 610), and s. 74 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post. A bicycle is a carriage within this provision (Taylor v. Goodwin (1879), 4 Q. B. D. 228; 43 J. P. 653; 26 Digest 438, 1553; M'Kee v. M'Grath (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 41). A motor bicycle is a carriage within the meaning of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, s. 4 (O'Donoghue v. Moon (1904), 68 J. P. 349; 90 L. T. 843; 39 Digest 238, 126; and see Elieson v. Parker (1917), 81 J. P. 265; 39 Digest 238, 128). See, further, as to bicycles and tricycles, the L. G. A., 1888, s. 85, post. By s. 1 (1) (b) of the Locomotives on Highways Act, 1896 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 64), a light locomotive is a carriage within the meaning of this section. See, however, as to excessive speed and other offences with motor cars, ss. 10 et seq., Road Traffic Act, 1930, 23 Halsbury's Statutes, 619.

(o) Three defendants were convicted by the defendant justices, under this section, for obstructing passengers in the public street and unlawfully preventing persons passing there. It appeared by the evidence of a police constable that the three defendants were standing, with three or four other persons on the pavement, blocking up the same. Several persons had to leave the footpath and go into the road in order to pass. The constable spoke to the defendants, and asked them to move off. They then walked up the street, all three abreast, causing passengers who met them to leave the footpath and go into the road:—Held, that the conviction was wrong, and could not be sustained (R. v. Long, etc. JJ. (1888), 52 J. P. 630; 59 L. T. 33; 26 Digest 456, 1724). It was said in Gill v. Carson, [1917] 2 K. B. 674; 81 J. P. 250; 26 Digest 415, 1339, that R. v. Long, etc. JJ. had been impliedly overruled by Hinde v. Evans (1906), 70 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 415, 1341. And see R. v. Williams (1891), 55 J. P. 406; 26 Digest 456, 1725.

A shopkeeper in a borough placed goods upon the pavement in front of his shop for sale. Upon being summoned under this section for obstructing the footway, he contended that he bonâ fide claimed the right to place his goods there. The justices considered that their jurisdiction was ousted, but stated a case:—Held, that the justices ought to determine whether the land on which the goods were placed was part of the public highway or not, and that unless the defendant established a restricted dedication no question as to a claim of right arose (Leicester Urban Sanitary Authority v. Holland (1888), 52 J. P. 788; 57 L. J. M. C. 75; 26 Digest 308, 398). To a complaint before justices under the section for obstructing a public footway, it is a good defence that such footway was dedicated to the public subject to the right of the defendant to commit the acts of obstruction complained of, and such defence if raised bonâ fide ousts the jurisdiction of the justices. The evidence, however, to establish such a defence should be of a cogent character (R. v. Londonderry J.J., [1902] 2 I. R. 266; 26 Digest 440, b). See also note (b) to s. 69 of the T. I. C. Act, 1847, ante, p. 4204.

(p) When an undoubted obstruction is proved, the plaintiff need not call persons to prove that they were obstructed, and, on the other hand, no evidence can be called to prove that they were not obstructed. See Read v. Perrett, ante, p. 4205; McDonald v. White, ante, p. 4228. Whether a person wilfully causes an obstruction in a public thoroughfare is in each case a question of degree depending upon the particular facts (Dunn v. Holt (1904), 68 J. P. 271; 73 L. J. K. B. 341; 26 Digest 415, 1340; Lowdens v. Keaveney (1903), 67 J. P. 378; 26 Digest 427, s). The fact that a horse and cart have been placed in charge of some one does not afford a defence to proceedings if there has been obstruction in point of fact. See Hinde v. Evans (1906), 70 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 415, 1341. On the other hand, there must be some evidence of obstruction, and where the only evidence was that two carters had left their carts outside a public house while they went in for refreshment, the Court quashed the conviction (Gill v. Carson, [1917] 2 K. B. 674; 81 J. P. 250; 26 Digest 415, 1339). A person who had a caravan for the sale of goods stationed in a market place near what was described as a footpath, over which a crowd collected and obstructed the passage:—Held, that he was not guilty of an offence against this clause (Ball v. Ward (1875), 40 J. P. 213; 33 L. T. 170; 26 Digest 416, 1351). An obstruction is not caused by persons stopping and talking in the street, unless it is done wilfully and pertinaciously (Wemyss v. Black (1881), 8 R. (Ct. of Sess.) J., 25). An indictable obstruction may be caused by attracting a crowd by means of pictures, etc., in shop windows (R. v. Carlile (1834), 6 C. & P. 636; 26 Digest 428, 1477; and see 46 J. P. 19). A street preacher who collected a crowd in a highway was held rightly convicted under the Highway Act, 1835, s. 72 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 86), though there was room outside the crowd for foot passengers and vehicles to pass and repass (Homer v. Cadman (1886), 50 J. P. 454; 55 L. J. M. C. 110; 26 Digest 416, 1347. And see Back v. Holmes (1887), 51 J. P. 693; 57 L. J. M. C. 37; 26 Digest 416, 1348; Ex parte Lewis (1888), 21 Q. B. D. 191; 52 J. P. 773; 26 Digest 318, 500; Burden v. Rigler, [1911] 1 K. B. 337; 75 J. P. 36; 26 Digest 318, 503). A person who by carrying on a theatre causes a crowd to assemble and obstruct the highway, thereby creating a nuisance to private adjoining owners, is answerable for the obstruction if it be the necessary result of his acts, even though it be not his actual object (Lyons, Sons & Co. v. Gulliver and Capital Syndicate, Ltd., [1914] 1 Ch. 631; 78 J. P. 98; 26 Digest 428, 1475). There is no difference of principle in this respect between outdoor and indoor entertainments (Barber v. Penley, [1893] 2 Ch. 447; 26 Digest 428, 1473, and see Wagstaff v. Edison Bell Phonograph Corporation, Ltd. (1893), 10 T. L. R. 80). A person riding a bicycle on a footpath by the side of a public road was held rightly convicted under an Irish Act (S. J. (Ireland) A., 1851, s. 13) of obstructing the free passage of foot passengers, although no evidence was produced of any foot passengers having been actually obstructed (McKee v. McGrath (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 41). See also R. v. Simpson, Times, January 23rd, 1895. Where there is a public way, though it may only be a bridleway or footway, the public are entitled to use the full width of it, though it may be a private way for carriages (Pullen v. Deffel, [1891] W. N. 39; 64 L. T. 134; 26 Digest 315, 477). But the presumption applicable to an ordinary public highway bounded by fences is not applicable to a public footpath which passes through a lane of irregular shape and of varying breadth between the fences. In such a case there is no presumption that the public right extends over the whole space between the fences (Ford v. Harrow U. D. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 248; 83 L. T. 394; 26 Digest 215, 469). Persons using a traction engine and trucks on a highway six hours daily for seven weeks cannot be found guilty on indictment for a nuisance, unless they create a substantial obstruction and occasion delay and inconvenience to the public substantially greater than would have been caused by horses and carts (R. v. Chittenden (1885), 49 J. P. 503; 15 Cox, C. C. 725; 26 Digest 430, 1497). This clause will not apply to a place like a mews, which is not a street, and is only dedicated to the public subject to certain restrictions arising from its use (Vestry of Chelsea v. Stoddard (1879), 43 J. P. 182; 26 Digest 308, 399). The cases decided with reference to the Highway Act, 1835, s. 72, should be referred to in illustration of this clause, and see Nuttall v. Pickering, [1913] 1 K. B. 14; 77 J. P. 30; 26 Digest 438, 1555.

Section 28.

As to claims to erect booths, etc., on highways during a fair, see Simpson v. Wells (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 214; 36 J. P. 774; 26 Digest 441, 1573; a claim to expose goods for sale on market day, R. (Kennedy) v. County Cork J.J., [1913] 2 I. R. 391; 33 Digest 533, k; a claim by an innkeeper to allow his guest's carriage to remain in the highway, Gerring v. Barfield (1864), 28 J. P. 615; 26 Digest 441, 1585; holding a fair on a highway, Elwood v. Bullock (1844), 6 Q. B. 383; 8 J. P. 473; 26 Digest 441, 1577; R. v. Smith (1802), 4 Esp. 111; 26 Digest 441, 1581. To allow trees to grow over a highway is not a wilful obstruction (Walker v. Horner (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 4; 39 J. P. N. 773; 26 Digest 416, 1344). Nor is there any liability under the Highway Acts on an occupier of land for failing to light a tree which has fallen across a road or to warn passengers of the obstruction thereby caused (Hudson v. Bray, [1917] 1 K. B. 520; 81 J. P. 105; 26 Digest 416, 1349). But any unreasonable and unnecessary use of a highway is an obstruction, e.g. leaving a horse-van and ploughing gear standing by the side of a highway (Harris v. Mobbs (1878), 3 Ex. D. 268; 42 J. P. 759; 26 Digest 437, 1545); or leaving a roller (Wilkins v. Day (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 110; 48 J. P. 6; 26 Digest 437, 1546); or a motor car (Macfarlane v. Colam, [1908] S. C. 56) so as to frighten horses; leaving a heap of earth and refuse by the side of a highway, so as to frighten horses (Brown v. Eastern and Midlands Rail. Co. (1889), 22 Q. B. D. 391; 53 J. P. 342; Digest Supp.). As to obstructions caused by the erection of barbed wire fences by the side of a highway, see Barbed Wire Act, 1893, post, p. 4873; Stewart v. Wright (1893), 9 T. L. R. 480; 7 Digest 286, 153; Collen v. Ellis (1893), 32 L. R. Ir. 491. As to the liability of a highway surveyor for leaving heaps of stones on a highway, see Hardcastle v. Bielby, [1892] 1 Q. B. 709; 56 J. P. 549; 26 Digest 413, 1327. See also note (t), infra.

As to the liability of a landowner whose soil slips from the banks upon the highway, see Gully v. Smith (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 121; 48 J. P. 309; 26 Digest 416, 1346.

(g) There is sometimes a strip of land between the footway and the carriageway which is not dedicated to the public as part of the street. This clause would not affect the right to place goods, etc., upon it. See Le Neve v. Mile End Old Town Vestry (1858), 8 E. & B. 1054; 22 J. P. 657; 26 Digest 443, 1594; R. v. Wigan J.J. (1879), 43 J. P. Jo. 220; Jones v. Mathews (1885), 1 T. L. R. 482; 26 Digest 444, 1599; Hitchman v. Watt (1894), 58 J. P. 720; 26 Digest 444, 1601. But, in general, if a person asserts the right to obstruct the way by virtue of a qualified dedication he must prove it. See Spice v. Peacock (1875), 39 J. P. 581; 26 Digest 443, 1597; Whittaker v. Rhodes (1881), 46 J. P. 182; 26 Digest 443, 1598; Openshaw v. Pickering (1912), 77 J. P. 27; 26 Digest 296, 278. But in such cases it is for the justices to determine whether or not the place is a street (R. v. Young (1883), 47 J. P. 519; 52 L. J. M. C. 55; 26 Digest 458, 1743; Leicester Sanitary Authority v. Holland, ante, p. 4231). As to projections causing inconvenience to passengers, see the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 69, ante, p. 4204; and compare the cases of Wyatt v. Gems, [1893] 2 Q. B. 225; 57 J. P. 665; 26 Digest 424, 1437; and Winsborrow v. London Joint Stock Bank, Ltd. (1903), 67 J. P. 289; 88 L. T. 803; 26 Digest 424, 1438. As to what are extenuating circumstances which will justify the dismissal of the summons, see Dunning v. Trainer (1909), 73 J. P. 400; 101 L. T. 421; 26 Digest 458, 1750.

(r) As applied to costermongers there must be a real and substantial annoyance in fact in order to justify a conviction (R. v. Francis (1899), 63 J. P. 469; 68 L. J. Q. B. 609; 26 Digest 424, 1434) and as to the meaning of the word costermonger, see Baker v. Bradley (1910), 74 J. P. 341; 103 L. T. 253; 26 Digest 423, 1428.

(s) As to the right of the occupier of premises to have free access to the highway for his goods, even though in taking these across the footway he injures it, see St. Mary, Newington, Vestry v. Jacobs (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 47; 36 J. P. 119; 26 Digest 325, 587. See also Le Neve v. Mile End Old Town, supra; Rowley v. Tottenham U. D. C., [1914] A. C. 95; 78 J. P. 97; 26 Digest 308, 407; and Curtis v. Geeves (1930), 94 J. P. 71; 28 L. G. R. 103; Digest Supp. Sometimes, however, a local Act forbids certain acts which interrupt the use of a footway, e.g., unloading coal during certain hours. See Fletcher v. Fields, [1891] 1 Q. B. 790; 55 J. P. 502; 26 Digest 424, 1436.

(t) An iron pole and a canvas flag hanging therefrom do not constitute a "sign" within the meaning of a local Act (Goldstraw v. Jones (1906), 71 J. P. 22; 96 L. T. 30; 26 Digest 565, 2595). By s. 51 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 648), it is an offence to place or cause to be placed ropes, wires or other apparatus across a highway or any part thereof in such a manner as to be likely to cause danger to persons using the highway, except upon proof that all necessary means to give adequate warning of the danger have been taken. See also P. H. A., 1925, ss. 25, 26, Vol. V., post.

(u) A similar clause in a Scotch Act was held not to apply to the case of a prostitute accosting men from the window of a house (Ford v. Linton (1879), 6 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J. C.) 49). As to the meaning of the expressions "prostitute" and "prostitution," see R. v. De Munck, [1918] 1 K. B. 635; 82 J. P. 160; 15 Digest 850, 9337.

(z) Note that the offence here described must be committed in a street. But the offence may be the subject of indictment, though not committed in a public place (R. v. Wellard (1884), 14 Q. B. D. 63; 49 J. P. 296; 15 Digest 746, 8051).

(y) Compare the provisions of the Vagrancy Act, 1824, ss. 3, 4. The Obscene Publication

Note to
Section 28.

Act, 1857, contains other provisions to prevent the sale of obscene books, pictures, prints, and other articles. See R. v. Hicklin (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 360; S. C. sub nom. Scott v. Wolverhampton, JJ., 32 J. P. 533; 14 Digest 437, 4606; Steele v. Brannan (1872), L. R. 7 C. P. 261; 36 J. P. 360; 14 Digest 52, 181, as to what are obscene books, etc. See also the Indecent Advertisements Act, 1889.

A byelaw made under s. 46 of the Tramways Act, 1870, post, p. 4295, that no person shall swear or use obscene or offensive language whilst in or upon any carriage was held not ultra vires although this section was in force also in the same city (Gentel v. Rapps, [1902] 1 K. B. 160; 66 J. P. 117; 43 Digest 349, 85). A byelaw forbidding the use of indecent language in any street or public place to the annoyance of passengers cannot be held to apply to such language used in a public house and heard only by persons present therein (Russon v. Dutton (No. 2) (1911), 75 J. P. 209; 104 L. T. 601; 38 Digest 166, 114).

(z) This is practically abrogated as to fireworks by the Explosives Act, 1875, s. 80 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 431). See as to blasting in a quarry (Murray v. Keith (1895), 22 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J. C.) 17). A person may also be indicted at common law or under 2 Edw. 3, c. 3, for going about armed (R. v. Meade (1903), 19 T. L. R. 540; 36 Digest 177, 224). For a case in which it was alleged that there had been an offence under s. 72 of the Highway Act, 1835, by a member of a shooting party, see Lees v. Stone (1919), 83 J. P. 163; 88 L. J. K. B. 1159; 26 Digest 434, 1523.

(aa) The mere fact of a man being instructed to deliver papers at a house is no answer to a complaint under this clause if the ringing, etc., is violent and at an unreasonable hour of the night (Clarke v. Hoggins (1862), 11 C. B. (N.S.) 545; Digest Supp.). By s. 1 of the Chimney Sweepers Act, 1894, any person who shall for the purpose of soliciting employment as a chimney sweeper knock at the houses from door to door, or ring a bell, or use any noisy instrument, or to the annoyance of any inhabitant thereof ring the door bell of any house, or cause anyone to do any of the acts aforesaid, shall be liable on summary conviction to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings for the first offence, and to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings for any subsequent offence.

(bb) A claim of right does not necessarily oust jurisdiction under this section, for the court has to decide as a fact whether the place is a street (R. v. Young, ante, p. 4232).

(cc) It is an offence within this paragraph for a window cleaner to stand on a sill 1 ft. wide and 18 ft. above a public street, although he is provided with a safety belt and no particular passer-by is endangered (West Riding Cleaning Co. v. Jowett, [1938] 4 All E. R. 21; Digest Supp.).

(dd) See the cases collected in note (b) to s. 69, T. I. C. Act, 1847, ante, p. 4204.

(ee) This must be within the urban district. See Flight v. Clarke (1844), 13 M. & W. 155; 31 Digest 150, 2859. "Litter" includes handbills scattered about the street (Hills v. Davies (1903), 67 J. P. 198; 88 L. T. 464; 38 Digest 238, 670). As to laying rubble on a highway contrary to the Highway Act, 1835, s. 72, see Smith v. Perry, [1906] 1 K. B. 262; 70 J. P. 93; 26 Digest 414, 1338.

(ff) See also the P. H. A., 1936, s. 81, ante, p. 269.

29. Every person drunk in any street, and guilty of any riotous or indecent (a) behaviour therein, and also every person guilty of any violent or indecent behaviour in any police office or any police-station house, within the limits of the special Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every such offence, or, in the discretion of the justice before whom he is convicted, to imprisonment for a period not exceeding seven days (b).

persons, etc.
guilty of riotous or indecent behaviour.

(a) See note (u) to s. 28, supra.

(b) Where a charge is made under this clause, and the justices do not find that the defendant has been guilty of riotous conduct in a street, they cannot convict of simple drunkenness (Martin v. Pridgen (1859), 1 E. & E. 778; 28 L. J. M. C. 179; 30 Digest 99, 758). See also the Licensing Act, 1872, s. 12, and the Licensing Act, 1902, ss. 1—3.

And with respect to fires, be it enacted as follows :

Fires.

30. Every person who wilfully sets or causes to be set on fire any chimney within the limits of the special Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall exempt the person so setting or causing to be set on fire any chimney from liability to be indicted for felony.

Penalty for wilfully setting fire.

31. If any chimney accidentally catch or be on fire within the said limits, the person occupying or using the premises in which such chimney is situated shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings: Provided always, catch fire.

that such forfeiture shall not be incurred if such person prove to the satisfaction of the justice before whom the case is heard that such fire was in nowise owing to omission, neglect, or carelessness of himself or servant (a).

(a) The occupier has not, as in London under s. 30 of the L. C. C. (General Powers) Act, 1900, any remedy over against the servant or other person by whose wilful neglect or default the chimney caught fire. See, generally, as to chimneys on fire, 61 J. P. 179.

[Ss. 32—33, dealing with provision of fire engines and firemen, have been repealed by the Fire Brigades Act, 1938, s. 30 (3), Sched. III., Vol. V., and 21 Halsbury's Statutes 602, 604; in the case of s. 33, this repeal did not take effect until July 29th, 1940.]

And with respect to places of public resort, be it enacted as follows (a) :

public resort

(a) Reference may be made to the provisions of the Refreshment Houses Act, 1860, as to refreshment houses, and of the Licensing Acts as to the prevention of offences against public order by drunkenness in the highways and disorderly conduct in licensed houses; also to the Gaming Act, 1845, and the Licensing Act, 1872, s. 75, as to public billiard rooms; the Gaming Act, 1845, and the Betting Act, 1853, as to gaming and betting houses. For these Acts, see 9 Halsbury's Statutes 922 et seq., and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1146, 1156. See also Pt. IV., of the P. H. A. A. A., 1890, post.

The following is a list of cases decided under the various statutes containing similar provisions, and also those decided under byelaws made pursuant to the Municipal Corporations Acts and other statutes dealing with good rule and government: Hall v. Macwilliam (lottery advertised in newspaper) (1901), 65 J. P. 742; 85 L. T. 239; 25 Digest 455, 445, decided under the Lotteries Act, 1823; Bows v. Fenwick (1874), L. R. 9 C. P. 339; 38 J. P. 440; 25 Digest 440, 354; Galloway v. Maries (1881), 8 Q. B. D. 275; 46 J. P. 326; 25 Digest 440, 355; Henretty v. Hart (1885), 13 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J.) 9; 25 Digest 442, h; Hawke v. Dunn, [1897] 1 Q. B. 579; 61 J. P. 292; 25 Digest 437, 339; Brown v. Patch, [1899] 1 Q. B. 892; 63 J. P. 421; 25 Digest 440, 353; Powell v. Kempton Park Racecourse Co., [1899] A. C. 143; 63 J. 34. Every victualler or keeper of any public-house, or person licensed to sell wine, spirits, beer, cider, or other fermented or distilled liquors, by retail, to be drunk or consumed on the premises, within the limits of the special Act, who knowingly harbours or entertains or suffers to remain in his public-house or place wherein he carries on his business any constable during any part of the time appointed for his being on duty, unless for the purpose of quelling any disturbance or restoring order, shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings (a).

(a) A similar clause is contained in the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, s. 78 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1029), as to which see Mullins v. Collins (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 292; 38 J. P. 629; 30 Digest 92, 708; Somerset v. Hart (1884), 12 Q. B. D. 860; 48 J. P. 327; 25 Digest 431, 304; Newman v. Jones (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 132; 50 J. P. 373; Sherras v. De Rutzen, [1895] 1 Q. 35. Every person keeping any house, shop, room, or other place of public resort, within the limits of the special Act, for the sale or consumption of refreshments of any kind, who knowingly suffers common prostitutes or reputed thieves to assemble at and continue in his premises shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds (a).

(a) See s. 76 of the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1028), and s. 10 of the Prevention of Crimes Act, 1871 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 675). The keeper of a licensed alehouse is not exempt from the operation of this clause (Cole v. Coulton (1860), 2 E. & E. 695; 24 J. P. 596; 30 Digest 93, 715). It is not unlawful to supply prostitutes, etc., with refreshments, nor does the mere doing so amount to permitting them to assemble.

Fox* (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 370; 35 J. P. 631; 30 Digest 92, 710).

Penalty on persons keeping places for bearbaiting, cock fighting, etc.

36. Every person who within the limits of the special Act keeps or uses or acts in the management of any house, room, pit, or other place, for the purpose of fighting, baiting, or worrying any animal shall be liable to a penalty of not more than five pounds, or, in the discretion of the justices before whom he is convicted, to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for a time not exceeding one month; and the commissioners may, by order in writing, authorise the superintendent constable, with such constables as he thinks necessary, to enter any premises kept or used for any of the purposes aforesaid, and take into custody all persons found therein without lawful excuse, and every person so found shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five shillings, and a conviction for this offence shall not exempt the owner, keeper, or manager of any such house, room, pit, or place from any penal consequence to which he is liable for the nuisance thereby occasioned (a).

(a) See, generally, as to cruelty to animals, the Protection of Animals Act, 1911, as amended by the Protection of Animals (Amendment) Act, 1927 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 389); and as to "baiting," see Pitts v. Millar (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 380; 38 J. P. 615; 2 Digest 287, 585.

*Hackney
carriages.*

And with respect to hackney carriages, be it enacted as follows (a):

(a) See also as to trams and their drivers, conductors, etc., the Tramways Act, 1870, s. 48, post, p. 4298. The provisions of this part of the Act, as contained in ss. 37, 40—52, 54, 58, 60—67, were applied to omnibuses by the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4, post, p. 4785, but the provisions of the latter Act were repealed so far as they relate to public service vehicles by the Road Traffic Act, 1930, and it is doubtful how far they now have effect (see notes at post, p. 4784). By the P. H. A., 1925, s. 76, Vol. V., post, the sections above mentioned of this Act apply also to hackney carriages standing or plying for hire at a railway station or on railway premises, other than carriages belonging to or used by railway companies for conveying passengers or their luggage, but the whole of this group of sections were repealed as regards public service vehicles by the Road Traffic Act, 1930. The net effect is that the sections continue to apply to hackney carriages and to omnibuses in so far as these are not public service vehicles within the definition in s. 121 of the Act of 1930, Vol. V., post, i.e., broadly to horse-drawn vehicles and trolley vehicles.

See also, as to hackney carriages, s. 11 of the Roads Act, 1920, Vol. V., post.

Commissioners may license hackney
carriages.

37. The commissioners may from time to time license (a) to ply for hire within the prescribed distance (b), or if no distance is prescribed, within five miles from the general post office of the city, town, or place to which the special Act refers, (which in that case shall be deemed the prescribed distance,) such number of hackney coaches or carriages of any kind or description (c) adapted to the carriage of persons as they think fit.

(a) The possession of a revenue licence to let horses and carriages under the Stage Carriages Act, 1832 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 19), was held not to supersede the necessity of the proprietor of a hackney carriage having a licence under this Act (Buckle v. Wrightson (1864), 5 B. & S. 854; 29 J. P. 326; 42 Digest 851, 64). The local authority may require an applicant for a licence to attend in person (Banton v. Davies (1891), 56 J. P. 294; 66 L. T. 192; 42 Digest 852, 67). The local authority have a discretion to refuse the licence (see Ex parte Mitchen (1864), 5 B. & S. 585; 28 J. P. 438; 42 Digest 857, 110), but an applicant to whom a licence is refused can appeal to quarter sessions: vide s. 7 of the P. H. A. Act, 1890, post, p. 4804; R. v. Essex J.J., Ex parte Barking U. D. C., post, p. 4461. Further mandamus will issue if the discretion of the local authority is not exercised judicially (R. v. Barry U. D. C. (1900), 16 T. L. R. 565; 42 Digest 856, 96; R. v. Brighton Corporation, Ex parte Thos. Tilling, Ltd. (1916), 80 J. P. 219; 85 L. J. K. B. 1552; 42 Digest 856, 97). Upon application for an omnibus licence, it was held that the fares to be charged could not be taken into consideration (R. v. Farnborough U. D. C., Ex parte Aldershot District Traction Co., Ltd., [1920] 1 K. B. 234; 83 J. P. 290; 42 Digest 857, 100); semble, however, this was because in the T. P. C. Act, 1889, post, p. 4784, parliament had manifested an intention of leaving the fares to be settled by supply and demand. With regard to hackney carriages, there is power in s. 68 of the present Act, post, p. 4246, to fix fares by byelaw, and it is submitted therefore that an attempt to do so by licence would be improper in case of a hackney carriage, equally as in case of an omnibus, the Farnborough Case was reviewed in a case under s. 14 (3) of the Roads Act, 1920 (since partially repealed) and the Minister of Transport was held entitled upon appeal to take the question of fares into consideration (R. v. Minister of Transport, Ex parte H. C. Motor Works, Ltd., [1927] 2 K. B. 401; 91 J. P. 83; 42 Digest 857, 101). In that case TALBOT, J., expressed the view that the decision in the Farnborough Case, supra, only decided that an authority cannot in dealing with licences do that indirectly which it cannot do directly, viz., fix the fares to be charged by omnibuses. In R. v. Bradford Corporation, Ex parte Minister of Transport, [1926] 90 J. P. 140; 135 L. T. 227; 42 Digest 856, 99, it was held that conditions might be attached to the grant of a license under this section. But as to the metropolis, see R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, Ex parte Holloway, [1911] 2 K. B. 1131; 75 J. P. 490; 42 Digest 857, 108, a decision which overrules R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, Ex parte Pearce (1910), 75 J. P. 85; 80 L. J. K. B. 223; 42 Digest 857, 107. In the case of R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, Ex parte Randall (1911), 75 J. P. 486; 27 T. L. R. 505; 42 Digest 857, 109, the court followed R. v. Metropolitan Police Commissioner, Ex parte Pearce, supra, which had not at that time been overruled. As to omnibuses within the London Traffic Area, see the London Traffic Act, 1924, and the London Passenger Transport Act, 1933, Vol. V., post. As to the discretion of the licensing authority where they have themselves a competing tramway, see R. v. Blackpool Corporation (1899), 63 J. P. 787; 21 M. C. C. 572. Where a licensing authority granted a licence to a taxi which exceeded the dimensions allowed by the byelaws, it was held that the authority had exceeded their jurisdiction (R. (Ex parte Sloan) v. Belfast Corporation (1923), 57 L. L. T. 71).

Note to
Section 37.

(b) That is, within the urban district. See s. 171 of the P. H. A., 1875.

(c) As to tramcars, see the Tramways Act, 1870, s. 48, post, p. 4298, and Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co. v. Bailey, [1920] 1 K. B. 380; 84 J. P. 1; 42 Digest 853, 75; and, as to omnibuses, see the Town Police Clauses Act, 1839, s. 4 (1), and note, post, p. 4785. A carriage similar to a tramcar and used to carry passengers at separate fares over a light railway by virtue of Provisional Orders made under the Light Railways Act, 1896, is not a hackney carriage within the meaning of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847 (Yorkshire (Woolen District) Electric Tramways, Ltd. v. Ellis, [1905] 1 K. B. 396; 69 J. P. 67; 42 Digest 853, 74).

38. Every wheeled carriage, whatever may be its form or construction, used in standing or plying for hire in any street within the prescribed distance (a), and every carriage standing upon any street within the prescribed distance, having thereon any numbered plate required by this or the special Act to be fixed upon a hackney carriage, or having thereon any plate resembling or intended to resemble any such plate as aforesaid, shall be deemed to be a hackney carriage within the meaning of this Act (b); and in all proceedings at law or otherwise the term "hackney carriage" shall be sufficient to describe any such carriage: Provided always, that no stage coach (c) used for the purpose of standing or plying for passengers to be carried for hire at separate fares, and duly licensed for that purpose, and having thereon the proper numbered plates required by law to be placed on such stage coaches, shall be deemed to be a hackney carriage within the meaning of this Act (d).

What vehicles to be deemed hackney
carriages.

Proviso as to stage coaches.

(a) A hackney carriage while on the premises of a railway company, by their leave for the accommodation of passengers by their trains, is not plying for hire in a street; the stations are private property (Case v. Storey (1869), L. R. 4 Ex. 319; 33 J. P. 470; 42 Digest 859, 120; and see Hole v. Digby (1879), 27 W. R. 884; 38 Digest 344, 527). But the dictum of KELLER, C.B., in that case, that they were not then plying for hire in that they were not at the disposal of the public, was not followed in Clarke v. Stamford (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 357; 35 J. P. 662; 42 Digest 853, 77; and in Allen v. Tunbridge (1871), L. R. 6 C. P. 481; 35 J. P. 695; 42 Digest 853, 78, it was held that a brougham, the owner of which, by agreement with a railway company, attended at their station to await the arrival of trains for the conveyance of any passenger who chose to use it, and whose driver solicited passengers, was a hackney carriage plying for hire. And see Foinett v. Clark (1877), 41 J. P. 359; 42 Digest 854, 80. These conflicting decisions are now resolved by the P. H. A., 1925, s. 76, referred to in note (a), ante, p. 4236. Where the owner of omnibuses being refused a licence ran them regularly over the route for the use of the public free of charge, but with a box in each omnibus for voluntary contributions, the conductor being ready to give change if asked, it was held that the omnibuses were playing for hire

Note to
Section 38.

(Cocks v. Mayner (1893), 58 J. P. 104; 70 L. T. 403; 42 Digest 855, 87). Plying for hire in an open unenclosed piece of private ground to which the public have access, but over which there is no public right of way, is not plying for hire in a street (Skinner v. Usher (1872), L. R. 7 Q. B. 423; 36 J. P. 693; 42 Digest 861, 139). A piece of ground adjoining a railway station, and belonging to the company, metalled and separated from the street only by a gutter, was used as an approach to the station. Private carriages were allowed to stand there, but no hackney carriages, except those of the appellant, who had, by agreement with the company, the sole right of standing carriages there:—Held, that the plying for hire there was not plying for hire in a street (Curtis v. Embery (1872), L. R. 7 Ex. 369; 42 Digest 856, 93). In the city of E. was a square in front of a hotel, unenclosed, and where the public could pass freely, except when the hotel keeper's carriages stood there. The square was let with the hotel, and was used for the hotel cabs when plying for hire:—Held, that the square was part of the street (Marks v. Ford (1880), 45 J. P. 157; 42 Digest 861, 140). The words "used in standing or plying for hire" indicate the period of time during which a carriage is to be deemed a hackney carriage, and are not limited to the period during which it is actually standing or plying for hire in a street. Therefore, in executing a booked order, even if the number plate is covered up, the carriage does not cease to be a hackney carriage within the meaning of the Act, and the byelaws under s. 68 are still applicable to it (Hawkins v. Edwards, [1901] 2 K. B. 169; 65 J. P. 423; 42 Digest 862, 143). In a case under the Metropolitan Public Carriage Act, 1869 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 163), it was held that a charabanc which picked up in public streets only passengers who had previously booked seats and paid for tickets at a booking-office was not plying for hire in a particular street in which passengers were waiting (Sales v. Lake, [1922] 1 K. B. 553; 86 J. P. 80; 42 Digest 855, 90). Where, however, a charabanc picked up passengers who booked seats at a stopping place after the charabanc had left its starting point, but before its arrival at the stopping place, it was held to be plying for hire (Greyhound Motors, Ltd. v. Lambert, [1928] 1 K. B. 322; 91 J. P. 198; 42 Digest 855, 91).

Where return tickets were issued outside the prescribed distance which entitled the holders to return on any bus belonging to a member of an association of omnibus proprietors from within the prescribed distance, an omnibus picking up the holders of such tickets within the prescribed distance was held to be plying for hire (Armstrong v. Ogle, [1926] 2 K. B. 438; 90 J. P. 146; 42 Digest 854, 85). Where, however, the return ticket was available only on any bus belonging to the company by whom the ticket was issued, the case was held to fall within Sales v. Lake, supra, and the bus was held not to be plying for hire (Leonard v. Western Services, Ltd., [1927] 1 K. B. 702; 91 J. P. 18; 42 Digest 854, 86). All these cases were considered and explained in Griffin v. Grey Coaches, Ltd. (1928), 93 J. P. 61; 27 L. G. R. 39; 42 Digest 855, 92. In that case it was held that a charabanc was plying for hire where tickets were purchased at a booking office prior to the arrival of the vehicle, but at the time of such booking the proprietors had a vehicle available and by means of advertisements at the booking office solicited persons to ride in the vehicle. See also Att.-Gen. v. Sharp (1929), 45 T. L. R. 628; 27 L. G. R. 764; Digest Supp.

(b) As to what is a hackney carriage apart from any statutory definition, see Bateson v. Oddy (1874), 38 J. P. 598; 43 L. J. M. C. 131; 42 Digest 853, 79.

(c) As to what is a stage coach, see R. v. Ruscoe (1838), 8 Ad. & El. 386; 42 Digest 851, 56; Craik v. Wood, [1921] S. C. (J.) 27; 42 Digest 851, 59 i. Reference may also be made to Dennis v. Miles, [1924] 2 K. B. 399; 88 J. P. 105; 42 Digest 858, 115; Smith v. Mackintosh, [1926] S. C. (J.) 15; 42 Digest 851, 56 ii; Kirkby v. Minty, [1929] 2 K. B. 165; 93 J. P. 176; Digest Supp.; and M'Kee v. Weir, [1929] S. C. (J.) 14; Digest Supp.

(d) The proviso was held to apply to an omnibus (Cousins v. Stockbridge (1865), 30 J. P. 166). The licence here referred to was an excise licence, now abolished by the Revenue Act, 1869. But though no licence can now be obtained the law officers of the Crown had advised that the exemption remained. But see now the provisions of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, post, p. 4784. An ordinary omnibus running along a fixed route was held to be a hackney carriage within the meaning of the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, s. 4 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 577) (Hickman v. Birch (1889), 24 Q. B. D. 172; 54 J. P. 406; 39 Digest 240, 146).

Fee to be paid for licence.

39. For every such licence there shall be paid to the clerk of the commissioners, or other person appointed by them to receive the same, such sum as the commissioners direct, not exceeding five shillings (a).

(a) No fee is now payable in respect of the licensing of any vehicle (other than a tramcar to any county council, local or police authority (s. 14 (1), Roads Act, 1920, Vol. V., and 19 Halsbury's Statutes 98. As to the excise duty payable for hackney carriage licences, see Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1884, s. 3 (now revoked).

Persons applying for licence to sign a requisition.

40. Before any such licence is granted a requisition for the same, in such form as the commissioners from time to time provide for that purpose, shall be made and signed by the proprietor or one of the proprietors of the hackney carriage (a) in respect of which such licence is applied for; and in every such requisition shall be truly stated the name and surname and place of abode of the person applying for such licence, and of every proprietor or part proprietor of such carriage, or person concerned, either solely or in partnership with any other person, in the keeping, employing, or letting to hire of such carriage; and any person who, on applying for such licence, states in such requisition the name of any person who is not a proprietor or part proprietor of such carriage, or who is not concerned as aforesaid in the keeping, employing, or letting to hire of such carriage, and also any person who wilfully omits to specify truly in such requisition as aforesaid the name of any person who is a proprietor or part proprietor of such carriage, or who is concerned as aforesaid in the keeping, employing, or letting to hire of such carriage, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten pounds.

Section 40.
Penalty for omissions, etc. in requisition.

(a) This includes a tramcar (see the Tramways Act, 1870, s. 48, post, p. 4298), and an omnibus (Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4 (1), post, p. 4785), but not a light railway car, see note (c), ante, p. 4237. As to the liability of the registered proprietor of a hackney carriage for the negligence of the driver, see Bygraves v. Dicker, [1923] 2 K. B. 585; 129 L. T. 688; 34 Digest 35, 120.

41. In every such licence shall be specified the name and surname and place of abode of every person who is a proprietor or part proprietor of the hackney carriage in respect of which such licence is granted, or who is concerned, either solely or in partnership with any other person, in the keeping, employing, or letting to hire of any such carriage, and also the number of such licence which shall correspond with the number to be painted or marked on the plates to be fixed on such carriage, together with such other particulars as the commissioners think fit.

What shall be specified in the licences.

42. Every licence shall be made out by the clerk of the commissioners, and duly entered in a book to be provided by him for that purpose; and in such book shall be contained columns or places for entries to be made of every offence committed by any proprietor or driver or person attending such carriage; and any person may at any reasonable time inspect such book, without fee or reward.

Licences to be registered.

43. Every licence so to be granted shall be under the common seal of the commissioners, if incorporated, or, if not incorporated, shall be signed by two or more of the commissioners, and shall not include more than one carriage so licensed, and shall be in force for one year only from the day of the date of such licence, or until the next general licensing meeting, in case any general licensing day be appointed by the commissioners (a).

Licence to be in force for one year only.

(a) The licence may be for less than a year (Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 5, post, p. 4785).

44. So often as any person named in any such licence as the proprietor or one of the proprietors, or as being concerned, either solely or in partnership with any person, in the keeping (a), employing, or letting to hire of any such carriage, changes his place of abode, he shall, within seven days next after such change, give notice thereof in writing, signed by him, to the commissioners, specifying in such notice his new place of abode; and he shall at the same time produce such licence at the office of the commissioners, who shall by their clerk or some other officer, endorse thereon and sign a memorandum specifying the particulars of such change; and any person named in any such licence as aforesaid as the proprietor, or one of the proprietors, of any hackney carriage, or as being concerned as aforesaid, who changes his place of abode and neglects or wilfully omits to give notice of such change, or to produce such licence in order that such memorandum as

Notice to be given by proprietors of hackney carriages of any change of abode.

Section 44. aforesaid may be endorsed thereon, within the time and in the manner limited and directed by this or the special Act, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

(a) For the meaning of this word as used in the Revenue Act, 1869, s. 27 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 251), see London C. C. v. Fairbank, [1911] 2 K. B. 32; 75 J. P. 356; 39 Digest 239, 135.

Penalty for plying for hire without a licence.

45. If the proprietor or part proprietor of any carriage, or any person so concerned as aforesaid, permits the same to be used as a hackney carriage plying for hire within the prescribed distance without having obtained a licence as aforesaid for such carriage, or during the time that such licence is suspended as hereinafter provided, or if any person be found driving, standing, or plying for hire with any carriage within the prescribed distance for which such licence as aforesaid has not been previously obtained, or without having the number of such carriage corresponding with the number of the licence openly displayed on such carriage, every such person so offending shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings (a).

(a) Proceedings for a penalty under this section must be instituted in accordance with s. 251 of the P. H. A., 1875, the operation of which has been saved as regards Acts directed to be construed with the 1875 Act (see ante, p. 728). The director of a rival omnibus company is not a "person aggrieved" within that section so as to be able to institute proceedings for a penalty under the section in the text in relation to the bus of another company (Sheffield Corporation v. Kilsen, [1929] 2 K. B. 322; 93 J. P. 135; Digest Supp.). A person plying for hire with a licensed carriage cannot be convicted if in the course of such plying for hire he obtains a private contract for the hire of an unlicensed carriage (Cavill v. Amos (1900), 64 J. P. 309; 42 Digest 855, 89).

A railway company provided a cab-stand upon a piece of ground which was their private property subject to a public right of footway alongside it which was metalled and paved like an ordinary street, and formed the side approach to one of their stations:—Held (1) that the piece of ground was not a "street" within the meaning of s. 3 of this Act; and (2) that the driver of a carriage for which a licence had not been obtained by standing for hire upon the cab-stand, which was within the district, committed no offence against the latter part of s. 45 (Jones v. Short (1900), 64 J. P. 247; 69 L. J. Q. B. 473; 28 Digest 274, 127). See now, however, s. 76 of the P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., and 13 Halsbury's Statutes 1150, referred to in note (a), ante, p. 4236.

It was provided in a local Act that if the driver of any hackney carriage "shall be found standing or plying for hire" within the limits of the Act without a licence he should be liable to a penalty. There was no definition of "hackney carriage" in the Act. It was held that the words "hackney carriage" must be taken to mean a carriage exposed for hire to the public, whether standing in the public street or in a private yard (Bateson v. Oddy (1874), 38 J. P. 598; 43 L. J. M. C. 131; 42 Digest 853, 79). This case was cited in Jones v. Short, supra.

Under the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, an omnibus becomes a hackney carriage for any of the purposes of this Act, and an omnibus plying for hire within the prescribed limits without a licence is within this section, although it does not stand or ply for hire in a street (Birmingham and Midland Motor Omnibus Co. v. Thompson, [1918] 2 K. B. 105; 82 J. P. 213; 42 Digest 853, 76; Crack v. Holt (1927), 91 J. P. 36; 25 L. G. R. 114; 42 Digest 854, 82). See also Sales v. Lake and other cases cited in note (a) to s. 38, ante, p. 4237.

A carriage similar to a tramcar and used to carry passengers at separate fares over a light railway by virtue of Provisional Orders made under the Light Railways Act, 1896, is not a hackney carriage within the meaning of this section (Yorkshire (Woolen District) Electric Tramways, Ltd. v. Ellis, [1905] 1 K. B. 396; 69 J. P. 67; 42 Digest 853, 74). See also the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 3, post, p. 4784.

Drivers not to act without first obtaining a licence.

46. No person shall act as driver (a) of any hackney carriage licensed in pursuance of this or the special Act to ply for hire within the prescribed distance without first obtaining a licence from the commissioners, which licence shall be registered by the clerk to the commissioners, and a fee of one shilling shall be paid for the same; and every such licence shall be in force until the same is revoked, except during the time that the same may be suspended as after mentioned (b). Section 46.

(a) This includes the conductor of a tramcar (Tramways Act, 1870, s. 48, post, p. 4298), and of an omnibus (Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4 (2), post, p. 4785).

(b) The licence of the driver is only to be in force for one year. See P. H. A., 1875, s. 171, post. The local authority have a discretion as to granting a licence which must be properly exercised (R. v. Barry D. C. (1900), 16 T. L. R. 565; 42 Digest 856, 96). And they may require applicants to attend in person (Banton v. Davies, ante, p. 4236). There is the same right to appeal under this section as under s. 37; vide note (a) thereon, ante, p. 4236.

47. If any person acts as such driver (a) as aforesaid without having obtained such licence, or during the time that his licence is suspended, or if he lend or part with his licence, except to the proprietor of the hackney carriage, or if the proprietor of any such hackney carriage employ any person as the driver thereof who has not obtained such licence, or during the time that his licence is suspended, as hereinafter provided, every such driver and every such proprietor shall for every such offence respectively be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings. Penalty on drivers acting without licence, or proprietors employing unlicensed drivers.

(a) See note (a), to s. 46, supra.

48. In every case in which the proprietor of any such hackney carriage permits or employs any licensed person to act as the driver thereof, such proprietor shall cause to be delivered to him, and shall retain in his possession, the licence of such driver, while such driver remains in his employ; and in all cases of complaint, where the proprietor of a hackney carriage is summoned to attend before a justice, or to produce the driver, the proprietor so summoned shall also produce the licence of such driver, if he be then in his employ; and if any driver complained of be adjudged guilty of the offence alleged against him, such justice shall make an endorsement upon the licence of such driver, stating the nature of the offence and the amount of the penalty inflicted; and if any such proprietor neglect to have delivered to him and to retain in his possession the licence of any driver while such driver remains in his employ, or if he refuse or neglect to produce such licence as aforesaid, such proprietor shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings (a). Proprietor to retain licences of drivers, and to produce the same before justices on complaint.

(a) In a case under the Metropolitan Public Carriage Act, 1869, it was held that the entry of a person's name as "proprietor" on the register of licences was not conclusive evidence that such person was the owner of a taxicab (Kemp v. Elisha, [1918] 1 K. B. 228; 82 J. P. 81; 42 Digest 858, 111). As to the liability of the registered proprietor for the negligence of a driver, see Bygraves v. Dicker, [1923] 2 K. B. 585; 129 L. T. 688; 34 Digest 35, 120.

49. When any driver (a) leaves the service of the proprietor by whom he is employed without having been guilty of any misconduct, such proprietor shall forthwith return to such driver the licence belonging to him (b); but if such driver have been guilty of any misconduct, the proprietor shall not return his licence, but shall give him notice of the complaint which he intends to prefer against him, and shall forthwith summon such driver to appear before any justice to answer the said complaint; and such justice, having the necessary parties before him, shall inquire into and determine the matter of complaint, and if upon inquiry it appear that the licence of such driver has been improperly withheld, such justice shall direct the immediate re-delivery of such licence, and award such sum of money as he thinks proper to be paid by such proprietor to such driver by way of compensation. Proprietor to return licence to drivers except in case of misconduct.

(a) See note (a) to s. 46, supra.

(b) As to marking the licence, see Hurrell v. Ellis (1845), 2 C. B. 265; 15 L. J. C. P. 18; 42 Digest 852, 69; Rogers v. Macnamara (1853), 14 C. B. 27; 23 L. J. C. P. 1; 42 Digest 852, 70; Norris v. Birch, [1895] 1 Q. B. 639; 42 Digest 852, 73.

50. The commissioners may, upon the conviction for the second time of the proprietor or driver (a) of any such hackney carriage for any offence Revocation of licences of proprietors or drivers.

Section 50. under the provisions of this or the special Act, with respect to hackney carriages, or any byelaw made in pursuance thereof, suspend or revoke, as they deem right, the licence of any such proprietor or driver.

(a) This includes the conductor of a tramcar (Tramway Act, 1870, s. 48, post, p. 4298) and of an omnibus (Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4 (2), post, p. 4785).

Number of persons to be carried in a hackney carriage to be painted thereon.

51. No hackney carriage (a) shall be used or employed or let to hire, or shall stand or ply for hire, within the prescribed distance, unless the number of persons to be carried by such hackney carriage, in words at length, and in form following, (that is to say,) "To carry _____ persons," be painted on a plate placed on some conspicuous place on the outside of such carriage, and in legible letters, so as to be clearly distinguishable from the colour of the ground whereon the same are painted, one inch in length, and of a proportionate breadth; and the driver (b) of any such hackney carriage shall not be required to carry in or by such hackney carriage a greater number of persons than the number painted thereon.

(a) See note (a) to s. 40, ante, p. 4239, and Black v. Neilson, cited in the note to s. 34 of the Tramways Act, 1870, post, p. 4288.

(b) See note (a) to s. 50, supra.

Penalty for neglect to exhibit the number, or for refusal to carry the prescribed number.

52. If the proprietor of any hackney carriage permit the same to be used, employed, or let to hire, or if any person stand or ply for hire with such carriage, without having the number of persons to be carried thereby painted and exhibited in manner aforesaid, or if the driver (a) of any such hackney carriage refuse, when required by the hirer thereof, to carry in or by such hackney carriage the number of persons painted thereon, or any less number, every proprietor or driver so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

(a) See note (a) to s. 50, supra.

Penalty on driver for refusing to drive.

53. A driver of a hackney carriage standing at any of the stands for hackney carriages appointed by the commissioners, or in any street, who refuses or neglects, without reasonable excuse (a), to drive such carriage to any place (b) within the prescribed distance, or the distance to be appointed by any byelaw of the commissioners, not exceeding the prescribed distance, to which he is directed to drive by the person hiring or wishing to hire such carriage (c), shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings.

(a) The driver may refuse to carry persons suffering from a notifiable disease. See the P. H. A., 1936, s. 160, ante, p. 427.

(b) Place here means any place to which the driver can get admittance, although it is private property (Ex parte Kippins, [1897] 1 Q. B. 1; 60 J. P. 791; 42 Digest 859, 121).

(c) These words were held to include a chauffeur in the employ of a motor-car proprietor who requested the driver of a hackney carriage to execute an order which had been given to him but which he could not fulfil (Shepherd v. Hack (1917), 81 J. P. 210; 42 Digest 859, 122).

Penalty for demanding more than the sum agreed for.

54. If the proprietor or driver of any such hackney carriage (a), or if any other person on his behalf, agree beforehand with any person hiring such hackney carriage to take for any job a sum less than the fare (b) allowed by this or the special Act, or any byelaw made thereunder, such proprietor or driver shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings if he exact or demand for such job more than the fare so agreed upon.

(a) As to omnibuses and conductors of omnibuses, see Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4 (1), (2), post, p. 4785.

(b) As to omnibus fares, see Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, s. 4 (3), post, p. 4785.

Agreement to pay more than the legal fare.

55. No agreement whatever made with the driver, or with any person having or pretending to have the care of any such hackney carriage, for the payment of more than the fare allowed by any byelaw made under this or the special Act, shall be binding on the person making the same; and any such person may, notwithstanding such agreement, refuse, on discharging such hackney carriage, to pay any sum beyond the fare allowed as aforesaid: and if any person actually pay to the driver of any such hackney carriage, whether in pursuance of any such agreement or otherwise, any sum exceeding the fare to which such driver was entitled, the person paying the same shall be entitled, on complaint made against such driver before any justice of the peace, to recover back the sum paid beyond the proper fare, and moreover such driver shall be liable to a penalty for such exaction not exceeding the sum of forty shillings; and in default of the repayment by such driver of such excess of fare, or of payment of the said penalty, such justice shall forthwith commit such driver to prison, there to remain for any time not exceeding one month, unless the said excess of fare and the said penalty be sooner paid.

Section 55.

56. If the proprietor or driver of any such hackney carriage, or if any other person on his behalf, agree with any person to carry in or by such hackney carriage persons not exceeding in number the number so painted on such carriage as aforesaid, for a distance to be in the discretion of such proprietor or driver, and for a sum agreed upon, such proprietor or driver shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings if the distance which he carries such persons be under that to which they were entitled to be carried for the sum so agreed upon, according to the fare allowed by this or the special Act, or any byelaw made in pursuance thereof.

Agreements to carry passengers a discretionary distance for a fixed sum.

57. When any hackney carriage is hired and taken to any place, and the driver thereof is required by the hirer there to wait with such hackney carriage, such driver may demand and receive from such hirer his fare for driving to such place, and also a sum equal to the fare of such carriage for the period, as a deposit over and above such fare, during which he is required to wait as aforesaid, or if no fare for time be fixed by the byelaws, then the sum of one shilling and sixpence for every half hour during which he is, so required to wait, which deposit shall be accounted for by such driver when such hackney carriage is finally discharged by such hirer; and if any such driver who has received any such deposit as aforesaid refuses to wait as aforesaid, or goes away, or permits such hackney carriage to be driven or taken away without the consent of such hirer, before the expiration of the time for which such deposit was made, or if such driver on the final discharge of such hackney carriage refuse duly to account for such deposit, every such driver so offending shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings (a).

Deposit to be made for carriages required to wait.

(a) There is no summary remedy outside the metropolis similar to the London Cab Act, 1896 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 168), for what is called "bilking" a cabman.

58. Every proprietor or driver of any such hackney carriage (a) who is convicted of taking as a fare (b) a greater sum than is authorised by any byelaw (c) made under this or the special Act shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings, and such penalty may be recovered before one justice; and in the conviction of such proprietor or driver an order may be included for payment of the sum so overcharged, over and above the penalty and costs; and such overcharge shall be returned to the party aggrieved, . . . (d).

Penalty on proprietors, etc., convicted of overcharging.

(a) See note (a) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242.

(b) See note (b) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242.

(c) A byelaw made under a local Act prescribed fares chargeable by drivers of hackney carriages and distinguished between carriages drawn by one and two horses respectively. Special regulations were subsequently made which applied the byelaws and Acts of Parliament respecting hackney carriages to motor cabs, and prescribed a scale of charges for motor cabs. A driver of a motor cab demanded and was paid the sum registered by his taximeter, which was in accordance with the scale of charges under the regulations, but in excess of that under the byelaw. On an appeal by the driver from a conviction for breach of the byelaw it was held that the byelaw did not apply to motor cabs and the conviction was quashed (Gibson v. Brown (1909), 31 M. C. C. 3). As to the right to charge a fare in excess of that authorised by the byelaw where the journey takes the driver outside the limits of the special Act, see Ely v. Godfrey (1922), 86 J. P. 82; 20 L. G. R. 268; 42 Digest 859, 126. An infant in arms is not a person in respect of whom an extra payment for an additional person can be demanded under byelaws (Kemp v. Lubbock, [1920] 1 K. B. 253; 83 J. P. 270; 42 Digest 860, 130).

Note to
Section 58.

(d) The remainder of this section permitting the party aggrieved to give evidence in proof of the offence was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1894, as no longer necessary.

Penalty for permitting persons to ride without consent of hirer.

59. Any proprietor or driver of any such hackney carriage which is hired who permits or suffers any person to be carried in or upon or about such hackney carriage during such hire, without the express consent of the person hiring the same, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings.

No unauthorised person to act as driver.

60. No person authorised by the proprietor of any hackney carriage to act as driver of such carriage shall suffer any other person to act as driver of such carriage without the consent of the proprietor thereof; and no person, whether licensed or not, shall act as driver of any such carriage without the consent of the proprietor; and any person so suffering another person to act as driver, and any person so acting as driver without such consent as aforesaid, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every such offence.

Penalty on drivers for drunkenness, furious driving
etc.

61. If the driver or any other person having or pretending to have the care of any such hackney carriage be intoxicated while driving, or if any such driver or other person by wanton and furious driving, or by any other wilful misconduct, injure or endanger any person in his life, limbs, or property, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds; and in default of payment thereof the justices before whom he is convicted of such offence may commit him to prison, there to remain for any time not exceeding two months (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242. Persons convicted under s. 61 of being intoxicated while driving a hackney carriage may either in addition to or in substitution for any other penalty be ordered to enter into a recognisance with or without sureties to be of good behaviour under s. 3 of the Licensing Act, 1902 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 964).

Penalty in case of carriages being unattended at places of public resort.

62. If the driver of any such hackney carriage (a) leave it in any street or at any place of public resort or entertainment, whether it be hired or not, without some one proper to take care of it, any constable may drive away such hackney carriage and deposit it, and the horse or horses harnessed thereto, at some neighbouring livery stable or other place of safe custody; and such driver shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings for such offence; and in default of payment of the said penalty upon conviction, and of the expenses of taking and keeping the said hackney carriage and horse or horses, the same, together with the harness belonging thereto, or any of them, shall be sold by order of the justice before whom such conviction is made, and after deducting from the produce of such sale the amount of the said penalty, and of all costs and expenses, as well of the proceedings before such justice as of the taking, keeping, and sale of the said hackney carriage, and of the said horse or horses and harness, the surplus (if any) of the said produce shall be paid to the proprietor of such hackney carriage.

(a) See note (a) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242.

Compensation for damage done by driver.

63. In every case in which any hurt or damage has been caused to any person or property as aforesaid by the driver of any carriage (a) let to hire, the justice before whom such driver has been convicted may direct that the proprietor of such carriage shall pay such a sum, not exceeding five pounds, as appears to the justice a reasonable compensation for such hurt or damage; and every proprietor who pays any such compensation as aforesaid may recover the same from the driver, and such compensation shall be recoverable from such proprietor, and by him from such driver, as damages (b). Section 63.

(a) See note (a) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242.

(b) Compensation accepted under this section is a bar to a subsequent action for the same damage. See Wright v. London General Omnibus Co. (1877), 2 Q. B. D. 271; 41 J. P. 486; 34 Digest 134, 1043. Apart from this provision the proprietor of a cab may be responsible for damages caused by the negligence of the driver, the relationship between them being generally that of master and servant. See Venables v. Smith (1876), 2 Q. B. D. 279; 41 J. P. 551; 34 Digest 141, 1102; Rayner v. Mitchell (1877), 2 C. P. D. 357; 25 W. R. 633; 34 Digest 140, 1099; King v. Spurr (1881), 8 Q. D. B. 104; 46 J. P. 198; 34 Digest 35, 116; Playle v. Kew (1886), 2 T. L. R. 849; 34 Digest 141, 1103; King v. London Improved Cab Co. (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 281; 53 J. P. 788; 34 Digest 35, 117; Keen v. Henry, [1894] 1 Q. B. 292; 58 J. P. 262; 34 Digest 141, 1105; Gates v. Bill, [1902] 2 K. B. 38; 34 Digest 35, 119; Bygraves v. Dicker, [1923] 2 K. B. 585; 34 Digest 35, 120. As to the master's responsibility for the negligence of a volunteer called in to drive in case of emergency, see Guilliam v. Twist, [1895] 2 Q. B. 84; 59 J. P. 484; 34 Digest 142, 1117, or for that of a servant not acting within the scope of his authority, e.g., a conductor driving an omnibus to its starting place, see Beard v. London General Omnibus Co., [1900] 2 Q. B. 530; 34 Digest 142, 1113; Ricketts v. Thomas Tilling, Ltd. (1913), 30 T. L. R. 132; on appeal, [1915] 1 K. B. 644; 34 Digest 142, 1114.

64. Any driver of any hackney carriage (a) who suffers the same to stand for hire across any street or alongside of any other hackney carriage, or who refuses to give way, if he conveniently can, to any other carriage, or who obstructs or hinders the driver of any other carriage in taking up or setting down any person into or from such other carriage, or who wrongfully in a forcible manner prevents or endeavours to prevent the driver of any other hackney carriage from being hired, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings. Penalty on drivers obstructing other drivers.

(a) See note (a) to s. 61, ante, p. 4244.

65. If the driver of any such hackney carriage (a) be summoned or brought before any justice to answer any complaint or information touching or concerning any offence alleged to have been committed by such driver against the provisions of this or the special Act, or any byelaw made thereunder, and such complaint or information be afterwards withdrawn or quashed or dismissed, or if such driver be acquitted of the offence charged against him, the said justice, if he think fit, may order the complainant or informant to pay to the said driver such compensation for his loss of time in attending the said justice touching or concerning such complaint or information as to the said justice seems reasonable; and in default of payment of such compensation the said justice may commit such complainant or informant to prison for any time not exceeding one month, unless the same shall be sooner paid. Compensation to drivers attending to answer complaints not substantiated.

(a) See note (a) to s. 61, ante, p. 4244.

66. If any person refuse to pay on demand to any proprietor or driver of any hackney carriage the fare (a) allowed by this or the special Act, or any byelaw made thereunder, such fare may, together with costs, be recovered before one justice as a penalty (b). Fare unpaid may be recovered as a penalty.

(a) See notes (a) and (b) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242.

(b) The amount of the fare is recoverable only as a civil debt under ss. 6 and 35 of the S. J. A., 1879 (R. v. Kerswill (Torquay J.J.), [1895] 1 Q. B. 1; 59 J. P. 342; 42 Digest 859, 124).

67. Any person using any hackney carriage (a) plying under a licence granted by virtue of this or the special Act, who wilfully injures the same, shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, carriage. Penalty and compensation for damaging carriage.

Section 67. and shall also pay to the proprietor of such hackney carriage reasonable satisfaction for the damage sustained by the same; and such satisfaction shall be ascertained by the justices before whom the conviction takes place, and shall be recovered by the same means as the penalty.

(a) See note (a) to s. 54, ante, p. 4242.

Byelaws for regulating hackney
carriages.

68. The commissioners may from time to time (subject to the restrictions of this and the special Act) make byelaws for all or any of the purposes following; (that is to say,) (a)

For regulating the conduct of the proprietors and drivers (b) of hackney carriages plying within the prescribed distance in their several employments (c), and determining whether such drivers shall wear any and what badges, and for regulating the hours within which they may exercise their calling :

For regulating the manner in which the number of each carriage, corresponding with the number of its licence, shall be displayed :

For regulating the number of persons to be carried by such hackney carriages, and in what manner such number is to be shown on such carriage, and what number of horses or other animals is to draw the same, and the placing of check strings to the carriages, and the holding of the same by the driver, and how such hackney carriages are to be furnished or provided (d) :

For fixing the stands (e) of such hackney carriages, and the distance to which they may be compelled to take passengers, not exceeding the prescribed distance :

For fixing the rates or fares, as well for time as distance, to be paid for such hackney carriages within the prescribed distance, and for securing the due publication of such fares (f) :

For securing the safe custody and re-delivery of any property accidentally left in hackney carriages, and fixing the charges to be made in respect thereof.

(a) Model byelaws have been issued from the Ministry of Health under this section.

(b) A corporation made the following byelaw under a local Act (not requiring confirmation by a Minister): "The owner of every motor hackney carriage shall have fitted on such carriage an efficient lamp solely for the purpose of illuminating the dial of the taximeter, whenever it is necessary, in such a manner that the amount of fare recorded can be clearly seen from the inside of the carriage at all times, and every driver shall see that the lamp is properly lighted and adjusted and so kept." On a summons against a driver for breach of this byelaw, he was discharged upon the ground that the byelaw was invalid for uncertainty and unreasonableness, since it imposed two duties, one on the owner and one on the driver: that although the duty on the owner was to fit an efficient lamp for illuminating the dial "whenever it was necessary," these words did not appear in the part of the byelaw relating to the driver, and further that the byelaw did not contain adequate information as to the driver's duties. The Divisional Court held that the words "whenever it was necessary" applied both to the owner and the driver; that it required the lamp to be fitted by the owner and kept alight by the driver; that it was not unreasonable that the light should be solely for the purpose of lighting the dial, and therefore that the byelaw was valid (Dunning v. Maher (1912), 76 J. P. 255; 106 L. T. 846; 38 Digest 165, 103).

(c) A byelaw prohibiting the plying for hire in any street or place within the district (except on one of the stands fixed by the local board) was held to be valid though the actual locality of the stand was not set out in it. A driver on the sea beach passed a stand, and then got off his carriage and took up a fare:—Held, that he had been properly convicted of a breach of the byelaw (Blackpool L. B. of Health v. Bennett (1859), 4 H. & N. 127; 23 J. P. 198; 42 Digest 861, 136). For some years, however, the Local Government Board and Ministry of Health have declined to confirm byelaws as to stands and stopping places under this power which did not "fix" the actual situations, holding that, under modern conditions of traffic, the owners of vehicles and of adjoining property are alike entitled to the opportunity given by s. 184 of the P. H. Act, 1875 (now s. 250 of the L. G. Act, 1933, ante, p. 1104), of considering the stands, etc., before they are made operative—a view supported by the careful provision made by Parliament for antecedent publicity when a parking place is fixed under s. 68 of the P. H. Act, 1925, Vol. V., post.

A byelaw provided that "a person shall not in any public thoroughfare in the district tout for a hackney carriage." The respondent stood on a triangular piece of land at a street corner touting for hackney carriages, having received permission from the freeholders of the land to stand on it for the purpose of his business. The land was always open for the public to pass over, and the street (including the piece of land) had been declared a public highway. It was held that the fact that the piece of land in question belonged to private persons did not prevent his act from being an offence against the byelaw (Dereham v. Strickland (1911), 75 J. P. 300; 104 L. T. 820; 42 Digest 862, 144). As to loitering, see Fairfoul v. Somerville (1895), 23 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J. C.) 6; Murphy v. Neilson (1901), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 77. The following byelaw was held not to be ultra vires under similar words in the Edinburgh Municipal and Police Act, 1879, viz., "the driver of a hackney carriage shall not stand with the same longer than is necessary for taking up or setting down passengers on any part of the public streets not allowed as a hackney carriage stand except at the dismissal of theatres, assemblies, public meetings, and the like." And it was held that a driver was properly convicted under it, who waited outside an hotel for about an hour in pursuance of an arrangement between his employers and the hotel manager, but without being hired by anyone wishing to take the cab (Mackenzie v. Somerville (1900), 3 F. (Ct. of Sess.) (J.) 4).

(d) Byelaws made under this section prior to the introduction of motor vehicles provided in one part of a byelaw that no greater number of passengers should be conveyed in "any omnibus" than was there indicated, the subsequent part of the byelaw and other byelaws contained references to horse omnibuses, but it was held that the provision relating to "any omnibus" applied to motor omnibuses (Neal v. Guy, [1928] 2 K. B. 451; 92 J. P. 119; 42 Digest 858, 116). See also as to proceedings under the Railway Passenger Duty Act, 1842, for the overcrowding of motor omnibuses as stage carriages (Dennis v. Miles, [1924] 2 K. B. 399; 88 J. P. 105; 42 Digest 858, 115; Kirkby v. Minty, [1929] 2 K. B. 165; 93 J. P. 176; Digest Supp.; and M'Kee v. Weir, [1929] S. C. (J.) 14; Digest Supp.).

(e) Although the provisions of this Act now apply to hackney carriages standing at railway stations, a local authority cannot fix the site of a stand in any railway station or railway premises or in any yard belonging to a railway company except with the consent of that company (s. 76, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post). In R. v. Rawlinson (1826), 6 B. & C. 23; 5 L. J. (o.s.) M. C. 16; 42 Digest 860, 133, it was held that the commissioners may remove a stand altogether if it be an obstruction, but this decision turned on a local Act empowering them to "direct and regulate" stands. Under the general law, they can remove a stand by "fixing," by byelaws, other stands (or repealing a byelaw which has fixed the first-named stand) irrespective of obstruction. As to stands for public service vehicles, see s. 90 (1), Road Traffic Act, 1930, post.

(f) See note (c) to s. 53, ante, p. 4243. Ely v. Godfrey (1922), 86 J. P. 82; 20 L. G. R. 268; 42 Digest 859, 126; and Kemp v. Lubbock, [1920] 1 K. B. 253; 83 J. P. 270; 42 Digest 860, 130. Tramway fares cannot be regulated by the refusal of licences until the tramway company adopt fares satisfactory to the local authority (R. v. Farnborough U. D. C., Ex parte Aldershot District Traction Co., Ltd., [1920] 1 K. B. 234; 83 J. P. 290; 42 Digest 857, 100). See this case commented on in R. v. Minister of Transport, Ex parte H. C. Motor Works, Ltd., [1927] 2 K. B. 401; 91 J. P. 83; 42 Digest 857, 101.

THE BURIAL ACT, 1857.

(20 & 21 VICT. c. 81) (a).

An Act to amend the Burial Acts.

[25th August, 1857.]

(a) The short title of this Act is as enacted by the Short Titles Act, 1896. The following sections are such as concern the appointment and duties of local authorities as burial boards. It is of course impossible to include in the Appendix all the provisions of the Burial Acts, for which reference should be made to Brooke Little's Law of Burials, 3rd edition. See also the Burial Act, 1860, post, p. 4252. See also the P. H. A., 1875, s. 343, post.

4. In case it appear to her Majesty in Council, upon the petition of the local board of health of any district established under the Public Health Act, or upon the petition of any commissioners elected by the ratepayers and acting under or by virtue of the powers of any local Act of Parliament for the improvement of any town, parish, or borough, stating that the district of such local board of health or of such commissioners is co-extensive with a local board of health or improvement commissioners may, by order in council, be constituted a burial board.

Section 4. district for which it is proposed to provide a burial ground, and that no burial board has been appointed for such district, and that an Order in Council has been made for closing all or any of the burial grounds within the said district, it shall be lawful for her Majesty, with the advice of her Privy Council, in case her Majesty see fit so to do, to order that such local board shall be a burial board for the district of such local board, or that such commissioners shall be a burial board for the district of such commissioners; and thereupon such local board or such commissioners, as the case may be, shall be a burial board for such district accordingly; and the powers and provisions of the Acts hereinbefore mentioned (except the provisions relating to the constitution or appointment and resignation of members of burial boards), and the provisions herein contained, shall extend to the district of such board, and to such board, or to the district of such commissioners, and to such commissioners, and to any burial ground and places for the reception of the bodies of the dead previously to interment which may be provided by such board or by such commissioners, in like manner as to any parish or parishes and the burial board thereof, and any burial ground and any such places as aforesaid provided by such last-mentioned board, save that no approval, sanction, or authorisation of any vestry shall be requisite: Provided always, that notice of such petition, and of the time when it shall please her Majesty to order the same to be taken into consideration by the Privy Council, shall be published in the London Gazette, and in one of the newspapers usually circulating in the district of such local board or of such commissioners, one month at least before such petition is so considered: Provided also, that this enactment shall not apply to any such district as aforesaid exclusively consisting of the whole or part of one corporate borough within the meaning of the Public Health Act, 1848 (a).

11 & 12 Vict.
c. 63.

(a) For "local boards of health" and "improvement commissioners" read now "urban district councils."

Burial board may be established for a district not maintaining its own poor, and which has had no separate burial ground.

5. The vestry, or meeting in the nature of a vestry, of any parish, new parish, township, or other district not separately maintaining its own poor, and which has had no separate burial ground, may appoint a burial board; and such vestry or meeting, and the burial board appointed by it, shall exercise and have all the powers which they might have exercised and had under the said Acts and this Act if such parish, new parish, township, or district had had a separate burial ground before the passing of the said Act of the eighteenth and nineteenth years of her Majesty: Provided always, that all the powers of any other vestry or meeting and burial board, if any, shall then cease and determine, so far as relates to such parish, new parish, township, or district as aforesaid; and until a burial ground shall be so provided as aforesaid and consecrated (a) for any new parish or district created or to be created pursuant to the provisions of the New Parishes Act, 1843, the New Parishes Act, 1844, and the New Parishes Act, 1856, or any or either of them, and to which the said Acts, or any or either of them, may apply, the incumbent of such new parish or district, (if any burial ground has been or shall be provided under the herein recited Acts for the burial of the dead, or any or either of them, for any parish or parishes out of rates to which such new parish or district, or any part thereof, shall have contributed or contribute or be liable,) shall, with respect to the burial in such last-mentioned burial ground of the remains of the parishioners or inhabitants of such new parish or district, or of such part thereof as shall have contributed or contribute as aforesaid, as the case may be, perform the same duties, and have the same rights, privileges, and authorities, and be entitled to the same fees (a), and also the clerk and sexton of such new parish or district shall, when necessary, respectively perform the same duties, and be entitled to the same fees (a), in respect of such burials, as if the said burial ground were exclusively the

27. No resolution or proceeding of any vestry, or meeting in the nature of a vestry, for the purposes of the said recited Acts and this Act, or any of them, shall be void or voidable by reason of any defect or irregularity of such vestry or meeting, or in the proceedings thereat, unless notice in writing of such defect or irregularity or error shall have been given at such vestry or meeting, or within seven days after the day of the holding thereof, to the churchwardens or other persons to whom it belongs to call meetings of such vestry, or such meeting in the nature of a vestry, who shall thereupon call another meeting for the purpose of considering the previous resolution or proceeding or the matter thereof ; and no such resolution and proceeding made or taken at any such vestry, or meeting in the nature of a vestry, before the passing of this Act, which shall not have been objected to by notice in writing to such churchwardens or persons as aforesaid, shall be deemed invalid by reason of any such defect, irregularity or error.

Resolutions, etc. of vestries act to be void by reason of irregularity of notices, etc.

28. In the construction of this Act the expression "burial board" shall mean a burial board constituted under the hereinbefore recited Acts (a) or any of them, or under this Act.

Meaning of "burial board."

(a) These are the Burial Act, 1852 ; the Burial Act, 1853 ; the Burial Act, 1854 ; the Burial Act, 1855.

30. The hereinbefore recited Acts and this Act shall be construed together as one Act.

Recited Acts and this as one.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1858.

(21 & 22 VICT. c. 97) (a).

An Act for vesting in the Privy Council certain Powers for the Protection of the Public Health. [2nd August, 1858.]

1. [Powers of General Board of Health under 18 & 19 Vict. c. 116, added to those of the Privy Council] (b).

(a) This Act was made perpetual by the Public Health Act, 1859.

(b) Sections 1, 3, 5, and 6 are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 1), the powers and duties of the Privy Council under those sections having been transferred to the L. G. B. by the Local Government Board Act, 1871, and now to the Minister of Health by the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, s. 3, post.

2. [Certain powers in relation to Public Vaccination vested in the Privy Council] (a).

(a) Repealed by the Vaccination Act, 1867, s. 1.

3. [Privy Council may direct inquiries] (a).

(a) See note (b) to s. 1, supra.

Section 4.

Privy Council to appoint medical officer,
etc.

4. The powers of appointing and removing a medical officer, vested in the General Board of Health under the General Board of Health Continuance Act, 1855, shall, upon the discontinuance of that board, be vested in the Privy Council (a); . . . and the Privy Council may also from time to time employ such other persons as they deem necessary for the purposes of this Act; and there shall be paid to the medical officer such salary not exceeding fifteen hundred pounds per annum, and to such other persons such remuneration and allowances, as the Treasury may direct; and such salary, remuneration, and allowances shall be paid out of such moneys as shall be provided by Parliament (b).

(a) The next clause of this section as it originally stood was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1878.

(b) Section 4 is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875, in so far as it relates to the salary of the medical officer. The medical officer of the Privy Council was attached to the L. G. B., by the Local Government Board Act, 1871, s. 6 (see the Public Health Act, 1872, s. 38), and was transferred to the Minister of Health by the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, s. 6, post, p. 5194.

5. [Medical officer to report annually as to the execution of this Act] (a).

(a) See note (b) to s. 1, ante, p. 4249.

6. [Reports to be laid before Parliament] (a).

(a) See note (b) to s. 1, ante, p. 4249.

Exercise of powers vested in the Privy Council, etc.

7. All powers vested in the Privy Council by this Act may be exercised by any three or more of the lords and others of the Privy Council, . . . (a) and all orders, regulations, directions, and acts of the Privy Council under this Act shall be sufficiently made and signified by a written or printed document, signed by one of the clerks of the Privy Council, or such officer as may be appointed by the Privy Council in this behalf; and all orders, regulations, directions, and acts made or signified by any written or printed document purporting to be so signed shall be deemed to have been duly made, issued, and done by the Privy Council; and every such document shall be received in evidence in all courts and before all justices and others without proof of the authority or signature of such clerk or other officer, or other proof whatsoever, until it be shown that such document was not duly signed by the authority of the Privy Council (b).

(a) Certain words are here repealed by the Board of Education Act, 1899, s. 1 (3).

(b) See also the Documentary Evidence Acts, 1868 and 1882, and Tyrell v. Cole (1919), 83 J. P. 53.

8. [Proceedings for penalties under Vaccination Acts] (a).

(a) Repealed by the Public Health Act, 1859.

Short title.

9. This Act may be cited as "The Public Health Act, 1858" . . .

THE PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS ACT, 1860.

(23 & 24 VICT. c. 30.)

An Act to enable a Majority of Two Thirds of the Ratepayers of any Parish or District, duly assembled, to rate their District in aid of Public Improvements for general benefit within their District (a).

 r maintaining the same, and for removal of any nuisances or obstruction o the free use and enjoyment thereof, and for improving any open walk or ootpath, or placing convenient seats, or shelters from rain, and for other urchases of a similar nature.

(a) This Act does not affect sanitary authorities other than those of boroughs, and it s in fact practically superseded by later enactments. It may, however, be adopted by ny rural parish. See s. 7 of the L. G. A., 1894.

It will be observed from s. 164 of the P. H. A., 1875, and s. 8 of the L. G. A., 1894, that district and parish councils may provide recreation grounds under those provisions. There may be some value in the distinct provision as to seats in open walks.

(b) See the definition of "parish" in R. and V. A., 1925, s. 68 (4), ante, p. 2234.

 opulation of five hundred or upwards (according to the last account for the ime taken by authority of Parliament), in the same manner as the Baths and Washhouses Act, 1846, may be adopted in such borough or parish (a). 9 & 10 Vict.
 c. 74.

(a) The Baths and Washhouses Act, 1846, is no longer an adoptive Act (see ante, p. 1193).

 visions of the Baths and Washhouses Act, 1846, for the purposes below specified, applicable in the like cases where that Act is adopted, shall take effect for the purposes of this Act, viz.: All the provisions concerning—

1. The authority by which and the manner in which the Act is to be carried into execution ;
2. The mode of providing the expenses of carrying the Act into execution (excluding the provisions for borrowing money for such expenses) ;
3. The appointment (in the case of a parish) of commissioners, the tenure of office and procedure, and the audit of their accounts ;
4. The powers of the councils and commissioners for the purposes of the Act (except the powers of borrowing money).

4. After the adoption of this Act it shall be lawful for the ratepayers in Ratepayers, after notice given, to rate parishes.
 meeting assembled to rate such parish to a separate rate, to be called the "Parish Improvement Rate"; provided, that such rate be agreed to by a majority of at least two-thirds (a) . . . of the ratepayers assembled at such meeting (b).

(a) The words "in value" here following were repealed by s. 89 of the L. G. A., 1894.

(b) The rate will now be raised as an additional item of the general rate under s. 2 (5),
 R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2122.

5. Corporate bodies shall be allowed to attend meetings to be held as Corporate in amount not less than at least one half of the estimated cost of such proposed improvement shall have been raised, given, or collected by private subscription or donation.

7. Such rate shall not exceed sixpence in the pound (a).

Limit of rate.

(a) The maximum limit of the rate is increased to 8d. by s. 75 of the L. G. A., 1929, post, subject to the provisions of that section.

Section 4.

THE BURIAL ACT, 1860.

(23 & 24 VICT. c. 64)

An Act to make further provision for the Expenses of Local Boards of Health and Improvement Commissioners acting as Burial Boards.

[6th August, 1860.]

[Ss. 1—3 were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, and the equivalent provisions are now contained in ibid., ss. 188, 219, ante, pp. 1015, 1057.]

Consent of Secretary of State to appointment of burial board in certain cases.

4. Where any parish or place has been divided into two or more parts or districts for all or any ecclesiastical purposes, and any one of such parts has a separate burial ground, it shall not be lawful for the vestry or meeting in the nature of a vestry for such entire parish or place to appoint a burial board without the approval of one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State (a).

(a) See R. v. Walcot, St. Swilhin, Overseers (1862), 2 B. & S. 571; 26 J. P. 548; 7 Digest 541, 209. By s. 4 of the Burial Act, 1900, post, p. 4992, the powers and duties of the Secretary of State under this section were transferred to the L. G. B. and are now vested in the Minister of Health under the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, s. 3, post, p. 5191. For the mode of obtaining approval of the appointment of a burial board, see s. 1 of the Burial Act, 1871.

THE LANDS CLAUSES CONSOLIDATION ACTS AMENDMENT ACT, 1860.

(23 & 24 VICT. c. 106) (a).

An Act to amend the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts, 1845, in regard to Sales and Compensation for land by way of a Rentcharge, Annual Feu Duty or Ground Annual, and to enable her Majesty's principal Secretary of State for the War Department to avail himself of the Powers and Provisions contained in the same Acts.

[20th August, 1860.]

Part of section 10 of recited Act repealed.

1. So much of the tenth section of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, as provides that, save in the case of lands of which any person is seised in fee or entitled to dispose absolutely for their own benefit, the consideration to be paid for any lands, or for any damage done thereto, shall be in a gross sum, is hereby repealed (b).

(a) See the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4102; and the Lands Clauses (Umpire) Act, 1883, post, p. 4664. The collective title of the Acts is now the Lands Clauses Acts.

(b) This section was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1875, but it is retained here to explain the repeal effected by it. See the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 10, ante, p. 4109.

Powers in 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, ss. 10, 11, to sell lands for a rentcharge, and to recover rentcharge, extended to all sales, etc. where parties are under disability.

2. The power to sell and convey lands in consideration of an annual rentcharge provided by the tenth section of the said Act, and the power to recover such rentcharge provided by the eleventh section of the said Act, are hereby extended to all cases of sale and purchase or compensation under the said Act where the parties interested in such sale, or entitled to such compensation, are under any disability or incapacity, and have no power to sell or convey such lands, or to receive such compensation, except under the provisions of the said Act (a).

(a) See these sections, ante, p. 4109; s. 3 relates to Scotland only. As to the removal of certain disabilities by the Property Acts of 1925, see note (a) to s. 7 of the 1845 Act at p. 4108, ante.

* * * * *

4. In every case of such sale or compensation by any parties other than parties seised in fee or entitled to dispose absolutely of the lands so sold or damaged, the amount of such rentcharge, . . . hereinbefore mentioned, shall be settled in the manner directed in the ninth section of each of the said Acts respectively: Provided, that the amount of such annual rentcharge, . . . shall in no case be less than one-fourth part greater than the net annual rent received by the parties beneficially interested in such lands, upon an average of the last seven years; and that a charge of five per cent. on the gross sum estimated or fixed as aforesaid by way of compensation for any damage that may be done to the said lands shall in all such cases be added to and shall form a part of the said rentcharge, . . . and that no fine, . . . premium, or other consideration in the nature thereof, shall be paid or taken in respect of the lands so sold or damaged, other than the annual rentcharge . . . made payable for such lands: Provided also, that such rentcharge shall be and remain upon and for the same uses, trusts, and purposes as those upon which the rents and profits of the land so conveyed stood settled or assured at or immediately before the conveyance thereof, and shall be a first charge on the tolls and rates, if any, payable under the special Act.

Section 4.

Amount of rentcharge to be settled in manner directed in 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18, s. 9, etc. (a).

(a) See the section, ante, p. 4108. Words relating to Scotland only are omitted from this and the following section.

The Law of Property Act, 1922, s. 39, provided that the power conferred by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 10 (ante, p. 4109), to sell and convey land in consideration of an annual rentcharge shall extend to a tenant for life in like manner in all respects as if he had been entitled to dispose of the settled land absolutely, and accordingly s. 4 of the above Act shall not apply to such a sale. That section is, however, repealed by the Settled Land Act, 1925, which does not contain an identical provision though the same effect results from the combined operation of ss. 38 and 39, ibid. (17 Halsbury's Statutes 877, 878), and s. 9 and Sched. IX. of the Law of Property (Amendment) Act, 1924 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 169, 173).

5. In case the promoters of the undertaking shall be empowered, by any Act or Acts relating thereto, to be passed after the passing of this Act, to borrow money to an amount not exceeding a prescribed sum, then in the event of the promoters of the undertaking agreeing at any time after the passing of this Act with any person, under the powers of this Act and of either of the Acts hereinbefore mentioned, or of either of the said Acts only, for the purchase of any lands in consideration of the payment of a rentcharge . . . the powers of the promoters of the undertaking for borrowing money shall be reduced by an amount equal to twenty years purchase of any rentcharge, . . . so for the time being payable.

If lands are purchased by way of rentcharge, the borrowing powers of the promoters shall be reduced proportionally.

6. [Purchase of lands by municipal corporations] (a).

(a) The whole of this section is repealed, except as to Ireland, by the S. L. R. A., 1892, having been superseded as to England by certain provisions of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, Part V.

* * * * *

8. This Act shall be read and construed as part of the said Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, . . . in all matters in which it relates to the said Act . . . and in citing this Act in other Acts of Parliament, and in legal instruments, it shall be sufficient to use the expression of "The Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts Amendment Act, 1860."

This Act and 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18 to be construed together.

Short title.

Section 1.

THE TOWN GARDENS PROTECTION ACT, 1863.

(26 & 27 VICT. c. 13) (a).

An Act for the Protection of certain Garden or Ornamental Grounds in Cities and Boroughs. [4th May, 1863.]

Gardens in squares, etc. may be taken charge of by the Metropolitan Board of Works or other corporate authority, etc.

1. Where in any city or borough any enclosed garden or ornamental ground has been set apart otherwise than by the revocable permission of the owner thereof in any public square, crescent, circus, street, or other public place, for the use or enjoyment of the inhabitants thereof, and where the trustees, commissioners, or other body appointed for the care of the same have neglected to keep it in proper order, or where such garden or ground has not been vested in or placed under the management of any trustees, commissioners, or other body for the care of the same, and from the want of such care, or from any other cause, has been neglected, the Metropolitan Board of Works (b), where the same is in any place under their jurisdiction, except the city of London (where the provisions of this Act shall be carried into effect by the corporation of the said city), and the corporate authorities in any other city or borough, shall take charge of the same, putting up a notice or notices to that effect in such garden or ornamental ground, and, if after due inquiry the person entitled to any estate of freehold in the same cannot be found, or if it shall be vested in any person by whom it is held, subject to any condition or reservation for keeping the same as and for a garden or pleasure ground, or that the same shall not be built upon, but not otherwise, shall cause any buildings or other encroachment made therein within the period of twenty years before the passing of this Act to be removed, and (if requested by a majority of two-thirds of the owners and of the occupiers of the houses surrounding the same) shall vest such garden or ornamental ground in a committee consisting of not more than nine nor fewer than three of the rated inhabitants of such houses to be chosen annually by such inhabitants, in order that the same may be kept as a garden or ornamental ground for the use of such inhabitants; and the vestry or board of any and every parish or district within which the same or any part thereof is situate shall from time to time cause to be raised the sums required by such committee for defraying the expenses of the maintenance and management of such enclosed garden or ornamental ground, or of such part thereof as is situate within their parish or district, by an addition to the general rate to be assessed on the occupiers of such houses; or if the said owners and occupiers shall not agree as aforesaid to undertake the charge of such garden or ornamental ground, the Metropolitan Board of Works or corporate authority aforesaid shall, within six months after the notice hereinbefore mentioned shall have been put up within the same, or within such further time as the said board or authority may think it expedient to allow for such agreement to be come to, vest the same in such vestries or boards, who shall thenceforth take charge of and maintain the same as an open place or street in such manner as shall appear to them most advantageous to the public, subject to the approval of the Metropolitan Board of Works or corporate authority, as the case may require; saving and always reserving to every person and persons, his and their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, all such estate, right, title, and interest, as he, she, or they would or ought to have had and enjoyed of, in, to, from, or out of the gardens and grounds aforesaid in case this Act had not passed.

(a) The short title of this Act is as enacted by the Short Titles Act, 1896. It is not absolutely incorporated by any of the P. H. A., but is referred to in the notes to s. 164 of the

P. H. A., 1875, post; and see Tulk v. Metropolitan Board of Works, there cited. The preamble and clause of enactment of this Act were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 1).
 (b) Now the London C. C., see L. G. A., 1888, s. 40 (8).

Note to
Section 1.

Protection from encroachment.

2 . . . (a). Where any right to require that any garden or ornamental ground as aforesaid be kept and maintained as such, or that the same shall not be built upon, shall belong to any person in right of any house or other property, and he shall by notice in writing signed by him addressed to the Metropolitan Board of Works where the same is in any place under their jurisdiction, except the city of London, where the same shall be addressed to the corporation of the said city, or to the corporate authorities in any other city or borough, requesting the said Metropolitan Board of Works or corporate authority to protect the right before mentioned, the said Metropolitan Board of Works or corporate authority, after due inquiry, may, if they shall think fit, accede to such request; and then and thereupon the right of such person to require that such garden or ornamental ground to be maintained as such, or that the same shall not be built upon, shall thenceforth be vested in such Metropolitan Board of Works or corporate authority, who shall be fully empowered, for and in their own name, to exercise all the rights, powers, and privileges in relation thereto, and take such legal proceedings for asserting, defending, and protecting the same, as the said person might have exercised or taken.

(a) The preamble to this section reciting that it is expedient that the same should be protected from undue encroachment, is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 1).

3. Any charge incurred by the Metropolitan Board of Works in the execution of this Act shall be deemed to be expenses of the said board for payment whereof provision is made by the Metropolis Management Act, 1855.

Expenses, how to be defrayed.
18 & 19 Vict.
c. 120.

4. Where any such garden or ground is managed by any committee of the inhabitants of any square, crescent, circus, street, or place, such committee may make, and from time to time revoke and alter, byelaws for the management of the same, and for the preservation of the trees, shrubs, plants, flowers, rails, fences, seats, summer-houses, and other things therein, which byelaws shall be entered in a book kept for that purpose by the committee, signed by the chairman of the meeting at which the same shall be passed, and which book shall and may be produced and read, and taken as evidence of such byelaws, in all courts whatever; and any inhabitant or servant, or other person admitted to such garden by any inhabitant, offending against the same, after they shall have been duly allowed as hereinafter provided, upon proof thereof before a magistrate acting for the district in which such garden is situate, shall be liable for each offence to a penalty not exceeding five pounds: Provided always, that such byelaws shall not come into operation until the same shall have been allowed by some judge of one of the superior courts, or by the justices in quarter sessions; and it shall be incumbent on such judge or justices, on the request of such committee, to inquire into any byelaws tendered to them for that purpose, and to allow or disallow the same as they think meet (a).

Byelaws for management of garden, etc.

(a) The power of making byelaws conferred by this section is extended to the trustees or other persons having the care and management of any open space within the meaning of the Open Spaces Act, 1906, who in pursuance of that Act admit to the enjoyment of the open space any persons not owning, occupying, or residing in any house fronting thereon. See s. 15 (3) of that Act, post.

5. Any police constable who shall see any person throwing any rubbish into any such garden, or trespassing therein, or getting over the railings or fence, or stealing or damaging the flowers or plants, or committing any nuisance therein, may apprehend such person, under the authority hereby given to him; and any person convicted before any magistrate acting for the injuring garden.

Section 5. district shall be liable for each and every offence aforesaid to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings, or to imprisonment for any period not exceeding fourteen days; and in case it shall be necessary to state in any proceedings the ownership of the property of such garden, flowers, or plants, it shall be sufficient to describe the same as the property of the committee by the name of A. B. and others.

Certain provisions of 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, to be incorporated with this Act, and to apply to penalties within metropolitan district.
11 & 12 Vict. c. 43, to apply to penalties elsewhere.

6. The provisions contained in the two hundred and twenty-fifth, two hundred and twenty-sixth, two hundred and twenty-seventh, and two hundred and twenty-eighth sections of the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, shall be incorporated in this Act, and shall apply to any penalty or forfeiture imposed by this Act, or any byelaw made in pursuance thereof, in and for every matter or thing done or omitted to be done within the metropolitan district; and the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1848, shall apply to every penalty or forfeiture imposed by this Act, or any byelaw made in pursuance thereof, or any matter or thing done or omitted to be done within any other part of England and Wales.

Act not to extend to property of the Crown, etc.

14 & 15 Vict. c. 95.

7. Nothing in this Act shall extend to or include any garden, ornamental ground, or other land belonging to her Majesty in right of her Crown or of her Duchy of Lancaster, or any garden, ornamental ground, or other land for the time being under the management of the Commissioners of Works, or of the commissioners for the time being acting under the Crown Estate Paving Act, 1851, or to any garden, ornamental or other ground, for which special provision is made for the due care and protection thereof by any public or private Act of Parliament.

Extent of Act.

8. Nothing in this Act shall extend to Scotland or Ireland.

THE WATERWORKS CLAUSES ACT, 1863.

(26 & 27 VICT. c. 93) (a).

An Act for consolidating in one Act certain Provisions frequently inserted in Acts relating to Waterworks. [28th July, 1863.]

10 & 11 Vict. c. 17.

WHEREAS the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, was passed in order to comprise in one Act sundry provisions which were at the time of the passing of that Act usually introduced into Acts of Parliament authorising the construction of certain waterworks:

And whereas sundry provisions of the like nature, but not comprised in the said Act, are now frequently introduced into Acts of Parliament relating to waterworks, and it is expedient to comprise such last-mentioned provisions also in one Act, and that as well for the purpose of avoiding the necessity of repeating such provisions in special Acts relating to waterworks, as for ensuring greater uniformity in the provisions themselves (b).

(a) See Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, and note (a), ante, p. 4176.

(b) The clause of enactment was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 1).

* * * * *

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.
10 & 11 Vict. c. 17.

1. This Act may be cited as the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863; and the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, and this Act may be cited together as the Waterworks Clauses Acts, 1847 and 1863.

2. This Act shall apply to any waterworks to which any special Act (a) hereafter passed and incorporating this Act relates; and every such special Act is hereinafter referred to as "the special Act." Section 2.

Terms used in this Act have the same meanings as the same terms have when used in the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847.

The provisions respecting the recovery of penalties contained in the last-mentioned Act shall be incorporated with this Act (b).

Application of Act and interpretation of terms.
10 & 11 Vict. c. 17.

(a) See the P. H. A., 1936, s. 120, ante, p. 368.

(b) Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 85. The procedure for recovery of penalties is that provided by the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 140 et seq., ante, p. 4153.

SECURITY OF RESERVOIRS.

And with respect to the security of the reservoirs constructed by the undertakers, be it enacted as follows: (a)

(a) See also the Reservoirs (Safety Provisions) Act, 1930, Vol. V., post.

3. Whenever any person interested complains to two justices that any reservoir constructed by the undertakers is in a dangerous state, such justices shall forthwith make inquiry into the truth of the complaint; or two justices, on their own view, and without complaint by any person, may proceed under the present provisions as if a complaint had been so made to them.

Power for justices to inquire as to danger of reservoir.

4. If, on any such inquiry, the justices are satisfied that the complaint is well founded, and that the reservoir is in a dangerous state, and that the danger is so imminent as not to admit of delay in removing the cause of complaint, they shall order such person as they think fit to enter on the property of the undertakers, and to lower the water in the reservoir, and to execute and do all such works and things as the justices think requisite and proper for removing the cause of complaint.

Order of justices for immediate repair.

5. If, on any such inquiry, the justices are satisfied that there is good cause of complaint, but are not satisfied that the reservoir is in such an imminently dangerous state as not to admit of delay in removing the cause of complaint, they shall issue their summons to the undertakers to answer the complaint; and upon hearing the parties, the justices may, or upon default of appearance of the undertakers, then in their absence, the justices shall, order the undertakers, within such period as the justices think reasonable and specify in the order, to lower the water in the reservoir, and to execute and do all such works and things as the justices think requisite and proper for removing the cause of complaint.

Order of justices on undertakers to repair reservoir.

If the undertakers fail to execute or do within that period any such work or thing, the justices who made the order, or any other two justices, on being satisfied of such failure, may either order such persons as the justices think fit to enter on the property of the undertakers, and to lower the water in the reservoir, and to execute and do all such works and things as the justices think requisite and proper for removing the cause of complaint; or may, if they think fit, by order impose on the undertakers a penalty, not exceeding ten pounds, for every day during which such failure continues after the making of the order imposing the penalty.

Order of justices on failure of undertakers to repair.

6. Any order of justices made in any of the cases aforesaid shall be in writing under their hands, and may be in the form set forth in the Schedule to this Act, with such variations as circumstances require.

Form of order.

7. Any person acting under and in pursuance of any such order shall not be deemed a trespasser; and if any person wilfully obstructs any person lawfully acting in obedience to any such order, or wilfully does, or instigates, Persons acting under order not trespassers, etc.

Section 7. or suffers to be done, anything in contravention thereof, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding fifty pounds.

Order for payment of costs and expenses.

8. The justices may order all, or such part as they think fit, of the costs of and incident to the applying for and obtaining of any such order to be paid by the undertakers, and also all, or such part as the justices think fit, of the expenses of the works and things executed and done in pursuance of any such order by any person other than the undertakers, to be paid by the undertakers to such person as the justices appoint.

If the justices before whom the complaint is made think that there is no sufficient ground for the complaint, they may, if they think fit, order the complainant to pay to the undertakers the whole or any part of their costs of or incident to the complaint.

Appeal by undertakers.

8 & 9 Vict. c. 20.

9. If the undertakers consider themselves aggrieved by any order or determination of justices under the present provisions, they may in like manner and subject to the like conditions as by the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (a), are provided in the case of appeals in respect of penalties, appeal to the court of general or quarter sessions for the county or place where the cause of appeal arises; and that court may, on the hearing of the appeal, either affirm or quash the order or determination, or make such other order in the premises as may seem fit, and may make such order as to the costs, both of the original proceedings and of the appeal, as may seem fit; but the order or determination appealed against shall, pending the appeal, continue in force.

(a) S. 157, ante, p. 4162.

Undertakers not to be responsible for consequences of order.

10. Notwithstanding anything in the special Act contained, the undertakers shall not be liable to pay any damages, penalties, costs, charges, or expenses for or in respect of, or be answerable or accountable for, any diminution or cessation of the supply of water, or any other breach or non-performance of their or any of their duties, liabilities, or obligations under the special Act, that may be occasioned by or result from the execution of any such order.

Application of Act, etc.

11. The present provisions with respect to the security of reservoirs shall apply to England . . . (a).

(a) The rest of s. 11 relates to Scotland and Ireland only.

SUPPLY OF WATER.

And with respect to the supply of water to be furnished by the undertakers, be it enacted as follows:

Supply for other than domestic purposes.

12. A supply of water for domestic purposes (a) shall not include a supply of water for cattle, or for horses, or for washing carriages, where such horses or carriages are kept for sale or hire or by a common carrier, or a supply for any trade, manufacture, or business, or for watering gardens, or for fountains, or for any ornamental purpose.

(a) See the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 53, ante, p. 4190, and the notes thereto, and compare Smith v. Müller, [1894] 1 Q. B. 192; 58 J. P. 167; 24 Digest 905, 50.

Want of supply for other than domestic purposes, when excused.

13. Where the undertakers are authorised by the special Act to supply water for other than domestic purposes, they shall not be liable, in the absence of express stipulation, under any agreement for the supply of water for other than domestic purposes, to any penalty or damages for not supplying such water, if the want of such supply arises from frost, unusual drought, or other unavoidable cause or accident (a). Section 13.

(a) This section exempts the undertakers from penalties or damages for not supplying water under any agreement to supply it for other than domestic purposes, if the want of such supply arises from frost, unusual drought or other unavoidable cause or accident. But this section is expressly limited to the case of water supplied under an agreement, and does not apply to water supplied compulsorily. Per CAVE, J., in Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Carter (1882), 8 Q. B. D. 632, at p. 644; 46 J. P. 548; 43 Digest 1091, 230.

14. Where the undertakers are authorised by the special Act (a) to supply water by measure, they may let for hire to any consumer of water so supplied any meter or instrument for measuring the quantity of water supplied and consumed, and any pipes and apparatus for the conveyance, reception, or storage of the water, for such remuneration in money as may be agreed upon between them and the consumer, which shall be recoverable in the same manner as rates due to the undertakers for water; and the meters, instruments, pipes, and apparatus shall not be subject to distress . . . for rent of the premises where the same are used, or be attached or taken in execution under any process of any court of law or equity, or under or in pursuance of any adjudication or order in bankruptcy, or other legal proceeding, against or affecting the consumer of the water or the occupier of the premises, or other the person in whose possession the meters, instruments, pipes, and apparatus may be (b). Power to let meters, etc. for hire.

(a) Section 127 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 381, authorises a supply by meter where the local authority are the undertakers.

(b) Words relating to Scotland only are omitted from this and the following section. An obligation on the part of a consumer to provide a meter cannot be implied from this section (Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Carter (1882), 8 Q. B. D. 632; 46 J. P. 548; 43 Digest 1091, 230). As to the duty of a consumer to provide some means of measuring the water, see Sheffield Waterworks Co. v. Bingham (1883), 25 Ch. D. 443; 52 L. J. Ch. 624; 43 Digest 1092, 231. See these cases more fully set out, ante, p. 392.

See further as to the right to demand a supply by meter, Cooke, Sons & Co. v. New River Co., ante, p. 4188.

15. The officers of the undertakers may enter any house, building, or lands, to, through, or into which water is supplied by them by measure, in order to inspect the meters, instruments, pipes, and apparatus for the measuring, conveyance, reception, or storage of water, or for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of water supplied or consumed, and may from time to time enter any house, building, or lands, for the purpose of removing any meter, instrument, pipe, or apparatus the property of the undertakers; and if any person hinders any such officer from entering or making such inspection, or effecting such removal, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds; but, except with the consent of a justice . . . this power of entry shall be exercised only between the hours of ten in the forenoon and four in the afternoon (a). Power of entry for ascertaining quantity consumed by meter and for removing meters, etc.

(a) See also the P. H. A., 1936, ss. 133-135, ante, p. 392.

PROTECTION OF WATER.

And with respect to the waste or misuse of the water supplied by or belonging to the undertakers, be it enacted as follows:

16. If any person supplied with water by the undertakers wrongfully does or causes or permits to be done anything in contravention of any of the provisions of the special Act, or wrongfully fails to do anything which, under any of those provisions, ought to be done for the prevention of the waste, misuse, undue consumption, or contamination of the water of the Power to cut off water in certain cases.

Section 16. undertakers, they may (without prejudice to any remedy against him in respect thereof) cut off any of the pipes by or through which water is supplied by them to him, or for his use, and may cease to supply him with water, so long as the cause of injury remains or is not remedied (a).

(a) For a case where a covenant to give a free supply to a farm house was held to be determined by its conversion into a mansion with a garage for motor cars, see Hadham R. D. C. v. Crallan, [1914] 2 Ch. 138; 78 J. P. 361; 43 Digest 1062, 37.

Penalty for waste, etc. of water by non-repair of pipes, etc.

17. If any person supplied with water by the undertakers wilfully or negligently causes or suffers any pipe, valve, cock, cistern, bath, soil-pan, watercloset, or other apparatus or receptacle to be out of repair (a), or to be so used or contrived as that the water supplied to him by the undertakers is or is likely to be wasted, misused, unduly consumed, or contaminated, or so as to occasion or allow the return of foul air, or other noisome or impure matter, into any pipe belonging to or connected with the pipes of the undertakers, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

(a) As to who is the "person supplied with water" in cases where the landlord pays the water rate, under s. 72 of the 1847 Act (see Brock v. Harrison, [1899] 1 Q. B. 958; 63 J. P. 455; 43 Digest 1096, 265), or voluntarily by agreement (see Deeley v. Caine (a case at quarter sessions) (1923), 87 J. P. N. 765). It has been held that where a stop-tap is affixed to a service pipe by the owner of the service pipe, he has committed an offence against the section, although the affixing could not lead to any waste or misuse of the water (Williams v. Llandudno U. D. C. (1897), 14 T. L. R. 18; 42 Sol. J. 34). See the judgments of DARLING and PHILLMORE, JJ., in Colne Valley Water Co. v. Hall (1907), 71 J. P. 173; 96 L. T. 395, as to the liability to repair a communication pipe, not the property of the consumer, under a public highway. The Court of Appeal in affirming the decision refrained from giving their approval to the reasoning of the Divisional Court; see 72 J. P. 25; 98 L. T. 398; 43 Digest 1086, 193; and cf. Parnell v. Portsmouth Waterworks Co. (1910), 75 J. P. 99; 8 L. G. R. 1029; 43 Digest 1086, 194. See also Batt v. M. W. B., [1911] 2 K. B. 965; 43 Digest 1099, 286.

Penalty for unauthorised application of water.

18. If any person—

First, not having from the undertakers a supply of water for other than domestic purposes (a), uses, for other than domestic purposes (b), any water supplied to him by the undertakers; or

Secondly, having from the undertakers a supply of water for any other than domestic purposes, uses, for any purposes other than those for which he is entitled to use the same, any water supplied to him by the undertakers,— he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings, without prejudice to the right of the undertakers to recover from him the value of the water misused (c).

(a) As to the meaning of this phrase, see ante, p. 4190.

(b) The use of water for washing a cart used in business is a use for "other than domestic purposes," and for washing a yard used for a trade and made dirty by such trade is a use for a trade purpose (Cambridge University and Town Waterworks Co. v. Hancock (1910), 74 J. P. 477; 103 L. T. 562; 43 Digest 1095, 259).

(c) Where a rural district council agreed with a water company for a supply of water for street watering, and other specified purposes, and one of the ratepayers in the district took water from the stand-pipe from which the council received such supply, and then used it for his own trade purposes, it was held that the ratepayer was liable to be convicted under this section (Andrews v. Wits and Holly (1901), 65 J. P. 281; 84 L. T. 124; 43 Digest 1095, 258). Where a railway company had obtained a supply of water by meter to a railway station, it was held that they were not authorised to use part of the supply to another railway station (Great Northern Ry. Co. v. Bradford Corporation (1918), 83 J. P. 33; 88 L. J. Ch. 101).

Penalty for unauthorised extension or alteration of pipes.

19. It shall not be lawful for the owner or occupier of any premises supplied with water by the undertakers, or any consumer of the water of the undertakers, or any other person, to affix or cause or permit to be affixed any pipe or apparatus to a pipe belonging to the undertakers, or to a communication or service pipe belonging to or used by such owner, occupier, consumer, or other person, or to make any alteration in any such communication or service pipe, or in any apparatus connected therewith, without the consent in every such case of the undertakers; and if any person acts in any respect in contravention of the provisions of the present section, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, without prejudice to the right of the undertakers to recover damages from him in respect of any injury done to their property, and without prejudice to their right to recover from him the value of any water wasted, misused, or unduly consumed (a). Section 19.

(a) The addition of a stop-tap on the service pipe requires the consent of the undertakers under this section (Williams v. Llandudno U. D. C. (1897), 14 T. L. R. 18; 42 Sol. J. 34). As to the affixing of a temporary hose-pipe to a communication pipe, see Cambridge University and Town Waterworks Co. v. Hancock (1910), 74 J. P. 477; 103 L. T. 562; 43 Digest 1095, 259. See also Kyffin v. Metropolitan Water Board (1908), 72 J. P. 517; 99 L. T. 809; 43 Digest 1104, 326.

20. If any person, not being supplied with water by the undertakers, wrongfully takes or uses any water from any reservoir, watercourse, conduit, or pipe belonging to the undertakers, or from any pipe leading to or from any such reservoir, watercourse, conduit, or pipe, or from any cistern or other like place containing water belonging to the undertakers, or supplied by them for the use of any consumer of the water of the undertakers, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds (a). Penalty for wrongful taking of water.

(a) See also the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 59, ante, p. 4193.

RECOVERY OF RATES.

And with respect to the recovery of water rates and other money, be it enacted as follows:

21. If any person refuses or neglects to pay to the undertakers any rate or sum due to them under the special Act, they may recover the same, with costs, in any court of competent jurisdiction; and their remedy under the present section shall be in addition to their other remedies for the recovery thereof (a). Recovery of rates by action

(a) See the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 74, ante, p. 4200, and Metropolitan Water Board v. Bunn, cited in the notes to that section.

Section 1.

THE AGRICULTURAL GANGS ACT, 1867.

(30 & 31 VICT. c. 130)(a).

An Act for the Regulation of Agricultural Gangs. [20th August, 1867.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Agricultural Gangs Act, 1867."

(a) See the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 27 (1) (a), 32, post. The preamble, clause of enactment and second section of this Act are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 1).

* * * * *

Interpretation.

3. The following words and expressions shall in this Act have the meanings hereby assigned to them unless there is something in the context inconsistent with such meanings; that is to say,

"Child" shall mean a child under the age of thirteen years:

"Young person" shall mean a person of the age of thirteen years and under the age of eighteen years:

"Woman" shall mean a female of the age of eighteen years or upwards:

"Gangmaster" shall mean any person, whether male or female, who hires children, young persons, or women with a view to their being employed in agricultural labour on lands not in his own occupation; and, until the contrary is proved, any children, young persons, or women employed in agricultural labour on lands not in the occupation of the person who hired them shall be deemed to have been hired with the aforesaid view:

"Agricultural gang" shall mean a body of children, young persons, and women, or any of them, under the control of a gangmaster.

Regulations as to employment of children, young persons, and women by gangmasters.

4. The following regulations shall be observed by every gangmaster with respect to the employment of children, young persons, and women:

(1) . . . (a):

(2) No females shall be employed in the same agricultural gang with males:

(3) No female shall be employed in any gang under any male gangmaster unless a female licensed to act as a gangmaster is also present with that gang:

And any gangmaster employing any child, young person, or woman in contravention of this section, and any occupier of land on which such employment takes place, unless he proves that it took place without his knowledge, shall respectively be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings for each child, young person, or woman so employed.

(a) This sub-section, enacting that no child under the age of eight years should be employed in any agricultural gang, was repealed by s. 16 of the Agricultural Children Act, 1873, which substituted an enactment raising the age to ten. But that Act was itself repealed by the Education Act, 1921, which by s. 92 (1) prohibited the employment of children under the age of twelve and imposed restrictions on the employment of children between the ages of twelve and fourteen. Powers were also given to local education authorities by s. 90 of the same Act to regulate or prohibit by means of byelaws the employment of children under the age of fourteen. As to these matters, see now Children and Young Persons Act, 1933, ss. 18, 19, 21, Vol. V, post.

Gangmasters to be licensed.

5. No person shall act as a gangmaster unless he has obtained a licence to act as such under this Act.

Any person acting as a gangmaster without a licence under this Act shall incur a penalty not exceeding twenty shillings for every day during which he so acts.

6. No licence shall be granted to any person who is licensed to sell beer, spirits, or any other exciseable liquor. Section 6.

7. Licences to gangmasters shall be granted by two or more justices in divisional petty sessions (a), on due proof to the satisfaction of such justices that the applicant for a licence is of good character, and a fit person to be entrusted with the management of an agricultural gang.

Licences not to be granted to keepers of public-houses.
Licences to gangmasters to be granted by justices.

The justices (a) shall annex to their licence a condition limiting, in such manner as they think expedient, the distances within which the children employed by such gangmaster are to be allowed to travel on foot to their work; and any gangmaster violating the condition so annexed to his licence shall for each offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding ten shillings.

Any person aggrieved by the refusal of the justices (a) to grant him a licence to act as gangmaster may appeal to the next practicable court of general or quarter sessions; and it shall be lawful for such court, if they see cause, to grant a licence to the applicant, which shall be of the same validity as if it had been granted by the justices in petty sessions.

(a) Licences are now granted by district councils and not by the justices. See the L. G. A., 1894, s. 27, post.

8. Licences under this Act shall be in force for six months only, and may be renewed on similar proof to that on which an original licence is granted.

Duration and renewal of licences.

9. There shall be charged in respect of each grant or renewal of licence a fee of one shilling, and such fee shall be accounted for and applied in manner in which the fees ordinarily received by the authority granting the licence are applicable.

Fees in respect of licences and renewals.

10. On any conviction of a gangmaster of any offence against this Act the justices who convict him shall endorse on his licence the fact of such conviction; and on any conviction of such gangmaster of a second offence against this Act the justices may, in addition to any other penalty, withhold his licence for a period not exceeding three months; and on any conviction of any gangmaster of a third offence against this Act the justices may, in addition to any other penalty, withhold his licence for a period not exceeding two years.

Licence, how affected by first and other convictions of gangmaster.

And after a fourth conviction for an offence against this Act the gangmaster shall be disqualified from holding or receiving a licence under this Act.

11. All penalties under this Act may be recovered summarily before two or more justices in manner directed by the Summary Jurisdiction (England) Acts.

Recovery of penalties.
11 & 12 Vict. c. 43, etc.

12. This Act shall not apply to Scotland or Ireland.

Extent of Act.

THE REGULATION OF RAILWAYS ACT, 1868.

(31 & 32 VICT. c. 119)(a).

An Act to amend the Law relating to Railways.

[31st July, 1868.]

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as the Regulation of Railways Act, 1868.

Short title.

(a) The sections of this Act here set out are those which relate to arbitration, and are incorporated by s. 63 of the L. G. A., 1888, post. The preamble was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 1).

Section 30.

Appointment
by Board of Trade of arbitrator to act
for them.

30. Whenever the Board of Trade are required to make any award or to decide any difference in any case in which a company is one of the parties, they may appoint an arbitrator to act for them, and his award or decision shall be deemed to be the award or decision of the Board of Trade (b).

If the arbitrator dies, or in the judgment of the Board of Trade becomes incapable or unfit, the Board of Trade may appoint another arbitrator.

(a) For the Board of Trade it is necessary to read the Minister of Transport or Health and for the company the county council, urban authority, or other party to the arbitration.

(b) Observe that the award is made by the arbitrator, and when made is to be deemed to have been made by the Minister. See In re Kent C. C. and Sandgate L. B., [1895] 2 Q. B. 43; 59 J. P. 456; 2 Digest 457, 1045.

Remuneration of arbitrators or umpires appointed by
Board of Trade.

31. The Board of Trade may fix the remuneration of any arbitrator or umpire appointed by them in pursuance of this or any other Act in any case where a company is one of the parties, and may, if they think fit, frame a scale of remuneration for arbitrators or umpires so appointed by them; and no arbitrator or umpire so appointed by them shall be entitled to any larger remuneration than the amount fixed by the Board of Trade.

Costs, etc. of arbitrations where one of the parties is not a railway company.
22 & 23 Vict.
c. 59.

32. The provisions of section eighteen to twenty-nine, both inclusive, of the Railway Companies Arbitration Act, 1859 (a), shall so far as is consistent with the tenor thereof, apply to an arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade, and to his arbitration and award, notwithstanding that one of the parties between whom he is appointed to arbitrate may not be a railway company; and in construing those sections for the purpose of this Act, the word "companies" shall be construed to mean the parties to the arbitration.

(a) Section 18 empowers the arbitrator to call for books and documents and administer oaths; s. 19 gives him discretion as to the manner of proceeding with the arbitration; s. 20 enables him to proceed in the absence of parties; s. 21 enables him to make several awards each on part of the matters referred; s. 22 makes the award conclusive; s. 23 gives the arbitrator power to extend the time for making an award; s. 24 prevents the setting aside of an award for irregularity; s. 25 provides that parties shall obey awards; s. 26, that all courts shall give effect to awards; s. 27, that costs shall be in the discretion of the arbitrator; s. 28, that in absence of order, costs are to be borne by parties equally; and s. 29, that submission may be made a rule of court.

THE GAS AND WATER WORKS FACILITIES ACT, 1870.

(33 & 34 VICT. c. 70)(a).

An Act to facilitate in certain cases the obtaining of Powers for the Construction of Gas and Water Works and for the Supply of Gas and Water.

[9th August, 1870.]

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870.

(a) Incorporated with the P. H. A., 1875, by s. 161, post, for the purpose of enabling a local authority to supply gas, and amended by the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873, post, p. 4328. Preamble repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 2). The provisions of this Act are, however, modified or superseded, so far as it relates to gas undertakings by the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, and the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, Vol. V., post. The provisions of the Act as regards water undertakings may now be considered to apply to companies only. Local authorities derive full powers as to water supply from the Public Health Acts and incorporated enactments. The central department as regards all water undertakings is the Ministry of Health in pursuance of an Order in Council, dated November 9th, 1920, and as regards gas undertakings the Board of Trade in pursuance of another Order in Council of the same date. These Orders are set out in full at 3 Halsbury's Statutes 418. See also "combined purposes" rules, S. R. & O. 1926, No. 1188.

Note to
Section 1.

2. For the purposes of this Act the terms hereinafter mentioned shall have the meanings hereafter assigned to them; that is to say, Interpretation of terms.

The term "local authority" shall mean the bodies of persons named in the table in Schedule (A.) to this Act annexed:

The term "road" shall mean any carriageway being a public highway, and any bridge forming part of the same:

The term "road authority" shall mean any local authority, board, town council, body corporate, commissioners, trustees, vestry, or other body or persons in whom a road as defined by this Act is vested, or who have the power to maintain or repair such road:

The term "district," in relation to a local authority, shall mean the area within the jurisdiction of such local authority:

The term "The Lands Clauses Acts" means, so far as the Provisional Order in which that term is used relates to England . . . the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845; . . . together with . . . the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts Amendment Act, 1860 (a). 8 & 9 Vict. c. 18.
23 & 24 Vict.
c. 106.

(a) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are here omitted. See the statutes referred to, ante, pp. 4104, 4252.

DESCRIPTION OF CASES WITHIN THIS ACT.

3. This Act shall apply where powers are required for all or any of the purposes following: Act to apply to certain cases.

(1) To construct or to maintain and continue gasworks and works connected therewith (a), or to manufacture and supply gas in any district within which there is not an existing company, corporation, body of commissioners, or persons empowered by Act of Parliament (b) to construct such works or to manufacture and supply gas:

(2) To construct or to maintain and continue waterworks and works connected therewith, or to supply water in any district within which there is not an existing company, corporation, body of commissioners, or persons empowered by Act of Parliament to construct such works and to supply water:

(3) To raise additional capital necessary for any of the purposes aforesaid:

(4) To enable two or more companies or persons duly authorised to supply gas or water in any district or in adjoining districts to enter into agreements jointly to furnish such supply, or to amalgamate their undertakings:

(5) To authorise two or more companies or persons supplying gas or water in any district or in adjoining districts to manufacture and supply gas or to supply water, and to enter into agreements jointly to furnish such supply and to amalgamate their undertakings:

and such purposes, or any one or more of them, as the case may be, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be included in the term "gas undertaking" or "water undertaking," according as the same relate to the supply of gas or water; provided that any gas or water company empowered as aforesaid may apply for and avail themselves of the facilities of this Act within their own districts respectively.

(a) As to the right of a gas company to manufacture residuals, see Deuchar v. Gas Light & Coke Co., [1925] A. C. 691; 89 J. P. 177; 25 Digest 471, 10, and as to the purchase of residuals, see the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, s. 4, Vol. V., post.

(b) This expression is construed as meaning special Act of Parliament.

Section 4.

PROVISIONAL ORDERS AUTHORISING GAS AND WATER UNDERTAKINGS (a).

By whom Provisional
Orders
authorising undertakings may be obtained.

4. Provisional Orders authorising any gas undertaking or water undertaking under the authority of this Act may be obtained in any district by any company, companies, or person; and in the construction of this Act the terms "the undertakers" (b) shall be deemed to include any such company, companies, or person.

Where the undertakers require powers for the purpose of constructing gasworks or waterworks, or works connected therewith within any district, the consent of the local authority (c) of such district shall be necessary before any Provisional Order can be obtained; and where in such district there is a road authority distinct from the local authority, the consent of such road authority shall also be necessary in any case where power is sought to break up any road of such road authority, before any Provisional Order can be obtained, unless the Board of Trade (d) in any case in which the consent of the local authority or road authority is refused are of opinion, after inquiry (e), that, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, such consent ought to be dispensed with, and in such case they shall make a special report, stating the grounds upon which they have dispensed with such consent.

(a) The Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 10, Vol. V., post, provides that anything which under the Gas and Waterworks Facilities Act, 1870, or any Act amending the same may be effected by a provisional order confirmed by Parliament, may, so far as these enactments relate to gas, be effected by a special order made on the application of any local authority, company or person by the Board of Trade, under and in accordance with that section and for the purposes of the powers conferred by that section, the Act of 1870 shall have effect as if s. 15 thereof (post) were omitted therefrom. The Act of 1920 further provides for the inclusion in a special order of many matters, for which reference should be made to the Act itself, which is set out in extenso, Vol. V., post.

(b) See also note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4264. This word applies to a district council and in relation to gas only. See the P. H. A., 1875, ss. 161, 316, post, and notes thereto, from which it will be seen that as regards gas undertakings special orders under the Act of 1920 have now superseded provisional orders under the Act of 1870. As to revocation, extension, or amendment of the Order, see the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873, s. 12, post, p. 4328, and the Act of 1920.

(c) See Sched. A, post, p. 4270. It will be observed that the local authority in a rural parish is the successor of the vestry, viz. the Parish Council. Consequently the county council, who have now under the Local Government Act, 1929, become the highway authority in rural districts, will be "the road authority" distinct from the local authority. The county council will also occupy the same position as regards "unclaimed" county roads in urban districts.

(d) The L. G. B. were substituted for the Board of Trade in respect of any gasworks established by an urban authority. See the P. H. A., 1875, s. 161, post. Power to transfer the powers of the L. G. B. under this Act to county councils exists under s. 10 of the L. G. A. 1888, and the Local Government (Transfer of Powers) Act, 1903, but has never been exercised. The powers and duties of the L. G. B. were transferred to the Minister of Health by the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, s. 3, post, p. 5191, but by Order in Council of November 9th, 1920, the powers and duties of the Minister of Health as regards gas were transferred to the Board of Trade. Powers as to finance, however, vest in the Minister of Health.

(e) See the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873, s. 13, post, p. 4328.

5. The undertakers intending to make an application for a Provisional Order in pursuance of this Act shall proceed as follows:

- (1) On or before the first of November next before their application they shall give notice in writing of their intention to make the same to every company, corporation, or person (if any) supplying gas (if the proposed application relates to gasworks) or water (if the proposed application relates to waterworks) within the district to which the proposed application refers:
- (2) In the months of October and November next before their application, or in one of those months, they shall publish notice of their intention

Notices and deposit of documents by promoters as in schedule.

Section 5.

to make such application by advertisement, according to the regulations contained in Part One of the Schedule (B.) to this Act; and where it is proposed to abstract water from any stream for any water-work, they shall give notice in writing of their intention to make such application to the owners or reputed owners, lessees, or reputed lessees, and occupiers of all mills and manufactories or other works using the waters of such stream for a distance of twenty miles below the point at which such water is intended to be abstracted, such distance to be measured along the course of such stream, unless such waters shall within a less distance than twenty miles fall into or unite with any navigable stream, and then only to the owners or reputed owners, lessees or reputed lessees and occupiers of such mills and manufactories as aforesaid which shall be situate between the point at which such water is proposed to be abstracted and the point at which such water shall fall into or unite with such navigable stream; and such notice shall state the name (if any) by which the stream is known at the point at which such water shall be immediately abstracted, and also the parish in which such point is situate, and the time and place of deposit of the plans and sections required by this Act to be deposited:

- (3) On or before the thirteenth day of the same month of November they shall deposit the documents described in Part Two of the same Schedule, according to the regulations therein contained:
- (4) On or before the twenty-third day of December in the same year they shall deposit the documents prescribed in Part Three of the same Schedule, according to the regulations therein contained.

All maps, plans, and documents required by this Act to be deposited for the purposes of any Provisional Order may be deposited with the persons and in the manner directed by the Parliamentary Documents Deposit Act, 1837; and all the provisions of that Act shall apply accordingly.

7 WILL. 4 & 1
Vict. c. 83.

As to deposit of documents, cf. notes, ante, p. 1159.

6. The Board of Trade shall consider the application, and also any objection thereto that may be lodged with them on or before such day as they from time to time appoint, and shall determine whether or not the undertakers may proceed with the application (a).

Board of Trade

application and objection.

(a) See s. 14 of the Amending Act of 1873, and notes thereto, post, p. 4329, as to the rules which must now be observed. The current rules are set out ante, p. 4069.

7. Where it appears to the Board of Trade expedient and proper that the application should be granted, with or without addition or modification, or subject or not to any restriction or condition, and it has been proved to their satisfaction that all the requisitions of section five of this Act have been in all respects complied with, the Board of Trade may settle and make a Provisional Order (a) accordingly.

Board of Trade to make Provisional
Order.

Every such Provisional Order (a) if it relates to gasworks shall expressly restrict the undertakers from manufacturing gas or any residual products arising in the manufacture of gas on any land except such as is specified in that behalf in the Order; and shall also expressly restrict them from storing gas on any land except such as is specified in that behalf in the Order within three hundred yards from any dwelling-house existing at the time when the undertakers propose to store gas on such land, without the consent in writing of the owner, lessee, and occupier of such dwelling-house.

Every such Provisional Order (a) shall contain such other provisions as, according to the nature of the application and the facts and circumstances of each case, the Board of Trade thinks fit to submit to Parliament for confirmation in manner provided by this Act (b); but so that any such Pro-

Form and contents of Provisional
Order.

Section 7. Provisional Order shall not contain any provision for empowering the undertakers or any other person to acquire lands otherwise than by agreement, or to acquire any lands, even by agreement, except to an extent therein limited.

Costs of Order. The costs of and connected with the preparation and making of each Provisional Order shall be paid by the undertakers, and the Board of Trade may require the undertakers to give security for such costs before they proceed with the Provisional Order.

(a) See note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

(b) See s. 9, infra.

Publication of Provisional Order.

8. When a Provisional Order (a) has been made as aforesaid and delivered to the undertakers, the undertakers shall forthwith deposit and publish the same by advertisement according to the regulations contained in Part Four of the Schedule (B.) to this Act.

(a) See note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

Confirmation of Provisional Order by Act of Parliament.

9. On proof to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade of the completion of such publication as aforesaid, the Board of Trade shall, as soon as they conveniently can after the expiration of seven days from the completion of such publication in relation to any Provisional Order (a) which shall have been published as aforesaid, not later than the twenty-fifth of April (b) in any year procure a Bill to be introduced into either House of Parliament for an Act to confirm the Provisional Order, which shall be set out at length in the Schedule to the Bill: but until confirmation by Act of Parliament a Provisional Order under this Act shall not have any operation.

If while any such Bill is pending in either House of Parliament a petition is presented against any Provisional Order (a) comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to the Order petitioned against, may be referred to a select committee, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of a Bill for a special Act.

The Act of Parliament confirming any Provisional Order under this Act shall be deemed a public general Act.

(a) See note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

(b) It was formerly considered that this date applied to the publication of the Order, and not to the introduction of a Bill into Parliament. See, however, note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

Incorporation of general Acts in Provisional Order.

10. The provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts shall be incorporated with every Provisional Order (a) under this Act, save where the same are expressly varied or excepted by any such Provisional Order (a), and except as to the following provisions, namely,—

- (1) With respect to the purchase and taking of lands otherwise than by agreement:
- (2) With respect to the entry upon lands by the promoters of the undertaking.

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 15.

Where a Provisional Order (a) authorises a gas undertaking the provisions of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847 (b), shall be incorporated with such Provisional Order (a), save where the same are thereby expressly varied or excepted.

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 17.
26 & 27 Vict.
c. 93.

Where a Provisional Order authorises a water undertaking the provisions of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, and of the Waterworks Clauses Act, 1863 (c), shall be incorporated with such Provisional Order, save where the same are thereby expressly varied or excepted.

For the purposes of such incorporation a Provisional Order under this Act Section 10. shall be deemed the special Act (d).

(a) See note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

(b) Ante, p. 4163. And see the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, referred to in note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

(c) Ante, pp. 4176, 4256.

(d) See also the P. H. A., 1875, s. 316, post, p. 4517.

11. If any undertakers empowered by any Provisional Order under this Act to make works do not, within three years from the date of such Provisional Order, or within any shorter period prescribed therein, complete the works; or,

Cesser of powers at expiration of prescribed time.

If within one year of the date of the Provisional Order, or within such shorter time as is prescribed in the Provisional Order, the works are not substantially commenced; or,

If the works are commenced, but whilst the powers to carry them on exist are suspended without a reason sufficient in the opinion of the Board of Trade to warrant such suspension;

the powers given by the Provisional Order to the undertakers for executing such works, or otherwise in relation thereto, shall cease to be exercised, except as to so much of the same as is then completed, unless the time be prolonged by the special direction of the Board of Trade.

A statement in writing by the Board of Trade to the effect that such works have not been completed, or that the works have not been substantially commenced, or that they have been suspended without sufficient reason, shall be conclusive evidence for the purposes of this section of such non-completion, non-commencement, or suspension.

12. The undertakers empowered by any Provisional Order under this Act may demand and take, in respect of gas or water supplied by them under the authority of such Provisional Order, rents and rates respectively not exceeding the sums specified in such Provisional Order, subject and according to the regulations therein specified.

Gas rents and water rates.

13. Nothing in any Provisional Order, or Act confirming the same, shall exempt the undertaking, or the company, corporation, or person to whom it belongs, from the provisions of any general Act of Parliament relating to gasworks or waterworks, passed after the passing of this Act (a), or from any revision or alteration under the authority of Parliament of the maximum rents and rates allowed to be taken under the Provisional Order.

Company not exempt from provisions of general Act.

(a) See the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873, post, p. 4328.

14. For the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for her Majesty at any time after the passing of this Act, by Order in Council, to substitute for the Board of Trade any other department of her Majesty's Government, and from and after such time as may be specified for the purpose in any such order, or if no time be specified therein from and after the date of such order, all matters to be done in pursuance of this Act by or in connection with the Board of Trade shall be done by or in connection with such substituted department.

Queen in Council may substitute any department for Board of Trade for the purposes of this Act.

15. This Act shall not apply to any place within the metropolis, as the same is defined in the Metropolis Management Act, 1855 (a).

Act not to apply to metropolis. 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120.

(a) See, however, the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 10, Vol. V., post, which is referred to in note (a) to s. 4, ante, p. 4266.

SCHEDULE B.

PROVISIONAL ORDERS (a).

PART I.

[S. 5 (2), ante.]

Advertisement in October or November of intended Application.

(1) Every advertisement is to contain the following particulars :

1. The objects of the intended application.

2. A general description of the nature of the proposed new works, if any.

3. The names of the townlands, parishes, townships, and extra-parochial places in which the proposed new works, if any, will be made.

4. The times and places at which the deposit under Part II. of this Schedule will be made.

5. An office, either in London or at the place to which the intended application relates, at which printed copies of the draft Provisional Order, when deposited, and of the Provisional Order, when made, will be obtainable as hereinafter provided.

(2) The whole notice is to be included in one advertisement, which is to be headed with a short title descriptive of the undertaking.

(3) The advertisement is to be inserted once at least in each of two successive weeks in some one and the same newspaper published in the district affected by the proposed undertaking, where the proposed works (if any) will be made; or if there be no such newspaper, then in some one and the same newspaper published in the county in which every such district, or some part thereof, is situate; or if there be none, then in some one and the same newspaper published in some adjoining or neighbouring county.

(4) The advertisement is also, in every case, to be inserted once at least in the London . . . Gazette, accordingly as the district is situate in England . . .

(a) See now Gas Regulation Act, 1920, s. 10, Vol. V., post, as regards gas, and note (b) to s. 14 of the Act of 1873, post, p. 4329.

Schedule.

PART II.

Deposit on or before 30th November.

[S. 5 (3), ante.]

- (1) The undertakers are to deposit—
 1. A copy of the advertisement published by them.
 2. If the application relates to gas, a map showing the land proposed to be used for the manufacture of gas, or of residual products arising in the manufacture of gas.
 3. A proper plan and section of the proposed new works, if any, such plan and section to be prepared according to such regulations as may from time to time be made by the Board of Trade in that behalf (a).
- (2) The documents aforesaid are to be deposited for public inspection—
In England . . . in the office of the clerk of the peace for every county, riding, or division . . . which will be affected by the proposed undertaking, or in which any proposed new work will be made.
- (3) The documents aforesaid are also to be deposited at the office of the Board of Trade.

(a) See note (a) to s. 6, ante, p. 4267.

PART III.

Deposit on or before 23rd December.

[S. 5 (4), ante.]

- (1) The undertakers are to deposit at the office of the Board of Trade—
 1. A memorial signed by the undertakers, headed with a short title descriptive of the undertaking (corresponding with that at the head of the advertisement), addressed to the Board of Trade, and praying for a Provisional Order.
 2. A printed draft of the Provisional Order as proposed by the undertakers, with any schedule referred to therein.
 3. An estimate of the expense of the proposed new works, if any, signed by the persons making the same.
- (2) They are also to deposit a sufficient number of such printed copies at the office named in that behalf in the advertisement; such copies to be there furnished to all persons applying for them at the price of not more than one shilling each.
- (3) The memorial of the undertakers (to be written on foolscap paper, bookwise, with quarter margin) is to be in the following form, with such variations as circumstances require :

[Short Title of Undertaking.]

To the Board of Trade.

The memorial of the undertakers of [short title of undertaking] :

PART IV.

Deposit and Advertisement of Provisional Order when made.

[S. 8, ante.]

(1) The undertakers are to deposit printed copies of the Provisional Order when settled and made, for public inspection in the offices of clerks of the peace . . . where the documents required to be deposited by them under Part II. of this Schedule were deposited.

Schedule.

(2) They are also to deposit a sufficient number of such printed copies at the office named in that behalf in the advertisement, such copies to be there furnished to all persons applying for them at the price of _____ each.

(3) They are also to publish the Provisional Order as an advertisement once in the local newspaper in which the original advertisement of the intended application was published.

THE TRAMWAYS ACT, 1870.

(33 & 34 VICT. c. 78)(a).

An Act to facilitate the Construction and to Regulate the Working of Tramways.
[9th August, 1870.]

PRELIMINARY.

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Tramways Act, 1870."

(a) This Act gives to local authorities important powers with regard to tramways and tramway companies, and is, therefore, included in this Appendix. The preamble was repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 2). The subject belongs rather to the law of highways than to that of public health, and the notes are, therefore, chiefly confined to references to decided cases. It may be convenient to mention here that by the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, s. 2, post, p. 5197, there were transferred to the Ministry of Transport all the powers and duties of any Government department in relation to tramways as from a date or dates to be fixed by His Majesty in Council. By an Order in Council dated the 22nd Sept., 1919 (S. R. & O., 1919, No. 1440), the powers and duties of the Board of Trade in relation to tramways were transferred to the Minister of Transport as from the 23rd Sept., 1919. It is necessary, therefore, to read references in this Act to the Board of Trade as references to the Minister of Transport. Under s. 5 of that Act, post, p. 5201, the Minister was given power to require through runnings on adjoining tramways. As to the power of local authorities with tramway powers to run public service vehicles, see Road Traffic Act, 1930, Pt. V.

Limitation of Act.
Interpretation
of terms.

2. This Act shall not extend to Ireland.

3. For the purposes of this Act the terms hereinafter mentioned shall have the meanings hereinafter assigned to them; that is to say,

The terms "local authority" and "local rate" shall mean respectively the bodies of persons and rate named in the table in Part I. of the Schedule A. to this Act annexed :

The term "road" shall mean any carriageway being a public highway, and the carriageway of any bridge forming part of or leading to the same :

The term "road authority" shall mean, in the districts specified in the table in Part II. of the Schedule A. to this Act annexed, the bodies of persons named in the same table, and elsewhere any local authority, board, town council, body corporate, commissioners, trustees, vestry, or other body or persons in whom a road as defined by this Act is vested, or who have the power to maintain or repair such road (a) :

The term "district" in relation to a local authority or road authority, shall mean the area within the jurisdiction of such local authority or road authority :

The term "prescribed" shall mean prescribed by any rules made in pursuance of this Act :

The term "the Land Clauses Acts" means, so far as the Provisional Order in which that term is used relates to England, the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 ; . . . together with . . . the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts Amendment Act, 1860 (b) :

The term "two justices" shall, in addition to its ordinary signification, mean one stipendiary or police magistrate acting in any police court for the district.

(a) See Wolverhampton Tramways Co., Ltd. v. G. W. Rail. Co., cited in the note to s. 32, post, p. 4286.

An agreement between a county council and a district council, whereby the latter agreed to maintain a main road under s. 11 of the L. G. A., 1888, was held not to affect the rights of the former as the road authority within the above definition (Stockport and Hyde Highway Board v. Cheshire C. C. (1891), 55 J. P. 808; 61 L. J. Q. B. 22; 26 Digest 280, 169). A delegation under s. 35 of the L. G. A., 1929, will not, therefore, affect the position of a county council as the road authority in respect of all county roads (except those claimed under s. 32, ibid.) in urban districts and in respect of all roads in rural districts (s. 30, ibid.).

(b) Words in this clause relating to Scotland only are here omitted. See the statutes referred to, ante, pp. 4104, 4252.

PART I.

PROVISIONAL ORDERS AUTHORISING THE CONSTRUCTION OF TRAMWAYS.

4. Provisional Orders (a) authorising the construction of tramways (b) in any district may be obtained by—

By whom Provisional Orders authorising the construction of tramways may be obtained.

(1) The local authority of such district; or by—

(2) Any person, persons, corporation, or company, with the consent of the local authority of such district; or of the road authority of such district where such district is or forms part of a highway district formed under the provisions of the Highway Acts (c):

And any such local authority, person, persons, corporation, or company shall be deemed to be promoters of a tramway, and are in this Act referred to as the "promoters."

Application for a Provisional Order shall not be made by any local authority until such application shall be approved in the manner prescribed in Part III. of the Schedule A. to this Act annexed.

Where in any district there is a road authority distinct from the local authority (d), the consent of such road authority shall also be necessary in any case where power is sought to break up any road subject to the jurisdiction of such road authority, before any Provisional Order can be obtained.

(a) See the rules issued by the Board of Trade with respect to Provisional Orders under this Act. See s. 64, post, p. 4302, and notes thereto. The construction of a tramway without statutory authority may amount to a nuisance at common law (R. v. Train (1862), 2 B. & S. 640; 26 J. P. 469; 26 Digest 419, 1387). The local authority may lawfully agree with a tramway company not to apply for powers to construct nor to give their consent to the construction by others of tramways on roads within their district without first calling on the particular tramway company with which the agreement is made to apply for powers themselves (Att.-Gen. v. Hastings Corporation (1902), 67 J. P. 165; 19 T. L. R. 9; 13 Digest 366, 992).

(b) As to income tax on tramways, see London C. C. v. Edwards (1909), 73 J. P. 213; 100 L. T. 444; 28 Digest 54, 276; Poole Corporation v. Bournemouth Corporation (1910), 75 J. P. 13; 103 L. T. 828; 28 Digest 72, 380.

(c) I.e., the Highway Acts, 1835, 1862, and 1864 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50, 122, 142). See s. 1 of the last-mentioned Act.

(d) E.g., a county council, in rural districts or in relation to unclaimed county roads in urban districts.

5. Where it is proposed to lay down a tramway in two or more districts, and any local or road authority having jurisdiction in any of such districts does not consent thereto, the Board of Trade (a) may, nevertheless, make a Provisional Order authorising the construction of such tramway if they are satisfied, after inquiry (b), that two-thirds of the length of such tramway is proposed to be laid in a district or in districts the local and road authority or the local and road authorities of which district or districts do consent thereto; and in such case they shall make a special report stating the grounds upon which they have made such order.

The Board of Trade may in certain cases dispense with the consent of local or road authority.

(a) Now the Ministry of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(b) As to local inquiries, see s. 63, post, p. 4302. But the non-consenting local authority may be heard against the Bill for confirming the Provisional Order (Glasgow Corporation Tramways Bill (1878), 2 Cl. & R. 95).

Section 6.

Notices and deposit of documents by promoters as in schedule.

6. The promoters intending to make an application for a Provisional Order shall proceed as follows :

- (1) In the months of October and November next before their application, or in one of those months, they shall publish notice of their intention to make such application by advertisement (a) ; and they shall, on or before the fifteenth day of the following month of December, serve notice of such intention, in accordance with the Standing Orders (if any) of both Houses of Parliament for the time being in force with respect to Bills for the construction of tramways :
- (2) On or before the thirtieth day of the same month of November they shall deposit the documents described in Part II. of the same Schedule, according to the regulations therein contained :
- (3) On or before the twenty-third day of December in the same year they shall deposit the documents described in Part III. of the same Schedule, according to the regulations therein contained :

All maps, plans, and documents required by this Act to be deposited for the purposes of any Provisional Order may be deposited with the persons and in the manner directed by the Parliamentary Documents Deposit Act, 1837 ; and all the provisions of that Act shall apply accordingly.

(a) See the form prescribed in Part I. of Schedule B., post, p. 4304, a reference to which is obviously omitted here by an oversight.

Consideration of application and objections.

7. The Board of Trade (a) shall consider the application, and may, if they think fit, direct an inquiry (b) in the district to which the same relates, or may otherwise inquire as to the propriety of proceeding upon such application, and they shall consider any objection thereto that may be lodged with them on or before such day as they from time to time appoint (c), and shall determine whether or not the promoters may proceed with the application.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(b) As to local inquiries, see s. 63, post, p. 4302.

(c) See the regulations made under s. 64, post, p. 4302.

Power for Board of Trade to make Provisional Order.

8. Where it appears to the Board of Trade (a) expedient and proper that the application should be granted, with or without addition or modification, or subject or not to any restriction or condition, the Board of Trade (a) may settle and make a Provisional Order accordingly.

Form and contents of Provisional Order.

Every such Provisional Order shall empower the promoters therein specified to make the tramway upon the gauge and in manner therein described, and shall contain such provisions as (subject to the requirements of this Act) the Board of Trade (a) according to the nature of the application and the facts and circumstances of each case, think fit to submit to Parliament for confirmation in manner provided by this Act ; but so that any such Provisional Order shall not contain any provision for empowering the promoters or any other person to acquire lands otherwise than by agreement, or to acquire any lands, even by agreement, except to an extent therein limited, or to construct a tramway elsewhere than along or across a road (b), or upon land taken by agreement (c).

(a) See note (a) to s. 7, supra.

(b) Defined by s. 3, ante, p. 4272.

(c) If compulsory powers of taking land are required, they must be obtained by private Bill. See also s. 15, post, p. 4276. A company had statutory power to lay a second line of tramway on obtaining certain consents, but without obtaining such consents they laid the rails :—Held, that they were liable for a trespass, and that as damages they were liable in any event for the cost of restoring the road (Bideford U. D. C. v. Bideford, etc., Rail. Co. (1903), 68 J. P. 123 ; 43 Digest 341, 15).

Regulations as to construction

9. Every tramway in a town (a) which is hereafter authorised by Provisional Order shall be constructed and maintained as nearly as may be in the middle of the road; and no tramway shall be authorised by any Provisional Order to be so laid that for any distance of thirty feet or upwards a less space than nine feet and six inches shall intervene between the outside of the footpath on either side of the road and the nearest rail of the tramway if one-third of the owners or one-third of the occupiers of the houses, shops, or warehouses abutting upon the part of the road where such less space shall intervene as aforesaid shall in the prescribed manner and at the prescribed time express their dissent from the tramway being so laid (b).

Section 9.

of tramways
in towns.

(a) See note (a) to s. 93 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ante, p. 4140.
(b) The Order will be good if it dispenses with the 9 ft. 6 in. limit in the absence of express dissent of the occupiers (Edinburgh Street Tramways v. Black (1873), L. R. 2 Sc. & Div. 336; 37 J. P. 692; 43 Digest 340, 6). See also Wilkinson and Marshall v. Newcastle-upon-Tyne Corporation (1902), 18 T. L. R. 332; 28 Digest 471, 795.

10. Every such Provisional Order shall specify the nature of the traffic for which such tramway is to be used, and the tolls and charges which may be demanded and taken by the promoters in respect of the same, and shall contain such regulations relating to such traffic and such tolls and charges as the Board of Trade (a) shall deem necessary and proper (b).

Nature of traffic on tramways and tolls to be specified in Provisional
Order.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.
(b) The working of omnibuses in connection with the tramways must be specially provided for if the local authority contemplate such an addition to the tramways (London C. C. v. Att.-Gen., [1902] A. C. 165; 66 J. P. 340; 13 Digest 366, 994). As to the construction of a statute empowering a local authority to run omnibuses in connection with their tramway undertaking, see Att.-Gen. v. Leeds Corporation, [1929] 2 Ch. 291; 93 J. P. 153; Digest Supp. The question is not whether a business can be conveniently or advantageously conducted with the tramway business, but whether it is by necessary implication incidental or necessary to it, see per FARWELL, J., in Att.-Gen. v. Manchester Corporation, [1906] 1 Ch. 643, 656; 70 J. P. 201; 13 Digest 362, 972, where the corporation were restrained from carrying on a parcels delivery service in connection with their tramway undertaking. As to the conveyance of mails by tramways, see the Conveyance of Mails Act, 1893 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 36). In Clogher Valley Tramway Co., Ltd. v. R. (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 316, it was held that a steam tramway constructed by a company authorised thereto by Provisional Order, under the Tramways (Ireland) Act, 1860, confirmed by special Act, was not a railway within the meaning of the Post Office (Parcels) Act, 1882, and that the rights and liabilities of the company and the Postmaster-General respectively as regarded the conveyance of parcels thereon, were regulated solely by the special Act confirming the Provisional Order.

11. The costs of and connected with the preparation and making of each Provisional Order shall be paid by the promoters, and the Board of Trade may require the promoters to give security for such costs before they proceed with the Provisional Order (a).

Costs of Order.

(a) These costs are to be taxed on the Chancery, and not on the parliamentary scale (In re Morley (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 17; 43 Digest 340, 7). And see In re Peterson, [1909] 2 Ch. 398; 73 J. P. 461; Digest, Practice 863, 4071, and Re Cannings, Ltd. and Middlesex C. C., [1907] 1 K. B. 51; Digest, Practice 947, 4871.

As to the costs of a parliamentary agent employed by a promoter who is not mentioned in the Act and does not become a member of the company, see Re Skegness and St. Leonard's Tramways Co. (1888), 41 Ch. D. 215; 10 Digest 1113, 7330.

12. After a Provisional Order is ready, and before the same is delivered by the Board of Trade (a), the promoters, unless they are a local authority, shall within the prescribed time and in the prescribed manner, and subject to the prescribed conditions as to interest, repayment, or forfeiture, pay, as a deposit, into the prescribed bank, the sum of money prescribed, which shall not be less than four pounds per centum on the amount of the estimate by the promoters of the expense of the construction of the tramway, or deposit, in such bank any security of the prescribed nature the then value of which is not less than such sum of money (b).

Publication of Provisional Order as in Schedule.

13. When a Provisional Order has been made as aforesaid and delivered to the promoters, the promoters shall forthwith publish the same by deposit and advertisement, according to the regulations contained in Part IV. of the Schedule B. to this Act.

Confirmation of Provisional Order by Act of Parliament.

14. On proof to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade (a) of the completion of such publication as aforesaid, the Board of Trade (a) shall, as soon as they conveniently can after the expiration of seven days from the completion of such publication, procure a Bill to be introduced into either House of Parliament in relation to any Provisional Order which shall have been published as aforesaid not later than the twenty-fifth of April (b) in any year, for an Act to confirm the Provisional Order, which shall be set out at length in the Schedule to the Bill; and until confirmation, with or without amendment, by Act of Parliament, a Provisional Order under this Act shall not have any operation.

If while any such Bill is pending in either House of Parliament a petition is presented against any Provisional Order comprised therein, the Bill, so far as it relates to the Order petitioned against, may be referred to a select committee, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of a Bill for a special Act.

The Act of Parliament confirming a Provisional Order under this Act shall be deemed a public general Act.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(b) See note (b) to s. 9 of the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, ante, p. 4268.

Incorporation of general Acts in Provisional
Order.

15. The provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts shall be incorporated with every Provisional Order under this Act, save where the same are expressly varied or excepted by any such Provisional Order, and except as to the following provisions, namely,—

- (1) With respect to the purchase and taking (a) of lands otherwise than by agreement;
- (2) With respect to the entry upon lands by the promoters of the undertaking.

For the purposes of such incorporation a Provisional Order under this Act shall be deemed the special Act.

(a) If compulsory powers are required they must be obtained by private Bill.

The erection, by a tramway company which was empowered by their special Act to erect on in over or under any street or road poles and posts, of a pillar on land belonging to the plaintiff forming part of the highway subject to being used by him for exposure of furniture for sale was held not to be a taking of land within the meaning of the Lands Clauses Acts, but only an exercise of their special statutory powers (Escott v. Newport Corporation, [1904] 2 K. B. 369; 68 J. P. 135; 26 Digest 327, 597). As to whether a local authority is entitled to use land vested in them as a public park for the purpose of road-widening to facilitate the construction of a tramway under a Provisional Order, see Att.-Gen. v. Folkestone Corporation, Times, April 29th, 1903.

Power of Board of Trade to revoke, amend, extend, or vary Provisional
Order.

16. The Board of Trade (a) on the application of any promoters empowered by a Provisional Order may from time to time revoke, amend, extend, or vary such Provisional Order by a further Provisional Order.

Every application for such further Provisional Order shall be made in like manner and subject to the like conditions as the application for the former Provisional Order.

Every such further Provisional Order shall be made and confirmed in like manner in every respect as the former Provisional Order, and until such confirmation such further Provisional Order shall not have any operation. Section 16. —

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

17. Subject and according to the provisions of this Act, the Board of Trade (a) may, on a joint application, or on two or more separate applications, settle and make a Provisional Order empowering two or more local authorities, respectively, jointly to construct the whole, or separately to construct parts, of a tramway, and jointly or separately to own the whole or parts thereof; and all the provisions of this Act which relate to the construction of tramways shall extend and apply to the construction of the whole and separate parts of such tramway as last aforesaid; and the form of the Provisional Order may be adapted to the circumstances of the case. Power to authorise joint work.

(a) See note (a) to s. 16, supra.

18. If the promoters empowered by any Provisional Order under this Act to make a tramway, do not, within two years from the date of the same, or within any shorter period prescribed therein, complete the tramway and open it for public traffic; or, Cesser of powers at expiration of prescribed time.

If within one year from the date of the Provisional Order, or within such shorter time as is prescribed in the same, the works are not substantially commenced; or,

If the works having been commenced are suspended without a reason sufficient in the opinion of the Board of Trade (a) to warrant such suspension;

the powers given by the Provisional Order to the promoters for constructing such tramway, executing such works, or otherwise in relation thereto, shall cease to be exercised, except as to so much of the same as is then completed, unless the time be prolonged by the special direction of the Board of Trade (a); and as to so much of the same as is then completed the Board of Trade (a) may allow the said powers to continue and to be exercised if they shall think fit, but failing such permission the same shall cease to be exercised, and where such permission is withheld then so much of the said tramway as is then completed shall be deemed to be a tramway to which all the provisions of this Act relating to the discontinuance of tramways after proof of such discontinuance shall apply, and may be dealt with accordingly.

A notice purporting to be published by the Board of Trade (a) in the London or Edinburgh Gazette, accordingly as the district to which it relates is situate in England or Scotland, to the effect that a tramway has not been completed and open for public traffic, or that the works have not been substantially commenced, or that they have been suspended without sufficient reason, shall be conclusive evidence for the purpose of this section of such non-completion, non-commencement, or suspension (b).

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(b) See note (b) to s. 12, ante, p. 4275. The notice referred to in this section is not the exclusive or only evidence of the non-commencement of the works that the court can receive. The works mean the physical works, and therefore where nothing has been done but the entering into contracts for the supply of dynamos, plant, and cars, the works have not been substantially commenced within the meaning of this section (Att.-Gen. v. Bournemouth Corporation, [1902] 2 Ch. 714; 43 Digest 340, 9). The only remedy of a private person for compelling the carrying out of the statutory powers is by complaint to the Board of Trade. The giving of the powers is no longer regarded as a bargain between the promoters and the public (York and North Midland Rail. Co. v. R. (1853), 1 El. & Bl. 858; 22 L. J. Q. B. 225; 38 Digest 257, 32; R. v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1893), 58 J. P. 74; 62 L. J. Q. B. 572; 38 Digest 258, 34). But there may be special provision in the Act, see Devonport Corporation v. Plymouth, Devonport and District Tramways Co. (1884), 49 J. P. 405; 52 L. T. 161; 42 Digest 759, 1857.

Section 19. 19. When a tramway has been completed under the authority of a Provisional Order by any local authority, or where any local authority has under the provisions of this Act (a) acquired possession of any tramway, such authority may, with the consent of the Board of Trade (b), and subject to the provisions of this Act, by lease, to be approved of by the Board of Trade (b), demise to any person, persons, corporation, or company the right of user by such person, persons, corporation, or company of the tramway, and of demanding and taking in respect of the same the tolls and charges authorised (c); or such authority may leave such tramway open to be used by the public, and may in respect of such user demand and take the tolls and charges authorised; but nothing in this Act contained shall authorise any local authority to place or run carriages upon such tramway, and to demand and take tolls and charges in respect of the use of such carriages (d).

Local authority may lease or take tolls.

Notice of the intention to make such lease shall be published by the local authority by advertisement, and a copy of such lease shall be deposited according to the regulations contained in Part I. of the Schedule C. to this Act annexed; and unless such notice is given, and such copy deposited, such lease shall not be approved of by the Board of Trade (b).

Every such lease shall be made for a term or for terms not exceeding in the whole twenty-one years.

On the determination of any lease made under this Act, the local authority may from time to time, with the consent of the Board of Trade (b), by lease, demise such rights for such further term or terms, not exceeding in any case twenty-one years, as the said Board may approve.

Every such lease shall imply a condition of re-entry if at any time after the making of the same the lessees discontinue the working of the tramway leased, or of any part thereof, for the space of three calendar months (such discontinuance not being occasioned by circumstances beyond the control of such lessees, for which purpose the want of sufficient funds shall not be considered a circumstance beyond their control).

The person, persons, corporation, or company to whom any such lease may be made are in this Act referred to as "lessees" (e).

(a) See s. 43, post, p. 4291.

(b) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(d) This last restriction is frequently removed in Provisional Orders.

(e) Apart from the express provisions of this section undertakers cannot grant a lease of their statutory powers (see per Lord BLACKBURN, in Att.-Gen. v. G. E. Rail. Co. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 473, at p. 484; 44 J. P. 648; 13 Digest 356, 932; Winch v. Birkenhead, etc. Rail. Co. (1852), 5 De G. & Sm. 562; 38 Digest 326, 418). How expenses to be defrayed.

20. (a) Where the local authority in any district are the promoters of any tramway, they shall pay all expenses incurred by them in applying for and obtaining a Provisional Order, and carrying into effect the purposes of such Provisional Order, out of the local rate, and any such expenses shall be deemed to be purposes for which such local rate may be made, and to which the same may be applied.

Where the local rate is limited by law to a certain amount and is by reason of such limitation insufficient for the payment of such expenses, the Board of Trade (b) may, by the Provisional Order, extend the limit of such local rate to such amount as they shall think fit, and prescribe for the payment of such expenses. Section 20.

Such local authority may, for the purposes of such Provisional Order, borrow . . . any sums of money necessary for defraying any such expenses.

Such local authority shall keep separate accounts of all moneys paid by them in applying for, obtaining, and carrying into effect any such Provisional Order, and in the repayment of moneys borrowed, and of all moneys received by them by way of rent or tolls in respect of the tramway authorised thereby.

When, after payment of all charges incurred under the authority of this Act, and necessary for giving effect to such Provisional Order, there shall be remaining in the hands of such local authority any of the moneys received by them by way of rent or tolls in respect of the tramways authorised by such Provisional Order, such moneys shall be applied by them to the purposes for which the local rate may be by them applied.

PART II.

CONSTRUCTION OF TRAMWAYS (a).

22. Part II. and Part III. of this Act shall apply to every tramway which is hereafter authorised by any Provisional Order or Act of Parliament, and shall be incorporated with such Provisional Order or Act, and all the said provisions of this Act, save so far as they shall be expressly varied or excepted by any such Provisional Order or Act, shall apply to the undertaking authorised thereby, so far as the same shall be applicable to such undertaking, and shall, with the provisions of every other Act or part of any Act which shall be incorporated therewith, form part of the said Provisional Order or Act, and be construed therewith as forming one Provisional Order or Act, as the case may be.

As to incorporation of Parts II. and III. of this Act with Provisional Order and special Acts.

(a) A tramway company authorised to construct and maintain tramways with all proper rails, plates, works, and conveniences connected therewith were, notwithstanding the powers contained in this Act, held liable for a nuisance created by smells arising from their stables (Rapier v. London Tramways Co., [1893] 2 Ch. 588; 36 Digest 175, 206). And where a tramway company after a heavy fall of snow cleared their track by means of a snow plough, and heaped up the snow on the sides of the streets, and then scattered salt upon the track, it was held that although they had obtained the consent of the local authority, and that authority took no steps to clear away the briny slush which was thereby caused, and rendered the street dangerous to other traffic, the tramway company were liable for the nuisance so created (Ogston v. Aberdeen District Tramways Co., [1897] A. C. 111; 61 J. P. 436; 26 Digest 439, 1562). But where a corporation purporting to act in the exercise of their powers under their special Tramways Act, which incorporated this Act, and authorised the construction of an electric tramway, erected a pole and a fuse-box on the footpath close to the entrance of the plaintiffs' premises, it was held that their statutory powers authorised them to use the pavement for the purpose of doing that which was necessary for making their tramway an electrical tramway, and that the nuisance which they were authorised to commit could not be interfered with unless the plaintiffs could prove that the powers conferred on the corporation had been abused (Goldberg & Son, Ltd. v. Liverpool Corporation (1900), 82 L. T. 362; 16 T. L. R. 320; 43 Digest 342, 24). And see Wandsworth Corporation v. London United Tramways (1901), Ltd. (1905), 69 J. P. 340;

Note to
Section 22.

21 T. L. R. 529; 43 Digest 342, 20, as to breaking up streets for the purpose of connecting the tramway with the power station by means of an underground electric cable.

By an agreement between the corporation and a tramway company in the city, it was agreed that the company should, under instructions from the city, keep their track free from ice and snow:—Held, that the company were not bound to remove from the streets altogether the snow and ice cleared off the tramway track, and that the words “under instructions from the city,” only applied to the extent of the work to be done, not to the particular method to be adopted for doing it. The city also granted to the company all licences, rights, and privileges necessary for the proper and efficient use by electric power to operate cars in the manner successfully in use elsewhere:—Held, that the city was not at liberty to prohibit the company from using electric sweepers which had been found successful in other cities (Montreal City v. Montreal Street Rail. Co., [1903] A. C. 482; 26 Digest 439, 1562 ii).

“Special Act.” 23. In Part II. and Part III. of this Act, the term “special Act” shall be construed to mean any Act of Parliament which shall be hereafter passed or any Provisional Order authorising the construction of a tramway, and with which the said Parts of this Act shall be incorporated as aforesaid.

“Promoter.” 24. The term “the promoters” shall mean any person, persons, corporation, company, or local authority authorised by special Act to construct a tramway.

Mode of formation of tramways.

25. Every tramway which is hereafter authorised by special Act shall be constructed on such gauge as may be prescribed by such special Act, and if no gauge is thereby prescribed, on such gauge as will admit of the use upon such tramways of carriages constructed for use upon railways of a gauge of four feet eight inches and half an inch; and shall be laid and maintained in such manner that the uppermost surface of the rail shall be on a level with the surface of the road; and shall not be opened for public traffic until the same has been inspected and certified to be fit for such traffic, in the prescribed manner (a).

(a) If the tramway is opened without the required certificate, the Attorney-General may obtain an injunction against its working (Att.-Gen. v. Southall, Baking, and Shepherds Bush Tramways Co., Times, July 10th, 1874). When the special Act directs compliance with deposited plans and sections, they are regarded as embodied in the statute (Edinburgh Street Tramways Co. v. Black (1873), L. R. 2 Sc. & Div. 336; 37 J. P. 692; 43 Digest 340, 6). Necessary consents required by statute must also be obtained (Devonport Corporation v. Plymouth, Devonport, and District Tramway Co. (1884), 49 J. P. 405; 52 L. T. 161; 28 Digest 498, 999).

Power to break up streets,
etc.

26. The promoters from time to time, for the purpose of making, forming, laying down, maintaining, and renewing any tramway duly authorised, or any part or parts thereof respectively, may open and break up any road (a), subject to the following regulations:

1. They shall give to the road authority notice of their intention, specifying the time at which they will begin to do so, and the portion of road proposed to be opened or broken up, such notice to be given seven days at least before the commencement of the work:
2. They shall not open, or break up, or alter the level of any road, except under the superintendence and to the reasonable satisfaction of the road authority (b), unless that authority refuses or neglects to give such superintendence at the time specified in the notice, or discontinues the same during the work:
3. They shall pay all reasonable expenses to which the road authority is put on account of such superintendence (b):
4. They shall not, without the consent of the road authority, open or break up at any one time a greater length than one hundred yards of any road which does not exceed a quarter of a mile in length, and in the case of any road exceeding a quarter of a mile in length the promoters shall leave an interval of at least a quarter of a mile between any two places at which they may open or break up the road, and they shall not open or break up at any such place a greater length than one hundred yards. Section 26.

Where the carriageway over any bridge forms part of or is a road within the jurisdiction of a road authority, but such bridge is vested in some person or persons, corporation, or company, distinct from such road authority, any work which the promoters may be empowered to construct, and which affects or in anywise interferes with the structural works of such bridge, shall be constructed under the superintendence (at the cost of the promoters) and to the reasonable satisfaction of such person, persons, corporation, or company, unless after notice to be given by the promoters seven days at least before the commencement of such work such superintendence is refused or withheld.

Where the carriageway in or upon which any tramway is proposed to be formed or laid down is crossed by any railway or tramway on the level, any work which the promoters may be empowered to construct, and which affects or in anywise interferes with such railway or tramway, or the traffic thereon, shall be constructed and maintained under the superintendence (at the cost of the promoters) and to the reasonable satisfaction of the person, corporation, or company owning such railway or tramway, unless after notice to be given by the promoters seven days at least before the commencement of such work such superintendence is refused or withheld.

(a) Defined by s. 3, ante, p. 4272. As to whether this includes footways, see Hyde Corporation v. Oldham, etc. Tramway, Ltd. (1900), 64 J. P. 596; 16 T. L. R. 492.

(b) See the notes to s. 28, post, p. 4282.

27. When the promoters have opened or broken up any portion of any road, they shall be under the following further obligations, namely, Completion of works and reinstatement of road.

1. They shall, with all convenient speed, and in all cases within four weeks at the most (unless the road authority otherwise consents in writing) complete the work on account of which they opened or broke up the same, and (subject to the formation, maintenance, or renewal of the tramway) fill in the ground and make good the surface, and, to the satisfaction of the road authority, restore the portion of the road to as good condition as that in which it was before it was opened or broken up, and clear away all surplus paving or metalling material or rubbish occasioned thereby:
2. They shall in the meantime cause the place where the road is opened or broken up to be fenced and watched, and to be properly lighted at night:
3. They shall bear or pay all reasonable expenses of the repair of the road for six months after the same is restored, as far as those expenses are increased by the opening or breaking up.

If the promoters aforesaid fail to comply in any respect with the provisions of the present section, they shall for every such offence (without prejudice to the enforcement of specific performance of the requirements of this Act or to any other remedy against them) be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, and to a further penalty not exceeding five pounds for each day during which any such failure continues after the first day on which such penalty is incurred.

28. The promoters shall, at their own expense, at all times maintain (a) and keep in good condition and repair (b), with such materials and in such manner as the road authority shall direct, and to their satisfaction (c), so much of any road whereon any tramway belonging to them is laid as lies between the rails of the tramway and (where two tramways are laid by the same promoters in any road at a distance of not more than four feet from each other) the portion of the road between the tramways, and in every case so Repair of part of road where tramway is laid.

Section 28. much of the road as extends eighteen inches beyond the rails of and on each side of any such tramway (d). If the promoters abandon their undertaking, or any part of the same (e), and take up any tramway or any part of any tramway belonging to them, they shall with all convenient speed, and in all cases within six weeks at the most (unless the road authority otherwise consents in writing), fill in the ground and make good the surface, and, to the satisfaction of the road authority, restore the portion of the road upon which such tramway was laid to as good a condition as that in which it was before such tramway was laid thereon, and clear away all surplus paving or metalling material or rubbish occasioned by such work; and they shall in the meantime cause the place where the road is opened or broken up to be fenced and watched, and to be properly lighted at night: Provided always, that if the promoters fail to comply with the provisions of this section, the road authority, if they think fit, may themselves at any time, after seven days' notice to the promoters, open and break up the road, and do the works necessary for the repair and maintenance or restoration of the road, to the extent in this section above mentioned, and the expense incurred by the road authority in so doing shall be repaid to them by the promoters (f).

(a) The removal of snow from the portion of a road lying between the rails of a tramway is not "maintenance" within the meaning of the section unless the fall of snow is of such a depth as to render the road impassable (Acton District Council v. London United Tramways, [1909] 1 K. B. 68; 73 J. P. 6; 26 Digest 439, 1563). See also note (a) to s. 22, ante, p. 4279.

(b) For a case where a nuisance was caused by the use of creosoted wood blocks, see West v. Bristol Tramways Co., [1908] 2 K. B. 14; 72 J. P. 243; 38 Digest 27, 147.

(c) I.e., their reasonable satisfaction. The question as to whether the authority ought reasonably to be satisfied must go to arbitration under s. 33, post, p. 4286 (R. v. Garrett and Hammersmith Borough Council, Ex parte London United Tramways, Ltd. (1909), 73 J. P. 188; 100 L. T. 533; 43 Digest 344, 38). See also the cases cited in note (b) to s. 32, p. 4286, post.

(d) By the Norwich Electric Tramways Act, 1897, the defendant company were to maintain and keep in good condition "the junction of the paving laid and maintained by the company with the surface laid and maintained by the corporation":—Held, that the word "junction" could not only mean the mere point or place where the two surfaces met, but that the defendant company had to maintain an even contour of the road at the junction of the two surfaces (Norwich Corporation v. Norwich Electric Tramways Co. (1904), 91 L. T. 558). By the same Act the corporation were empowered to do the work necessary for the repair and maintenance of the road, and the company were required in such a case to repay to the corporation the expense reasonably incurred with the addition of 5 per cent. on such expense. The surface laid and maintained by the corporation became worn down below the level of the paving laid and maintained by the company, and the corporation executed certain work to obviate inconvenience to the public owing to the state of the road. It was held that such expenses were incurred in maintaining and keeping in good condition the junction of the pavement laid and maintained by the company with the surface laid and maintained by the corporation and therefore recoverable by the corporation (In re Norwich Corporation and Norwich Electric Tramways Co., Ltd. (1908) 72 J. P. 178; 99 L. T. 133; 43 Digest 345, 41). As to the meaning of the word "junctions" in relation to the construction of the tramway itself, see Wilkinson and Marshall v. Newcastle-on-Tyne Corporation (1902), 18 T. L. R. 332; 28 Digest 471, 795. As to the liability of a tramway company in respect of the repair of a bridge widened by them, see Teddington U. D. C. v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co. (1910), 74 J. P. 119; 102 L. T. 328; 26 Digest 576, 2679. A similar provision in a Colonial case was discussed in Toronto Suburban Ry. v. Toronto Corporation, [1915] A. C. 590.

(e) Where a tram service was discontinued and the rails filled in with bitumen, it was held that the tramway had not been abandoned and the undertakers were therefore liable for damage resulting from the non-repair of the road (Broune v. De Luze Car Services and Birkenhead Corpn., [1941] 1 K. B. 549; [1941] 1 All E. R. 383).

(f) The raising of sleepers and rails to the level of the road, or the raising of the stone packing to the level of the rails, is maintaining and keeping the road in good condition under this section, and does not require the superintendence of the road authority under s. 26 (St. Luke's Vestry v. North Metropolitan Tramways Co. (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 760; 40 J. P. 806; 43 Digest 341, 17). In an unreported Irish case in the Court of Appeal (R. (Ex parte Dublin Corporation) v. Dublin United Tramways Co. (Feb. 26, 1889)), where the corporation had called upon the company to alter the level of their track to correspond with an alteration in the level of the road made by the corporation, so as to comply with

Section 28.

s. 65 of the company's private Act (38 & 39 Vict. c. ccix.), which provided that "if . . . the road authority shall alter the level of any road along or across which any part of the tramway is laid, the company may and shall from time to time alter or as the case may be lay their rails so that the uppermost surface thereof shall be on a level with the surface of the road as altered," it was held that s. 8 of the local Act corresponding to s. 28 of the text when read in conjunction with s. 65 of the local Act did not impose a liability upon the company to alter anything but the level of the rails at their own expense. Where a company had statutory power to run trams by steam and had statutory running powers over the line of another company, it was held that this did not authorise them to run over that line when it was defective, and they were held liable in damages to a person who was injured through a car running off the line by reason of its being defective (Sadler v. South Staffordshire, etc. Tramways Co. (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 17; 53 J. P. 694; 43 Digest 353, 105). The obligation of a tramway company under this section involves the duty by temporary expedients or permanent work of providing against temporary or recurrent sources of danger to traffic, and failure to discharge this obligation will make the company liable in damages to any person injured by such neglect. Thus the company were held liable for an accident which occurred by reason of their having neglected to sand the road in slippery weather (Dublin United Tramways Co. v. Fitzgerald, [1903] A. C. 99; 67 J. P. 229; 43 Digest 344, 37).

As to injury to passengers owing to the negligence of a contractor, see City of Birmingham Tramways Co., Ltd. v. Law, [1910] 2 K. B. 965; 74 J. P. 355; 43 Digest 356, 123.

29. The road authority on the one hand and the promoters on the other hand may from time to time enter into and carry into effect, and from time to time alter, renew, or vary, contracts, agreements, or arrangements with respect to the paving and keeping in repair of the whole or any portion of the roadway of any road on which the promoters shall lay any tramway, and the proportion to be paid by either of them of the expense of such paving and keeping in repair (a).

Road authority and promoters may contract for paving roads on which tramways are laid.

(a) Where a tramway company entered into a contract with a road authority under this section for the repair of that portion of the road upon which the tramway was laid, it was held that the liability for damage occasioned by the non-repair of that part of the road which would, but for such contract, be cast by s. 28 upon the tramway company, was transferred to the road authority (Howitt v. Nottingham and District Tramways Co. (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 16; 43 Digest 345, 43). This decision seems to have been questioned in Steward v. North Metropolitan Tramways Co. (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 556; 50 J. P. 324; 38 Digest 136, 998; but it has since been followed in Aldred v. West Metropolitan Tramways Co., [1891] 2 Q. B. 398; 55 J. P. 824; 43 Digest 345, 44; and that case has been followed in Barnett v. Poplar Corporation, [1901] 2 K. B. 319; 43 Digest 345, 45.

30. For the purpose of making, forming, laying down, maintaining, repairing, or renewing any of their tramways, the promoters may from time to time, where and as far as it is necessary, or may appear expedient for the purpose of preventing frequent interruption of the traffic by repairs or works in connection with the same, alter the position of any mains or pipes for the supply of gas or water, or any tubes, wires (a), or apparatus for telegraphic or other purposes, subject to the provisions of this Act, and also subject to the following restrictions; (that is to say,)

Provision as to gas and water companies.

1. Before laying down a tramway in a road in which any mains or pipes, tubes, wires, or apparatus may be laid, the promoters shall, whether they contemplate altering the position of any such mains or pipes, wires or apparatus, or not, give seven days' notice to the company, persons, or person to whom such mains or pipes, tubes, wires, or apparatus may belong or by whom they are controlled, of their intention to lay down or alter the tramway, and shall at the same time deliver a plan and section of the proposed work. If it should appear to any such company or person that the construction of the tramway as proposed would endanger any such main or pipe, tube, wire, or apparatus, or interfere with or impede the supply of water or gas or the telegraphic or other communication, such company or person (as the case may be) may give notice (b) to the promoters to lower or otherwise alter the position of the said mains or pipes, tubes, wires, or apparatus in such manner as may be considered necessary, and any difference as to the necessity of any such lowering or alteration shall be settled in manner provided by this Act for the settlement of differences between the promoters and other companies or persons, and all alterations to be made under this section shall be made with as little detriment and inconvenience to the company or person to whom such mains or pipes, tubes, wires, or apparatus may belong, or by whom the same are controlled, or to the inhabitants of the district, as the circumstances will admit, and under the superintendence of such company or person or of their surveyor or engineer if they or he think fit to attend, after receiving not less than forty-eight hours notice for that purpose, which notice the promoters are hereby required to give:

2. The promoters shall not remove or displace any of the mains or pipes, valves, syphons, plugs, tubes, wires, or apparatus, or other works belonging to or controlled by any such company or person, or do anything to impede the passage of water or gas or the telegraphic or other communication into or through such mains or pipes, without the consent of such company or person, or in any other manner than such company or person shall approve, until good and sufficient mains, pipes, valves, syphons, plugs, and other works necessary or proper for continuing the supply of water or gas or telegraphic or other communication, as sufficiently as the same was supplied by the mains or pipes, tubes, wires, or apparatus proposed to be removed or displaced, shall at the expense of the promoters have been first made and laid down in lieu thereof, and ready for use, and to the satisfaction of the surveyor or engineer of such water or gas or other company, or of such person, or, in case of disagreement between such surveyor or engineer and the promoters, as an engineer appointed by the Board of Trade shall direct:
3. The promoters shall not lay down any such pipes contrary to the regulations of any Act of Parliament relating to such water or gas or other company, or relating to telegraphs:
4. The promoters shall make good all damage done by them to property belonging to or controlled by any such company or person, and shall make full compensation to all parties for any loss or damage which they may sustain by reason of any interference with such property, or with the private service pipes of any person supplied by any such company or person with water or gas:
5. If by any such operations as aforesaid the promoters interrupt the supply of water or gas in or through any main or main pipe they shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds for every day upon which the supply shall be so interrupted.

(a) The promoters may alter the position of the wires of a railway company, and for that purpose may enter upon the land belonging to the railway company (In re Rhondda U. D. C. and Taff Vale Rail. Co. (1907), 72 J. P. 45; 97 L. T. 892; 43 Digest 343, 29). As to the provision of guard wires under the L. C. C. Tramways Regulations, see S. R. & O., 1914, No. 1098.

For a case under a local Act where postal telegraph lines were affected by the escape of electricity from the company's wires, see Postmaster-General v. Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co., [1921] 1 K. B. 114; 85 J. P. 71; 43 Digest 343, 30. See also Postmaster-General v. Liverpool Corporation, [1923] A. C. 587; 87 J. P. 157; 42 Digest 895, 60.

(b) This notice may be given at any time until the tramway is constructed (Hastings Tramways Co. v. Hastings and St. Leonards Gas Co., [1906] 2 Ch. 578; 70 J. P. 540; 25 Digest 481, 69).

For protection of sewers, etc.

31. Where in any district any tramway or any work connected therewith interferes with any sewer, drain, watercourse, subway, defence, or work in such district, or in any way affects the sewerage or drainage of such district,

Section 31.

the promoters shall not commence any tramway or work until they shall have given to the proper authority fourteen days previous notice in writing of their intention to commence the same, by leaving such notice at the principal office of such authority with all necessary particulars relating thereto, nor until such authority shall have signified their approval of the same, unless such authority do not signify their approval, disapproval, or other directions within fourteen days after service of the said notice and particulars as aforesaid, and the promoters shall comply with and conform to all reasonable directions and regulations of the said authority in the execution of the said works, and shall provide by new, altered, or substituted works, in such manner as such authority shall reasonably require, for the proper protection of and for preventing injury or impediment to the sewers and works hereinbefore referred to, or by reason of the tramways, and shall save harmless the said authority against all and every the expense to be occasioned thereby; and all such works shall be done under the direction, superintendence, and control of the engineer or other officer or officers of the said authority, at the reasonable costs, charges, and expenses in all respects of the promoters; and when any new, altered, or substituted work as aforesaid, or any works or defence connected therewith, shall be completed by or at the costs, charges, or expenses of the promoters under the provisions of this Act, the same shall thereafter be as fully and completely under the direction, jurisdiction, and control of the said authority and be maintained by them as any sewers or works (a).

(a) As to the sufficiency of notices under this section, see Brentford U. D. C. v. London United Tramways Co., Times, March 30th, 1901.

32. Nothing in this Act shall take away or abridge any power to open or break up any road along or across which any tramway is laid, or any other power vested in any local authority or road authority (a) for any of the purposes for which such authority is respectively constituted, or in any company, body, or person for the purpose of laying down, repairing, altering, or removing any pipe for the supply of gas or water, or any tubes, wires, or apparatus for telegraphic or other purposes (b), but in the exercise of such power every such local authority, road authority, company, body, or person shall be subject to the following restrictions; (that is to say,)

Rights of authorities and companies, etc.
to open roads.

1. They shall cause as little detriment or inconvenience to the promoters and lessees as circumstances admit:
2. Before they commence any work whereby the traffic on the tramway will be interrupted they shall (except in cases of urgency, in which cases no notice shall be necessary) give to the promoters and lessees, if there be any, notice of their intention to commence such work, specifying the time at which they will begin to do so, such notice to be given eighteen hours at least before the commencement of the work (c):
3. They shall not be liable to pay to the promoters or lessees any compensation for injury done to the tramway by the execution of such work, or for loss of traffic occasioned thereby, or for the reasonable exercise of the powers so vested in them as aforesaid:
4. Whenever for the purpose of enabling them to execute such work the local authority or the road authority shall so require, the promoters or lessees shall either stop traffic on the tramway to which the notice shall refer, where it would otherwise interfere with such work, or shore up and secure the same at their own risk and cost during the execution of the work there: Provided that such work shall always be completed by the local authority or the road authority, as the case may be, with all reasonable expedition:

Section 32. 5. Any company, body, or person shall not execute such work so far as it immediately affects the tramway except under the superintendence of the promoters, unless they refuse or neglect to give such superintendence at the time specified in the notice for the commencement of the work or discontinue the same during the progress of the work; and they shall execute such work at their own expense, and to the reasonable satisfaction of the promoters: Provided that any additional expense imposed upon them by reason of the existence of the tramway in any road or place where any such mains, pipes, tubes, wires, or apparatus shall have been laid before the construction of such tramway shall be borne by the promoters (c).

(a) A railway company who are liable to maintain and repair a bridge over their line, with the approaches and the road thereon, are in respect of such road a road authority within the meaning of this section. Where a railway company for the reconstruction of such a bridge had, after giving the notices specified by this section, removed the rails of a tramway running over the bridge, and temporarily stopped the traffic, it was held that they were not liable to the tramway company for injury to the tramway, loss of traffic, or cost of reinstating the rails, provided they had caused as little detriment or inconvenience as the circumstances admitted. It was held also that if they caused more than the least detriment and inconvenience which the circumstances admitted, they would be liable to the extent to which they had exceeded such least possible detriment and inconvenience (Wolverhampton Tramways Co., Ltd. v. G. W. Rail. Co. (1886), 56 L. J. Q. B. 191; 56 L. T. 892; 43 Digest 346, 47).

(b) A telephone company acting under a licence from the Postmaster-General pursuant to the Telegraph Acts, 1863, 1878, and 1892, need not obtain the previous consent of a tramway company before proceeding to break up a street or public road on which tramways are laid, for the purpose of laying telephone wires, even though the tramway company is liable under s. 28 for the repair of that street or road (Bristol Tramways and Carriage Co. v. National Telephone Co., [1899] 2 Ch. 882; 63 J. P. 588; 43 Digest 346, 48).

(c) A gas company executed work in roads along which a tramway ran, part of which work consisted in pipes so laid for the first time since the construction of the tramway, and connecting the same with the mains which had been laid down before the construction of the tramway. In one instance during the progress of the work, where there was a double tramline, the cars of one line were diverted to the other, such diversion being at the request of the gas company. In other instances cars were merely slowed down or stopped for a short time while the workmen got out of the trenches. By reason of the existence of the tramway additional expense was imposed upon the gas company in connecting the new pipes with their mains. It was held that the gas company were entitled to recover such additional expense from the tramway company under sub-s. 5, supra, inasmuch as there had been an interruption of the traffic on the tramway within the meaning of sub-s. 2, and the connection of a new service pipe with the main involved an alteration of the main; but that the proviso in sub-s. 5 does not apply in the case of work which is not such as to interrupt the traffic on the tramway (In re Bristol Gas Co. and Bristol Tramways and Carriage Co., Ltd., [1910] 1 K. B. 114; 74 J. P. 35; 25 Digest 481, 70).

Difference between pro-motors and road authority,
etc.

33. If any difference arises between the promoters or lessees on the one hand and any local authority or road authority, or any gas or water company, or any company, body, or person to whom any sewer, drain, tube, wires, or apparatus for telegraphic or other purposes may belong, or any other company, on the other hand, with respect to any interference or control, exercised, or claimed to be exercised, by them or him, or on their or his behalf, or by the promoters or lessees by virtue of this Act, in relation to any tramway, or work, or in relation to any work or proceeding of the local authority, road authority, body, company, or person, or with respect to the propriety of or the mode of execution of any work relating to any tramway, or with respect to the amount of any compensation to be made by or to the promoters or lessees, or on the question whether any work is such as ought reasonably to satisfy the local authority, road authority, body, company, or person concerned, or with respect to any other subject or thing regulated by or comprised in this Act, the matter in difference shall (unless otherwise specially provided by this Act) be settled by an engineer or other fit person nominated as referee by the Board of Trade(a) on the application of either party, and the expenses of the reference shall be borne and paid as the referee directs (b). Section 33.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(b) By a local Tramway Act incorporating the above Act, the space between the rails and for a distance of eighteen inches beyond each external rail was to be paved by the company, to the satisfaction of the local authority, with wood or other paving to be approved of by the local authority. On an application by the local authority for a mandamus to the company to take up the paving so laid down, it was held that a difference had arisen within the meaning of the above section which ought to be determined by a referee appointed by the Board of Trade, and that the mandamus ought not to be granted (R. v. Croydon and Norwood Tramways Co. (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 39; 51 J. P. 420; 43 Digest 346, 50). And see R. v. Garrett and Hammersmith Borough Council, Ex parte London United Tramways, Ltd., ante, p. 4282; R. v. FitzGibbon, [1910] 2 I. R. 236. A municipal corporation, as being the road and the local authority, proposed to alter a road within their district on which a tramway had been constructed under this Act, by taking up the existing granite pavement and laying down a wood pavement over the whole of the roadway, including the space between the rails of the tramway and eighteen inches on each side thereof. The company objected to the alteration so far as it concerned the last-mentioned portion of the roadway and claimed to refer the matter under the above section:—Held, that the difference was not one within the section, inasmuch as it was not with respect to any interference or control claimed to be exercised by the road authority by virtue of the Act, or to any subject or thing regulated by or comprised in the Act; but with respect to the exercise of a power which belonged to the road authority independently of the Act and was preserved by s. 60 (Bristol Tramways and Carriage Co. v. Bristol Corporation (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 427; 55 J. P. 53; 43 Digest 346, 51). An arbitrator appointed to determine a difference arising under this section has jurisdiction to order gas mains already laid down to be lowered so that any new service pipes might be carried horizontally underneath the concrete bed of the tramway; and he can further order such gas mains to be moved laterally to such a distance as to enable access to be obtained to them without interference with the concrete bed (Re Ilford Gas Co. and Ilford U. D. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 239; 88 L. T. 236; 25 Digest 481, 68). The provision for arbitration contained in this section ousts the jurisdiction of the High Court with regard to differences coming within the section, and the objection may be taken in the Court of Appeal, though not taken in the High Court. It was provided by the special Act of a tramway company, with which by s. 22 of the Tramways Act, 1870, Parts II. and III. of that Act were incorporated, that if the company failed to maintain and keep in good condition, to the satisfaction of the corporation, the junction of the paving laid and maintained by the company with the surface laid and maintained by the corporation, the corporation might if they thought fit themselves at any time after seven days' notice to the company do the work necessary for the repair and maintenance of the road, and that the expense reasonably incurred by the corporation in so doing should be repaid to them by the company with 5 per cent. added thereto. The corporation did work by way of repair to roads on which tramways belonging to the company were laid, alleging that such work came within the above provision, which the company denied. In an action by the corporation against the company to recover the expenses, and for a declaration of their rights:—Held, that the difference must be settled by arbitration under this section (Norwich Corporation v. Norwich Electric Tramways, Co., Ltd., [1906] 2 K. B. 119; 70 J. P. 401; 43 Digest 346, 52). A local Act incorporated ss. 28 and 33 of this Act and imposed a penalty (inter alia) for not keeping the rails in repair and so as not to be a danger or annoyance to the ordinary traffic. It was held that the magistrate had jurisdiction to deal with summonses for not keeping the rails in repair as in this instance no question had arisen in regard to the satisfaction of the road authority (R. v. Garrett and Hammersmith Borough Council, Ex parte London United Tramways, Ltd., ante, p. 4282). A private Act authorised a company to construct a tramway and other works. It provided (inter alia) that "unless otherwise agreed in writing" between the parties, the company should complete the tramway within two years and "carry out to the reasonable satisfaction of the council the widenings" authorised by the Act. No such written agreement was in fact entered into. It was held that until an agreement altering the scheme of works was made, there was an absolute statutory obligation on the company to do the works, and that a landowner whose property had been rendered less valuable by the abandonment of the undertaking was entitled to compensation out of the parliamentary deposit (In re West Yorkshire Tramways Act, 1906, [1913] 1 Ch. 170; 36 Digest 284, 319). As to reference of differences under a local Act incorporating this section, see Regent's Canal Dock Co. v. London C. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 201; 43 Digest 347, 56; Joseph Crosfield & Sons, Ltd. v. Manchester Ship Canal Co., [1906] A. C. 421; 69 J. P. 441; 38 Digest 57, 336.

Section 34.

PART III.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Carriages.

Power for promoters to use tramways with flange-wheeled carriages, etc.

34. The promoters of tramways authorised by special Act and their lessees may use on their tramways carriages with flange wheels or wheels suitable only to run on the rail prescribed by such Act; and, subject to the provisions of such special Act and of this Act, the promoters and their lessees shall have the exclusive use of their tramways for carriages with flange wheels or other wheels suitable only to run on the prescribed rail (a).

All carriages used on any tramway shall be moved by the power prescribed by the special Act, and where no such power is prescribed, by animal power only (b).

No carriage used on any tramway which is hereafter authorised by special Act shall extend beyond the outer edge of the wheels of such carriage more than eleven inches on each side.

(a) The promoters are consequently occupiers of the land which is de facto occupied by the tramway, and, therefore, they are rateable (Pimlico Tramway Co. v. Greenwich Union (1873), L. R. 9 Q. B. 9; 38 J. P. 117; 38 Digest 442, 132; Craig v. Edinburgh Street Tramways Co. (1874), 1 R. (Ct. of Sess.), 947; Melbourne Tramway and Omnibus Co. v. Fitzroy Corporation, [1901] A. C. 153; Thornton U. D. C. v. Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co., [1909] A. C. 264; 73 J. P. 299; 38 Digest 490, 462; London United Tramways (1901), Ltd. v. Brentford Union (1907), 71 J. P. 249; 5 L. G. R. 682; 38 Digest 546, 898). With regard to the use of cars for advertising purposes, see a case on the construction of an agreement (Griffiths and Millington, Ltd. v. Southampton Corporation (1906), 70 J. P. 179; 22 T. L. R. 301; 43 Digest 348, 72). In rating the undertaking receipts from advertisements must be taken into account (North Metropolitan Tramways Co. v. St. Mary, Islington (1874), Ryde's Met. Rat. App. 112). As to a contract for advertising on the trams of a company which subsequently becomes merged in a larger undertaking, see Abrahams, Ltd. v. Campbell, [1911] S. C. 353; 12 Digest 383, f.

(b) A locomotive used upon a tramway under a special Act is not subject to the provisions of the Highway and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, post (Bell v. Stockton and Darlington Steam Tramway Co. (1887), 51 J. P. 804; 3 T. L. R. 511; 43 Digest 348, 75). A tramcar drawn by horses was held to be a "coach" for the purposes of tolls under 7 Geo. 3, c. lxxiii. (Plymouth, Stonehouse, and Devonport Tramways Co. v. General Tolls Co. (1898), 14 T. L. R. 531; 43 Digest 347, 59); and a tramcar is a "stage carriage" for the purposes of the Railway Passenger Duty Act, 1842, s. 13, as to overcrowding (Brian v. Aylward (1902), 18 T. L. R. 371; 43 Digest 347, 63), and of an Act as to painting up the number of passengers to be carried (Black v. Neilson (1897) 25 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J.) 98). A tramcar may not ply for hire without a licence from the local authority. See Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co. v. Bailey, ante, p. 4237.

Licences to use Tramways (a).

Licences to use the tramway may in certain events be granted to third parties by the Board of Trade.

35. If at any time after any tramway or part of any tramway shall have been for three years opened for public traffic in any district it shall be represented in writing to the Board of Trade (b) by the local authority of such district or by twenty inhabitant ratepayers of such district, or by the road authority of any road in which such tramway or part of a tramway, is laid, that the public are deprived of the full benefit of the tramway, the Board of Trade (b) may (if they consider that, prima facie, the case is one for inquiry), direct an inquiry by a referee under this Act into the truth of the representation, and if the referee report that the truth of the representation has been proved to his satisfaction, the Board (c) may from time to time grant licences to any company or person to use such tramway in addition to the promoters or their lessees, for such traffic as is authorised by the special Act, with carriages to be approved by the Board, subject to the following provisions, conditions, and restrictions; that is to say,

1. The licence shall be for any period not less than one year nor more than three years from the date of the licence, but shall be renewable by the Board, if they upon inquiry think fit:

Section 35.

2. The licence shall be to use the whole of such tramway for the time being opened for public traffic, or such part or parts of such tramway as the Board, having reference to the cause for granting the licence, shall think right :
3. The licence shall direct the number of carriages which the licensee or licensees shall run upon such tramway, and the mode in which and times at which such carriages shall be run :
4. The licences shall specify the tolls to be paid to the promoters or to their lessees by the licensee or licensees for the use of the tramways :
5. The licensee or licensees, and their officers and servants, shall permit one person duly authorised for that purpose by the promoters, or by their lessees, to ride free of charge in or upon each carriage of the licensee or licensees run upon the tramways for the whole or any part of the journey :
6. The Board of Trade (b) may at any time after the granting of any licence revoke, alter, or modify the same for good cause shown to them.

(a) The following sections deal with licences by the Board of Trade (now Ministry of Transport), enabling persons other than the undertakers to use the tramways. For a case of a lease by a corporation to a tramway company pursuant to a local Act, see R. v. Devonport J.J., Ex parte Devonport Tramways Co. (1909), 73 J. P. 393 ; 101 L. T. 424 ; 43 Digest 357, 125.

(b) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(c) For a licence granted by a corporation, pursuant to a local Act which required the consent of the Board of Trade being held to be ultra vires where such consent was not obtained, see Salford Corporation v. Eccles Corporation, [1912] A. C. 465 ; 76 J. P. 249 ; 43 Digest 356, 122.

36. If on demand any licensee fail to pay the tolls due in respect of any passengers carried in any carriage it shall be lawful for the promoters or their lessees, to whom the same are payable, to detain and sell such carriage, or if the same shall have been removed from the tramway or premises of such promoters or lessees, to detain and sell any other carriages on such tramway or premises belonging to such licensee, and out of the moneys arising from such sale to retain the tolls payable as aforesaid, and all charges and expenses of such detention and sale, rendering the overplus (if any) of such moneys and such of the carriages as shall remain unsold to the person entitled thereto.

In default of payment of tolls licensee's carriages may be detained and sold.

37. Every licensee shall on demand give to an officer or servant authorised in that behalf by the promoters or their lessees entitled to be paid tolls by such licensee, an exact account in writing signed by such licensee of the number of passengers conveyed by any and every carriage used by him on the tramways.

Licensees to give account of passengers carried by them.

38. If any such licensee fails to give such account to such officer or servant demanding the same as aforesaid, or if any such licensee with intent to avoid the payment of any tolls gives a false account, he shall for every such offence forfeit to the promoters, or to their lessees entitled to be paid tolls by such licensee, a sum not exceeding five pounds, and such penalty shall be in addition to any tolls payable in respect of the passengers carried by any such carriage.

Licensees not giving account of passengers carried liable to penalty.

39. If any dispute arise concerning the amount of the tolls due to the promoters or to their lessees from any licensee, or concerning the charges occasioned by any detention or sale of any carriage under the provisions herein contained, the same shall be settled in England by two justices . . . and it shall be lawful for the promoters or their lessees in the meanwhile Disputes as to amount of toll to be settled by justice.

Section 39. to detain the carriage, or (if the case so require) the proceeds of the sale thereof (a).

(a) Words relating to Scotland only are omitted from this section.

Owners of carriages liable for damage done by their servants.

40. Every licensee shall be answerable for any trespass or damage done by his carriages or horses, or by any of the servants or persons employed by him, to or upon the tramway, or to or upon the property of any other person, and without prejudice to the right of action against the licensee or any other person, every such servant or other person may lawfully be convicted of such trespass or damage in England before two justices . . . either by the confession of the party offending or by the oath of some credible witness; and upon such conviction every such licensee shall pay to the promoters, lessees, or persons injured, as the case may be, the damage, to be ascertained by such justices, so that the same do not exceed fifty pounds (a).

(a) Words relating to Scotland only are omitted from this section.

Discontinuance of Tramways.

Tramways to be removed in certain cases.

41 (a). If at any time after the opening of any tramway in any district for traffic the promoters discontinue the working of such tramway, or of any part thereof, for the space of three calendar months (such discontinuance not being occasioned by circumstances beyond the control of such promoters, for which purpose the want of sufficient funds shall not be considered a circumstance beyond their control), and such discontinuance is proved to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade (b), the said Board, if they think fit, may by Order declare that the powers of the promoters in respect of such tramway or the part thereof so discontinued shall, from the date of such Order, be at an end, and thereupon the said powers of the promoters shall cease and determine, unless the same are purchased by the local authority in manner by this Act provided. Where any such Order has been made, the road authority of such district may at any time after the expiration of two months from the date of such Order under the authority of a certificate to that effect by the Board of Trade (b), remove the tramway or part of the tramway so discontinued, and the promoters shall pay to the road authority the cost of such removal and of the making good of the road by the road authority, such cost to be certified by the clerk for the time being, or by some other authorised officer of the road authority, whose certificate shall be final and conclusive; and if the promoters fail to pay the amount so certified within one calendar month after delivery to them of such certificate or a copy thereof, the road authority may, without any previous notice to the promoters (but without prejudice to any other remedy which they may have for the recovery of the amount), sell and dispose of the materials of the tramway or part of tramway removed, either by public auction or private sale, and for such sum or sums, and to such person or persons, as the road authority may think fit, and may out of the proceeds of such sale pay and reimburse themselves the amount of the cost certified as aforesaid and of the cost of sale, and the balance (if any) of the proceeds of the sale shall be paid over by the road authority to the promoters.

(a) This section relates to the discontinuance of a tramway service. For cases of abandonment of the undertaking (before the work is commenced or completed), decided under the Parliamentary Deposits and Bonds Act, 1892 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 510), see In re Peckham, Dulwich and Crystal Palace Tramways Bill, [1910] 2 Ch. 1; 74 J. P. 266; 43 Digest 358, 129; In re Peckham and East Dulwich Tramways Co., [1911] W. N. 15; In re Southport and Lytham Tramroad Act, 1900, Ex parte Heskeith, [1911] 1 Ch. 120; 36 Digest 283, 318; In re West Yorkshire Tramways Act, 1906, [1913] 1 Ch. 170; 36 Digest 284, 319.

(b) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

Insolvency of Promoters (a).

42. If at any time after the opening of any tramway in any district for traffic, it appears to the local authority or the road authority of such district that the promoters of such tramway are insolvent, so that they are unable to maintain such tramway, or work the same with advantage to the public, and such road authority makes a representation to that effect to the Board of Trade, the Board of Trade (b) may direct an inquiry by a referee into the truth of the representation, and if the referee shall find that the promoters are so insolvent as aforesaid, the Board of Trade (b) may, by Order, declare that the powers of the promoters shall, at the expiration of six calendar months from the making of the Order, be at an end, and the powers of the promoters shall cease and determine at the expiration of the said period, unless the same are purchased by the local authority in manner by this Act provided; and thereupon such road authority may remove the tramway in like manner and subject to the same provisions as to the payment of the costs of such removal, and to the same remedy for recovery of such costs, in every respect as in cases of removal under the next preceding section.

Proceedings in case of insolvency of promoters.

(a) It was held that an unregistered tramway company, incorporated by a special Act, was not within the exception of "railway companies incorporated by Act of Parliament" in s. 199 of the Companies Act, 1862, and could, therefore, be wound up under that section (see now s. 337 of the Companies Act, 1929) (Re Brentford and Isleworth Tramways Co. (1884), 26 Ch. D. 527; 10 Digest 1193, 8473). And see Portsmouth, etc. Tramways Co., In re, [1892] 2 Ch. 362; 10 Digest 1191, 8453. A company being in liquidation, the Board of Trade, under this section, directed an inquiry to ascertain the solvency of the promoters:—Held: upon application by the official liquidator for an injunction to restrain the inquiry, that it was not a proceeding against the company, and could not be restrained under s. 87 of the Companies Act, 1862 (see now s. 177 of the Companies Act, 1929) (Re Pontypridd and Rhondda Valleys Tramways Co. (1889), 58 L. J. Ch. 536; 37 W. R. 570; 10 Digest 959 6573).

Where a petition is presented for winding up a company, the court has power to restrain proceedings before magistrates for penalties against the company (Re Briton Medical, etc. Association (1886), 32 Ch. D. 603; 10 Digest 962, 6591).

It was held that, although the company had not been ordered to be wound up, the court would appoint a receiver and manager in an action brought by a holder of overdue debentures of the company to realise his security (Bartlett v. West Metropolitan Tramways Co. (No. 1), [1893] 3 Ch. 437; Digest Supp.). And it was further held on a subsequent application by the receiver, that the court had power under this section and s. 44 to make an order for sale of the company's property as a going concern (Bartlett v. West Metropolitan Tramways Co. (No. 2), [1894] 2 Ch. 286; 10 Digest 1191, 8449). But this latter decision was overruled in Marshall v. South Staffordshire Tramways Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 36; 10 Digest 1191, 8450, where it was held that the holders of debentures issued by a tramway company governed by this Act (whether incorporated under the Companies Act, 1862, or under a special Act, by which debentures the undertaking of the company and all its property, present and future, including uncalled capital, are charged) are in the event of default by the company entitled only to the appointment of a receiver of the undertaking of the company and the net earnings thereof; and are not entitled to an order for the sale of the undertaking or to the appointment of a manager.

(b) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

Purchase of Tramways (a).

43. Where the promoters of a tramway in any district are not the local authority, the local authority, if, by resolution passed at a special meeting of the members constituting such local authority, they so decide, may within six months after the expiration of a period of twenty-one years from the time when such promoters were empowered to construct such tramway, and within six months after the expiration of every subsequent period of seven years or within three months after any Order made by the Board of Trade under either of the two next preceding sections, with the approval of the Board of Trade, by notice in writing (b) require such promoters to sell, and Future purchase of undertaking by local authority.

Section 43. thereupon such promoters shall sell (c) to them their undertaking (d), or so much of the same as is within such district, upon terms of paying the then value (exclusive of any allowance for past or future profits of the undertaking, or any compensation for compulsory sale, or other consideration whatsoever) (e) of the tramway, and all lands, buildings, works, materials, and plant of the promoters suitable to and used by them for the purposes of their undertaking within such district (f), such value to be in case of difference determined by an engineer or other fit person nominated as referee (g) by the Board of Trade on the application of either party, and the expenses of the reference to be borne and paid as the referee directs. And when any such sale has been made, all the rights, powers, and authorities of such promoters in respect to the undertaking sold, or where any Order has been made by the Board of Trade under either of the next preceding sections, all the rights, powers, and authorities of such promoters previous to the making of such Order in respect of the undertaking sold, shall be transferred to, vested in, and may be exercised by the authority to whom the same has been sold, in like manner as if such tramway was constructed by such authority under the powers conferred upon them by a Provisional Order under this Act, and in reference to the same they shall be deemed to be the promoters (h).

No such resolution shall be valid unless a month's previous notice of the meeting, and of the purpose thereof, has been given in manner in which notices of meetings of such local authority are usually given, nor unless two-thirds of the members constituting such local authority are present and vote at the meeting, and a majority of those present and voting concur in the resolution . . . (i).

The local authority in any district may pay the purchase-money and all expenses incurred by them in the purchase of any undertaking under the authority of this section . . . (k), and shall have the like powers to borrow . . . (k) as if such expenses were incurred in applying for, obtaining, and carrying into effect any Provisional Order obtained by them under this Act.

Where the local rate is limited by law to a certain amount, and is by reason of such limitation insufficient for the payment of such purchase-money and expenses, the Board of Trade (l) may by Provisional Order extend the limit of such local rate to such amount as they shall think fit and prescribe for the payment of such purchase-money and expenses.

Every such Provisional Order shall be confirmed in like manner as a Provisional Order under the authority of Part I. of this Act, and until such confirmation such Provisional Order shall not have any operation.

Subject and according to the preceding provisions of this section two or more local authorities may jointly purchase any undertaking or so much of the same as is within their districts.

(a) It has been the practice of Parliament and of the Board of Trade to vary the provisions of s. 43 as to compulsory purchase by extending the time within which purchase can take place and by providing for more reasonable terms of payment. The variations are numerous and depend entirely on the conditions which the company is willing to concede and the local authority to accept.

It is also usual in special Acts incorporating tramway companies to insert clauses to protect lenders of money to the company in the event of a compulsory sale to the local authority under s. 43 and to give them notice of the rights of the local authority.

(b) For form of notice, see the Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XVII, title TRAMWAYS.

(c) See note (c) to s. 44, p. 4294, post.

(d) This word is limited by reference to the tramway previously mentioned, viz., the particular tramway which the promoters are empowered to construct by any special Act or Provisional Order. Therefore, where a tramway company has constructed a number of lines under special Acts passed in different years, the local authority may (subject to the leave of the Board of Trade being obtained) purchase so much of any one line as is within its district at the expiration of twenty-one years from the time when the promoters were empowered to construct the line, together with the undertaking as far as it relates to that particular line, without purchasing the other lines constructed under different special Acts (North Metropolitan Tramways Co. v. London C. C. (1895), 60 J. P. 23; 12 T. L. R. 101, C. A. affirming 72 L. T. 536; 43 W. R. 552; 43 Digest 353, 108).

The local authority is not entitled to take possession until the amount of the purchase money has been ascertained and paid (Manchester Carriage and Tramways Co. v. Manchester Corporation (1902), 67 J. P. 17; 87 L. T. 678; 43 Digest 355, 120).

(e) The value of the tramway upon a compulsory sale to the local authority must be measured by what it would cost to construct it at the date of such sale, subject to a proper deduction in respect of depreciation (Edinburgh Street Tramways Co. v. Edinburgh Corporation, [1894] A. C. 456; 43 Digest 354, 113, and London Street Tramways Co. v. London C. C., [1894] A. C. 489; 43 Digest 355, 115; London Tramways Co. v. London C. C., [1898] A. C. 375; 62 J. P. 675). See also Re Southampton Tramways Co. and Southampton Corporation (1899), 63 J. P. 788; 16 T. L. R. 38, C. A. affirming 80 L. T. 236; 43 Digest 355, 116. The principles laid down by the House of Lords in the Edinburgh Case were applied by the Court of Appeal in Oldham, Ashton and Hyde Electric Tramways, Ltd. v. Ashton Corporation, [1921] 3 K. B. 511; 85 J. P. 181; 43 Digest 355, 119. There the arbitrator had awarded the value of the undertaking at the time of the notice requiring the owner of the tramway to sell, including therein as part of the original cost of establishment the engineer's fees, subject to depreciation, the cost of raising the original capital of the undertaking, interest on capital during construction, and the cost of a temporary diversion of the tramway from a railway bridge in accordance with a provision inserted at the instance of the railway company in the order authorising the construction of the tramway. It was held by ROWLATT, J., and affirmed in Court of Appeal that the engineer's fees should be allowed subject to depreciation, that the cost of raising capital must be disallowed, that the interest on capital was subject to depreciation, and that the cost of the temporary diversion of the tramway must be disallowed. Notwithstanding the practice of Parliament in granting statutory powers to lay tramways in narrow streets, to impose upon the undertakers the obligation to contribute towards the cost of widening such streets, it was held that in assessing the value of the tramway and its appurtenances belonging to a company incorporated before such practice of Parliament came into existence, the amount which the tramway company would, if constructing its tramway at the date of the notice to purchase, have been required to contribute towards the costs of widening streets ought not to be taken into account (London, Deptford and Greenwich Tramways Co. v. London C. C., [1905] 1 K. B. 316; 69 J. P. 98; 43 Digest 355, 118). And as to a local Act excluding the application of s. 43 of this Act, see Wallasey Tramways Co. v. Wallasey U. D. C., Times, November 17th, 1899; affirmed in C. A., 23 M. C. C. 56; and affirmed again in H. L. (1900) 17 T. L. R. 152. For a case as to determination of value under a Colonial Act, see Melbourne Tramway and Omnibus Co. v. Tramway Board, [1919] A. C. 667; 88 L. J. P. C. 102.

(f) The local authority purchasing a tramway within their district must pay for all lands, buildings, etc. which are suitable to and used for the purposes of the undertaking within the district, even though such lands, buildings, etc. be situate outside the district (Manchester Carriage and Tramways Co., Ltd. v. Swinton and Pendlebury Urban Council, [1906] A. C. 277; 70 J. P. 81; 43 Digest 354, 111); so also they must pay for a depot within the district if suitable to and used for the purpose of the undertaking within the district, although in previous proceedings it has been held suitable to and used for the purpose of the undertaking outside the district (Re Manchester Carriage and Tramways Co., Ltd. and Ashton-under-Lyne Corporation (1904), 68 J. P. 576; 43 Digest 353, 110). See also Manchester Carriage and Tramways Co. and Manchester Corporation (1902), 67 J. P. 14; 18 T. L. R. 779; varied by consent in C. A. (1903), 19 T. L. R. 439; 43 Digest 353, 109. The fact that the authorised tramway penetrates into a car factory does not render the council liable to purchase either the factory or the land within the factory upon which the tramway is laid, if in fact the factory is not suitable to and used by the company for the purposes of the undertaking; but quære whether they are bound to purchase the permanent way of the tramway within the factory (North Metropolitan Tramways Co., Ltd. v. Leyton U. D. C. (1908), 72 J. P. 241; 98 L. T. 792; 43 Digest 354, 112).

(g) An Act provided for "the purchase of the gasworks and plant at a price to be determined by arbitration." It was held that the price should be the commercial value of the undertaking as a going concern, and not merely the structural value of the plant (Hamilton Gas Co., Ltd. v. Hamilton Corporation, [1910] A. C. 300; 74 J. P. 185; 43 Digest 81, 855). And see Perth Gas Co., Ltd. v. Perth Corporation, [1911] A. C. 506; 42 Digest 682, 947.

(h) On a purchase under this section the local authority also becomes liable to income tax as regards the tramway undertaking as successors of the tramway company for the purpose of r. 4 under Cases I. and II. of Sched. D. in s. 100 of the Income Tax Act, 1842 (Stockham (Surveyor of Taxes) v. Wallasey U. D. C. (1906), 71 J. P. 244; 5 L. G. R. 200; 28 Digest 41, 209). The local authority are not, however, bound to keep the trams when purchased in their own hands and work them themselves. It is, therefore, no objection to their right to purchase that they may have agreed with a third party to find the purchase-money and work the trams when acquired, although the local authority may need further statutory powers to carry out such a bargain (Bombay Tramways Co. v. Bombay Corporation (1904), Times, June 6th).

Note to
Section 43.

(i) The remainder of this paragraph applies in Scotland only, and is therefore omitted.

(k) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI, Pt. IV, ante, pp. 1194, 1281. See now ibid., s. 195, ante, p. 1023.

Power of sale.

44. Where any tramway in any district has been opened for traffic for a period of six months the promoters may, with the consent of the Board of Trade (a) sell (b) their undertaking to any person, persons, corporation, or company, or to the local authority of such district; and when any such sale has been made all the rights, powers, authorities, obligations, and liabilities of such promoters in respect to the undertaking sold shall be transferred to, vested in, and may be exercised by, and shall attach to the person, persons, corporation, company, or local authority to whom the same has been sold, in like manner as if such tramway was constructed by such person, persons, corporation, company, or local authority under the powers conferred upon them by special Act, and in reference to the same they shall be deemed to be the promoters (c).

Provided always, that a local authority shall not purchase any undertaking under the provisions of this section unless they shall decide to make such purchase by resolution passed at a special meeting of the members constituting such local authority, which resolution shall be made in the same manner and shall be subject to the same conditions as to validity as resolutions made in regard to the purchases by the next preceding section authorised.

Where any purchase is made by any local authority under the provision of this section, such local authority . . . (d) shall have all and the like powers and be subject to all the like conditions as if such purchase were made under the authority of the next preceding section.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

(b) See Wolverhampton Corporation v. British Electric Traction Co. (1900), Times, Friday, November 30th; 22 M. C. C. 545, which was an action for specific performance of a statutory contract to purchase a tramway. The court dismissed a counterclaim for a declaration as to running powers.

A tramway company cannot assign its statutory powers and rights except as authorised by this Act (Baillie v. Binns (1903), Times, January 31st).

(c) A Provisional Order was obtained by certain promoters for the construction of tramways in a borough. The confirming Act provided that the corporation might purchase the undertaking after the lapse of fourteen years. Shortly afterwards the promoters entered into an agreement to sell the undertaking to an electric traction company and by a later agreement it was sold to the plaintiff company. The confirming Act required the consent of the Board of Trade to such agreements, but in fact no such consents were given. The construction of the tramways was commenced but never completed. After the lapse of fourteen years, as specified in the confirming Act, the corporation gave notice to the promoters and the plaintiff company or "other the promoters" requiring them to sell the undertaking, knowing, however, that the sale to the plaintiff company had not been approved by the Board of Trade. The value of the undertaking having been assessed by an arbitrator, the plaintiff company "and all others the promoters" brought an action to recover the sum fixed by him. It was held that the original promoters were the owners of the undertaking, and that as the corporation had exercised their option to purchase with notice that the transfer to the plaintiff company had not been approved by the Board of Trade, they could not now be heard to say that the promoters were not the legal owners; and further, the corporation were not affected by any equity there might be to compel the promoters to sell to the company (Hartlepool Electric Tramways Co., Ltd. v. Hartlepool Corporation (1911), 75 J. P. 507; affirmed, 75 J. P. 537; 9 L. G. R. 1098; 43 Digest 353, 106).

(d) Certain words here were repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, s. 307, Sched. XI, Pt. IV, ante, pp. 1194, 1281. See now ibid., s. 195, ante, p. 1023.

Section 45.

Tolls.

45. The promoters or lessees of a tramway authorised by special Act may demand and take, in respect of such tramway, tolls and charges not exceeding the sums specified in such special Act, subject and according to the regulations therein specified. A list of all the tolls and charges authorised to be taken shall be exhibited in a conspicuous place inside and outside each of the carriages used upon the tramways (a).

(a) A municipal corporation owned a tramway constructed under statutory powers. In accordance with a statutory requirement they exhibited in a conspicuous place in their cars a list of fares and appended a special notice stating, as the fact was, that the fares charged were less than the maximum authorised charges, and that in consideration thereof a passenger was only carried on the terms that the maximum amount recoverable from the corporation for injury suffered by a passenger and for which the corporation were legally liable was £25. It was held (by COZENS-HARDY, M.R., upon the construction of the statutes regulating the tramway; by FARWELL, L.J., upon the ground that the corporation were common carriers of passengers at common law in the sense that they were bound to carry according to their profession, and by KENNEDY, L.J., upon both these grounds) that, so long as the tramway was open for public traffic, the corporation were bound to carry any passenger not being an objectionable person who offered himself and was willing to pay the published fare, provided they had accommodation for him, and were not entitled to impose a condition limiting their liability for negligence without giving the passenger the option of travelling at a higher fare without any such condition. See, per COZENS-HARDY, M.R., and FARWELL, L.J. If the corporation published alternative lists of fares, one containing the maximum rates and another reduced rates, and gave an option to the passenger to pay either rate but with such a condition attached to the reduced rate, a passenger electing to pay the latter would be bound by the condition (Clarke v. West Ham Corporation, [1909] 2 K. B. 858; 73 J. P. 461; 8 Digest 7, 14). See also Baker v. Ellison, [1914] 2 K. B. 762; 78 J. P. 244; 8 Digest 113, 763. See as to the construction of a provision in a Tramway Act that "daily labourers" should be entitled to travel in the morning and evening at a reduced fare (McDonald v. Brown (1918), 82 J. P. 173; 87 L. J. K. B. 1119; 43 Digest 351, 99). And Hutchins v. L. C. C. (1915), 80 J. P. 193; 85 L. J. K. B. 1177; 8 Digest 114, 769.

Byelaws (a).

46. Subject to the provisions of the special Act authorising any tramway and this Act, Byelaws by local authority.

The local authority of any district in which the same is laid down may, from time to time, make regulations as to the following matters :

The rate of speed to be observed in travelling upon the tramway :

The distances at which carriages using the tramway shall be allowed to follow one after the other (b).

The stopping of carriages using the tramway (c) :

The traffic on the road in which the tramway is laid (d).

The promoters of any tramway and their lessees may from time to time make regulations,— Promoters may make certain regulations.

For preventing the commission of any nuisance in or upon any carriage, or in or against any premises belonging to them :

For regulating the travelling in or upon any carriage belonging to them (e). And for enforcing the observance of all or any of such regulations, it shall be lawful for such local authority and promoters respectively to make byelaws for all or any of the aforesaid purposes, and from time to time repeal or alter such byelaws, and make new byelaws, provided that such byelaws be not repugnant to the laws of that part of the United Kingdom where the same are to have effect (f).

Notice of the making of any byelaw under the provisions of this Act shall be published by the local authority or the promoters making the same, by Section 46. advertisement, according to the regulations contained in Part II. of the Sched. C. to this Act annexed; and unless such notice is published in manner aforesaid such byelaw shall be disallowed by the Board of Trade.

No such byelaw shall have any force or effect which shall be disallowed by the Board of Trade (g) within two calendar months after a true copy of such byelaw shall have been laid before the Board; and a true copy of every such proposed byelaw shall, not less than two calendar months before such byelaw shall come into operation, be sent to the Board of Trade (g), and shall be delivered to the promoters of such tramway if the same was made by the local authority, and to such local authority if made by the promoters.

(a) The court will refuse an application for a mandamus to make byelaws where the applicant has no greater interest than an ordinary member of the public. So held by CHANNELL and JELL, JJ., in National Carriage, etc. Union v. Manchester Corporation (1902), Times, July 9th. But where petitioners appear in opposition to a bill before Parliament, and with the object of protecting their own interests procure the insertion in the Bill of a clause imposing a particular duty upon the promoters or other persons, they will have a sufficient interest in the performance of that duty to support an application by them for a mandamus to enforce it, notwithstanding that they are not named in the clause and that the duty is one imposed for the benefit of the public at large. So held by Lord ALVERSTONE, C.J., and PICKFORD, J. (AVORY, J., dubitante), in R. v. Manchester Corporation, [1911] 1 K. B. 560; 75 J. P. 73; 43 Digest 349, 81.

(b) See R. v. Manchester Corporation, supra.

(c) A byelaw required that a steam tramway should be stopped in cases of impending danger:—Held, that there was evidence of impending danger to go to the jury in a case where a steam tram was coming down a steep incline towards a pony chaise, the pony being restive, and the driver holding up her whip as a signal to stop the car (Downing v. Birmingham and Midland Trams (1888), 5 T. L. R. 40; 36 Digest 60, 374). A local Tramway Act empowered the Board of Trade to make byelaws providing that engines should be brought to a stand at cross streets, and a penalty was imposed on any person offending:—Held, that the company might be convicted of an offence against the byelaw (St. Helens Tramway Co. v. Wood (No. 2) (1891), 56 J. P. 71; Digest Supp.).

(d) The Board of Trade under a power given to them by a special Act, made a byelaw that “no steam shall be emitted from the engines so as to constitute any reasonable ground of complaint to passengers or to the public.” H., a driver, was resting his engine, which was not in good repair, and he could not help emitting steam. One person complained:—Held, that H. was rightly convicted (Hartley v. Wilkinson (1885), 49 J. P. 726; 43 Digest 348, 77). Under a similar byelaw forbidding the emission of “smoke or steam” a conviction for emitting “smoke and steam” was upheld (Davis v. Loach (1886), 51 J. P. 118; 43 Digest 349, 78). Where a byelaw provided that no smoke or steam should be emitted from the engines so as to constitute any reasonable ground of complaint to the passengers or the public, and the penalty was the same whichever class of persons had ground of complaint, and a conviction stated that the defendant permitted smoke to escape contrary to the byelaw, without stating in terms any reasonable grounds of complaint to the passengers or the public, or either of them, it was held that the statement was insufficient, and the conviction must be quashed (Cotterill v. Lempriere (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 634; 54 J. P. 583; 43 Digest 349, 79). A tramway company were authorised to use steam engines on their line, and the Board of Trade were authorised to make regulations, and also to make byelaws for regulating the use of bells, whistles, and other warning apparatus fixed to the engine. The Board of Trade made a regulation that every engine should carry a bright lamp during certain hours. One day, a servant allowed the lamp to remain unlighted for some part of the journey:—Held, that the regulation was valid as a regulation and need not be included in the byelaws, and that the company were liable for the neglect of the servant in not keeping the lamp alight (St. Helens Tramways Co. v. Wood (No. 1) (1891), 56 J. P. 70; 60 L. J. M. C. 141; 43 Digest 349, 80). This case was followed in Heston & Co. v. M'Sweeney, [1905] 2 I. R. 47, in which it was held that a byelaw requiring the owner of every vehicle to cause a light to be attached thereto when in use between certain hours in public streets is not unreasonable or void as making a master liable for the quasi-criminal act of a servant. Byelaws made under the Metropolitan Public Carriages Act, 1869, requiring vehicles on highways to carry lights between sunset and sunrise are applicable to tramcars (Adamson v. Miller (1900), 16 T. L. R. 185; 44 Sol. J. 278). And see note (a) to s. 85 of the L.G.A., 1888, post, p. 4762.

(e) A byelaw requiring payment of a fare when demanded, though before completion of journey, is valid (Egginton v. Pearl (1875), 40 J. P. 56; 33 L. T. 428; 43 Digest 349, 89), and though it does not make an intent to defraud or to avoid payment an ingredient of the offence (Tuffley v. Tate (1906), 71 J. P. 21; 5 L. G. R. 448; 8 Digest 112, 753). As to amount of fares, see Edinburgh Street Tramways Co. v. Torbain (1877), 3 App. Cas. 58;

Note to
Section 46.

43 Digest 351, o. A passenger who had paid for and obtained a ticket which entitled him to travel to a certain destination, having alighted at a stopping place short of that destination, and walked some distance and then got on another car travelling to his original destination, but who refused to pay the legal fare, claiming to go on under his original ticket, was held liable to be convicted under a byelaw requiring payment of the legal fare when demanded (Bastable v. Metcalfe, [1906] 2 K. B. 288; 70 J. P. 343; 8 Digest 98, 658). A byelaw that a passenger shall deliver up his ticket when required, or pay the fare for the distance travelled over, is a reasonable byelaw. A passenger travelling under such circumstances, who shows his ticket, but refuses to give it up on the ground that his journey has not terminated, is liable to the penalty prescribed by the byelaw (Heap v. Day (1886), 51 J. P. 213; 34 W. R. 627; 43 Digest 350, 92). So also is a passenger who has lost his ticket and refuses to pay the fare again (Hanks v. Bridgman, [1896] 1 Q. B. 253; 60 J. P. 312; 43 Digest 350, 93), or a passenger who refuses to show his ticket (Lowe v. Volp, [1896] 1 Q. B. 256; 60 J. P. 232; 43 Digest 350, 91; Hunt v. Green (1906), 71 J. P. 18; 96 L. T. 23; 43 Digest 350, 94). But a passenger who paid his fare but declined to accept a ticket because it bore an indorsement purporting to limit the liability of the local authority in cases of accident or injury to passengers, and allowed it to fall on the floor of the car, and when the ticket inspector asked him for it pointed it out, but refused to touch or pick it up or to pay his fare a second time was held not liable under a similar byelaw (Wilson v. Fearnley (1905), 69 J. P. 165; 92 L. T. 647; 43 Digest 350, 95). And see M'Intyre v. M'Pherson, [1913] S. C. 21. The secretary of a tram company was summoned for allowing an excessive number of passengers in a car. At the hearing, it was objected that the secretary was not the proper defendant, whereupon the justices substituted the name of the company, and convicted them:—Held, that the conviction was bad (City of Oxford Tramway Co. v. Sankey (1890), 54 J. P. 564; 6 T. L. R. 151; 33 Digest 329, 421). Where a byelaw forbade the company to allow more persons to be carried in a carriage than a specified number, it was held that a passenger who was incommoded by an excessive number of passengers was entitled to prosecute the conductor (Badcock v. Sankey (1890), 54 J. P. 564; 6 T. L. R. 170; 43 Digest 348, 70). As to the right of a corporation as tramway authority to rely by way of defence to an action for negligence, on the byelaws made by them for the regulation of their tramways, see Hughes v. Leeds Corporation (1902), Times, August 4th; 24 M. C. C. 387; see also Pickering v. Belfast Corporation, [1911] 2 I. R. 224. A local Act provided that no conductor should carry in or on the carriage a greater number of passengers than that specified in the licence. A licence was granted in respect of a carriage to carry 32, 16 inside and 16 outside:—Held, that a conductor was guilty of an offence by carrying 19 seated and 8 standing inside, and 5 on the footboard, making altogether 32 (Stokell v. Baldwin (1892), 8 T. L. R. 346). In the case of a tramway car having upper and lower compartments, and having the upper compartment covered in, the expression “inside” in s. 13 of the Railway Passenger Duty Act, 1842, and in s. 27 of the L. C. C. (Tramways and Improvements) Act, 1913, which sections regulate the number of passengers to be carried “inside” a London tramway car, normally and on special occasions, refers only to the lower compartment (Phesse v. Fisher, [1915] 1 K. B. 572; 79 J. P. 174; 43 Digest 347, 68). As to the liability of the promoters for an accident occurring through overcrowding allowed by their servant contrary to their express orders, see Byrne v. Londonderry Tramway Co., [1902] 2 I. R. 457. A byelaw of a corporation provided that passengers “should depart from or get off a car by the hindermost or conductor’s platform and not otherwise.” It was held that the expression “hindermost or conductor’s platform” must in each case be construed in relation to the particular passenger and the journey on which he was engaged, and meant the platform which was or would be the hindermost during the journey which the passenger in question had taken or was about to take (Monkman v. Stickney, [1913] 2 K. B. 377; 77 J. P. 368; 43 Digest 349, 86). And see Baker v. Ellison, ante, p. 4295.

(f) A byelaw that no person shall swear or use obscene or offensive language whilst in or upon any carriage was held not ultra vires, although s. 28 of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, was in force in the same city and also a local Act imposing a penalty on every person who should use any profane, indecent or obscene language to the annoyance of the inhabitants or passengers (Gentel v. Rapps, [1902] 1 K. B. 160; 66 J. P. 117; 43 Digest 349, 85).

The local authority of a borough may make a byelaw under this section for regulating the number of passengers to be carried in and upon tramcars, and the extent of accommodation to be afforded to them. The assent of the lessees of the line under s. 46 is not necessary to the validity of such byelaw (Smith v. Butler (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 349; 50 J. P. 260; 43 Digest 349, 83).

(g) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4272.

47. Any such byelaw may impose reasonable penalties for offences against the same, not exceeding forty shillings for each offence, with or without further penalties for continuing offences, not exceeding for any continuing Penalties may be imposed in byelaws.

Section 47. offence ten shillings for every day during which the offence continues (a) but all byelaws shall be so framed as to allow in every case part only of the maximum penalty being ordered to be paid.

(a) Penalties cannot be imposed in advance (R. v. Struve, etc. Glamorganshire JJ. (1895), 59 J. P. 584; 43 Digest 345, 40).

Power to local authority to license drivers, conductors, etc.

48. The local authority shall have the like power of making and enforcing rules and regulations, and of granting licences with respect to all carriages using the tramways, and to all drivers, conductors, and other persons having charge or of using the same, and to the standings for the same, as they are for the time being entitled to make, enforce, and grant with respect to hackney carriages (a), and the drivers and other persons having the charge thereof, and to the standings for the same in the streets and district of or under the control of the local authority: Provided always, that in any district in which any of the powers aforesaid in relation to hackney carriages and the matters aforesaid in connection therewith are vested in any authority other than the local authority of such district, such authority shall have and may exercise the powers by this section conferred upon the local authority.

(a) See s. 171 of the P. H. A., 1875, post; ss. 37 et seq. and 68 of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, ante, pp. 4236, 4246, and the Town Police Clauses Act, 1889, post, p. 4784. As to the confirmation of these regulations, see the Public Health (Confirmation of Byelaws) Act, 1884, post, p. 4669, which abrogates the effect of the case of Wallasey Tramway Co. v. Wallasey L. B. (1883), 47 J. P. N. 821; 42 Digest 859, 117.

The effect of the provisions in the text appear to be that a tramway car must be licensed as a hackney carriage (Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co. v. Bailey, [1920] 1 K. B. 380; 84 J. P. 1; 43 Digest 347, 61).

For a case which arose on the construction of a byelaw prohibiting wilful obstruction of an officer, see Baker v. Ellison, [1914] 2 K. B. 762; 78 J. P. 244; 8 Digest 113, 763.

Offences.

Penalty for obstruction of promoters in laying out tramway.

49. If any person wilfully obstructs any person acting under the authority of any promoters in the lawful exercise of their powers in setting out or making, forming, laying down, repairing, or renewing a tramway, or defaces or destroys any mark made for the purposes of setting out the line of tramway, or damages or destroys any property of any promoters, lessees, or licensees, he shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

Penalties for wilful injury or obstruction to tramways, etc.

50. If any person, without lawful excuse (the proof whereof shall lie on him), wilfully does any of the following things; (namely,)

Interferes with, removes, or alters any part of a tramway or of the works connected therewith;

Places or throws any stones, dirt, wood, refuse, or other material on any part of a tramway;

Does or causes to be done anything in such manner as to obstruct any carriage using a tramway, or to endanger the lives of persons therein or thereon (a);

Or knowingly aids or assists in the doing of any such thing;

he shall for every such offence be liable (in addition to any proceedings by way of indictment or otherwise to which he may be subject) to a penalty not exceeding five pounds.

(a) This provision does not affect the right of the public to the use of the street so long as there is no wilful obstruction. The mere presence of a cart upon a tramway line, whereby a tramcar has to proceed for some distance at a walking pace, is not necessarily a wilful obstruction (Hall v. Linton (1879), 7 R. (Ct. of Sess.) (J. C.) 2). As to the duty of the conductor and the responsibility of the company in case of a drunken man trying to force his way on to a tramcar in motion and thereby endangering his own life, see Delany v. Dublin United Tramway Co. (1892), 30 L. R. Ir. 725; 8 Digest 71, x. See also Note to Section 50. as to what amounts to wilful obstruction of a tramcar, Hartley v. Chadwick (1904), 68 J. P. 512; 43 Digest 357, 127.

51. If any person travelling or having travelled in any carriage on any tramway avoids or attempts to avoid payment of his fare, or if any person having paid his fare for a certain distance knowingly and wilfully proceeds in any such carriage beyond such distance, and does not pay the additional fare for the additional distance, or attempts to avoid payment thereof, or if any person knowingly and wilfully refuses or neglects on arriving at the point to which he has paid his fare to quit such carriage, every such person shall, for every such offence, be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings (a). Penalty on passengers practising frauds on the promoters.

(a) Proceedings under this section are of a criminal character, and, therefore, the company are liable to an action for malicious prosecution at the suit of a person against whom a summons under this section has been dismissed (Rayson v. South London Tramways Co., [1893] 2 Q. B. 304; 58 J. P. 20; 14 Digest 29, 7). In order to obtain a conviction under this section it is necessary to show that the person acted with a fraudulent intention (Nimmo v. Lanarkshire Tramways Co., [1912] S. C. (J.) 23; 43 Digest 351, p).

52. It shall be lawful for any officer or servant of the promoters or lessees of any tramway, and all persons called by him to his assistance, to seize and detain any person discovered either in or after committing or attempting to commit any such offence as in the next preceding section is mentioned, and whose name and residence is unknown to such officer or servant until such person can be conveniently taken before a justice, or until he be otherwise discharged by due course of law (a). Transient offenders.

(a) See Howitt v. Nottingham Tramways Co., ante, p. 4283. The plaintiff was a passenger in one of the defendants' tramcars, and tendered to the conductor in payment of a fare a half-sovereign, which the conductor supposed to be counterfeit, and he therefore gave the plaintiff in charge to the police:—Held, that as this section gave the conductor authority to detain a person attempting to defraud, the company were liable for his acts in an action for false imprisonment (Furlong v. South London Tramways Co. (1888), 48 J. P. 329; 1 Cab. & El. 316; 8 Digest 117, 779). See also Percy v. Glasgow Corporation, [1922] 2 A. C. 299; 86 J. P. 201; 13 Digest 404, 1262. But where the conductor had printed instructions not to give passengers into custody under this section without the authority of an inspector or timekeeper except in cases of assault, but a conductor without such authority gave a passenger in charge for passing bad money it was held that the company were not liable (Charleston v. London Tramways Co. (1888), 36 W. R. 367; 4 T. L. R. 157; affirmed in C. A., 4 T. L. R. 629; 32 Sol. J. 557; 8 Digest 117, 780). As to the liability of the company for an assault by a conductor on a passenger delaying to pay his fare, see Smith v. North Metropolitan Tramways Co. (1891), 55 J. P. 630; 7 T. L. R. 459; 8 Digest 114, 767; and for an assault by a conductor acting under a misapprehension, Radley v. L. C. C. (1913), 109 L. T. 162; 29 T. L. R. 680; 34 Digest 148, 1165. The remedy of the tramway authority is not limited to that given by the text. The authority may treat the offender as a trespasser and eject him. But if the conductor ejects a passenger wrongfully the authority are liable for his act (Whittaker v. L. C. C., [1915] 2 K. B. 676; 79 J. P. 437; 43 Digest 351, 101, approved in Hutchins v. L. C. C. (1915), 80 J. P. 193; 85 L. J. K. B. 1177; 8 Digest 114, 769).

53. No person shall be entitled to carry or to require to be carried on any tramway any goods which may be of a dangerous nature: and if any person send by any tramway any such goods without distinctly marking their nature on the outside of the package containing the same, or otherwise giving notice in writing to the book-keeper or other servant with whom the same are left at the time of such sending, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds for every such offence; and it shall be lawful for such promoters or lessees to refuse to take any parcel that they may suspect to contain goods of a dangerous nature, or require the same to be opened to ascertain the fact (a). Penalty for bringing dangerous goods on the tramway.

(a) It seems that a person cannot be convicted of sending dangerous goods under this section unless guilty knowledge is proved (Hearne v. Garton (1859), 2 E. & E. 266; 23 J. P. 693; 8 Digest 137, 900). The undertakers are not liable in damages for injuries occasionally to passengers by dangerous goods brought into the car by another passenger, unless the plaintiff can prove that they were guilty of negligence in allowing such goods to be brought there (East Indian Rail. Co. v. Kalidas Mukerjee, [1901] A. C. 396; 8 Digest 74, 496).

Note to Section 55.

Penalty for persons using tramways with carriages with flange wheels, etc.

54. If any person (except under a lease from or by agreement with the promoters, or under licence from the Board of Trade, as by this Act provided) uses a tramway or any part thereof with carriages having flange wheels or other wheels suitable only to run on the rail of such tramway, such person shall for every such offence be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds (a).

(a) A contrivance whereby a small disc might be let down into the groove of the rail, and thus operate as a flange, was held to be within this section (Cottam v. Guest (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 70; 45 J. P. 95; 43 Digest 347, 65). See also Liverpool Tramways Co. v. Liverpool Omnibus Co., [1870] W. N. 126; Manchester Corporation and Manchester Carriage and Tramway Co. v. Andrews (1889), 5 T. L. R. 470.

Miscellaneous.

Promoters or lessees to be responsible for all damages.

55. The promoters or lessees, as the case may be, shall be answerable for all accidents, damages, and injuries happening through their act or default, or through the act or default of any person in their employment by reason or in consequence of any of their works or carriages, and shall save harmless all road and other authorities, companies, or bodies, collectively and individually, and their officers and servants, from all damages and costs in respect of such accidents, damages, and injuries (a).

(a) This section only applies to a wrongful act or default and does not make the promoters or lessees answerable for mere accident caused without negligence by their use of tramcars (Brooklehurst v. Manchester, Bury, Rochdale and Oldham Steam Tramways Co. (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 118; 51 J. P. 55; 43 Digest 351, 102; Breslin v. Dublin United Tramway Co. (1911), 45 Ir. L. T. 220). But it is otherwise if negligence be proved. See Sadler v. South Staffordshire, etc. Tramways Co. (1889), 23 Q. B. D. 17; 53 J. P. 694; 43 Digest 353, 105; Pickering v. Belfast Corporation, [1911] 2 I. R. 224. As to injury caused by the snapping of an overhead electric wire, see Neale v. East Ham Corporation (1905), Times, February 22nd. For a case where a nuisance was caused by the use of creosoted wood blocks, see West v. Bristol Tramways Co., [1908] 2 K. B. 14; 72 J. P. 243; 38 Digest 27, 147. As to what is sufficient evidence of negligence, see Leaver v. Pontypridd U. D. C. (1911), 76 J. P. 31; 56 Sol. J. 32; 36 Digest 60, 379. For a case in which a "trolley arm" fell and caused injury to a passenger, see Newberry v. Bristol Tramways and Carriage Co., Ltd. (1912), 29 T. L. R. 177; 8 Digest 73, 492; and a stay projecting from beneath the car and causing a plaintiff to fall, Gibb v. Edinburgh and District Tramway Co., Ltd., [1912] S. C. 580. A cab had stopped to take up a passenger in a steep and narrow street; one of its wheels rested upon a tramway rail. The driver of a tramway car proceeding down the incline saw the obstruction fifty yards away and whistled. He was going slowly, but he did not stop his car, because he expected up to the last moment that the cab would be drawn out of his way, and then, from the steepness and greasiness of the street, was unable to do so. The car caught the cab, and damaged both it and its horse. In an action for damages against the company, it was held that the driver was in fault in not stopping his car when he first saw the cab, and that the cabman was not guilty of any contributory negligence (M'Dermid v. Edinburgh Street Tramways Co. (1884), 12 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 15; and see Rattee v. Norwich Electric Tramway Co. (1902), 18 T. L. R. 562; 38 Digest 16, 87). The promoters are not liable for injuries arising from the acts of their servants outside the scope of their employment and in direct defiance of their orders. See Byrne v. Londonderry Tramway Co., [1902] 2 I. R. 457. A tramway company acting under Provisional Order and using the best known system of electrical traction were held not to be liable for electrical disturbance in the wires of a telephone company under licence from the Postmaster-General (National Telephone Co. v. Baker, [1893] 2 Ch. 186; 57 J. P. 373; 38 Digest 46, 273). As to the responsibility of an electric tram company for a leakage of electricity causing disturbance in adjacent telegraphic apparatus belonging to a private company, see Eastern and South African Telegraph Co. v. Cape Town Tramways Co., [1902] A. C. 381; 38 Digest 49, 286. And see Postmaster-General v. Blackpool and Fleetwood Tramroad Co., and Postmaster-General v. Liverpool Corporation, ante, p. 4284. A tramway company have no right to clear their lines after a snowstorm by scattering salt so as to render the road dangerous for other traffic (Ogston v. Aberdeen District Tramways Co., [1897] A. C. 111; 61 J. P. 436; 26 Digest 439, 1562). But they may use the water system of cleaning the rails from dirt so long as they do not cause a nuisance thereby (Middlesbrough Corporation v. Imperial Tramways Co. (1901), Times, May 11th). A tramway was held to be a railroad, and therefore an engineering work within the meaning of the now repealed Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897 (Fletcher v. London United Tramways, Ltd., [1902] 2 K. B. 269; 66 J. P. 596; 43 Digest 339, 2). Where a local authority acquire and work a tramway under statutory powers, negligence on the part of their servants in driving the tramcars is a neglect or default in the execution of a public duty or authority within the meaning of s. 1 (a) of the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, and consequently an action against the local authority in respect of such negligence must be commenced within six months after the occurrence of the negligence (Parker v. London C. Co., [1904] 2 K. B. 501; 68 J. P. 239; 38 Digest 103, 739). And see Clarke v. West Ham Corporation, the facts of which are set out at p. 4295, ante; Martin v. Dublin United Tramways Co., Ltd., [1908] 2 I. R. 13; 8 Digest 85, s; Cass v. Edinburgh and District Tramways Co., post, p. 4303. On the subject of the extent of the liability imposed by this section reference may be made to McSherry v. Glasgow Corporation, [1917] S. C. 156 (contributory negligence by riding on step); Taylor v. Dumbarton Tramways Co., [1918] S. C. 96 (contributory negligence of children allowed to play round car); Craig v. Glasgow Corporation (1919), 35 T. L. R. 214; 36 Digest 92, 607 (evidence of negligence); Tynan v. Dublin United Tramways Co., [1919] 2 I. R. 445 (joint negligence); Ross v. Glasgow Corporation, [1919] S. C. 174 (remoteness of damage); Watt v. Glasgow Corporation, [1919] S. C. 300 (negligence of conductors); Buchanan v. Glasgow Corporation, [1921] S. C. 658; Digest Supp. (passenger riding on platform); Milliken v. Glasgow Corporation, [1918] S. C. 857 (negligence of driver of overtaken vehicle).

Section 55.

56. All tolls, penalties, and charges under this Act, or under any byelaw made in pursuance of this Act, may be recovered and enforced as follows: in England before two justices of the peace in manner directed by the Summary Jurisdiction (England) Acts . . . (a). Recovery of tolls, penalties,
etc.
11 & 12 Vict.
c. 43, etc.

(a) The remainder of this section relates only to Scotland. As to restraining proceedings against a company in liquidation, see Re Briton Medical, etc. Association, ante, p. 4291.

The principle of Gardner v. L. C. & D. Rail. Co. (1867), 2 Ch. App. 201, does not prevent the levying by distress of penalties imposed on a tramway company for non-repair of their rails (Pegge v. Neath District Tramways Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 508). An appeal from this decision was compromised, [1896] 1 Ch. 684; 39 Digest 55, 671.

57. Notwithstanding anything in this Act contained the promoters of any tramway shall not acquire or be deemed to acquire any right other than that of user of any road along or across which they lay any tramway . . . (a). Right of user only.

(a) The remainder of this section (as to turnpike roads) and the whole of the following section (as to arrangements between turnpike trustees and the promoters) were repealed as obsolete by S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 2).

59. Nothing in this Act shall limit or interfere with the rights of any owner, lessee, or occupier of any mines or minerals lying under or adjacent to any road along or across which any tramway shall be laid to work such mines and minerals; nor shall any such owner, lessee or occupier be liable to make good or pay compensation for any damage which may be occasioned to such tramway by the working in the usual and ordinary course of their mines or minerals. Reservation of rights of owners, etc., of mines.

60. Nothing in this Act shall take away or affect any power which any road authority, or the owners, commissioners, undertakers, or lessees of any railway, tramway, or inland navigation, may have by law to widen, alter, divert, or improve any road, railway, tramway, or inland navigation (a). Reserving powers of

to widen, etc. roads.

(a) See Bristol Trams and Carriage Co. v. Bristol Corporation, ante, p. 4287.

61. Nothing in this Act shall limit the powers of the local authority or police in any district to regulate the passage of any traffic along or across any road along or across which any tramways are laid down, and such authority or police may exercise their authority as well on as off the tramway, and with respect as well to the traffic of the promoters or of lessees as to the traffic of other persons. Power for local or police authorities to regulate traffic in roads.

Section 62.

Reservation of rights of public to use roads.

62. Nothing in this Act or in any byelaw made under this Act shall take away or abridge the right of the public to pass along or across every or any part of any road along or across which any tramway is laid, whether on or off the tramway, with carriages not having flange wheels or wheels suitable only to run on the rail of the tramway (a).

(a) This section reserves to the public the right of using every part of the road including the rail so long as they do not use wheels with flanges, or wheels suitable only to the rails (Manchester Corporation and Manchester Carriage and Tramway Co. v. Andrews (1889), 5 T. L. R. 470).

Regulating inquiries before referee appointed by the Board of Trade.

63. Every inquiry which by this Act the Board of Trade (a) are empowered to make or direct shall be made in accordance with the following provisions :

1. The inquiry shall be held in public before an officer to be appointed in that behalf by the Board hereinafter called the referee, and whose appointment shall be by writing, which shall specify all the matters referred to him :
2. Ten days notice at the least shall be given by the referee to the parties upon whose representation the Board of Trade (a) shall have directed the inquiry, of the time and place at which the inquiry is to be commenced :
3. The inquiry shall be commenced at the time and place so appointed, and the referee may adjourn the inquiry from time to time as may be necessary to such time and place as he may think fit :
4. The referee by summons shall, on the application of any party interested in the inquiry, require the attendance before himself, at a place and time to be mentioned in the summons, of any person to be examined as a witness before him, and every person summoned shall attend the referee, and answer all questions touching the matter to be inquired into, and any person who wilfully disobeys any such summons or refuses to answer any question put to him by such referee for the purposes of the said inquiry shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds : Provided always, that no person shall be required to attend in obedience to any such summons unless the reasonable charges of his attendance shall have been paid or tendered to him, and no person shall be required in any case in obedience to any such summons to travel more than ten miles from his place of abode :
5. The referee may and shall administer an oath, or an affirmation where an affirmation in lieu of an oath would be admitted in a court of justice, to any person tendered or summoned as a witness on the inquiry :
6. Any person who upon oath or affirmation wilfully gives false evidence before the referee shall be deemed guilty of perjury :
7. The referee shall make his report to the Board of Trade (a) in writing, and shall deliver copies of the report upon request to all or any of the parties to the inquiry.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, p. 4272, ante.

Rules for carrying Act into effect.

64. The Board of Trade (a) may from time to time make, and, when made, may rescind, annul, or add to, rules with respect to the following matters (b) :

1. The proceedings to be had before the Board under this Act :
 2. The payment of money or lodgment of securities by way of deposits, the repayment and forfeiture of the same, the investment of the same, the amount and payment of interest or dividends from time to time accruing due on such deposits :
 3. The plans and sections of any works to be deposited by promoters under this Act :
 4. As to any other matter or thing in respect of which it may be expedient to make rules for the purpose of carrying this Act into execution.
- Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be deemed to be within the powers conferred by this Act, and shall be of the same force as if enacted Section 64.

in this Act, and shall be judicially noticed.

Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be laid before Parliament within three weeks after they are made, if Parliament be then sitting, and if Parliament be not then sitting, within three weeks after the beginning of the then next session of Parliament.

(a) Now the Minister of Transport. See note (a) to s. 1, p. 4272, ante.

(b) Rules have been made under this section, those now in force being dated January, 1892 (see ante, p. 4057). As to the construction of such rules, see In re Bradford Tramways Co.; In re Lowestoft, Yarmouth and Southwold Tramways Co.; In re Tynemouth Borough Tramways Co.; In re Colchester Tramways Co., ante, pp. 4275-6; *Cass v. THE FAIRS ACT, 1871.

Section 1.

(34 & 35 VICT. c. 12) (a).

An Act to further amend the law relating to Fairs in England and Wales.

[25th May, 1871.]

1. This Act may be cited as "The Fairs Act, 1871."

Short title.

(a) See the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 27 (1) (e) and 32, post. See also the Fairs Act, 1873, post, p. 4327. The preamble and clause of enactment to this Act are repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 2).

2. In this Act the term "owner" means any person or persons, or body of commissioners, or body corporate, entitled to hold any fair, whether in respect of the ownership of any lands or tenements, or under any charter, letters patent, or Act of Parliament, or otherwise howsoever. Interpretation.

3. In case it shall appear to the Secretary of State for the Home Department, upon representation duly made to him by the magistrates of any petty sessional district (a), within which any fair is held, or by the owner of any fair in England or Wales, that it would be for the convenience and advantage of the public that any such fair should be abolished, it shall be lawful for the said Secretary of State for the Home Department, with the previous consent in writing of the owner for the time being of such fair, or of the tolls or dues payable in respect thereof, to order that such fair shall be abolished accordingly: Provided always, that notice of such representation, and of the time when it shall please the Secretary of State for the Home Department to take the same into consideration, shall be published once in the London Gazette, and in three successive weeks in some one and the same newspaper published in the county, city, or borough in which such fair is held, or if there be no newspaper published therein, then in the newspaper of some county adjoining or near thereto, before such representation is so considered. Order for abolition of fair.

(a) This representation will now come from the district council.

4. When and so soon as any such order as aforesaid shall have been made by the Secretary of State for the Home Department, notice of the same shall be published in the London Gazette, and in some one newspaper of the county, city, or borough in which such fair is usually held, or if there be no newspaper published therein, then in the newspaper of some county adjoining or near thereto, and thereupon such fair shall be abolished. Publication of order.

THE GASWORKS CLAUSES ACT, 1871.

(34 & 35 VICT. c. 41) (a).

An Act to amend the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847.

[13th July, 1871.]

1. The Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, and this Act, shall be construed together as one Act, and the provisions of this Act shall be held to repeal and supersede such of the provisions of that Act as are inconsistent with this Act. Construction. 10 & 11 Vict. c. 15.

(a) See the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4163, and note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4163. The preamble to this Act is repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893 (No. 2).

See also the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 9 (3), Vol. V., post, by which this Act can be applied to the undertakers under a special order made under s. 10 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920 (see Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1287).

2. This Act may be cited as "The Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871."

Short title.

Section 3.

Application of Act.
33 & 34 Vict.
c. 70.

3. The provisions of this Act shall apply to every gas undertaking authorised by any special Act hereafter passed, or by any Provisional Order (a) made under the authority of the Gas and Water Facilities Act 1870, save where the said provisions are expressly varied or excepted by a such special Act or Provisional Order; and every such special Act and Provisional Order is in this Act included in the term "the special Act" (b).

(a) Under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, special orders may be made lieu of provisional orders.

(b) The effect of ss. 1, 3 is that this Act is incorporated with special Acts passed before 1871 which incorporate the Act of 1847 (Commercial Gas Co. v. Scott (1875), L. R. 10 Q. 400; 40 J. P. 214; 25 Digest 469, 4; Dudley Gas Co. v. Warrington (1881), 45 J. P. 64 50 L. J. M. C. 69; 25 Digest 488, 106; South Metropolitan Gas Light and Coke Co. v. Noa (1889), 61 L. T. 556; 5 T. L. R. 448; 25 Digest 470, 7). See also Leamington Priors Co. v. Davis, cited in the note to s. 35, post, p. 4316.

Interpretation.

where than on lands specified in special Acts.

5. The undertakers shall not manufacture gas, or any residual products, (a) except upon lands described in the special Act, and they shall not store gas, except upon those lands, without the previous consent in writing of the owner, lessee, and occupier of every dwelling-house situate within three hundred yards of the limits of the site where such gas is intended to be stored.

(a) As to the right of a gas company to manufacture residuals, see Deuchar v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1925] A. C. 691; 89 J. P. 177; 25 Digest 471, 10.

Sale of superfluous lands.

8 & 9 Vict. c. 18.

6. The undertakers may sell and dispose of any lands which are vested in them, or which they are authorised to purchase, or which they may hereafter acquire, and which shall not be required for the purposes of the undertaking, and the provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 ss. 128 to 132 (both sections inclusive), shall apply to any such sale and the undertakers may also from time to time sell and dispose of any works, buildings, or erections on any lands belonging to them which shall not be required for the purposes of the undertaking.

Receipts of guardians, etc.
to be sufficient discharge.

7. If any money be payable to a shareholder in a gas undertaking, being a minor, idiot, or lunatic, the receipt of his or her respective guardian or committee shall be a sufficient discharge to the undertakers for the same.

For appointment of receiver.

8. The mortgagees of the undertakers may enforce payment of arrears of interest or principal, or principal and interest, due on their mortgages, in England . . . by the appointment of a receiver . . .; and in order to authorise the appointment of a receiver . . . in respect of principal, or principal and interest, the amount owing to the mortgagees by whom the

The undertakers may sell and dispose of any lands which are vested in them, or which they are authorised to purchase, or which they may hereafter acquire, and which shall not be required for the purposes of the undertaking, and the provisions of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 128 to 132 (both sections inclusive), shall apply to any such sale; and the undertakers may also from time to time sell and dispose of any works, buildings, or erections on any lands belonging to them which shall not be required for the purposes of the undertaking.

Receipts of guardians, etc. to be sufficient discharge.

7. If any money be payable to a shareholder in a gas undertaking, being a minor, idiot, or lunatic, the receipt of his or her respective guardian or committee shall be a sufficient discharge to the undertakers for the same.

For appointment of receiver.

8. The mortgagees of the undertakers may enforce payment of arrears of interest or principal, or principal and interest, due on their mortgages, in England . . . by the appointment of a receiver . . .; and in order to authorise the appointment of a receiver . . . in respect of principal, or principal and interest, the amount owing to the mortgagees by whom the application for a receiver is made shall not be less than in the whole one thousand pounds, or such sum as shall be specified in the special Act (a). Section 8.

(a) Words relating to Scotland and Ireland only are omitted from this section.

9. Nothing in this or the special Act shall exonerate the undertakers from any indictment, action, or other proceeding for nuisance in the event of any nuisance being caused by them (a). Undertakers not exempted from indictment.

(a) See Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 29, and note thereto, ante, p. 4172. See also Giblin v. District Committee of Lanarkshire C. C., [1927] S. L. T. 563 (nuisance from defective mains).

10. Persons empowered by the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, to sell and convey or release lands, may, if they think fit, subject to the provisions of that Act, and of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Acts Amendment Act, 1860, grant to the undertakers any easement, right, or privilege, not being an easement of water, required for the purposes of the special Act, in, over, or affecting any such lands; and the provisions of the last-mentioned Acts with respect to lands and rent-charges, as far as the same are applicable in this behalf, shall extend and apply to such grants, or to such easement, rights, or privileges as aforesaid (a). Power to take easements, etc. by agreement. 23 & 24 Vict. c. 100.

(a) See Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 7, ante, p. 4107, and notes thereto.

SUPPLY OF GAS TO OWNERS AND OCCUPIERS OF PREMISES.

11. The undertakers shall (a), upon being required so to do by the owner or occupier of any premises situate within twenty-five yards from any main (b) of the undertakers, or such other distance as may be prescribed (c), give and continue to give a supply of gas for such premises, under such pressure in the main as may be prescribed, and they shall furnish and lay any pipe (that may be necessary for such purpose, subject to the conditions following; (that is to say), Undertakers to furnish sufficient supply of gas to owners and occupiers within the limits of the special Act.

The cost of so much of any pipe for the supply of gas to any owner or occupier as may be laid upon the property of such owner or in the possession of such occupier, and of so much of any such pipe as may be laid for a greater distance than thirty feet from any pipe of the undertakers, although not on such property, shall be defrayed by such owner or occupier.

Every owner or occupier of premises requiring a supply of gas shall—

Serve a notice upon the undertakers at their office, specifying the premises in respect of which such supply is required, and the day (not being an earlier day than a reasonable time (d) after the date of the service of such notice) upon which such supply is required to commence;

Enter into a written contract with the undertakers (if required by them so to do) to continue to receive and pay for a supply of gas for a period of at least two years, of such an amount that the rent payable for the same shall not be less than twenty pounds per centum per annum on the outlay incurred by the undertakers in providing any pipe to be provided by them for the purpose of such supply (e); and

Give to the undertakers (if required by them so to do) security (f) for the payment to them of all monies which may become due to them by such owner or occupier in respect of any pipe to be furnished by the undertakers and in respect of gas to be supplied by them (e).

Provided always, that the undertakers may, after they have given a supply of gas for any premises, by notice in writing, require the owner or occupier of such premises, within seven days after the date of the service of such notice, to give to them security for the payment of all moneys which may from time to time become due to them in respect of such supply, in case such owner or occupier has not already given such security, or in case

Section 11. any security given has become invalid, or is insufficient, and in case any such owner or occupier fails to comply with the terms of such notice, the undertakers may, if they please, discontinue to supply gas for such premises so long as such failure continues (g).

(a) The Board of Trade has power under s. 29 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, post, p. 4657, to relieve gas undertakers from their obligation to supply gas in cases where there is a sufficient supply of electric light and the supply of gas has consequently ceased to be remunerative.

(b) By s. 17 (3) of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, Vol. V., post, no pipe laid by virtue of ibid., sub-s. (1), under which bulk supplies may be supplied by means of pipes from one of two adjoining undertakers to the other, is to be deemed to be a main within the meaning of this section as applied, unless gas is supplied directly from that pipe to any person other than undertakers. Further by s. 17 (3), no pipe laid under para. (a) or para. (b) of sub-s. (2) of s. 17 is to be deemed to be such a main, these pipes being (a) a pipe outside the authorised limits of supply of either of two undertakers one of whom is authorised to give bulk supplies to the other under special order, and (b) a pipe laid by undertakers authorised under special order to lay a pipe outside their limits for the purpose of facilitating supply within them.

(c) Upon the true construction of s. 6 of the Metropolis Gas Act, 1860 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1242), a gas company is prohibited from furnishing to a customer a supply of gas for the purpose of consumption by him within a district assigned to another company, notwithstanding that the part of the customer's property through which the supply passes is within the district assigned to the company desirous of furnishing the supply (Gas Light and Coke Co. v. South Metropolitan Gas Co. (1889), 54 J. P. 373; 62 L. J. Ch. 123; 25 Digest 491, 114. And see Att.-Gen. v. West Gloucestershire Water Co., ante, p. 4178. As to furnishing supplies to premises outside the limits of supply, see the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, s. 5, Vol. V., post).

(d) See as to what is a reasonable time, South Metropolitan Gas Light and Coke Co. v. Noakes (1889), 61 L. T. 356; 5 T. L. R. 448; 25 Digest 470, 7.

(e) By s. 6 (6) of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, Vol. V., post, nothing in that section, which relates to charges for gas and publication of prices by the undertakers, is to be taken to affect the rights conferred by this section upon undertakers of requiring contracts to be entered into and security given.

(f) See s. 16, post, p. 4311.

(g) If the owner of premises be adjudicated a bankrupt, the official receiver is not entitled to call on the company to continue the supply of gas, and where he has paid arrears of gas rates under protest in order to avoid the cutting off of the supply, the trustee in bankruptcy cannot recover back the arrears so paid from the gas company (Ex parte Mason, In re Smith, [1893] 1 Q. B. 323; 57 J. P. 72; 25 Digest 476, 39). Receivers and managers on behalf of debenture holders, whether appointed under a deed or by the court, are not on entering into possession entitled to demand a supply of gas without paying the arrears of gas rent due from the company that issued the debentures (Paterson v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1896] 2 Ch. 476; 60 J. P. 532; 25 Digest 476, 40). This case was distinguished in regard to the supply of electricity in Granger v. S. Wales Electrical Power Distribution Co., [1931] 1 Ch. 551; Digest Supp. And see Husey v. Gas Light and Coke Co. (1902), 18 T. L. R. 299; 25 Digest 476, 41.

Quality of gas. 12. (a) The quality of the gas supplied by the undertakers shall, with respect to its illuminating power, be such as to produce at the testing place provided in conformity with this Act a light equal in intensity to that produced by the prescribed number of sperm candles of six in the pound . . . (b).

(a) See hereon the provisions of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post.

(b) Certain words in this section were repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 33 (3), Sched. III., Pt. III., Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 328, 335.

13. Every consumer of gas supplied by the undertakers shall, if required to do so by them, consume such gas by a meter duly stamped under the authority of the Sale of Gas Act, 1859, and being a legal meter within the meaning of the said Act, or by a meter supplied or approved by the undertakers: Provided always, that where the provisions of the said Act are in force no meter shall be used unless the same shall be a legal meter within the meaning of the said Act, and that elsewhere the undertakers shall not refuse to approve of any meter which when duly tested according to the rules contained in the said Act for regulating measures used in sales of gas is found to be correct within the meaning of the said Act.

c. 66.

14. The undertakers shall supply to any owner or occupier of premises within the limits of the special Act requiring the same a meter for registering gas supplied by them: Provided always, that such owner or occupier shall, if required, previous to receiving such meter, give to the undertakers security for payment to them of the price of such meter if he desires to purchase the same, or of the rent of such meter if he desires to hire the same (a). Section 14.
Undertakers to supply meters.

(a) This section imposes upon undertakers an obligation to affix meters (Clayton v. Pontypridd U. D. C., [1918] 1 K. B. 219; 82 J. P. 246; 25 Digest 483, 76).

15. No consumer shall connect any meter with any pipe through which gas is supplied by the undertakers to such meter, or disconnect any meter from any such pipe, unless he shall have given to the undertakers not less than twenty-four hours notice in writing of his intention so to do, and if any person acts in contravention of this section he shall be liable for each offence to a penalty not exceeding forty shilling (a). Meters not to be connected or disconnected without notice.

(a) As to the recovery of this penalty, see s. 44, post, p. 4318. The giving of notice under this section does not affect the liability of a person to be convicted of an offence against s. 18 of the Act of 1847, ante, p. 4169, for substituting a larger pipe to increase the supply of gas (Wood v. West Ham Gas Co. (1885), 49 J. P. 662; 52 L. T. 817; 25 Digest 479, 55). Where a gas company cut off the supply of gas, and the owner of the meter proceeded to remove it, it was held that he was a consumer within this section, and damages were awarded for injuries caused by an explosion consequent on the disconnected pipe, which was still charged from the main, being broken in the removal of the meter (Paterson v. Blackburn Corporation (1892), 9 T. L. R. 55; 25 Digest 482, 75).

16. Where any owner or occupier is required by the special Act to give security to the undertakers, such security may be by way of deposit or otherwise, and of such amount as he and the undertakers agree on, or as, in default of agreement, may be determined, on the application of either party, by two justices, who may also order by which of the parties the costs of the proceedings before them shall be paid, and the decision of the justices shall be final and binding on all parties. Nature and amount of security.

17. Every consumer of gas supplied by the undertakers shall at all times, at his own expense, keep all meters belonging to him whereby any gas of the undertakers is registered in proper order for correctly registering such gas, and in default of his so doing the undertakers may cease to supply gas through such meter. The undertakers shall have access to and be at liberty to take off, remove, test, inspect, and replace any such meter at all reasonable times, such taking off, removal, testing, inspecting, and replacing to be done at the expense of the undertakers if the meter be found in proper order, but otherwise at the expense of the consumer (a). Consumer to keep his meter in proper order

(a) Where gas is supplied by a penny-in-the-slot meter, and the customer is not negligent in the custody of the meter, he is not liable to pay over again for gas supplied should the pennies be abstracted from the meter by robbery (Edmundson v. Longton Corporation (1902), 19 T. L. R. 15; 25 Digest 477, 42). See also the cases collected in Michael and Will on Gas and Water, 6th ed., at p. 233.

18. The undertakers may let for hire any meter for ascertaining the quantity of gas consumed or supplied, and any fittings thereto, for such remuneration in money, and on such terms with respect to the repair of such meter and fittings, and for securing the safety and return to the undertakers of such meter, as may be agreed upon between the hirer and the undertakers, and such remuneration shall be recoverable in the same manner as the rents or sums due to the undertakers for gas (a), and such meters and fittings shall not be subject to distress, or to the landlord's remedy for rent of the premises where the same may be used, nor to be taken in execution under any process of a court of law or equity, or any proceedings in bankruptcy against the persons in whose possession the same may be. Power to undertakers to let meters.

(a) See s. 23, post, p. 4313; see also ss. 39, 41, post, p. 4317.

Section 19.

Undertakers
to keep meter let for hire in repair.

19. The undertakers shall at all times, at their own expense, keep all meters let for hire by them to any consumer in proper order for correctly registering gas, and in default of their so doing the consumer shall not be liable to pay rent for the same during such time as such default continues. The undertakers shall, for the purposes aforesaid, have access to and be at liberty to remove, test, inspect, and replace any such meter at all reasonable times.

Register of gas meters to be prima facie evidence.

20. The register of the meter shall be prima facie evidence of the quantity of gas consumed, and in respect of which any rent is charged and sought to be recovered by the undertakers: Provided always, that if the undertakers and the consumer differ as to the quantity consumed, such difference may be determined, upon the application of either party, by two justices, who may also order by which of the parties the costs of the proceedings before them shall be paid, and the decision of the justices shall be final and binding on all parties (a).

Power to enter buildings for ascertaining quantities of gas consumed.

21. Any officer appointed by the undertakers may at all reasonable times enter any building or land lighted with gas supplied by the undertakers in order to inspect the meters, fittings, and works for the supply of gas, and for the purpose of ascertaining the quantity of gas consumed or supplied; and if any person hinder such officer as aforesaid from entering and making such inspection as aforesaid at any reasonable time, he shall for every such offence forfeit to the undertakers a sum not exceeding five pounds.

By s. 21 (1) of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, Vol. V., post, the powers of entry and inspection conferred on officers appointed by undertakers by this section as applied to any undertakers by enactment, is to include power to enter, at all reasonable times, any premises in which there is a service pipe connected with the gas mains of the undertakers, in order to inspect the meters, fittings and works for the supply of gas, except in a case where the occupier of the premises has applied in writing to the undertakers for the disconnection of the service pipe from the mains and the undertakers have failed to disconnect it within a reasonable time.

Power to remove meter and fittings.

22. In all cases in which a consumer of gas supplied by the undertakers ceases to require a supply of such gas, and in all cases in which the undertakers are authorised to take away and cut off the supply of gas from any premises, it shall be lawful for the undertakers, their agents, or workmen, after twenty-four hours notice in writing, under the hand of the secretary or other properly authorised officer of the undertakers, to the occupier, or if unoccupied, then to the owner or lessee, or to the agent or the owner or lessee, of any premises in which any pipes, meters, fittings, or apparatus belonging to the undertakers are laid or fixed, and through or in which the supply of gas is from any such cause discontinued, to enter such premises between the hours of nine in the morning and four in the evening, for the purpose of removing and to remove such pipes, meters, fittings, or apparatus, repairing all damage caused by such entry or removal.

By s. 21 (3) of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, Vol. V., post, the notice required to be given by this section, as applied to any undertakers by enactment, before entering any unoccupied premises under it may, in a case where the owner of the premises is unknown to the undertakers and cannot be ascertained after diligent enquiry, be given by affixing it upon a conspicuous part of the premises not less than 48 hours before the premises are entered; but where entry is made on premises which could not lawfully have been made apart from the new provision, the premises are to be left no less secure than they were immediately before they were entered. By ibid., sub-s. (4), in a case where a person entering into occupation of any premises previously supplied with gas by any undertakers does not take a supply from them or does not hire such of the pipes, meters, fittings or apparatus on the premises as belong to them, the power of entering the premises and removing pipes, meters, fittings or apparatus thereon belonging to the undertakers, conferred by this section as applied to the undertakers by enactment, may be exercised in like manner as in the cases specified in the section.

Note to
Section 22.

By s. 20 (3) of the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 319, undertakers authorised by enactment to cut off gas supplies on default by occupiers may, subject to the provisions of this section, exercise like powers of entry as are exercisable hereunder.

23. In case any person who shall have been supplied with gas by the undertakers shall neglect or refuse to pay the amount due in respect of such supply, any justice may issue his summons to such person, requiring him to appear at a time and place named therein, and then and there to show cause why the sum so demanded should not be paid; and if on the appearance of such person, or in default of appearance after proof of the service of the summons, either personally or at the last known place of abode or of business of such person, no sufficient cause can be shown to the contrary, any justice may issue his warrant of distress for the seizure and sale of the goods and chattels of such person, for the recovery of the amount which may be proved before such justice to be due from such person, together with such costs, including the cost of cutting off the gas, if the same shall have been cut off by the undertakers, as to such justice shall seem just and reasonable (a).

charges for gas.

(a) It seems to be doubtful whether the sum due will now be recoverable as a civil debt under the S. J. A., 1879, ss. 6, 35, 47. See 52 J. P. 316. As to the effect of liquidation or bankruptcy on the right to distrain, see Ex parte Hill, In re Roberts (1877), 6 Ch. D. 63; 5 Digest 957, 7845, and Ex parte Harrison, In re Peake, post, p. 4317.

SUPPLY OF GAS TO LOCAL AUTHORITIES.

24. The undertakers shall supply gas to any public lamps within the distance of fifty yards from any of the mains of the undertakers in such quantities as the local authority of each district or the trustees of any turnpike road or any highway board within the limits of the special Act may from time to time require to be supplied, and the price to be charged by the undertakers and to be paid to them for all gas so supplied shall be settled by agreement between the local authorities and the undertakers, and in case of difference by arbitration, regard being had to the circumstances of the case and the prices charged to private consumers in the district (a).

Supply and price of gas to public lamps.

(a) See, however, s. 29 of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882, post, p. 4657, under which the Board of Trade have power in certain cases to relieve gas undertakers from obligations to supply gas. In a case which turned upon the construction of a special Act a company were held entitled to the full price for gas supplied to public lamps though by reason of exceptional frosts they had been unable to afford the full supply (In re Richmond Gas Co. and the Richmond Corporation, [1893] 1 Q. B. 56; 56 J. P. 776; 25 Digest 478, 48). A Bill promoted by a gas company to raise the price of gas to private consumers does not affect the rights, privileges or duties of the local authority, being a large consumer for public lighting in the district, so as to enable the local authority to pay the costs of opposing the Bill out of public funds under their control, either under the former Borough Funds Acts or independently (Att.-Gen. v. Swansea Corporation, [1898] 1 Ch. 602; 62 J. P. 408; 33 Digest 82, 533). The undertakers have no right to lay a connection pipe to a public lamp through private property (Bellamy v. Liverpool United Gas Light Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 540; 2 L. G. R. 1182; 25 Digest 472, 20). Where an agreement for the supply of gas for public lighting was indefinite in point of time and contained no provision for determination by either party, it was held on the construction of the agreement that it might be determined by notice (Crediton Gas Co. v. Crediton U. D. C., [1928] Ch. 447; 92 J. P. 76; Digest Supp.).

25. The gas supplied to the public lamps within the limits of the special Act shall be consumed by meter, at the option either of the local authority of the district or the undertakers, and in case of its being consumed by meter the meter shall be provided and fixed by the undertakers, and be paid for by the party requiring it.

As to consumption of gas supplied to the public lamps.

If the gas is supplied to the public lamps in any district by average meter indication, the undertakers shall, for securing uniformity of consumption

Section 25. between metered and unmetered lamps, from time to time provide the public lamps in such district with proper self-acting pressure regulators and burners to the satisfaction of the local authority of such district; and the average amount of the indications of all the metres attached to the public lamps within such district under the control of the local authority shall, except as hereinafter mentioned, be deemed to be the amount consumed by each such lamp in such district.

Governors for street lamps.

26. In case gas is supplied to the public lamps in any district by the undertakers, they or the local authority of such district may, at their own expense, cause to be affixed to each lamp the instrument known as a street lamp governor, and the undertakers or such local authority (as the case requires) shall be entitled to have access thereto for the purpose of examining the same.

Settlement of differences by arbitration.

s & 9 Vict. c. 16.

27. Any difference which may arise between the undertakers and any local authority in relation to the supply or consumption of gas to or by such local authority shall be from time to time settled by arbitration in manner provided by the Companies Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, with respect to the settlement of disputes by arbitration.

TESTING OF GAS (a).

Testing place.

28. The undertakers shall cause to be provided, at the place prescribed and within the prescribed time, a testing place, with apparatus therein, for the purposes following, or such of them as may be prescribed by the special Act, that is to say,—

1. For testing the illuminating power of the gas supplied :

2. (b)

The said apparatus shall be in accordance with the regulations (c) prescribed in Part I. of the Sched. A. to this Act annexed, or according to such rules as may from time to time be substituted in lieu thereof by any special Act, and shall be so situated and arranged as to be used for the purpose of testing the illuminating power . . . (b) of the gas supplied by the undertakers, and the undertakers shall at all times thereafter keep and maintain such testing place and apparatus in good repair and working order.

(a) See, hereon, s. 5 (3) and s. 19 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post.

(b) Certain words here were repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 33 (3), Sched. III., Pt. III., Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 328, 335.

(c) As to subsequent improvements in such apparatus, see Brentford Gas Co. v. Chiswick U. D. C. (1908), 72 J. P. 378 ; 6 L. G. R. 725 ; 25 Digest 479, 53.

Appointment and powers of gas examiners.

29. The local authority of any district within the limits of the special Act, where the gas is not supplied by such local authority, may after the passing of the special Act from time to time appoint, or may appoint and keep appointed, a competent and impartial person to be a gas examiner to test the gas at the testing place provided in conformity with the provisions of this Act; and such gas examiner may there test the illuminating power . . . (a) of the gas supplied by the undertakers, on any or every day between the hours of five o'clock and ten o'clock in the afternoon from the first day of October to the thirty-first day of March, both inclusive, and on any or every day between the hours of eight o'clock and eleven o'clock in the afternoon from the first day of April to the thirtieth day of September, both inclusive (b).

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 33 (3), Sched. III., Pt. III., Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 328, 335.

(b) The provisions of this section have been superseded by s. 4 (3) and s. 19 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post. It was held under the superseded section that testing might be carried on on Sundays (London C. C. v. South Metropolitan Gas Co., [1904] 1 Ch. 76; 68 J. P. 5; 25 Digest 493, 125), and that an action would lie at the instance of the local authority to enforce the right of the gas examiners to test accordingly (ibid.). See now s. 5 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1283.

The L. G. B. informed a rural district council that it did not appear to them that the council had any power under the section to appoint a gas examiner to test the gas supplied in the parishes forming the rural district. They were of opinion that the parish councils in the district within the limits of the gas company were the local authority for the purposes of the Act.

Note to
Section 29.

30. Where no such gas examiner is appointed, or where the testing of the gas is imperfectly attended to by the local authority, two justices, on the application of consumers of the gas of the undertakers, not being less than five, by order in writing may appoint some competent and impartial person to be gas examiner, and such person may at any time within the hours aforesaid, on producing the said order, enter on the premises of the undertakers, and there test the illuminating power . . . (b) of the gas supplied by them (b).

Two justices

gas examiners.

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 33 (3), Sched. III., Pt. III., Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 328, 335.

(b) The provisions of this section have been superseded by s. 4 (4) and s. 19 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1283, 1291.

31. The undertakers may, if they think fit, on each occasion of the testing of the gas by the gas examiner, be represented by some officer, but such officer shall not interfere in the testing.

Representation of undertakers.

32. (a) Any tests taken in pursuance of this Act shall be taken in accordance with the rules prescribed in Part II. of the Sched. A. to this Act annexed.

Mode of testing.

(a) See hereon s. 5 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post.

33. The gas examiner shall, on the day immediately following that on which the testing of the illuminating power . . . (a) of the gas has been conducted, make and deliver a report of the results of his testing to the local authority or justices by whom he was appointed, and to the undertakers, and such report shall be receivable in evidence.

Report of gas examiner.

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 33 (3), Sched. III., Pt. III., Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 328, 335.

34. The undertakers shall give to the gas examiner and to his assistants, and to every local authority within the limits of the special Act, and their agents, access to the testing place, and shall afford all facilities for the proper execution of this Act; and in case the undertakers make default in complying with any of the provisions of this section they shall for every such default be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds to the local authority or to the persons making the application (a).

Access to testing place.

(a) See hereon s. 5 (3) and s. 19 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post.

ACCOUNTS.

35. The undertakers shall fill up and forward to the local authority of every district within the limits of the special Act, on or before the twenty-fifth day of March in each year, an annual statement of accounts, made up to the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, as near as may be in the form and containing the particulars specified in the Schedule B. to this Act annexed.

Accounts.

The undertakers shall keep copies of such annual statement at their office, and sell the same to any applicant at a price not exceeding one shilling for each such copy.

Section 35. The Board of Trade, with the consent of the undertakers, may alter the said forms for the purpose of adapting them to the circumstances of the undertaking, or of better carrying into effect the objects of this section.

In case the undertakers make default in complying with the provisions of this section they shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each day during which such default continues (a).

(a) This section is now superseded by s. 15 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post. A local Act which incorporated the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, except so far as it might be varied by the special Act, prescribed by s. 32 a special form in accordance with which the annual accounts of the company were to be made up, in lieu of the provisions contained in s. 38 of the Act of 1847. By s. 49 of the Act of 1847 undertakers are not to be exempted from any general Act relating to gasworks which may be passed in any future session. The appellants made out their annual statement of accounts in the form prescribed by s. 32 of their special Act, and did not furnish to the respondent, on application, a copy of an annual statement in the form prescribed by the text:—Held, distinguishing Dudley Gas Co. v. Warmington, ante, p. 4308, that as the appellants' special Act prescribed the form in which the annual statement of accounts was to be made up, the provisions in the text relating to the form of accounts did not apply (Leamington Priors Gas Co. v. Davis (1886), 18 Q. B. D. 107; 51 J. P. 360; 25 Digest 470, 6).

PENALTIES.

Penalty for failure to supply gas.

36. Whenever the undertakers neglect or refuse to give a supply of gas to any owner or occupier of premises within the limits of the special Act entitled to the same . . . (a), they shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each day during which such default continues (b).

Whenever the undertakers neglect or refuse to supply gas as by this Act required to all or any of the public lamps in accordance with the provisions of this Act, they shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding forty shillings for each default (c).

If it shall be proved to the satisfaction of any two justices, not being shareholders in the undertaking, after hearing the parties, that on any day the gas supplied by the undertakers is . . . (a) of less illuminating power . . . (a) than it ought to be according to the provisions of this or the special Act, the undertakers shall in every such case forfeit and pay to the local authority or other persons making application for testing the gas such sum not exceeding twenty pounds as the justices shall determine.

Penalties not cumulative.

Penalties imposed on the undertakers for one and the same offence by several Acts of Parliament shall not be cumulative, and for such purpose the special Act and the Acts incorporated therewith shall be deemed several Acts.

(a) Certain words here were repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, s. 33 (3), Sched. III., Pt. III., Vol. V. and 27 Halsbury's Statutes 328, 335.

(b) A company who improperly cut off a supply of gas are liable under this section (Commercial Gas Co. v. Scott (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 400; 40 J. P. 214; 25 Digest 469, 4). The remedy under this section or by indictment are the only remedies for the supply of insufficient or impure gas. No action will lie against the undertakers (Clegg, Parkinson & Co. v. Earby Gas Co., [1896] 1 Q. B. 592; 25 Digest 475, 31). Judgment in the High Court on a case stated by justices on an information under this section is a judgment in a criminal cause or matter, and no appeal lies to the Court of Appeal (Southport Corporation v. Birkdale U. D. C. (1897), 76 L. T. 319; 18 Cox, C. C. 537; 14 Digest 553, 6291).

(c) As to the liability of the company when the supply to public lamps has been prevented by exceptional frosts, see In re Richmond Gas Co. and Richmond Corporation, ante, p. 4313. In view of s. 7 of the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4165, the undertakers are not liable to penalties under this section for neglect or refusal to supply gas to a lamp in a private passage where the owner objects to their laying the pipe (Bellamy v. Liverpool United Gas Light Co. (1904), 68 J. P. 540; 2 L. G. R. 1182; 25 Digest 472, 20).

Cost of experiment to be paid

37. Where the gas examiner is appointed by the justices as aforesaid, the costs of and attending such experiment, including the remuneration to be paid to the person making the same, and the costs of the proceedings before the justices, shall be ascertained by such justices, and in the event of any penalty being imposed on the undertakers shall be paid, together with such penalty, by the undertakers, but in the event of no penalty being imposed the costs shall be in the discretion of the justices (a). Section 37.

according to event.

(a) See as to appointment of gas examiners, s. 4 (4) of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1283.

38. Every person who wilfully, fraudulently, or by culpable negligence injures or suffers to be injured any pipes, meter, or fittings belonging to the undertakers, or alters the index to any meter, or prevents any meter from duly registering the quantity of gas supplied, or fraudulently abstracts, consumes, or uses gas of the undertakers, shall (without prejudice to any other right or remedy for the protection of the undertakers or the punishment of the offender) for every such offence forfeit and pay to the undertakers a sum not exceeding five pounds, and the undertakers may in addition thereto recover the amount of any damage by them sustained; and in any case in which any person has wilfully or fraudulently injured or suffered to be injured any pipes, meter, or fittings belonging to the undertakers, or altered the index to any meter, or prevented any meter from duly registering the quantity of gas supplied, the undertakers may also, until the matter complained of has been remedied, but no longer, discontinue the supply of gas to the person so offending (notwithstanding any contract previously existing); and the existence of artificial means for causing such alteration or prevention, or for abstracting, consuming, or using gas of undertakers, when such meter is under the custody or control of the consumer, shall be prima facie evidence that such alteration, prevention, abstraction, or consumption, as the case may be, has been fraudulently, knowingly, and wilfully caused by the consumer using such meter. Penalty for injuring meters.

RECOVERY OF GAS RENTS.

39. In case any consumer of gas supplied by the undertakers leaves the premises where such gas has been supplied to him without paying the gas rent or meter rent due from him, the undertakers shall not be entitled to require from the next tenant of such premises the payment of the arrears left unpaid by the former tenant, unless such incoming tenant has undertaken with the former tenant to pay or exonerate him from the payment of such arrears (a). Incoming tenants not liable to pay arrears of gas
rents, etc.

(a) See Gas Light and Coke Co. v. Mead (1876), 40 J. P. 662; 45 L. J. M. C. 71; 25 Digest 476, 36; Cannon Brewery Co. v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1904] A. C. 331; 68 J. P. 461; 25 Digest 476, 37; Ex parte Mason, In re Smith, and Paterson v. Gas Light and Coke Co., ante, p. 4310.

40. If any person supplied with gas or with any gas meter or fittings by the undertakers neglect to pay to the undertakers the rent due for such gas or the rent (a) or money due to the undertakers for the hire or fixing of such meter, or any expenses lawfully incurred by the undertakers in cutting off the gas from the premises of such person, the undertakers may recover the sum so due in like manner as a penalty under this Act. Recovery of rents, etc.

(a) This is not a rent within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, s. 34. See Ex parte Harrison, In re Peake (1884), 13 Q. B. D. 753; 5 Digest 958, 7853.

41. Whenever any person neglects to pay any rent or sum due and payable by him to the undertakers, the undertakers may recover the same with full costs of suit, in any court of competent jurisdiction, and the remedy of the undertakers under this enactment shall be in addition to their other remedies for the recovery of such rent or sum. Recovery of sums due to undertakers.

Section 42.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS.

Contents of summons or warrant.

42. Any summons or warrant issued for any of the purposes of this Act may contain, in the body thereof or in a schedule thereto, several names and several sums.

Warrant of distress shall include costs.

43. Any justice who issues a warrant of distress in pursuance of the provisions of this Act may order that the costs of the proceedings for the recovery of the money to be levied shall be paid by the person liable to pay such money, and such costs shall be ascertained by the justice, and shall be included in the warrant of distress for the recovery of such money.

Summary proceedings.

10 & 11 Vict.
c. 15.

44. All offences and penalties under this Act, and all money forfeited, and all money and costs by this Act directed to be recovered as penalties, may be prosecuted and recovered in manner directed by the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, with respect to the recovery of penalties (a).

(a) See the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 40, ante, p. 4175, incorporating the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 140 et seq., ante, p. 4159.

Service of notices by undertakers.

45. Every notice which the undertakers are by this Act required to serve upon any person shall be served by being delivered to the person for whom it is intended, or by being left at his usual or last known place of abode, or sent by post addressed to such persons, or if such person or his address be not known to the undertakers, and cannot after due inquiry be found or ascertained, then by being affixed for three days to some conspicuous part of the premises to which such notice relates.

Liability to gas rent not to disqualify justices from acting.

46. No justice or judge or any county court or quarter sessions shall be disqualified from acting in the execution of this Act by reason of his being liable to the payment of any gas rent or other charge under this Act.

SCHEDULES.

[Sect. 28.]

SCHEDULE A.

PART I.

Regulations in respect of Testing Apparatus.

1. The apparatus for testing the illuminating power of the gas shall consist of the improved form of Bunsen's photometer, known as Letheby's open 60-inch photometer, or Evans' inclosed 100-inch photometer, together with a proper meter, minute clock, governor, pressure gauge, and balance.

The burner to be used for testing the gas shall be such as shall be prescribed.

The candles used for testing the gas shall be sperm candles of six to the pound, and two candles shall be used together.

2. (a)

(a) Para. 2, repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, post.

[Sects. 12, 32.]

PART II.

Rules as to mode of Testing Gas.I.—Mode of Testing for Illuminating Power.

The gas in the photometer is to be lighted at least fifteen minutes before the testings begin, and it is to be kept continuously burning from the beginning to the end of the tests.

Each testing shall include ten observations of the photometer made at intervals of a minute.

The consumption of the gas is to be carefully adjusted to five cubic feet per hour.

The candles are to be lighted at least ten minutes before beginning each testing, so as to arrive at their normal rate of burning, which is shown when the wick is slightly bent and the tip glowing. The standard rate of consumption for the candles shall be 20 grains each per hour. Before and after making each set of ten observations of the photometer the gas examiner shall weigh the candles, and if the combustion shall have been more or less per candle than 120 grains per hour, he shall make and record the calculations requisite to neutralise the effects of this difference. Schedule A.

The average of each set of ten observations is to be taken as representing the illuminating power of that testing.

II. (a)

(a) Para. II. repealed by the Gas Undertakings Act, 1934, post.

SCHEDULE B (a).

(a) This Schedule is omitted because of the provision of s. 15 of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V. and 8 Halsbury's Statutes 1290.

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD ACT, 1871.

(34 & 35 VICT. c. 70) (a).

An Act for constituting a Local Government Board, and vesting therein certain functions of the Secretary of State and Privy Council concerning the Public Health and Local Government, together with the powers and duties of the Poor Law Board. [14th August, 1871.]

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Local Government Board Act, 1871." Short title.

(a) See 21 & 22 Vict. c. 97, ante, p. 4249.

ESTABLISHMENT OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD (a).

2. A Board shall be established, to be called the Local Government Board, and all powers and duties vested in or imposed on the Poor Law Board by the several Acts of Parliament relating to the relief of the poor and any other Acts, or vested in or imposed on one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, by the enactments in that behalf mentioned in the first part of the Schedule annexed hereto, so far as such powers and duties relate to England (b), or vested in or imposed on her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council by the enactments in that behalf specified in the second part of the said Schedule, shall be transferred to and imposed on the said Local Government Board, and except as otherwise provided by this Act, shall be exercised and performed by such Board in like manner and form, and subject to the same conditions, liabilities, and incidents respectively as such powers and duties might before the passing of this Act have been exercised and performed by the authorities in whom the same were then vested respectively, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

Establishment of Local Government
Board.

(a) A Minister of Health was created by the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, and by s. 3 (1) of that Act and an Order in Council made thereunder, which came into operation on 1st July 1919, all the powers and duties of the L. G. B. were transferred to the Ministry of Health. Many other powers and duties theretofore vested in or imposed on other Government departments were by the same Act and Orders in Council made thereunder transferred to the Minister. See the Act and the Orders in Council, post, p. 5159.

(b) See the additional powers transferred to the Board by the P. H. A., 1872, ss. 34—36, and preserved by the P. H. A., 1875, Sched. V., Part III., post, p. 4526. By the Wales and Berwick Act, 1746, 18 Halsbury's Statutes 969, England includes Wales.

3. [Constitution of Local Government Board] (a).

(a) These sections were repealed by s. 11 (2) and the Second Schedule to the Ministry of Health Act, 1919, post, p. 5196.

4. [President and one of the secretaries may sit in Parliament] (a).

(a) See note (a), to s. 3, supra.

Section 5. 5. [Seal, style, and acts of Board] (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 3, ante, p. 4319.

6. [Distribution of business] (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 3, ante, p. 4319.

Construction of Acts and documents and power of Local Government
Board.

7. In the construction of and for the purposes of any Act of Parliament, contract, or other document passed, entered into, or made before the establishment of the Local Government Board, but so far only as may be necessary for exercising the powers and discharging the duties by this Act transferred to and imposed on the Local Government Board, the name of such Board shall, according to circumstances, be deemed to be substituted for the Poor Law Board, one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State (a), or her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council, as the case may require; and any act or thing which might, if this Act had not passed, have been done by the Poor Law Board, or by one of her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, or by her Majesty's most honourable Privy Council, so far as relates to the powers and duties hereby transferred, may be done by the Local Government Board.

(a) See further, the P. H. A., 1872, s. 34, re-enacted in the P. H. A., 1875, Sched. V., Part III., post, p. 4526, whereby the consent of the L. G. B. was substituted for that of other departments in the cases there stated.

8. Duplicate returns to be sent to Local Government Board (a).

(a) This section was repealed by the L. G. A., 1933, and is replaced by ibid., s. 247, ante, p. 1092.

SCHEDULE REFERRED TO IN THE FOREGOING ACT (a).

Sept. 2.

PART I.

Powers and Duties of Secretary of State.

Subject.	Act.
Registration of Births, Deaths, and Marriages .	6 & 7 Will. 4, c. 86. 7 Will. 4 & 1 Vict. c. 22.
Public Improvement	23 & 24 Vict. c. 30.
Towns Improvement	10 & 11 Vict. c. 34. And any Acts amending the said Acts, and conferring powers on the said Secre- tary of State.

(a) Several of the Acts originally contained in this Schedule are consolidated in different Acts, and have been entirely repealed and are, therefore, here omitted; the others are printed in this Appendix in so far as they concern local authorities.

PART II.

Powers and Duties of Privy Council.

Subject.	Act.
Vaccination	30 & 31 Vict. c. 84. And any Acts amending the said Acts, and conferring powers on the said Privy Council.

THE STEAM WHISTLES ACT, 1872.

Section 1.

(35 & 36 VICT. c. 61.)

An Act to Regulate the Use of Steam Whistles in certain Manufactories (a).

[6th August, 1872.]

1. The Act shall not apply to Scotland.

Extent.

(a) The short title to this Act is as enacted by the Short Titles Act, 1896 (18 Halsbury's statutes 1021). The clause of enactment to this Act was repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (op. cit. 1014).

2. No person shall use or employ in any manufactory, or any other place, any steam whistle (a) or steam trumpet for the purpose of summoning or dismissing workmen or persons employed without the sanction of the sanitary authority, and every person offending against this section shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds, and to a further penalty not exceeding forty shillings for every day during which such offence continues: Provided always, that the sanitary authority, in case they have sanctioned the use of any such instrument as aforesaid, may at any time revoke such sanction on giving one month's notice to the person using the same: Provided also, that it shall be lawful for the Local Government Board (b), on representation made to them by any person that he is prejudicially affected (c) by such sanction, to revoke the same, and such revocation shall have the same force and effect as if it had been made by the sanitary authority.

Use of steam whistles and trumpets.

(a) L. formerly used a whistle directly connected with an engine boiler, but disconnected it, and used thereafter a gas engine to compress air and store it in a reservoir in his factory, and the same pipe connected therewith produced the same noise:—Held, that this was a "steam whistle," and required the consent of the sanitary authority pursuant to the above section (Herbert v. Leigh Mills Co. (1889), 53 J. P. 679; 5 T. L. R. 449; 24 Digest 905, 51).

(b) Now the M. of H. See Ministry of Health Act, 1919, post, p. 5191.

(c) Probably the sanitary authority would be guided by general and public considerations only in granting and revoking licences. The appeal to the M. of H. may, however, be of a personal character, and may be on the ground of annoyance, though this would doubtless have to be shown to be serious in order to succeed. The M. of H., it is believed, are guided by an opinion expressed by the Law Officers of the Crown as to the precise meaning to be attached to the words "prejudicially affected."

3. "Sanitary authority" means the authority at the time being empowered to execute the Nuisance Removal Acts, as defined and extended by the Sanitary Act, 1866 (a).

Definition.

29 & 30 Vict. c. 90.

(a) Now the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 4.

4. All offences and penalties under this Act may be prosecuted and recovered in England in manner directed by the Summary Jurisdiction (England) Acts . . .

Legal procedure.

11 & 12 Vict. c. 43, etc.

THE METALLIFEROUS MINES REGULATION ACT, 1872.

(35 & 36 VICT. c. 77.)

An Act to Consolidate and Amend the Law relating to Metalliferous Mines (a).

[10th August, 1872.]

* * * * *

13. Where any mine to which this Act applies (b) is abandoned or the working thereof discontinued, at whatever time such abandonment or discontinuance occurred (c), the owner thereof, and every other person interested in the minerals of the mine (d), shall cause the top of the shaft

Fencing of abandoned mine.

Section 13. and any side entrance from the surface to be and to be kept securely fenced for the prevention of accidents (e).

Provided that—

- (1) Subject to any contract to the contrary, the owner of the mine shall, as between him and any other person interested in the minerals of the mine, be liable to carry into effect this section, and to pay any costs incurred by any other person interested in the minerals of the mine in carrying this section into effect :
- (2) Where such abandonment or discontinuance has occurred in the case of a mine before the passing of this Act, this section shall apply only to such shaft or side entrance of the mine as is situate within fifty yards of any highway, road, footpath, or place of public resort, or in open or unenclosed land, or not being situate as aforesaid, is required by an inspector in writing to be fenced, on the ground that it is specially dangerous :
- (3) Nothing in this section shall exempt any person from any liability under any other Act, or otherwise.

If any person fail to act in conformity with this section he shall be guilty of an offence against this Act (f).

Any shaft or side entrance which is not fenced as required by this section, and is within fifty yards of any highway, road, footpath, or place of public resort, or is in open or unenclosed land, or is required by an inspector as aforesaid to be fenced, shall be deemed to be a nuisance within the meaning of section eight of the Nuisances Removal Act for England, 1855, as amended and extended by the Sanitary Act, 1866 (g).

18 & 19 Vict.
c. 121.
29 & 30 Vict.
c. 90.

(a) The preamble and clause of enactment of this Act have been repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014).

The Coal Mines Regulation Act, 1872, referred to in the preamble, is now represented by the Coal Mines Act, 1911, which contains (see s. 26, post, p. 5121) a provision on the same point. See also the Quarry (Fencing) Act, 1887, post, p. 4696.

(b) By s. 3 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 20) (construed in accordance with s. 83 of the Coal Mines Regulation Act, 1887, and s. 38 (1) of the Interpretation Act, 1889 ; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005), this Act applies to every mine or whatever description other than a mine to which the Coal Mines Act, 1911, applies : as to which see s. 1 of that Act, post, p. 5120. By s. 39 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 38), if any question arises whether a mine is one to which this Act or that Act applies, such question shall be referred to a Secretary of State, whose decision thereon shall be final. See Sims v. Evans (1875), 40 J. P. 199 ; 23 W. R. 730 ; 34 Digest 604, 9.

(c) It applies to mines abandoned before this Act (Stott v. Dickinson (1876), 40 J. P. 613 ; 34 L. T. 291 ; 34 Digest 738, 1153). Notice must be given to the inspector of mines when a shaft is abandoned or working thereof discontinued (s. 12 ; 12 Halsbury's Statutes 23).

(d) By s. 41 (op. cit. 38), the term "owner," when used in relation to any mine, means any person or body corporate who is the immediate proprietor, or lessee, or occupier of any mine, or of any part thereof, and does not include a person or body corporate who merely receives a royalty rent or fine from a mine, or is merely the proprietor of a mine subject to any lease, grant, or licence for the working thereof, or is merely the owner of the soil and not interested in the minerals of the mines. Where a mine was abandoned the owner, who had let it on lease for a term of years subject to a rent or royalties, was held to be a person interested in the minerals within this section, though the lease was still in force and undetermined (Evans v. Mostyn (1877), 2 C. P. D. 547 ; 41 J. P. 775 ; 34 Digest 747, 1215). Where a person had a lease of a mine from the Duchy of Cornwall on the terms that he was to pay as rent all he might receive in respect of the mine, and 5s. yearly in addition, it was held that he was not the owner nor interested within this section (Arkwright v. Evans (1880), 49 L. J. M. C. 82 ; 34 Digest 747, 1218). Where a lease had expired, the lessee was held not liable, though by his covenant he had agreed to fence abandoned shafts (Stott v. Dickinson, supra). Harbour trustees having a licence to take flints and chalk from a quarry at a certain price, were held not to be owners nor interested in the minerals so as to be obliged to fence it (Foster v. Newhaven Harbour Trustees (1897), 61 J. P. 629 ; 13 T. L. R. 292 ; 34 Digest 750, 1233). But a lord of the manor entitled to dues of lot, cope, and the third meer under the Derbyshire Mining Act, 1852, was held interested in the minerals and bound to fence (Devonshire (Duke) v. Stokes (1897), 61 J. P. 406; 76 L. T. 424; 34 Digest 753, 1265). So also was the owner of the soil of an abandoned lead mine being owner of the calc-spar and calk (barytes) it contained (Stokes v. Arkwright (1897), 61 J. P. 775; 66 L. J. Q. B. 845; 34 Digest 747, 1216).

A local authority in whom is vested by statute a public well formed by an accumulation of water in the disused shaft of a mine, is not liable under this section to keep the shaft fenced for the prevention of accidents (Knuckey v. Redruth R. D. C., [1904] 1 K. B. 382; 68 J. P. 172; 34 Digest 748, 1219).

(e) A wall round an enclosure ten acres in extent, in which there is a side entrance to a mine, is not a sufficient fence round the side entrance within the meaning of this section (Foster v. Owen (1893), 57 J. P. 87; 62 L. J. M. C. 7; 34 Digest 748, 1220).

(f) As to penalties, see s. 31 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 35). By s. 35 (op. cit. 37), "No prosecution shall be instituted against the owner or agent of a mine to which this Act applies for any offence under this Act which can be prosecuted before a court of summary jurisdiction, except by an inspector or with the consent in writing of a Secretary of State." But where the inspector has determined on a prosecution, the information may be laid in his name by an agent employed by him (Foster v. Fyfe, [1896] 2 Q. B. 104; 60 J. P. 423; 34 Digest 748, 1224).

(g) See now the P. H. A., 1936, Pt. III., ante, pp. 293 et seq., and cf. notes to Quarry (Fencing) Act, 1887, post, p. 4696.

THE PAWNBROKERS ACT, 1872.

(35 & 36 VICT. c. 93) (a).

An Act for consolidating, with amendments, the Acts relating to Pawnbrokers in Great Britain. [10th August, 1872.]

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be cited as "The Pawnbrokers Act, 1872."

Short title.

(a) This Act has been amended by the Pawnbrokers Act, 1922 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 711), which refers only to those provisions omitted as outside the scope of the present work. The amending Act has therefore not been included in this volume. The duties of justices with reference to pawnbrokers' certificates under this Act are now transferred to district councils by the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 27, 32, post, pp. 4911-2.

3. The Schedules to this Act, including the notes thereto, shall have effect as part of this Act (a).

Effect of Schedules.

(a) The earlier part of this section was repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014).

DEFINITIONS; APPLICATION OF ACT.

5. In this Act—

"Pawnbroker" includes every person who carries on the business of taking goods and chattels in pawn: Interpretation.

"Pledge" means an article pawned with a pawnbroker:

"Pawner" means a person delivering an article for pawn to a pawnbroker:

"Shop" includes dwelling-house and warehouse, or other place of business, or place where business is transacted:

"Unfinished goods or materials" includes any goods of any manufacture or of any part or branch of any manufacture either mixed or separate, or any materials whatever plainly intended for the composing or manufacturing of any goods, after such goods or materials are put into a state or course of manufacture, or into a state for any process or operation to be performed thereupon or therewith, and before the same are completed or finished for the purpose of wear or consumption :

Section 5.

"Constable" includes any peace officer :

"Justice" means justice of the peace having jurisdiction in the county or place where the matter requiring the cognizance of a justice arises.

Extension of Act to keepers of certain shops.

6. In order to prevent evasion of the provisions of this Act, the following persons shall be deemed to be persons carrying on the business of taking goods and chattels in pawn (that is to say), every person who keeps a shop for the purchase or sale of goods or chattels, or for taking in goods or chattels by way of security for money advanced thereon, and who purchases or receives or takes in goods or chattels, and pays or advances or lends thereon any sum of money not exceeding ten pounds with or under an agreement or understanding expressed or implied or to be from the nature and character of the dealing reasonably inferred, that those goods or chattels may be afterwards redeemed or repurchased on any terms ; and every such transaction, article, payment, advance, and loan shall be deemed a pawning, pledge, and loan respectively within this Act.

* * * * *

INLAND REVENUE LICENCES.

Yearly licence and excise duty.

37. Every pawnbroker shall yearly take out from the Commissioners of Inland Revenue an excise licence for carrying on his business, on which licence there shall be charged and paid for the use of her Majesty (a), an excise duty of seven pounds ten shillings.

Every licence shall be dated on the day on which it was issued and shall determine on the thirty-first day of July.

A separate licence shall be taken out and paid for by a pawnbroker for each pawnbroker's shop kept by him.

If a person acts as a pawnbroker without having in force a proper licence he shall for every such offence be liable to an excise penalty not exceeding fifty pounds.

All the provisions contained in any Act relating to excise licences, duties or penalties, and in force at the commencement of this Act, shall, as far as the same are applicable, have full effect with respect to the licence and duty and penalty aforesaid.

(a) Certain words are here repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173).

* * * * *

Licences not to be granted with out certificate.

39. (a) A pawnbroker's licence shall not be granted to any person except on the production and in pursuance of the authority of a certificate granted under this Act ; save that it shall not be necessary for any person being at the commencement of this Act a licensed pawnbroker, or for his executors, administrators, assigns, or successors, to obtain such a certificate (b).

Any licence granted in contravention of this section shall be void.

(b) This exemption is not confined to the business actually carried on by a pawnbroker at the commencement of the Act. It extends to all pawnbrokers then licensed, their executors, assigns, or successors, who may open a new business on payment of the licence duty without any certificate (R. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, Ohlson's Case, Garland's Case, [1891] 1 Q. B. 485; 55 J. P. 117; 37 Digest 22, 175). But the exemption only enables a successor to carry on without obtaining a certificate the actual business to which he succeeds, and does not enable him to open or carry on a new business merely upon payment of the licence duty (R. v. Inland Revenue Commissioners, Ex parte Silvester, [1907] 1 K. B. 108; 71 J. P. 36; 37 Digest 22, 176).

Note to
Section 39.

40. Certificates under this Act shall be granted (as regards England) in the metropolitan police district by a magistrate sitting in any police court in the metropolis having jurisdiction in the district where the application is made, and in any place within the jurisdiction of a stipendiary magistrate by that magistrate, and in other places by the justices of the petty sessional division assembled at petty sessions specially convened for that purpose (a).

Certificates to be granted by justices.

(a) Certificates are now granted by district councils; see note (a) to s. 1, ante, p. 4323.

41. A certificate under this Act shall be in the form given in the Sixth Schedule to this Act, or to the like effect, and shall be in force for one year from this date.

Form and duration of certificate.

42. A person intending to apply for the first time for a certificate under this Act shall proceed as follows:

Notice of first application.

- (1) Twenty-one days at least before the application he shall give notice by registered letter sent by post of his intention to one of the overseers (a) of the poor of the parish or place in which he intends to carry on business, and to the superintendent of police of the district, and shall in the notice set forth his name and address:
- (2) Within twenty-eight days before the application he shall cause a like notice to be affixed and maintained between ten o'clock in the morning and five o'clock in the afternoon of two consecutive Sundays, on the principal door or one of the doors of the church or chapel of the parish or place, or if there is none, then on some other public and conspicuous place in the parish or place.

(a) Overseers having been abolished by s. 62 of the R. & V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2222, this notice should now be given to the clerk to rating authority in an urban district, and in a rural district to the chairman of the appropriate parish council or parish meeting (Art. 14, Overseers Order, 1927, ante, p. 3600).

43. An application for a certificate shall not be refused, except on the following grounds, or one of them:

Grounds of refusal of certificate.

- (1) That the applicant has failed to produce satisfactory evidence of good character;
- (2) That the shop in which he intends to carry on the business of a pawnbroker, or any adjacent house or place owned or occupied by him, is frequented by thieves or persons of bad character;
- (3) That he has not complied with the last preceding section.

44. If any person forges a certificate, or tenders a certificate knowing it to be forged, he shall, on conviction thereof in a court of summary jurisdiction, be liable to a penalty not exceeding twenty pounds, or, in the discretion of the court, to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour.

Forgery of certificate.

A licence granted in pursuance of a forged certificate shall be void; and if any person makes use of a forged certificate, knowing it to be forged, he shall be disqualified from obtaining at any time thereafter a pawnbroker's licence.

* * * * *

Section 52. 52. If any person thinks himself aggrieved by any conviction or order of a court of summary jurisdiction under this Act, or by the refusal of a certificate for a licence, he may appeal therefrom, subject to the conditions and regulations following :

Appeal to
sessions.

- (1) The appeal shall be made to some court of general or quarter sessions (a) for the county or place in which the cause of appeal has arisen, held not less than fifteen days and (unless adjourned by the court) not more than four months after the decision or refusal appealed from :
- (2) The appellant shall within seven days after the cause of appeal has arisen give notice to the other party and to the court or authority appealed from of his intention to appeal and the ground thereof :
- (3) The appellant shall immediately after such notice enter into a recognizance before a justice with two sufficient sureties conditioned personally to try such appeal, and to abide the judgment of the court thereon, and to pay such costs as may be awarded by the court, or give such other security by deposit of money or otherwise as the justice allows :
- (4) . . .
- (5) The court of appeal may adjourn the appeal ; and, upon the hearing thereof, they may confirm, reverse, or modify the decision or refusal appealed from, or remit the matter with the opinion of the court of appeal thereon, or make such other order in the matter as the court thinks just, and may make such order as to costs to be paid by either party as the court thinks just.

(a) The remainder of this section, though repealed by the S. J. A., 1884 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 355), so far as it related to appeals from convictions or orders of a court of summary jurisdiction, remains in full force as regards appeals from the refusal of a certificate for a licence. Paragraph (4) relating to release out of custody is, however, inapplicable and therefore omitted.

SAVING.

Saving for local Acts.

57. Nothing in this Act shall repeal or in any manner interfere with the operation of any local or local and personal Act for the time being in force in any city, town, burgh, or other place.

THE FAIRS ACT, 1873.

Section 1.

(36 & 37 VICT. C. 37) (a).

An Act to amend the Law relating to Fairs in England and Wales.

[7th July, 1873.]

1. This Act may be cited as "The Fairs Act, 1873."

Short title.

(a) The powers and duties of justices under this Act are transferred to district councils by the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 27, 32, post, pp. 4911-2. The sections and parts of sections repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014), have been here omitted. See also Fairs Act, 1871, ante, p. 4307.

2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Extent.

3. In this Act the term "owner" means any person or persons or body of commissioners or body corporate, entitled to hold any fair, whether in respect of the ownership of any lands or tenements, or under any charter, letters patent, or otherwise howsoever.

Definition of terms.

4. [Commencement of Act (repealed by the Statute Law Revision (No. 2) Act, 1893).]5. [The Fairs Act, 1868, repealed] (a).

(a) This section is in turn itself repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 986).

6. In case it shall appear to a Secretary of State, upon representation duly made to him by the justices (a) acting in and for the petty sessional division within which any fair is held, or by the owner of any fair in England or Wales, that it would be for the convenience and advantage of the public that any such fair shall be held in each year on some day or days other than that or those on which such fair is used to be held or on the day or days on which such fair is used to be held and any preceding or subsequent day or days or on or during a less number of days than those on which such fair is used to be held, it shall be lawful for a Secretary of State to order that such fair shall be held on such other day or days, or on the same day or days and any preceding or subsequent day or days, or on or during any less number of days as he shall think fit: Provided always, that notice of such representation and of the time when it shall please a Secretary of State to take the same into consideration shall if such representation shall have been made by justices (a) be given to the owner of such fair, and shall if such representation shall have been made by the owner of such fair be given to the clerk to the justices (a) acting in and for the petty sessional division within which such fair is held, and shall also be published once in the London Gazette, and in three successive weeks in some one and the same newspaper published in the county, city, or borough in which such fair is held, or if there be no newspaper published therein, then in the newspaper of some county adjoining or near thereto, before such representation is so considered.

Power to Secretary of State to alter days of holding fairs.

(a) See note (a) to s. 1, supra.

7. When and so soon as any such order as aforesaid shall have been made by a Secretary of State, notice of the making of the same shall be published in the London Gazette and in some one newspaper of the county, city, or borough in which such fair is usually held, or if there be no newspaper published therein, then in the newspaper of some county adjoining or near thereto, and thereupon such fair shall only be held on the day or days mentioned in Order of Secretary of State to be published in certain newspapers.

Section 7.

All rights, etc. of owner to remain good.

such order ; and it shall be lawful for the owner of such fair to take all such toll or tolls, and to do all such act or acts, and to enjoy all and the same rights, powers, and privileges in respect thereof, and enforce the same by all and the like remedies, as if the same were held on the day or days upon which it was used to be held previous to the making of such order.

THE GAS AND WATER WORKS FACILITIES ACT, 1870, AMENDMENT ACT, 1873.

(36 & 37 VICT. c. 89) (a).

An Act to extend and amend the provisions of the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870. [5th August, 1873.]

Short title.

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "The Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, Amendment Act, 1873" (b).

(a) See the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, ante, p. 4264. The clause of enactment of this Act has been repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014).

(b) Sections 2—11 and the Schedule to this Act were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1883 (op. cit. 936).

* * * * *

Power of Board of Trade to revoke, amend,
extend, or vary Provisional
Order.

33 & 34 Vict.
c. 70

12. Where under the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, or this Act, the Board of Trade (a) have made any Provisional Order, they may from time to time revoke, amend, extend, or vary such Provisional Order by a further Provisional Order.

Every application for such further Provisional Order shall be made in like manner and subject to the like conditions as the application for the former Provisional Order.

Every such further Provisional Order shall be made and confirmed in like manner in every respect as the former Provisional Order.

(a) The L. G. B. were substituted for the Board of Trade so far as regards Provisional Orders for the supply of gas by an urban authority. See s. 161 of the P. H. A., 1875 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 692). However, by Order in Council of November 9th, 1920, the powers and duties of the Minister of Health (who had succeeded to the powers and duties of the L. G. B.) in relation to gas undertakings were once more vested in the Board of Trade. See also the provisions of the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, and the Gas Undertakings Act, 1929, Vol. V., post. Special Orders may now be made instead of Provisional Orders.

Inquiries by the Board of Trade
for purposes of 33 & 34 Vict.
c. 70, and this Act.

13. Where, in relation to any application for a Provisional Order under the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, or under this Act, it is in the opinion of the Board of Trade (a) expedient that an inquiry should be held, they may order and direct such inquiry to be held at such time and place as they may think proper, subject to the provisions following :

1. The inquiry shall be held in public before an officer or officers to be appointed in that behalf by the Board of Trade, hereinafter called the commissioner or commissioners :
2. Ten days notice at the least shall be given by the commissioner or commissioners of the time and place at which the inquiry is to be commenced :
3. The inquiry shall be commenced at the time and place so appointed, and the commissioner or commissioners may adjourn the inquiry from time to time as may be necessary to such time and place as he or they may think fit : Section 13.

4. The commissioner or commissioners by summons shall, on the application of any party interested in the inquiry, require the attendance before him or them, at a place and time to be mentioned in the summons, of any person to be examined as a witness before him or them, and every person summoned shall attend the commissioner or commissioners, and answer all questions touching the matter to be inquired into, and any person who wilfully disobeys any such summons or refuses to answer any question put to him by the commissioner or one of the commissioners for the purposes of the said inquiry shall, on summary conviction before two justices . . . be liable to a penalty not exceeding five pounds : Provided always, that no person shall be required to attend in obedience to any such summons unless the reasonable charges of his attendance shall have been paid or tendered to him and no person shall be required in any case in obedience to any such summons to travel more than ten miles from his place of abode :
5. The commissioner or commissioners shall make a report to the Board of Trade in writing, and shall deliver copies of the report upon request to all or any of the parties to the inquiry (b).

(a) See note (a) to s. 12, supra.

(b) This is an unusual provision, as reports made to a Government Department by officers appointed to investigate applications are usually treated as confidential documents, cf. L. G. B. v. Arlidge, [1915] A. C. 120 ; 79 J. P. 97 ; 38 Digest 217, 518.

14. The Board of Trade (a) may from time to time make, and, when made may rescind, annul, or add to, rules with respect to the following matters (b) : Rules for carrying Acts into effect.

The proceedings to be had before the Board under the Gas and Water Works Facilities Act, 1870, or this Act ; and 33 & 34 Vict. c. 70.

As to any other matter or thing in respect of which it may be expedient to make rules for the purpose of carrying the said Act or this Act into execution.

Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be deemed to be within the powers conferred by the said Act or this Act, and shall be of the same force as if enacted in the said Act or this Act, and shall be judicially noticed.

Any rules made in pursuance of this section shall be laid before Parliament within three weeks after they are made, if Parliament be then sitting, and if Parliament be not then sitting, within three weeks after the beginning of the then next session of Parliament.

(a) See note (a) to s. 12, ante, p. 4328.

(b) See the Rules of the Board of Trade, dated March 1st, 1922, as to special orders relating to gas under the Gas Regulation Act, 1920, Vol. V., post, which have superseded provisional orders under this Act ; the rules of October 1st, 1926, issued by the Board of Trade and Minister of Health as to gas and water (combined purposes) ; and rules of October 1st, 1926, by the Minister of Health as to Water Orders. These Rules are set out ante, p. 2841.

15. This Act shall not apply to any place within the metropolis as the same is defined in the Metropolis Management Act, 1855. Act not to extend to Metropolis.

18 & 19 Vict.
c. 120.

THE EXPLOSIVES ACT, 1875.

THE EXPLOSIVES ACT, 1875.

(38 & 39 VICT. c. 17.)

An Act to amend the Law with respect to manufacturing, keeping, selling, carrying, and importing Gunpowder, Nitro-glycerine, and other Explosive Substances.
[14th June 1875.]

Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as "The Explosives Act, 1875."

* * * * *

Byelaws as to conveyance by road or otherwise, or loading of gunpowder.

37. The Secretary of State may from time to time make, and when made rescind, alter, or add to byelaws (a) for regulating the conveyance, loading and unloading of gunpowder in any case in which byelaws made under any other provision of this Act do not apply, and in particular for declaring or regulating all or any of the following matters; that is to say,

1. Regulating the description and construction of carriages to be used in the conveyance of gunpowder as merchandise; and

2. Prohibiting or subjecting to conditions and restrictions the conveyance of gunpowder with any explosive, or with any articles or substances, or in passenger carriages; and

3. Fixing the places and times at which the gunpowder is to be loaded or unloaded, and the quantity to be loaded or unloaded or conveyed at one time or in one carriage; and

4. Determining the precautions to be observed in conveying gunpowder, and in loading and unloading the carriages used in such conveyance, and the time during which the gunpowder may be kept during such conveyance, loading, and unloading; and

5. Providing for the publication and supply of copies of the byelaws; and

6. Generally for protecting, whether by means similar to those above-mentioned or not, persons or property from danger; and

7. Adapting on good cause being shown the byelaws in force under this section to the circumstances of any particular locality.

The penalties to be annexed to any breach, or attempt to commit any breach, of any such byelaws may be all or any of the following penalties, and may be imposed on such persons and graduated in such manner as may be deemed just, according to the gravity of the offence, and according as it may be a first, second, or other subsequent offence, that is to say, pecuniary penalties not exceeding twenty pounds for each offence, and ten pounds for each day during which the breach continues, and forfeiture of all or any part of the gunpowder in respect of which, or being in the carriage in respect of which, the breach of byelaw has taken place.

For the purpose of any mode of conveyance which is not a conveyance by land this section shall be construed as if ship and boat were included in the term "carriage."

(a) See the byelaws as to the deposit of explosives for conveyance as refuse made under this section, and contained in an Order dated September 20th, 1924, ante, p. 2801.

* * * * *

39. Subject to the provisions hereafter in this Part of this Act contained, Part I. of this Act relating to gunpowder shall apply to every other description of explosive, in like manner as if those provisions were herein re-enacted with the substitution of that description of explosive for gunpowder.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH ACT, 1875.

(38 & 39 VICT. c. 55.)

An Act for consolidating and amending the Acts relating to Public Health in England. [11th August 1875.]

This Act has now very largely been repealed and its former provisions consolidated into other enactments. In so far as the Act survives, it falls into two parts, ss. 1—3, 26, 68—9, 144—155, 157, 160—5, 171—2, 228, 297—8, 303—4, 343, and parts of Scheds. IV. and V., which remain unrepealed, and the balance of the sections printed which were repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, Sched. III., Pt. I., except so far as material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

PART I.

Preliminary.

1. This act may be cited as “The Public Health Act, 1875.” Short title.
2. This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Ireland, nor (save as by Extent of this Act is expressly provided) to the metropolis. Act.

Under the London Government Act, 1899, s. 19 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1236), Woolwich is now part of the metropolis for all purposes, and the provisions of this Act which were made applicable to it by the P. H. (London) A., 1891, s. 102, no longer apply to it. See also note to definition of “metropolis” on post, p. 4332.

As to the Scilly Islands, see s. 292 of the L. G. A., 1933, and note thereto, ante, p. 1175.

3. This Act is divided into parts, as follows :

Part I.—Preliminary.
 Part II.—Authorities for Execution of Act.
 Part III.—Sanitary Provisions.
 Part IV.—Local Government Provisions.
 Part V.—General Provisions.
 Part VI.—Rating and Borrowing Powers, etc.
 Part VII.—Legal Proceedings.
 Part VIII.—Alteration of Areas and Union of Districts.
 Part IX.—Local Government Board.
 Part X.—Miscellaneous and Temporary Provisions.
 Part XI.—Saving Clauses and Repeal of Acts.

Division of Act into parts.

Substantially only Part IV. of the Act and consequential provisions remain.

4. In this Act, if not inconsistent with the context, the following Definitions.
words and expressions have the meanings hereinafter respectively assigned to them ; that is to say,

As to the effect of interpretation clauses, see ante, p. 686.

This section has been repealed by the P. H. A., 1936, s. 346 (1), Sched. III., Pt. I. (2), ante, pp. 720, 728, except so far as it is material for the purposes of any unrepealed enactment in this Act or any Act directed to be construed herewith.

“Borough” means any place for the time being subject to the Act of “Borough.”
 the session of the fifth and sixth years of the reign of King William the Fourth, chapter seventy-six, intituled "An Act to provide for the Regulation of Municipal Corporations in England and Wales," and any act amending the same :

Section 4.

These Acts have all been repealed and were for the most part re-enacted by a consolidating and amending statute, the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, which applies (s. 6 ; post, p. 4625) to every city and town to which the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835, applied at the commencement of the Act, (i.e., January 1st, 1883), and to any town, district, or place, whereof the inhabitants are incorporated after the commencement of the Act, and whereto the provisions of the Municipal Corporations Acts are under the Act extended by charter, but to no other place. The M. C. Act, 1882, has itself now been largely replaced by the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 735. For a similar definition, see the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 15 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 998).

"The Metropolis."

"The metropolis" means the city of London and all parishes and places mentioned in Schedules A., B., and C., to the Metropolis Management Act, 1855 :

For a list of the parishes and places mentioned in such Schedules, see Woolrych's Metropolis Management Acts, 3rd ed., p. 149. By the express mention of the city of London, the definition of the metropolis contained in the previous Act is rendered more exact. Since the L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4722, however, the term "metropolis" has given place to "County of London," and various changes of boundaries have taken place. Note that it does not extend to the Metropolitan Police District, as to the limits of which see Metropolitan Police Act, 1829 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 743) ; Metropolitan Police Act, 1839 (op. cit. 767), and amending Acts collected in 9 Chitty's Statutes, "Police (Metropolis)," p. 108, nor to the London Traffic Area, as to the limits of which see London Traffic Act, 1924, Vol. V., post. Both these areas are of much greater extent.

Woolwich is now part of the metropolis. See the note to s. 2, ante, p. 4331.

"Local government district";
"local board."

"Local government district" means any area subject to the jurisdiction of a local board constituted in pursuance of the Local Government Acts before the passing of this Act, or in pursuance of this Act, and "local board" means any board so constituted :

The "Local Government Acts" were (see Schedule V., Part I., post, p. 4525) the Public Health Act, 1848 ; the Local Government Act, 1858 ; the Local Government Act (1858) Amendment Act, 1861 ; and the Local Government Act Amendment Act, 1863. Local Boards constituted under the Act of 1848 were called "Local Boards of Health."

As to the constitution of local government districts in pursuance of this Act (a process which has ceased), see ss. 271, 272 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 738, 739), now repealed.

This definition is retained, as the expression is used in this Act ; but by the L. G. A., 1894, s. 21 (1), post, p. 4332, the districts of urban sanitary authorities are now called urban districts, and local boards urban district councils.

"Improvement Act district."

"Improvement Act district" means any area for the time being subject to the jurisdiction of any Improvement Commissioners as hereinafter defined :

"Improvement Commissioners,"

"Improvement Commissioners" means any commissioners, trustees, or other persons invested by any local Act with powers of town government and rating :

This definition was taken from the P. H. A., 1872, s. 60, but the term "town government" occurred in Local Government Act, 1858 (Amendment) Act, 1861. Improvement Commissioners have in many cases been replaced by Town Councils as a result of the incorporation of their areas under the M. C. Acts. In other cases they have become Urban District Councils and their districts Urban Districts. The special powers given by the Improvement Acts may survive in substance. See the L. G. A., 1894, s. 11 (1) (10 Halsbury's Statutes 784).

"Parish" means a place for which a separate poor rate is or can be made, or for which a separate overseer is or can be appointed :

This definition was adopted from the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1866, s. 18 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 544). Overseers could formerly be appointed for places or districts distinct from parishes. By the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 5 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 993), in every Act passed after the year 1866 the expression "parish" meant, unless the contrary intention appeared, as respects England and Wales, a place for which a separate poor rate was or could be made, or for which an overseer was or could be appointed. Such definition superseded that in the text, but was practically identical. But now, in consequence of the abolition of overseers and of parochial rating by the R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, p. 2113, another definition became necessary and it is provided by ibid., s. 68 (4), ante, p. 2232, that "In this and every other Act whether passed before or after this Act, the expression 'parish' shall, unless the contrary intention appears and subject to any alteration of area made on or after the appointed day (i.e., 1st April, 1927) by or in pursuance of any Act, mean a place for which immediately before the appointed day a separate poor rate was or could be made or a separate overseer was or could be appointed." The definition in the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 992), was accordingly repealed by s. 69 and Sched. VIII. of the R. and V. Act, 1925, ante, pp. 2233, 2264, as from the appointed day, i.e., 1st April, 1927 (R. and V. Act (Repeals) Order, 1927).

Extra-parochial places have now practically disappeared, for by the Extra-Parochial Places Act, 1857, s. 1 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 936), every place entered separately in the report of the Registrar-General on the last census which then was or was reputed to be extra-parochial, and wherein no rate was levied for the relief of the poor, was in future for all purposes of the assessment to the poor rate to be deemed a parish ; and the justices having jurisdiction in such place were to appoint overseers therein. And by the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1868, s. 27 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 558), every place which was or was reputed to be extra-parochial, whether entered in the Registrar-General's report or not, for which no overseer had been appointed, or was then acting, or which had not then been annexed to and incorporated with an adjoining parish under s. 4 of the Act of 1857 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 937), was for all civil parochial purposes to be annexed to and incorporated with the next adjoining parish with which it had the largest common boundary, and in case there should be two or more parishes with which it had boundaries of equal extent, then with that parish which contained the lowest amount of rateable value. Finally, by s. 1 (1) of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 736, the whole of England and Wales were subdivided eventually into parishes, which seems to exclude the possibility of such a thing as an extra-parochial place. But otherwise portions of Windsor Castle, Exeter Castle Yard, Lundy Island and certain other islands and lighthouses are still extra-parochial.

"Union" means a union of parishes incorporated or united for the relief or maintenance of the poor under any public or local Act of Parliament, and includes any parish subject to the jurisdiction of a separate board of guardians :

"Guardians" means any persons or body of persons by whom the relief of the poor is administered in any union :

Under the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V., and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, "Unions" and "Guardians" have now ceased to exist.

The word "union" must now be construed as referring to "a county or county borough" and "guardians" as "the council of a county or county borough" (Sched. X., r. 1, ibid., Vol. V., and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 995).

Section 4.

"Person."

"Person" includes any body of persons, whether corporate or unincorporate :

In the P. H. A., 1848, s. 2, this word was applied to corporations aggregate or sole. It is presumed that the latter are included here.

In Pharmaceutical Society v. London and Provincial Supply Association, Ltd. (1880), 5 App. Cas. 857; 45 J. P. 20; 13 Digest 351, 891, Lord SELBORNE, at p. 861, said: "There can be no question that the word 'person' may, and I should be disposed myself to say primâ facie does, in a public statute, include a person in law: that is, a corporation, as well as a natural person. But although that is a sense which the word will bear in law, and which, as I said, perhaps ought to be attributed to it in the construction of a statute unless there should be any reason for a contrary construction, it is never to be forgotten that in its popular sense and ordinary use it does not extend so far. Statutes, like other documents, are constantly conceived according to the popular use of language; and it is certain that this word is often used in statutes in a sense in which it cannot be intended to extend to a corporation. That accounts for the frequent occurrence in some statutes, in interpretation clauses, of an express declaration that it shall extend to a body politic or corporate."

By the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 2 (1) (18 Halsbury's Statutes 992) (re-enacting Criminal Law Act, 1827, s. 14): "In the construction of every enactment relating to an offence punishable on indictment or on summary conviction, whether contained in an Act passed before or after the commencement of this Act, the expression 'person' shall, unless the contrary intention appears, include a body corporate." And by ibid., s. 19 (op. cit. 1001): "In this Act and in every Act passed after the commencement of this Act the expression 'person' shall, unless the contrary intention appears, include any body of persons corporate or unincorporate."

In the following cases the word has been held to include a corporation: Pearks, Gunston and Tee, Ltd. v. Ward, [1902] 2 K. B. 1; 66 J. P. 774; 25 Digest 81, 101; In re Thompson's Trusts, [1905] 1 Ch. 229; R. v. Antrim JJ., [1906] 2 I. R. 298; Hirst v. West Riding Union Banking Co., [1901] 2 K. B. 560; 26 Digest 33, 202; Chuter v. Freeth and Pocock, Ltd., [1911] 2 K. B. 832; 75 J. P. 430; 13 Digest 352, 899; R. v. Ascanio Puck & Co., Ltd. (1912), 76 J. P. 487; 29 T. L. R. 11; 25 Digest 114, 377; and cf. R. v. Gainsford JJ. (1913), 29 T. L. R. 359; 13 Digest 353, 912 ("occupier"); Evans v. London C. C., [1914] 3 K. B. 315; 78 J. P. 345; 13 Digest 352, 903 ("occupier"); in the following it was held not to do so: Pharmaceutical Society's Case, supra; Wills v. Tozer (1904), 53 W. R. 74; 13 Digest 351, 892; Walker v. Richardson (1837), 2 M. & W. 882; O'Duffy v. Jaffe, [1904] 2 I. R. 27; Myllam v. Market Harborough Advertiser Co., Ltd., [1905] 1 K. B. 708; Hawke v. E. Hulton & Co., Ltd., [1909] 2 K. B. 93; 73 J. P. 295; R. v. Daily Mirror Newspapers, Ltd., [1922] 2 K. B. 530; 86 J. P. 151; 13 Digest 410, 1304.

As to the procedure on a charge of an offence against a corporation, see s. 33, Criminal Justice Act, 1925 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 415).

As to when the word does or does not include an infant, a woman, or a married woman, see cases collected in In re Royal Naval School, [1910] 1 Ch. 806; 28 Digest 147, 80, and Bebb v. Law Society, [1914] 1 Ch. 286; 42 Digest 22, 6.

As to the meaning of "person" in a lease, see Willmott v. London Road Car Co., [1910] 2 Ch. 525; 13 Digest 353, 911.

"Local authority."

"Local authority" means urban sanitary authority and rural sanitary authority :

See L. G. A., 1933, s. 1 and notes, ante, pp. 736-8.

"Surveyor."

"Surveyor" includes (a) any person appointed by a rural authority to perform any of the duties of surveyor under this Act (b) :

(a) As to the difference between the words "mean" and "include," see ante, p. 687.

(b) This word is probably thus defined with reference to a rural sanitary authority because such an authority were not required by the Act to appoint a surveyor and might do so temporarily for a special purpose. See L. G. A., 1933, s. 107, ante, p. 884, as to the duty of a district council to appoint officers and servants.

Note to
Section 4.

“Lands” and “Premises” include messuages buildings lands easements and hereditaments of any tenure: “Lands”; “premises.”

The definition of premises avoids difficulties in the interpretation of the word such as arose with reference to s. 3 of the Factory Acts Extension Act, 1867, in Kent v Astley (1869), L. R. 5 Q. B. 19; 34 J. P. 374; 24 Digest 899, 12, and Redgrave v. Lee (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 363; 38 J. P. 676; 24 Digest 899, 13. As the context may in any particular case require a departure from the definition, reference may be made to cases in which the meaning of the word in a local Act was discussed (Metropolitan Water Board v. Paine, [1907] 1 K. B. 285; 71 J. P. 63; 43 Digest 1086, 198; Metropolitan Water Board v. Johnson, [1913] 3 K. B. 900; 77 J. P. 384; 43 Digest 1086, 199).

“Owner” means the person for the time being receiving the rack-rent of the lands or premises in connection with which the word is used, whether on his own account or as agent or trustee for any other person, or who would so receive the same if such lands or premises were let at a rack-rent: “Owner.”

The word means appears to be restrictive, and to imply that what follows is to be the only interpretation of the word owner, so that an owner in fee who has let land on a nominal ground rent is not within the definition. See note (a) on p. 7, ante, and cases, infra. “Means.”

This definition applies in construing the provisions of the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4222, as to fires, incorporated by s. 171, post, p. 4458. See Sale v. Phillips, [1894] 1 Q. B. 349; 58 J. P. 460; 38 Digest 227, 581.

See notes to the same phrase in s. 343 (1) of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 702.

“Rack-rent” means rent which is not less than two-thirds of the full net annual value of the property out of which the rent arises (a); and the full net annual value shall be taken to be the rent at which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year, free from all usual tenant's rates and taxes, and tithe commutation rent-charge (if any), and deducting therefrom the probable average annual cost of the repairs, insurance, and other expenses (if any) necessary to maintain the same in a state to command such rent (b): “Rack-rent”; “full net annual value.”

(a) See the Poor Law Amendment Act, 1834, s. 109 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 923).

(b) This definition was taken from the Parochial Assessments Act, 1836, s. 1, and is what was set out in the column of the rate in the schedule headed rateable value. That Act was repealed by the R. and V. A., 1925, ante, p. 2113, but the definition in the text is not affected by the Act of 1925, and accordingly decisions upon the provisions of the law now repealed are necessary to a consideration of the definition in the text. As to the meaning of the words “free from all usual tenant's rates and taxes,” etc., see Hackett v. Long Bennington Overseers (1864), 16 C. B. (N. S.) 38; 28 J. P. 135; 38 Digest 529, 749; R. v. Hall Dare (1864), 5 B. & S. 785; 28 J. P. 791; 38 Digest 526, 737. In the latter, Steele, J., explained the words “free from,” as being equivalent to “without regard to,” or “putting aside.”

“Tenant's rates and taxes” means those which are borne by the occupier as distinguished from the owner of land, but not land tax or property tax, which are landlord's rates or taxes. For a full discussion upon these subjects the reader is referred to a text-book upon the law of rating.

The following cases bearing upon this subject might also be referred to: Waddle v. Sunderland Union, [1908] 1 K. B. 642; 72 J. P. 99; 38 Digest 565, 1031;

"Street."

"Street" (a) includes any highway [not being a turnpike road] (b), and any public bridge (not being a county bridge) (c), and any road lane footway square court alley or passage whether a thoroughfare or not (d):

(a) See as to the word "include," p. 687, note (a), ante.

As to the variation of meaning of the word "street" in different sections, see ante, p. 713. Even in London it is not confined to public highways (Barnes v. Cadogan Developments, Ltd., [1930] 1 Ch. 479; 142 L. T. 626; Digest Supp.).

in s. 26:

In s. 26, post, p. 4346, the word street is used to mean the roadway as distinguished from the roadway with the houses, and it is probably used in the sense assigned to it by the above definition.

in s. 149:

It has been expressly decided that street in s. 149, post, p. 4375, includes a country lane of which the herbage may be let. It is, therefore, used in its extended sense as here defined (Coverdale v. Charlton (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 376; on appeal, 4 Q. B. D. 104; 43 J. P. 268; 26 Digest 329, 616). And see to the same effect, Nutter v. Accrington L. B. of Health (1878), 4 Q. B. D. 375; 43 J. P. 635; 26 Digest 335, 660, decided on the corresponding section of Public Health Act, 1848. In Stillwell v. New Windsor Corporation, [1932] 2 Ch. 155; Digest Supp., it was held that trees planted on a public highway after dedication formed part of a "street" and were vested in the highway authority under this Act. In Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B., ante, p. 713, Lord SELBORNE said: "In s. 149 of this Act, and the sections which follow it, the word street manifestly has the same sense as when we speak of a man going out of his house into the street, or carriages passing along the street. There the public highway, whether footway or carriage-way, is alone intended, and the houses on either side are certainly not included in that case in the street. And I should be inclined myself to say that this would prima facie be the sense of the word street when it is used in a context which contains no indication of anything more."

in s. 150

S. 150, post, p. 4388, is the complement of s. 149, and it would seem that the word "street" as therein used has the same meaning. That the word means the roadway as distinguished from the road with the houses is clear, and the dictum of Lord SELBORNE, already quoted, applies to s. 150 as well as to s. 149. The cases have not consistently decided whether the word is used in its natural and ordinary sense of a roadway with houses on both sides, or in the wider meaning assigned to it by the definition. Maude v. Baildon L. B. (1883), 10 Q. B. D. 394; 47 J. P. 644; 26 Digest 269, 93, apparently decided that the word "street" is used in s. 150 in its natural sense as distinguished from its extended meaning. But in Portsmouth Corporation v. Smith (1883), 13 Q. B. D. 184; 48 J. P. 404; 26 Digest 274, 123, the Master of the Rolls questioned that decision, pointing out that it had proceeded upon a mistaken view in R. v. Dayman, post, p. 4338. And the court decided that the word "street" as used in s. 53 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 547) (which corresponds to s. 150 of this Act), had to be interpreted according to the definition, and, therefore, included a highway which was not a street in the ordinary sense. And in the case of Midland Rail. Co. v. Waton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 30; 59 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 267, 72, the court assumed that in s. 150 the word "street" was used as here defined. But all doubt on the subject is now removed by the decision of the Court of Appeal in Jowett v. Idle L. B. (1888), 57 L. T. 928; 36 W. R. 138; on appeal, 36 W. R. 530; 4 T. L. R. 442, C. A.; 26 Digest 270, 101; followed in Richards v. Kessick (1888), 52 J. P. 756; 57 L. J. M. C. 48; 26 Digest 271, 102; Fenwick v. Croydon R. S. A., [1891] 2 Q. B. 216; 55 J. P. 470; 26 Digest 271, 103; and Walhamston U. D. C. v. Sandell (1904), 68 J. P. 509; 2 L. G. R. 835; 26 Digest

271, 105. These cases decide that the word "street," as used in s. 150, means a street as above defined, and not merely a street in the ordinary sense. Where a local Act provided that every new street should be laid out at least thirty-six feet wide, a new road, eighteen feet wide, which had been sanctioned in the expectation that the adjoining owner would widen it to the full width, was held to be a street within the meaning of a section corresponding to s. 150 (West Harlepool Corporation v. Robinson (1897), 62 J. P. 35; 77 L. T. 387; 26 Digest 275, 133). In a case under a planning scheme which adopted this definition, a strip of land varying from thirteen to twenty feet wide and about 100 feet long, which led from a public highway to back land which it was proposed to develop, was held to be a street so that minimum requirements of the local authority could be applied to it (Cowan v. Hendon Borough Council, [1939] 3 All E. R. 366; 103 J. P. 285; Digest Supp.). A path in Epping Forest was held to be a street which, with the consent of the Epping Forest Conservators, might be made up under the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848 (Woodford U. D. C. v. Henwood (1899), 64 J. P. 148; 26 Digest 543, 2418). As to roadways belonging to railway companies, see cases in the note (b) to s. 150, post, p. 4390.

A "street" may be formed by adding, and dedicating to the public, a longitudinal strip of land alongside a highway. See Richards v. Kessick (1888), 52 J. P. 756; 57 L. J. M. C. 48; 26 Digest 271, 102; White v. Fulham Vestry (1896), 60 J. P. 327; 74 L. T. 425; 26 Digest 276, 142; Property Exchange, Limited v. Wandsworth Board of Works, [1902] 2 K. B. 61; 66 J. P. 435; 26 Digest 277, 143; Portsmouth Corporation v. Hall (1907), 71 J. P. 299; 97 L. T. 43; reversed on appeal on another point, 71 J. P. 564; 98 L. T. 513; 26 Digest 271, 106.

The word street in s. 156, post, p. 4432, is used in its ordinary sense, viz., a road with in s. 156: houses on each side. This was so held upon the corresponding words of Local Government Act, 1858 (Amendment) Act, 1861, s. 28 (R. v. Fullford (1864), 28 J. P. 357; 33 L. J. M. C. 122; 26 Digest 275, 130). And see Thomas v. Roberts (1878), 43 J. P. 574; 26 Digest 271, 107; and R. v. Platts (1880), 44 J. P. 765; 49 L. J. Q. B. 848; 26 Digest 275, 129, decided with reference to s. 66 of the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4203. S. 156, post, p. 4432, has been repealed by Public Health (Buildings in Streets) Act, 1888, post, p. 4777; but it was held in Att.-Gen. v. Laird, [1925] Ch. 318; 89 J. P. 95; 26 Digest 272, 112, that in order to be a street within the meaning of s. 3 of that Act, post, p. 4778, there must be a succession of houses and buildings at least on one side of it, with some degree of continuity and proximity so as to enable a court to find as a question of fact that a highway has become a "street" in the ordinary acceptance of that word. See also note (c) under ibid., s. 3, post, p. 4780.

The word street in s. 157, post, p. 4432, is used with reference to new streets. The in s. 157. section confers power to make byelaws with respect to the level, width and construction of new streets, and the doubt which has arisen as to whether the expression is to be interpreted according to its ordinary meaning or as above defined has given rise to some confusion. In Baker v. Portsmouth Corporation (1878), 3 Ex. D. 4, 157; 42 J. P. 278; 26 Digest 552, 2488, the court were of opinion that the power to make byelaws with respect to the construction of streets included a power to regulate by a byelaw the construction of buildings by the side of a street, e.g., to provide that no such building should be erected until the street had been constructed to the authority's approval; and this view was "assumed" to be right by LORD SELBORNE, for the purposes of the judgment of the House of Lords in Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 798; 48 J. P. 276; 26 Digest 269, 86. It was, however, not necessary for the House of Lords, which decided against the local authority on other grounds, to approve or disapprove this view, and it is a view never acted on in framing modern byelaws. For the control of buildings by byelaws, reliance is placed on the specific powers in that behalf. But whatever be the maximum content of the word "street," it is clear that the power to make "new street" byelaws is not limited to new "streets" in the ordinary and popular sense of that term, i.e., to new "ways" which have, or are intended in the immediate future to have, houses erected by the side or sides thereof; and it has been held that such byelaws apply to anything which is a street within the definition clause in this section and which is proposed to be laid out and constructed for the first time, e.g., a narrow path giving access to cottages at the far end, but not at present intended to have houses built by its side (Att.-Gen. v. Gibb, [1909] 2 Ch. 265; 73 J. P. 343; 26 Digest 271, 108). See also R. v. Goole L. B., [1891] 2 Q. B. 212; 55 J. P. 535; 26 Digest 270, 95, where it was held that the byelaws as to width of new streets applied to passages proposed to be laid out at the back of rows of new houses. In the model byelaws issued by the Local Government Board and from the Ministry of Health and probably in all series of local byelaws now in force, the practical difficulty caused by applying byelaws so widely has been met by limiting words.

Although it has been held in many cases that an old highway may become for certain purposes a new street by the mere erection of houses on one or both sides of it, whereby it becomes for the first time a street in the ordinary or popular sense (see, for example, Pound v. Plumstead Board of Works (1871), L. R. 7 Q. B. 183; 36 J. P. 468; 26 Digest 277, 152; Dryden v. Putney Overseers (1876), 1 Ex. D. 223; 40 J. P. 263; 26 Digest 278, 154; Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 798; 48 J. P. 276; 26 Digest 269, 86; Att.-Gen. v. Rufford, [1899] 1 Ch. 537; 63 J. P. 232; 26 Digest 278, 160; Clerkenwell Vestry v. Edmondson, [1902] 1 K. B. 336; 66 J. P. 324; 26 Digest 279, 161), yet the mere erection of houses does not amount to the laying out of such old highway as a new street within the meaning of byelaws using that phrase, for the laying out of a street involves some physical interference with or something done on the highway itself. Accordingly, it has been held that the mere erection of houses by the side of an old highway does not make it incumbent on the person building such houses to widen the highway to the width prescribed by the byelaws for the laying out of new streets. See Devonport Corporation v. Tozer, [1903] 1 Ch. 759; 67 J. P. 269; 26 Digest 558, 2523; Att.-Gen. v. Gibb, supra; Att.-Gen. v. Dorin, [1912] 1 Ch. 369; 76 J. P. 181; 26 Digest 557, 2517. These cases removed much of the practical difficulty which had been felt as to the precise point of time at which an old highway became a new street so as to involve an obligation to widen it. Now, however, by s. 30, P. H. A., 1925, Vol. V., post, where it appears to a local authority that the whole or any portion of an existing highway will be converted into a new street as a consequence of building operations which have been or are likely to be undertaken in the vicinity, they may by order declare such highway or a portion thereof to be a new street for the purposes of the byelaws relating to new streets, and thereupon any person building upon land abutting on or adjoining the highway or portion is to be deemed to be laying out a new street. Reference should be made to the notes to that section for an explanation of the effect of the provision. Much of the confusion which formerly existed on this subject rose from the cases decided under the Metropolis Management Acts, for under those statutes the liability of frontagers to pay paving expenses depends upon whether a way, new or old, has become a new street by the erection of buildings in it to such an extent as to give it for the first time the character of a street in the ordinary sense, and this was of course a question of fact in every case. The following metropolitan cases on this subject may be referred to: R. v. Dayman (1857), 7 E. & B. 672; 26 Digest 275, 134; R. v. Islington Vestry (1858), E. B. & E. 743; 26 Digest 515, 2186; R. v. Fulford (1864), 28 J. P. 357; 33 L. J. M. C. 122; 26 Digest 275, 130; Dodd v. St. Pancras Vestry (1869), 34 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 494, 2034; North London Rail. Co. v. Islington Vestry (1872), 37 J. P. 341; 26 Digest 276, 138; Islington Vestry v. Barrett (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 278; 38 J. P. 198; 26 Digest 276, 139; Bowles v. Islington Vestry (1875), 39 J. P. N. 757; R. v. Shiel (1884), 49 J. P. 68; 50 L. T. 590; 26 Digest 275, 136; Wilson v. Camberwell Vestry, [1892] 1 Q. B. 1; 56 J. P. 167; 26 Digest 276, 141; Camberwell Vestry v. Crystal Palace Co., [1892] 2 Q. B. 33; 57 J. P. 5; 26 Digest 278, 153; Davies v. Greenwich Board of Works, [1895] 2 Q. B. 219; 59 J. P. 517; 26 Digest 278, 158; White v. Fulham Vestry (1896), 60 J. P. 327; 74 L. T. 425; 26 Digest 276, 152; Battersea Vestry v. Palmer, [1897] 1 Q. B. 220; 60 J. P. 774; 26 Digest 275, 137; Arter v. Hammersmith Vestry, [1897] 1 Q. B. 646; 61 J. P. 279; 26 Digest 277, 146; Crosse v. Wandsworth Vestry (1898), 62 J. P. 807; 79 L. T. 351; 26 Digest 277, 150; Allen v. Fulham Vestry, [1899] 1 Q. B. 681; 63 J. P. 212; 26 Digest 278, 155; Simmonds v. Fulham Vestry, [1900] 2 Q. B. 188; 64 J. P. 548; 26 Digest 279, 163; Property Exchange, Ltd. v. Wandsworth Board of Works, [1902] 2 K. B. 61; 66 J. P. 435; 26 Digest 277, 143; Att.-Gen. v. Woolwich Corp. (1929), 93 J. P. 173; 27 L. G. R. 700; Digest Supp.

In addition to the metropolitan cases above mentioned there are other cases which have arisen outside the metropolis and decide that it is a question of fact whether a place has become a "new street." See, for example, Robinson v. Barton-Eccles L. B. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 798; 48 J. P. 276; 26 Digest 269, 86; Fellowes v. Sedgley U. D. C. (1906), 70 J. P. 412; 4 L. G. R. 970; 26 Digest 557, 2522; Greenwood v. Queensbury U. D. C. (1906), 3 Architects L. R. 145; Att.-Gen. v. Dorin, [1912] 1 Ch. 369; 76 J. P. 181; 26 Digest 557, 2517. But, of course, the question of fact can only arise after it has been determined in what sense the word "street" has been used in the particular section under consideration. See Eccles v. Wirral R. S. A. (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 107; 50 J. P. 596; 26 Digest 534, 2336. And it is to be observed that the court will always inquire whether there has been any evidence to justify the finding of justices on the facts. See Williams v. Powning (1883), 47 J. P. 486; 48 L. T. 672; 26 Digest 557, 2518; Midland Rail. Co. v. Watton (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 30; 50 J. P. 405; 26 Digest 267, 72.

In Tarrant v. Woking U. D. C., [1914] 3 K. B. 796; 79 J. P. 22; 26 Digest 555, 2503, a street had been constructed in three portions in 1905, in 1910, and 1911 respectively and in conformance with byelaws stipulating the widths of the carriage-way and footway. The whole when completed formed one road and terminated at each end in a public highway, and this caused it to be used as a short cut for traffic. To prevent this, in 1913, the owner at the request of the residents erected piers and gates, thus reducing the clear widths in the portion completed in 1905, whereupon the respondents obtained a conviction for infringement of the byelaws regulating widths of carriageway and footway. It was held that the conviction was wrong, that when once the construction of a new street has been completed no offence against the relevant byelaw is committed by a subsequent diminution of the width below the required minimum.

Whether a piece of ground by the side of a street forms part of it or not is a question of fact (Bell & Sons v. Great Crosby U. D. C. (1912), 77 J. P. 37; 26 Digest street, 540, 2586; Le Neve v. Mile End Old Town Vestry, infra).

As to the use of the word "street" in incorporated enactments, see ante, p. 714.

Newman v. Baker (1860), 8 C. B. (N.S.) 200, decided upon the Metropolitan Building Act, 1855, may be referred to, but it throws little, if any, light on the construction of the text. Metropolitan Board of Works v. Nathan (1885), 50 J. P. 502; 54 L. T. 423; 26 Digest 273, 121, decided with reference to the same Act, "Street" in shows that there may be a place with houses on both sides, which is, nevertheless metropolitan not laid out as a street within the meaning of that Act. In that case artisans' dwellings had been erected opening into an approach 100 feet long and sixteen feet wide, entered from a public street through a gateway ten feet wide, over which one of the buildings was carried. A roadway had previously existed on the site, with warehouses abutting thereon, and the gateway included the site of a former gateway which had been pulled down and altered to a greater width. The approach did not afford communication with any other public street, and was for the sole use and convenience of the tenants of the dwelling, to the exclusion of the public, no right of way having ever been dedicated to the public. It was held that the approach had not been laid out "as a street for foot traffic only." See also Daw v. London C. C. (1890), 54 J. P. 502; 59 L. J. M. C. 112; 26 Digest 512, 2166; London C. C. v. Davis (1895); 59 J. P. 583; 64 L. J. M. C. 212; 26 Digest 273, 122. All these decisions were considered, and Wood v. London C. C. (1895); 59 J. P. 615; 64 L. J. M. C. 276; 26 Digest 273, 123, was overruled, in Armstrong v. London C. C., [1900] 1 Q. B. 416; 64 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 274, 124. In that case the appellant commenced to erect buildings on a piece of land belonging to him. According to the plan the buildings were to consist of blocks of flats erected in a quadrangle form with an ornamental garden in the centre of the quadrangle formed by the blocks. The approach was to be by means of a carriageway running round the garden. Upon each side of the carriageway blocks were to be erected. Each of the blocks was to have a separate entrance from the carriageway. The appellant did not propose to dedicate any public right of way over the land to the use of the public, but intended to erect gates at the entrance to the approach, and to keep a porter there to open the gates when necessary to allow persons going to and from the flats to pass, and the carriageway was to be for the use of the tenants of the flats and of persons visiting them. It was held that the appellant had commenced to lay out or form a street within the meaning of the similar definition in the London Building Act, 1894 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 1123). The decision in Armstrong v. London C. C., supra,

Note to
Section 4.

was followed and applied in London C. C. v. Davis (1904), 68 J. P. 520; 91 L. T. 555; 26 Digest 274, 125. See also Cowan v. Hendon Borough Council, [1939] 3 All E. R. 366; 103 J. P. 285; Digest Supp.

The word street as used in the Metropolis Management Acts is defined in words identical with those in the text. For a case in which the term was interpreted with reference to the definition, see St. John's, Hampstead, Vestry v. Hooper (1885), 15 Q. B. D. 652; 49 J. P. 741; 26 Digest 273, 118; and see St. John's, Hampstead, Vestry v. Cotton (1886), 12 App. Cas. 1; 51 J. P. 340; 26 Digest 273, 117.

A space of ground from thirty-three to fifty-eight feet wide between the footway and the carriageway, which had always been used by the inhabitants of the houses facing it for placing carriages on and the like, paying a small rent for such user to the owner of the soil, but which had always been used by the public for passage, subject only to the user by the inhabitants of the houses, was held not to be part of a street, having been only partially dedicated to the public (Le Neve v. Mile End Old Town Vestry (1858), 8 El. & Bl. 1054; 22 J. P. 657; 26 Digest 443, 1594).

Turnpikes

(b) The words "not being a turnpike road" were repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1898 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1173), turnpikes being obsolete.

Bridges.

(c) See Arnell v. London and North-Western Rail. Co. (1852), 12 C. B. 697; Arnell v. Regent's Canal Co. (1854), 14 C. B. 564; 26 Digest 571, 2628, as to how far a canal bridge was brought within the terms of a local paving Act. When a street passes over a canal by a bridge, the bridge may, for some purposes, be deemed to be a street (per WIGHTMAN, J., in Beaver v. Manchester Corporation (1857), 26 L. J. Q. B. 311; 26 Digest 571, 2629). When a street is carried over a railway by means of a bridge, it is only the street, and not the bridge itself, which vests in the local authority under s. 149, post, p. 4375 (G. E. Rail. Co. v. Hackney District Board of Works (per Lord Watson) (1883), 8 App. Cas. 687; 48 J. P. 52; 26 Digest 494, 2032).

Where, however, in the development of a building estate, streets are carried over bridges constructed by the estate company and in consequence of a declaration under s. 152, post, p. 4432, the streets become highways repairable by the inhabitants at large and consequently vested in the local authority, the bridges also become vested in the local authority under s. 149, post, p. 4375, and the liability to repair the fabric of the bridges falls upon the local authority (Att.-Gen. v. Hornsey B. C., [1927] 1 Ch. 331; 91 J. P. 61; Digest Supp.). In this case the G. E. Rail. Co. Case, supra, was distinguished on the ground that the rights and liabilities in respect of the bridge in that case were controlled by the Railways Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 30). The criterion was laid down by ROMER, J., at p. 337, in the following words: "Where a roadway runs across a bridge spanning a river and the urban authority . . . have no means of compelling any other party to keep the bridge in repair, the bridge must vest in the authority to such an extent as is necessary to enable them to keep the bridge in repair and so maintain the street as a highway for public use."

In Regent's Canal and Docks Co. v. Gibbons, [1925] 1 K. B. 81; 89 J. P. 4; 26 Digest 579, 2696, it was held that where a street carried over a canal by a bridge constructed by an estate owner in the development of his estate had been taken over by a local authority under s. 152, post, p. 4432, the bridge had been taken over as part of the street within the meaning of a covenant by the owner to repair the bridge until taken over by the local authority. But, SWIFT, J., in his judgment expressly refrained from deciding whether the liability to repair had fallen upon the local authority.

Where a local Act of 1791 substituted a bridge for a ferry and vested in the bridge company the soil of the approaches to the ferry, it was held that, notwithstanding the right of the company to charge tolls, owners of land adjoining an approach were entitled to free access to such land over the approach since the approaches had formed part of the old highway (East Riding, Yorkshire, C. C. v. Selby Bridge Proprietors, [1925] Ch. 841; 133 L. T. 628; 26 Digest 571, 2630). But where a bridge was erected and maintained by purchasers under covenant in their conveyance, the vendor's successors in title were held not to be entitled to use the bridge for laying of pipes and cables for the supply of water, gas or electricity, or anything of a permanent nature which must necessarily be maintained (Metropolitan Water Board v. Watkins, [1937] 1 All E. R. 489; Digest Supp.).

By the Bridges Act, 1929, Vol. V., post, provision is made for the maintenance, improvement, reconstruction and transfer of bridges carrying public carriage roads by agreement between highway authorities and the owners of such bridges or under orders made by the Minister of Transport.

Note to Section 4.

A county bridge is one the duty of repairing which is cast by law on the inhabitants of the county at large. This duty extends to every public bridge erected before 1803, unless it is transferred to some persons or person or corporation by custom, prescription, or tenure of land. See hereon Att.-Gen. and Doncaster Rural District Council v. West Riding of Yorkshire C. C. (1903), 67 J. P. 173; 26 Digest 572, 2638. Bridges built since 1803 are not repairable by the county unless they have been erected in compliance with Bridges Act, 1803, s. 5 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 255), or have been declared to be so repairable pursuant to Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 21 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 175).

In the L. G. A., 1929, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883, the expression "county bridge" includes any bridge which a county council are liable to repair except a bridge which they are liable to repair only by reason of the facts that the bridge is repairable by the inhabitants at large and that the road carried by the bridge is for the time being a county road (ibid., s. 134; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971).

As to culs-de-sac, see ante, p. 714, and as to dedication, see ante, p. 715.

"The Act expressly calls places streets whether they are public property or private property, and whether the public have any rights over them or have no rights over them" (per JESSEL, M.R., in Taylor v. Oldham Corporation (1876), 4 Ch. D., at p. 407; 26 Digest 270, 96). And see Midland Rail. Co. v. Waton, ante, p. 713; Hill v. Wallasey L. B., cited in notes to s. 279 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 569; Armstrong v. London C. C., [1900] 1 Q. B. 416; 64 J. P. 197; 26 Digest 274, 124.

"House" includes schools, also factories and other buildings in which "House." more than twenty persons are employed at one time :

The words in italics were repealed by Factory and Workshop Act, 1878, s. 107, Sched. 6. How far this term is extended to any house remains for judicial decision. It is not to be read into s. 42 of this Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 643) now repealed and replaced by P. H. A., 1936, s. 72, ante, p. 251, and therefore a steam laundry, although containing a dwelling-house for the manageress and for the clerk in charge, is not a "house" for the purpose of the removal of "house refuse," under that section (per CHARLES, J., in London and Provincial Laundry Co. v. Willesden L. B., [1892] 2 Q. B. 271; 56 J. P. 696; 38 Digest 235, 648).

There is no definition of a "house" here, but only an extension of the term. "House" Reference, therefore, may be made to the cases upon the parliamentary and municipal franchises, and upon settlement under the Poor Law, for illustration of the word "house." Primâ facie a house means a dwelling-house (Surman v. Darley (1845), 14 M. & W. 181; 9 J. P. 792; 19 Digest 523, 3846); or a building calculated to be used as such (Nunn v. Denton (1844), 8 Scott, N. R. 794; 9 J. P. 71; Daniel v. Coulsting (1845), 8 Scott, N. R. 949; 9 J. P. 136; 20 Digest 16, 83); but the above interpretation extends the signification, and it is presumed that the term would signify any building in which persons are employed. It has been decided that it is a question of fact whether particular premises are a "house" within s. 62 of this Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 651) (now repealed). See Wootton v. Bishop (1907), 71 J. P. 334; 96 L. T. 705; 43 Digest 1058, 1. In B. Aerodrome, Ltd. v. Dell, [1917] 2 K. B. 380; sub nom. Brighton-Shoreham Aerodrome, Ltd. v. Dell, 81 J. P. 205; 44 Digest 83, 644, it was held that, under a Sea Defence Order, aeroplane hangars were "houses" within the meaning of the Order.

Buildings used as places of business, in which no one slept, and which were Business originally occupied as dwelling-houses and had been converted into business premises, premises, and which were capable, with slight internal alterations, of being fitted for use as dwelling-houses, were held to be "houses" within the meaning of a local Act (Lewin v. End, [1906] A. C. 299; 70 J. P. 268; 19 Digest 523, 3848; see also Lewin v. Neunes, Ltd. (1904), 68 J. P. 164; 90 L. T. 160; 19 Digest 523, 3847).

Note to Section 4.

Day school

Churches and chapels.

A day school where there were no boarders and where none of the members of the staff resided, and in which only two maidservants dwelt, was held to be a house within s. 91 (5) of this Act (13 Halsbury's Statutes 661) (now repealed) (Wimbledon U. D. C. v. Hastings (1902), 67 J. P. 45; 87 L. T. 118; 36 Digest 179, 245).

A church was held not to be a house in Angell v. Paddington Vestry (1868), L. R. 3 Q. B. 714; 32 J. P. 742; 26 Digest 491, 2014. But this case had reference to the section of the Metropolis Management Amendment Act, 1862 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 965), which renders the owner of a house liable for the expenses of paving, etc. A church may be a house within the meaning of a local Act prescribing a building line (per MALINS, V.-C., in Folkestone Corporation v. Woodward (1872), L. R. 15 Eq. 159; 37 J. P. 324; 26 Digest 564, 2590). A dissenting chapel was held to be a house within the meaning of the Metropolis Management Acts (Caiger v. St. Mary, Islington, Vestry (1881), 45 J. P. 570; 50 L. J. M. C. 59; 26 Digest 491, 2017). The ground of this decision was that the chapel had not been consecrated, and thus dedicated to permanent and unalterable uses. This decision was followed in Wright v. Ingle (1885), 16 Q. B. D. 379; 50 J. P. 436; 26 Digest 491, 2018. There it was held that the word "house" includes every building which is capable of being used as a human habitation. If a building, which is physically capable of being so used, is prevented, either by common law or by statute, from ever being put to such a use, it is exempted from the liability to contribute to the expense of paving a street in the metropolis. Thus, a consecrated church of the Established Church of England is exempted, because, by reason of its consecration, it becomes, by the common law, for ever incapable of being used as a habitation for man. But a leasehold chapel, vested in trustees, in trust to permit it to be used as a place of religious worship for Wesleyans, is a house, because, by the consent of the landlord, the trustees, and the cestuis que trustent, the trust may at any moment be put an end to. And see the note to the definition of the expression "owner," ante, p. 705.

Toll-house.

The word "house" under the P. H. A., 1848, was held to apply to a toll-house on a turnpike road (Tunstall Turnpike Roads (Trustees of) v. Lowndes (1856), 20 J. P. 374).

Whether "house" includes yard, garden or curtilage

In Hole v. Commissioners of Milton (1867), 31 J. P. 804, it was held that buildings and yards used for purposes of business did not come within the description of "house" (for the purposes of a rate made under a local Improvement Act), unless they were also within the curtilage of the house; but that gardens or orchards, subordinate to the occupation of the house as a residence, and occupied with the house as ancillary thereto, were so included within the word "house." Therefore, a mill which opened into a yard adjoining a house, and which had internal communication with the outbuilding and house, was held to be part of the house and properly included in the rates.

A publichouse was bounded on one side by a street, and in front by a vacant piece of ground not fenced off from the street, and separated from the house only by a narrow foot pavement also without fence, which was ordinarily used by the public as a thoroughfare, though sometimes closed. The piece of land had been treated as passing to the lessee by every demise of the publichouse since 1802; it was used by customers of the publichouse, and it furnished the only means of approach for vehicles to the front of the house. It was held that the piece of land came within the definition of a curtilage, and was part of the house within the meaning of the Lands Clauses Act, 1845, s. 92, ante, p. 4139 (Marson v. L. C. & D. Rail Co. (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 101; 32 J. P. 565; following Lord Grosvenor v. Hampstead Junction Rail. Co. (1857), 1 De G. & J. 446; 21 J. P. 547; 11 Digest 180, 574). See also, as to the meaning of the word "curtilage," Asquith v. Griffin (1884), 48 J. P. 724; 39 Digest 247, 303; Pilbrow v. St. Leonard, Shoreditch (Vestry), [1895] 1 Q. B. 433; 59 J. P. 68; 41 Digest 11, 80; St. Martin-in-the-Fields (Vestry) v. Bird, [1895] 1 Q. B. 428; 60 J. P. 52; 41 Digest 11, 81; Harris v. Scurfield (1904), 68 J. P. 516; 41 Digest 3, 7; and Brass v. London C. C., [1904] 2 K. B. 336; 68 J. P. 365; 24 Digest 898, 8.

In Wright v. Wallasey L. B. (1887), 18 Q. B. D. 783; 52 J. P. 4; 7 Digest 549, 273, it was held that the word "house" in s. 10 of the Cemeteries Clauses Act, 1847, ante, p. 4213, did not include the curtilage.

"Dwelling-house."

In R. v. Warwickshire JJ. (1851), 17 L. T. (o. s.) 183, a coach-house and stables adjoining, and occupied with a dwelling-house, and forming part of the same premises, were held to be part of the "house" within the meaning of a local Paving Act.

Note to
Section 4.

As to the word "building" generally, see ante, pp. 689—691.

As to what is a "new building," see the notes to s. 157, post, p. 4432.

Where a bedroom had been erected in place of a conservatory, the external wall of the house having been raised for the purpose, and the justices upon a summons for making an "addition to an existing building" without complying with certain byelaws, held that there was no addition to an existing building on the ground that the bedroom occupied no more space than the conservatory did, the court sent back the case to the justices, holding that this fact was not, per se, conclusive (Meadows v. Taylor (1890), 24 Q. B. D. 717; 54 J. P. 757; 38 Digest 184, 240).

"New building."
"Addition to" a building.

"Drain" means any drain of and used for the drainage of one building only, or premises within the same curtilage, and made merely for the purpose of communicating therefrom with a cesspool or other like receptacle for drainage, or with a sewer into which the drainage of two or more buildings or premises occupied by different persons is conveyed:

As to the effect of the word "means," see ante, p. 687.

There may be instances of drains not comprehended within this definition as where there is a direct communication from a house to a river or canal or the sea.

"Sewer" includes sewers and drains of every description, except drains to which the word "drain" interpreted as aforesaid applies, and except drains vested in or under the control of any authority having the management of roads and not being a local authority under this Act.

As to the word "includes," see ante, p. 687.

"Slaughter-house" includes the buildings and places commonly called slaughter-houses and knackers' yards, and any building or place used for slaughtering cattle horses or animals of any description for sale:

See notes, ante, p. 1392.

"Water company" means any persons or body of persons corporate or unincorporate supplying or who may hereafter supply water for his or their own profit:

These words are substituted for the words waterworks company in the previous Acts. The undertaking of a waterworks company was transferred by statute to a borough. The profits of the waterworks were under a subsequent statute to be transferred to the borough improvement fund, or, at the option of the corporation, to be applied in reducing the price of water to consumers. It was held that the corporation were supplying water for "their own profit" within the meaning of the above definition (Wolverhampton (Corporation of) v. Bilston (Commissioners of), [1891] 1 Ch. 315; 43 Digest 1059, 16). The point was not argued on appeal (7 T. L. R. 374).

"Waterworks" includes streams springs wells pumps reservoirs cisterns tanks aqueducts cuts sluices mains pipes culverts engines and all machinery lands buildings and things for supplying or used for supplying water, also the stock in trade of any water company

"Waterworks."

Note to
Section 4.

Water percolating through the ground in no defined or visible channel is not a "stream" (M'Nab v. Robertson, [1897] A. C. 129; 61 J. P. 468; 19 Digest 146, 1001).

As to what constitutes a "main" pipe, see Whittington Gas Co. v. Chesterfield Gas and Water Board, on p. 367, ante.

"Bakehouse
Regulation
Act."

"Bakehouse Regulation Act" means the Bakehouse Regulation Act, 1863 :

This Act was repealed by the Factory and Workshop Act, 1878. The latter statute contained provisions which in effect took away the control of bakehouses from local authorities and vested it in the factory inspectors, but it was repealed in turn by the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 517), and the provisions as to retail bakehouses which are enforceable by local authorities are now contained in the Factories Act, 1837, s. 54 (see ante, p. 1506).

"Artizans and Labourers Dwellings
Act."

"Artizans and Labourers Dwellings Act" means the Artizans and Labourers Dwellings Act, 1868 :

This Act, with many other subsequent statutes relating to artizan's dwellings, was repealed and re-enacted, with amendments, by the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890, which itself, so far as it relates to England, together with the numerous Acts amending it, has been repealed and re-enacted in the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1583.

"Baths and Wash-houses
Acts."

"Baths and Wash-houses Acts" means the Baths and Wash-houses Act, 1846, and the Baths and Wash-houses Act, 1847 :

These Acts no longer exist; see ante, p. 1193.

"Labouring Classes
Lodging Houses Acts."

"Labouring Classes Lodging Houses Acts" means the Labouring Classes Lodging Houses Act, 1851, the Labouring Classes Dwelling Houses Act, 1866, and the Labouring Classes Dwelling Houses Act, 1867 :

These Acts were repealed and re-enacted by the Housing of the Working Classes Act, 1890, which itself, so far as relates to England, together with the numerous Acts amending it, has been repealed and re-enacted in the Housing Act, 1936, ante, p. 1583.

"Sanitary Acts."

"Sanitary Acts" means all the above-mentioned Acts and the Acts mentioned in Part I. of Schedule V. to this Act.

Schedule V., Part I., post, p. 4526 (now repealed by the S. L. R. A., 1893) (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1013), contains a list of repealed enactments, and has the following note appended to it: "Of the above Acts the following (namely), 'The Public Health Act, 1848,' and 'The Local Government Act, 1858,' and 'The Local Government Act (1858) Amendment Act, 1861,' and 'The Local Government Act Amendment Act, 1863,' are in the Act referred to as 'The Local Government Acts'"; such definition ought obviously to have been inserted in this section.

"The Local Government
Acts."

"Sanitary purposes."

"Sanitary purposes" means any object or purposes of the Sanitary Acts :

"And of this Act," seeing that the objects and purposes of the Sanitary Acts are the same as those of this Act. The definition, being so wide, includes matters which have no direct connection with sanitation, e.g., public lighting, the provision of new streets, recreation grounds and clocks.

"Court of quarter sessions" means the court of general or quarter sessions of the peace having jurisdiction over the whole or any part of the district or place in which the matter requiring the cognizance of general or quarter sessions arises : Section 4.
—"Court of quarter sessions."

The Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 13 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 996), provides that in every Act, whether passed before or after the commencement of that Act, the expression "Court of quarter sessions" shall mean the justices of any county, riding, parts, division, or liberty of a county, or of any county of a city, or county of a town, in general or quarter sessions assembled, and shall include the recorder of a municipal borough having a separate court of quarter sessions. This definition does not, however, supersede the text.

The words "or any part of the matter, as the case may be," which were in the P. H. A., 1848, s. 82, are omitted. Hence, though the district may be situated partly in the jurisdiction of one court of quarter sessions and partly in that of another, it is assumed that the matter in question will arise in one of them only. But if the matter does not arise in one of them only, both courts of quarter sessions would have jurisdiction, and consequently either. The meaning of the definition appears to be that the jurisdiction of a court of quarter sessions over any matter arising within its local limits is not to be affected by the fact that the sanitary district in which it arises is situate in part only within such limits. But it does not give to a court of quarter sessions jurisdiction over a matter not arising within its local limits, merely because the district in which the matter arises extends into such limits.

"Court of summary jurisdiction" means any justice or justices of the peace, stipendiary, or other magistrate or officer, by whatever name called, to whom jurisdiction is given by the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, or any Acts therein referred to : "Court of summary jurisdiction."

This definition and the next were repealed by the S. L. R. (No. 2) A., 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1014). It is practically the same definition as that which was contained in the S. J. A., 1879, s. 50. In R. v. Price (1880), 5 Q. B. D. 300 ; 44 J. P. 248 ; 18 Digest 398, 1392, it was held that the Summary Jurisdiction Acts regulated the procedure only in cases where justices were sitting and acting judicially as a court of summary jurisdiction, and not in cases where their duties were ministerial only. But by the S. J. A., 1884, s. 7, it was provided that s. 50 of the S. J. A., 1879, should include such justice, justices, or magistrates as therein mentioned, whether acting under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts, or any of them, or under any other Act, or by virtue of his or their commission, or, by the common law.

"Summary Jurisdiction Acts" means the Act of the session of the eleventh and twelfth years of the reign of her present Majesty, chapter forty-three, intituled "An Act to facilitate the performance of the duties of justices of the peace out of sessions within England and Wales with respect to summary convictions and orders," and any Act amending the same. "Summary Jurisdiction Acts."

The Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 13 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 996), superseding the text, provides that in every Act, whether passed before or after the commencement of that Act, the expression "Summary Jurisdiction Acts" shall mean the S. J. A., 1848 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 270), and the S. J. A., 1879 (op. cit. 323), and any Act, past or future, amending those Acts or either of them. The amending Acts are the S. J. (Process) A., 1881 (op. cit. 352) ; the S. J. A., 1884 (op. cit. 355) ; the S. J. A., 1899 (op. cit. 363) ; the Criminal Justice Administration Act, 1914, see Fourth Schedule, Extent of Repeals, the Criminal Justice Act, 1925 (op. cit. 395), and the other Acts detailed, ante, at p. 614.

PART III.

SANITARY PROVISIONS.

SEWERAGE AND DRAINAGE.

Regulations as to Sewers and Drains.

* * * * *

Penalty on unauthorised building over sewers and under streets in urban district.

26. Any person who in any urban district (a), without the written consent of the urban authority (b)—

. . . (c).

(2) Causes any vault arch or cellar to be newly built or constructed under the carriageway of any street (d), shall forfeit to the urban authority the sum of five pounds and a further sum of forty shillings for every day during which the offense is continued after written notice in this behalf from the urban authority (e); and the urban authority may cause any . . . (c) vault arch or cellar erected or constructed in contravention of this section to be altered pulled down or otherwise dealt with as they may think fit (f), and may recover in a summary manner (g) any expenses (h) incurred by them in doing so from the offender.

consent.

(a) This section is amongst those which were applied to rural district councils by the Rural District Councils (Urban Powers) Order, 1931 (S. R. & O. 1931, No. 580), ante, p. 3267. By Art. 3, proviso (c), of that Order, a rural district council must obtain the consent of the county council before legal proceedings are commenced by them in respect of the building or construction under the carriageway of any county road of any vault, arch, or cellar in contravention of this section as amended.

(b) There is no special mode of giving this consent, as in the former Act. It may be expressed in a letter from the clerk to the council. The consent ought to be entered on the council's minutes, and a copy of the minute forwarded to the applicant. For a form, see Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., at p. 339. In some cases it will take the form of an agreement: see forms in Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., at pp. 340, 344.

(c) A former paragraph prohibiting unauthorised building over sewers was repealed and a new provision substituted by s. 25 of the P. H. A., 1936, ante, p. 75.

Vaults under roadway of street.

(d) See the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4336. This prohibition is introduced here because such vault or cellar might interfere with the course of a sewer hereafter to be made. It refers to the carriageway only, and has no reference to the foot-path. As to the repair of vaults, arches, and cellars under streets in districts where the P. H. A. A. A., 1890, has been adopted, see s. 35 of that Act, post, p. 4812.

Recovery of forfeiture.

(e) Forfeitures are recovered by process described in s. 251, post, p. 4481. A forfeiture under this section is recoverable as a penalty, for it will be observed that the section speaks of the offence. The proceedings are, therefore, in their nature criminal, and the forfeitures must be recovered on information. The procedure, therefore, differs from that for the recovery of expenses which are recoverable upon complaints, and are civil debts within ss. 6 and 35 of the S. J. A., 1879 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 325, 342). This distinction did not exist at the time of the passing of the Act; the procedure was then the same in both cases (cf. ante, p. 614). If, therefore, the penalty is proceeded for, the proceedings must be begun by information; if the expenses, by complaint under the sections just mentioned. It is to be presumed that if the works have occasioned damage to the carriageway, the authority can maintain an action in respect of such damage; and, moreover, that they may obtain an injunction to stay the works of any person before completion, so as to prevent damage which the penalty would be inadequate to repair.

The five pounds is recoverable in any case, the forty shillings only after notice. A form of notice for use under this section will be found in Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. XII., p. 338.

(f) In removing the structure the authority must not interfere with anything not forming part of it, e.g., pipes or wires laid in the subsoil (Walker U. D. C. v. Wigham (1901), 66 J. P. 152; 85 L. T. 579; 26 Digest 566, 2598). Removal of structures.

(g) See s. 251, post, p. 4481, and note (e), supra. These expenses are recoverable on complaint, and constitute a civil debt under the S. J. A., 1879 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 323), for although the section speaks of them as recoverable from the offender, they are not in the nature of penalties for the offence, which are provided for by the previous part of the section. Recovery of expenses.

(h) In cases where expenses are not recovered and accordingly fall on the council, in the case of a rural district council, the R. D. C.s (Urban Powers) Order, 1931, Art. 5, provides that subject to the provisions of that order and to the power of the Minister under any enactment to determine in any particular case expenses of a rural district council to be special expenses, the expenses incurred by a rural district council in the execution of (inter alia) this section shall be defrayed as general expenses.

WATER SUPPLY.

Provisions for Protection of Water.

68. Any person (a) engaged in the manufacture of gas who (b) :

- (1) Causes or suffers to be brought or to flow into any stream reservoir aqueduct pond or place for water, or into any drain or pipe communicating therewith, any washing or other substance produced in making or supplying gas; or Penalty for causing water to be corrupted by gas washings
- (2) Wilfully does any act connected with the making or supplying of gas whereby the water in any such stream reservoir aqueduct pond or place for water is fouled, shall forfeit for every such offence the sum of two hundred pounds, and, after the expiration of twenty-four hours notice (c) from the local authority or the person to whom the water belongs in that behalf, a further sum of twenty pounds for every day during which the offence is continued (d) or during the continuance of the act whereby the water is fouled.

Every such penalty may be recovered, with full costs of suit, in any of the superior courts, in the case of water belonging to or under the control of the local authority by the local authority, and in any other case by the person into whose water such washing or other substance is conveyed or flows or whose water is fouled by any such act as aforesaid, or in default of proceedings by such person, after notice to him from the local authority of their intention to proceed for such penalty, by the local authority (e); but such penalty shall not be recoverable unless it be sued for during the continuance of the offence, or within six months after it has ceased (f).

Note to Section 68.

Duty of gas manufacturer an absolute duty.

(a) This word, according to the definition in s. 4, ante, p. 4334, includes any body of persons corporate or unincorporate.

(b) A private Act incorporating a gas company, and empowering them to make the necessary works, provided (s. 160, post, p. 4443), that if the company should at any time "cause or suffer to be conveyed or to flow" into any stream, etc., or place for water within the limits of the Act, any washing produced in making gas, or do any act to the water contained in any such stream, etc., or place for water, whereby the water therein should be fouled or corrupted, the company should forfeit for every such offence £200. S. 161, post, p. 4445, imposed an additional penalty of £20 per day for the continuance of such pollution more than twenty-four hours after notice. S. 165, post, p. 4457, made the company liable to a penalty if any water was polluted by the escape of gas. The site for the gas tank was selected by an experienced engineer, and the company built it in a proper manner, and with all ordinary care and prudence. They knew that mines had been worked in the neighbourhood, but did not know that any mines had been worked under their own lands. After some years the gas tank cracked, and the washings produced in the making of gas escaped and percolating underground polluted the water in the plaintiff's well. The company then found on inquiry that mines had been worked by strangers under part of their land close up to the tank. The crack in the tank was caused by subsidence of the soil, owing, in all probability, to the mining operations:—Held, by the Exchequer Chamber, that the company were liable under s. 160, post, p. 4443, to the penalty of £200 for polluting the plaintiff's water by the gas washings (Hipkins v. Birmingham and Staffordshire Gas Light Co. (1860), 6 H. & N. 250; 24 J. P. 438; 25 Digest 485, 90).

When noxious matter percolated through the soil from gasworks so as to foul a well, such percolation was held to render a company liable under the similar provisions of Lighting and Watching Act, 1833 (8 Halsbury's Statutes 1186). A well which, on account of its having become contaminated, had been disused by the owners for several years, and had been covered over, was held to be still a well within the meaning of the Act. Non-user, and the closing of his own well in consequence of its being polluted, even coupled with acceptance by the plaintiff of the use of wells substituted by the defendants, was held not to be such an abandonment of the former as to alter its character and make it no longer a well, nor could any licence to pollute it be inferred from such a state of facts. Quære, per KEATING, J., whether a man could by deed give an irrevocable licence to pollute a well. A prescription to foul a well will be defeated by variation and excess in the degree of fouling during the prescribed period (Millington v. Griffiths (1874), 30 L. T. 65; 25 Digest 488, 101). In the above case it is assumed that a well is a "place for water."

As to the meaning of the word "causes," see Moses v. Midland Rail. Co. (1915), 79 J. P. 367; 113 L. T. 451; 25 Digest 48, 437, which was a decision under s. 5 of the Salmon Fishery Act, 1861.

Apart from statutory provision it appears that pollution of a river by gas washings is a nuisance at common law for which an indictment will lie. See R. v. Medley (1834), 6 C. & P. 292; 25 Digest 485, 89, and Herring v. Lincoln Corporation (1920), 42 M. C. C. 41.

As to the measure of damages in an action for prejudicial interference with fishing rights by the discharge of effluent from a gasworks, see Granby (Marquis) v. Bakewell U. D. C. (1923), 87 J. P. 105; 21 L. G. R. 329; 36 Digest 221, 630.

Similar statutory provisions.

It is to be observed that the Gasworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 21, ante, p. 4170, contains provisions similar to this section. Where, therefore, that Act is incorporated with a local Act, or where a local Act containing similar provisions is in force, proceedings may be taken either under this or the local Act by virtue of s. 340, post, p. 4521.

The Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847, s. 62, ante, p. 4194, which was incorporated in this Act by s. 57 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 649) (now repealed), and is printed ante, p. 4194, contains provisions almost identical with this section, which is taken from Nuisances Removal Act, 1855, ss. 23, 24, and extends the provisions of Public Health Act, 1848, s. 80.

The W. Gas Company unexpectedly discharged a quantity of offensive liquid from their works into the sewers of the W. Corporation. The liquid passed through the sewage works on to the sewage farm and thence into a tributary of the Thames. The W. Corporation were convicted of unlawfully and wilfully suffering a large quantity of washing or other substance produced in the making of gas to flow or pass into a tributary of the Thames contrary to s. 92 of the Thames Conservancy Act, 1894. On an appeal it was held that it was not proved the appellants had "wilfully" suffered the deleterious matter to pass into the Thames, and the conviction was quashed (High Wycombe Corporation v. Thames Conservators (1898), 78 L. T. 463; 14 T. L. R. 358; 25 Digest 486, 91). Proceedings had already been taken by the conservators under the same Act against the W. Gas Company in respect of this occurrence. The company pleaded guilty and were fined.

Note to
Section 68.

(c) As to notices and their service, see ss. 266, 267, post, pp. 592, 593.

(d) Apparently this means after notice has been given to the offender, so that Daily if no notice be given a penalty of £200 is recoverable; if notice be given, that sum penalties and the additional sum from the time of the notice is recoverable.

(e) The same provisions in the Nuisances Removal Act, 1855, ss. 23—25, were held to supersede a clause in a local Act containing similar penalties (Parry v. Croydon Commercial Gas and Coke Co. (1863), 15 C. B. (N. S.) 568; 28 J. P. 86; 25 Digest 487, 99; but see s. 340, post, p. 4521. See also note (b), supra).

(f) Public Health Act, 1848, s. 80, contained provisions for examining the gas pipes which are omitted here, and it is very doubtful whether s. 305, post, p. 4513, will apply to this case.

69. Any local authority, with the sanction of the Attorney-General, may, either in their own name or in the name of any other person, with the consent of such person, take such proceedings by indictment bill in Chancery action or otherwise as they may deem advisable for the purpose of protecting any watercourse (a) within their jurisdiction from pollutions arising from sewage (b) either within or without their district; and the costs of and incidental to any such proceedings, including any costs that may be awarded to the defendant, shall be deemed to be expenses properly incurred by such authority in the execution of this Act.

Local authority may take proceedings to prevent pollution of streams.

(a) Note that this is not applicable to all rivers and streams, but only to such streams as constitute "watercourses"; and it is presumed that they are not such as belong to the authority, seeing that the ordinary laws regarding property would enable an authority to take such proceedings in reference to their own property. To constitute a "watercourse" there must be water flowing in a channel between banks more or less defined (per TENTERDEN, L.C.J., in R. v. Inhabitants of Oxfordshire (1830), 1 B. & Ad. p. 301; 26 Digest 572, 2645). It may be natural or artificial. See Boues v. Watson (1879), 44 J. P. 364; 42 L. T. 27; 41 Digest 55, 398; Smith v. Barnham (1876), 1 Ex. D. 419; 40 J. P. 710; 44 Digest 43, 306; Biscoe v. Drought (1859), 11 Ir. C. L. R. 250; Sutcliffe v. Booth (1863), 27 J. P. 613; 32 L. J. Q. B. 136; 44 Digest 38, 275; Remfry v. Surveyor-General of Natal, [1896] A. C. 558; 44 Digest 22, 134. The line of a periodical "bourne flow" was held not to be a watercourse in Pearce v. Croydon R. D. C. (1910), 74 J. P. 429; 41 Digest 8, 53. See also, as to a similar "flow," Att.-Gen. v. Lewes Corporation, [1911] 2 Ch. 495; 76 J. P. 1; 41 Digest 9, 55. As to when a stream or watercourse may become a "sewer," see the last-mentioned case and other decisions in notes on pp. 48 et seq., ante.

(b) Pollution from manufacturing or other similar processes is not provided for by this section. See, however, the Rivers Pollution Prevention Acts, 1876 and 1893, post, pp. 4581 and 4872, as to pollution by solid matters, sewage and manufacturing and mining pollutions, and the duties cast upon local authorities by those Acts.

As to the power of a county council to take proceedings to restrain the pollution of a stream, see the L. G. A., 1888, s. 14, post, p. 4736.

Section 69.

PART IV.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT PROVISIONS.

HIGHWAYS AND STREETS.

As to Highways (a).

Powers of surveyors of highways and vestries under Highway Act, 1835, vested in urban authority.

144. Every urban authority shall within their district exclusively of any other person (b) execute the office of and be surveyor of highways, and have exercise and be subject to all the powers authorities duties and liabilities of surveyors of highways (c) under the law for the time being in force, save so far as such powers authorities or duties are or may be inconsistent with the provisions of this Act; every urban authority shall also have exercise and be subject to all the powers authorities duties and liabilities which by the Highway Act, 1835, or any Act amending the same (d), are vested in and given to the inhabitants in vestry assembled of any parish within their district (e).

All ministerial acts required by any Act of Parliament to be done by or to the surveyor of highways may be done by or to the surveyor of the urban authority, or by or to such other person as they may appoint (f).

"County roads."

(a) As from April 1st, 1930, considerable changes in the administration of highway law were effected by the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III. (Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903). From that date rural district councils ceased to be highway authorities and in rural districts all roads (i.e., highways repairable by the inhabitants at large and any bridge so repairable carrying the road (s. 134; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 971)) became "county roads" (s. 30; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904). County councils are also in rural districts the authority for executing the Private Street Works Act, 1892, post, p. 4848, and certain other functions in connection with streets under the Public Health Acts. In urban districts, including non-county boroughs, all classified roads became "county roads" and urban district councils ceased to be the highway authority in respect of such roads. County councils have also certain other functions in respect of county roads in urban districts under the Public Health Acts.

County councils may delegate to a district council their functions in respect of all or some of the county roads in the district (s. 35; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 910), but a district council exercising such delegated functions acts as "agent" for the county council and is not itself the highway authority. Where the provisions of this Act are amended in their application to county councils, the provision will apply in its amended form to a district council exercising delegated functions, subject, of course, to any restrictions or conditions imposed by the terms of the delegation.

Under the Trunk Roads Act, 1936, post, the Minister of Transport became the highway authority in respect of a number of main roads specified in the Act. These roads are to be known as trunk roads and vest in the Minister. Under the Act the Minister may delegate his functions to county, borough or urban district councils.

"Main roads" within the meaning of the Highways and Locomotives Amendment Act, 1878, post, p. 4602, to which s. 11 of the L. G. A., 1888, post, p. 4726, applied, are also as from April 1st, 1930, "county roads," and s. 11 (2) of the L. G. A., 1888, is repealed.

If, however, the "county roads" are "claimed" under s. 32, L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906, the urban district council is to have the same functions as if, in respect of that road, they were the highway authority and the road were an ordinary road vested in them. The urban district council will, therefore, not be the highway authority in respect of such roads, but in the application of provisions amended in their application to county councils the unamended provision will apply. Note to Section 144.

Highways which are "county roads" are (unless repairable by individuals ratione tenuræ, or otherwise) repairable by, or at the expense of, the county council. See the L. G. A., 1929, Pt. III., and notes thereto, Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 903.

Additional powers and duties are conferred upon district councils by the L. G. A., Later 1894, s. 26, post, p. 4907, in relation to the protection of rights of way and the prevention of obstructions and encroachments. The functions of rural district councils under that section are expressly preserved by the proviso to s. 30 (1) of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904.

See also the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, the Roads Improvement Act, 1925, and the P. H. A., 1925, Pt. II., Vol. V., post.

In rural districts parish councils are given certain powers (under the L. G. A., 1894, ss. 8, 13, post, pp. 4896, 4898), to acquire rights of way, and to undertake the repair of footpaths not beside roads. Urban district councils can obtain these powers by order of the M. of H. under s. 271 of the L. G. A., 1933, ante, p. 1152, in so far as such powers exceed those already possessed by them, e.g., in respect to acquiring rights of way outside the parish.

As to prohibition of user of highways by public service vehicles, see ss. 90 and 91, Road Traffic Act, 1930.

As to prohibition or restriction of traffic during road repairs, etc., see s. 47, Road Traffic Act, 1930.

(b) This section determined the authority of a parish vestry, a highway board, or a surveyor of highways within the district of the urban authority.

As pointed out in note (a), supra, an urban authority is no longer the highway authority in respect of "county roads" in the district unless the roads have been "claimed" under s. 32 of the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 906.

As from April 1st, 1930, every county council will, as respects such part of the Rural county as is contained in a rural district, have all such functions under the Highway Acts, 1835—1885 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 50, 191), as were exercisable by rural district councils who by virtue of the L. G. A., 1894, post, p. 4892, became successors of highway boards (s. 30 (1), L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 904). Under the L. G. A., 1894, rural district councils in addition to being invested with the powers of urban authorities under ss. 144—148 of this Act, post, pp. 4350—4375, succeeded to the powers of the highway authority then in existence in the district, and these authorities had not uniform powers so that it is only as from April 1st, 1930, that the functions of highway authorities in rural districts have become uniform throughout the country.

The section in the text is not applied to county councils by the L. G. A., 1929; Vol. V. and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 883.

(c) The powers and duties of a surveyor of highways depend upon the Highway Act, 1835, and amending statutes. For further information on this subject, reference must be made to treatises on highway law, e.g., Pratt on Highways, 18th ed. One branch of the subject requires notice here, viz., that relating to the liability of an authority as surveyors of highways in cases of accident caused by non-repair, improper condition, or obstruction of the highways. The authorities are now applicable to the case of both county and urban councils.

A surveyor of highways was not liable to an action for injury caused by non-repair of the highways (Young v. Davis (1862), 7 H. & N. 760; 26 J. P. 743; affirmed repair not in Exchequer Chamber (1863), 2 H. & C. 197; 26 Digest 398, 1241). The ground of this decision was that the surveyor had no liability other than that which had previously existed in the case of the inhabitants of the parish. It had already been decided that when the duty, the neglect of which was the cause of action, was one attaching to the inhabitants of a county, the remedy was by indictment and not by action (Russell v. Men of Devon (1788), 2 Term Rep. 667; 26 Digest 587, 2780); and it was held that the county surveyor merely took the place of the inhabitants for the purpose of suing and being sued, but without any further liability (M'Kinnon v. Penson (1854), 9 Exch. 609; 18 J. P. 164; 26 Digest 588, 2782). In Young v. Davis, supra, the same principles were held to govern the liability of the surveyor of highways. The whole principle, while not being doubted, was the subject of criticism by the Court of Appeal in Skilton v. Epsom and Ewell U. D. C., [1937] 1 K. B. 112; [1936] 2 All E. R. 50; 100 J. P. 231; Digest Supp.

In Hartnall v. Ryde Commissioners (1863), 4 B. & S. 361; 27 J. P. 599; 26 Digest 399, 1242, town commissioners were held liable for an accident caused by their neglect of a duty imposed upon them in their corporate capacity by the Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847, s. 49 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 547); and in Ohlby v. Ryde Commissioners (1864), 5 B. & S. 743; 28 J. P. 663; 26 Digest 399, 1243, where the accident arose from neglect of a similar duty imposed by s. 52 of that Act, they were also held liable. Hartnall v. Ryde Commissioners, supra, was distinguished by WILLES, J., in Parsons v. Vestry of St. Matthew, Bethnal Green, infra, and by KELLY, C.B., in Wilson v. Halifax (Mayor of) (1868), L. R. 3 Ex. 114; 32 J. P. 230; 38 Digest 34, 203: see also Pictou Municipality v. Geldert, infra; and even if it cannot be said to be overruled, its authority has been seriously shaken by the following decision of the Court of Appeal. By the L. Improvement Act, 1846, s. 36, the corporation were declared to be the surveyors of highways for the borough. By s. 37, the control of the streets was vested in them. By s. 38 they were empowered to form or pave streets with such materials as they should think fit. By s. 53 it was enacted that they should be liable to be indicted at common law for the want of sufficient repair of any highway in the borough in the same manner as any person or persons liable to the repair of such highways was or were before the passing of the Act. Whilst a horse and trap were being driven along a highway, the horse was injured owing to a hole in the roadway. There was no evidence of misfeasance, but the want of repair was admitted. In an action by the owner of the horse it was held that the liability imposed on the corporation by the Act of 1846 was a liability of the same nature as that placed on the inhabitants of a parish by the common law, which could only be enforced by the Crown by means of an indictment, and that the corporation were not liable to be sued by an individual for damages for nonfeasance. The court pointed out that Hartnall's Case, supra, was decided upon a special statute, and said that since Cowley v. Newmarket L. B., infra, it is no longer law so far as it lays down a general proposition in regard to liability for nonfeasance where liability to repair highways is imposed by an Act of Parliament (Maguire v. Liverpool Corporation, [1905] 1 K. B. 767; 69 J. P. 153; 26 Digest 400, 1255; and cf. Law v. Corporation of Glasgow (1916), 54 Sc. L. R. (2) 125). See also Att.-Gen. and Ormerod Taylor & Son, Ltd. v. Todmorden Corp., [1937] 4 All E. R. 538, and Newsome v. Darton U. D. C., [1938] 3 All E. R. 93; 102 J. P. 409.

The Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 90 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 904), contains provisions similar to that in the text transferring the liabilities of surveyors of highways to the metropolitan vestries. It was held, with reference thereto, that the vestries were under no greater liability than the surveyor would have been, and that an action would not lie against them for an accident caused by the non-repair of a highway (Parsons v. Vestry of St. Matthew, Bethnal Green (1867), L. R. 3 C. P. 56; 32 J. P. 55; 26 Digest 399, 1244). In Lampard v. Commissioners of Sewers of the City of London (1884), 1 T. L. R. 114; 26 Digest 399, 1248, the plaintiff sued in respect of injuries sustained through the defective condition of the pavement, due to the alleged negligence of the defendants. The alleged negligence consisted merely in non-repair, and it was held that he was rightly non-suited. And see Guardians of Holborn v. Vestry of St. Leonard, Shoreditch (1876), 2 Q. B. D. 145; 41 J. P. 38; 26 Digest 399, 1246, per LUSH, J.; Taylor v. St. Mary Abbots, Kensington (Vestry of) (1886), 2 T. L. R. 668, per MANISTREY, J.; and Newton v. St. Matthew, Bethnal Green (Vestry) (1899), Times, March 29th. The pavement over a cellar in the metropolis has been held to be repairable as part of the highway (Hamilton v. St. George's, Hanover Square, ante, p. 1949; cf. Skilton v. Epsom and Ewell U. D. C., supra).

In Nash v. Rochford R. D. C., [1917] 1 K. B. 384; 81 J. P. 57; 26 Digest 405, 1272, it was held that the defendants could not be held liable for the misfeasance of a former highway authority not resulting in damage in their time, no such liability being passed on to them under the Local Government Act, 1894, post, p. 4892.

It was questioned in Wilson v. Halifax (Mayor of), supra, whether a local board were liable to an action for injuries caused by non-repair of a highway; and it was expressly decided that they were not in Gibson v. Preston (Mayor of) (1870), L. R. 5

Q. B. 218; 34 J. P. 342; 26 Digest 357, 834; approved and followed in Cowley v. Newmarket L. B., [1892] A. C. 345; 56 J. P. 805; 26 Digest 400, 1251.

Misfeasance actionable,

But nonfeasance in the sense of mere failure to keep in proper repair must be carefully distinguished from misfeasance, in respect of which an action will lie. Where a heap of stones was left by the side of a road without light, and the plaintiff, on a dark night, drove into it, and was injured, the heap having been left there by the negligence of persons employed by the local board to repair the roads, it was held that the board were liable to an action for the negligence of their servants, and that they were not exempt from liability by reason of the corresponding section of the P. H. A., 1848, which imposed on them the same duties and liabilities as a surveyor of highways had (Foreman v. Canterbury (Mayor of) (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 214; 35 J. P. 629; 26 Digest 408, 1294). The principle of this decision may be thus briefly stated. A surveyor of highways was liable to a stranger for any act of personal negligence, or for the negligence of his own servants. The district council are in the same position, the only decision to the contrary, Holliday v. St. Leonard, Shoreditch (1861), 11 C. B. (N. S.) 192; 26 J. P. 135; 26 Digest 408, 1293, being overruled. See Mersey Docks v. Gibbs (1866), L. R. 1 H. L. 93, per BLACKBURN, J., at p. 119; 30 J. P. 467; 38 Digest 35, 209. See also per BRETT, L.J., in Glossop v. Heston and Isleworth L. B. (1879), 12 Ch. D. 102, at p. 120; 44 J. P. 36; 44 Digest 51, 365, and see also Jones v. Westminster City Council (1915), 79 J. P. N. 112.

An authority may, of course, be relieved from liability if the plaintiff is guilty of contributory negligence, or if seeing the danger he deliberately runs the risk (Butterly v. Drogheda Corporation, [1907] 2 I. R. 134; Torrance v. Ilford U. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 225; 25 T. L. R. 355; 26 Digest 405, 1273; and see also Charlesworth v. Darton U. D. C. (1915), 79 J. P. Newsp. 316, and Jones v. Westminster City Council, supra).

The following cases show how narrow is the dividing line between what is non-feasance and what is misfeasance. Appellants, who were both the highway and sanitary authority, dug a trench along a road under their control for the purpose of laying a sewer. When the sewer was laid they filled in the trench and opened the road for traffic. About a week after the road was thrown open the respondent was driving along it in a cab. The cabdriver found that the part of the road where the trench had been filled in was soft; he crossed to the off side to avoid that danger, and ran into a heap of rubbish which had been deposited by a wrong-doer upon that side of the road, with the result that the cab was overturned, and respondent suffered injuries. The appellants knew that the heap of rubbish had been deposited upon the road. The jury found that at the time of the accident the part of the road that had been filled in was dangerous to traffic. The House of Lords held that the appellants were liable on the ground that they were guilty of misfeasance in throwing open the road when it was not fit for traffic, and that such misfeasance was the cause of the accident (Shoreditch Corporation v. Bull (1904), 68 J. P. 415; 90 L. T. 210; 26 Digest 412, 1320), semble, the capacity in which the appellants were acting was immaterial (ibid.). See especially the speech of Lord HALSBURY in this case, and the interpretation put upon it by the Court of Appeal in Dawson & Co. v. Bingley U. D. C., [1911] 2 K. B. 149; 75 J. P. 289; 26 Digest 407, 1286; and Newsome v. Darton U. D. C., [1938] 3 All E. R. 93; 102 J. P. 409; Digest Supp.; and see also Small v. Fermanagh C. C. (1914), 78 J. P. N. 366, and Warren v. Devon C. C. (1915), L. T. Journal, February 20th, where in an action in a county court the defendants were held to be liable for an accident caused by throwing open a road for traffic after tar spraying, before the surface of such road was in a condition to receive the traffic.

In Parkinson v. W. R. County Council (1922), 20 L. G. R. 308; 26 Digest 409, 1298, the defendants were also held liable for damages due to a road being prematurely thrown open to traffic after repairs not fully completed.

In Ryan v. Tipperary C. C., [1912] 2 I. R. 392, the defendants were repairing one half of a road and had left the other half open for traffic. The plaintiff, driving

Note to
Section 144.

along this other half, collided with a large stone lying close to the grass margin opposite to the steam roller. The jury negatived contributory negligence. It was held that the act of the council in interfering with the road imposed on them the obligation of taking care that the portion left open for use was reasonably fit and safe, and that, the jury having found them to have been negligent in not removing the stone, they were liable in damages. See Walsh v. Mayo C. C. (1905), 39 Ir. L. T. 189, as to the respective liabilities of a county and district council in connection with the repair of a bridge. A plaintiff driving at night along a street in the defendants' district, drove over the edge of a ravine at the end of it. He alleged that the defendants were guilty of negligence in so laying out the street that it terminated in a ravine, without providing posts and fencing or placing a watchman or lights at the spot to give warning, and also that they had set a trap by reason that the lights in the street were in line with a lamp in W. street on the opposite side of the ravine so as to give the impression that the street was continuous. The road in question was dedicated to the public many years ago, and it was made up by the defendants as a street in the year 1903. The jury found that the street was dangerous; that the unfenced ravine was a trap; that when they made it up and opened it to the public as a street the defendants took no sufficient care to warn the public of the danger; that the public were invited by them to pass along the street as if it was continuous to W. street; and that the plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. It was held that as the defendants knew of the existence of the ravine, their leaving the road with a trap in it known to them and hidden from persons using the road at night was an actionable wrong and a breach of their duty to take reasonable care, assuming such a duty existed; that the defendants having made up the road, their omission to fence was not mere nonfeasance but misfeasance; that although when a road is dedicated as a highway, the public, or the road authority, take it as it is with all its defects, yet if a road authority undertake a duty with regard to it and make it up and open it to the public as a made-up street they must exercise due care and have due regard to the safety of those who will use it; and that the defendants, having exercised their powers, as the jury thought, negligently in such a way as to leave a hidden trap for persons passing along the road at night, exposing them to unnecessary and avoidable danger, were liable to the plaintiff. It was held, further, that the defendants having undertaken to light the street, and having done so negligently and inadequately, were also liable on this ground (McClelland v. Manchester Corporation, [1912] 1 K. B. 118; 76 J. P. 21; 26 Digest 404, 1270). This was a judgment of LUSH, J., and in Moul v. Croydon Corporation (1918), 82 J. P. 283; 16 L. G. R. 595; 26 Digest 401, 1260, certain passages in that judgment are explained by that same judge. In that case the plaintiff suffered damages from an accident caused by the swelling and bulging of the wood paving of a carriageway which caused the road surface to rise above its normal level. It was held that no distinction can be drawn between neglect to repair a road out of repair through ordinary wear and tear and neglect to repair a road in disrepair caused by the surface rising above its ordinary level. In Thompson v. Bradford Corporation and Tinsley, [1915] 3 K. B. 13; 79 J. P. 364; 26 Digest 406, 1278, the decision in McClelland v. Manchester Corporation was followed. There the defendants were altering a street by throwing the footpath into the carriageway, and to do this it was necessary to remove a telegraph pole which existed on the footpath. The removal of the pole was done by the Post Office authorities, and in filling in the hole they did their work negligently, with the result that the plaintiff's steam wagon passing along the highway a few days later sank into the hole and the wagon was considerably damaged. It was held that both defendants were liable, the corporation upon the ground that they were altering the character of part of an old road (i.e., in effect making a new road), and their duty was to so make it that when they threw it open for public use it should be reasonably safe for the purpose for which it was intended to be used; the Post Office authorities upon the ground that having done, perhaps voluntarily, a piece of work, they did it negligently. Baldwin's, Ltd. v. Halifax Corporation (1916), 80 J. P. 357; 14 L. G. R. 787; 26 Digest 407, 1289, was a case of damage by flooding of the plaintiffs' mills during a short period of exceptionally heavy rainfall. In 1867 the defendants obtained statutory powers to construct a road up a very steep and high bank along the base of which runs a stream upon which the plaintiffs' mills are situated. To ease the gradients the plan of the road is necessarily zig-zag in form. On the surface of the hill, especially on the lower slopes, there was a large amount of disintegrated shale caused by weathering and rain storms over a long period. The road was drained by a channel with catchpits at intervals discharging into an earthenware pipe sewer. The road planned and constructed in this way formed a catchwater which drained practically the whole of the hillside. During a very heavy rainstorm water and vast quantities of shale flowed over the road into the valley beneath and flooded the plaintiff's mills. It was held, on the ground of misfeasance, and not mere nonfeasance, that the defendants were liable, and that they had failed to exercise reasonable care in the construction and maintenance of the undertaking.

Note to
Section 144.

A local authority in executing works for the purpose of carrying a highway over a ravine in order to link it up with another highway on the opposite side of a ravine pulled down an old wall at the termination of a road and constructed a contractor's road from the point formerly occupied by the wall in the direction of the highway on the opposite side of the ravine, this contractor's road terminated in a sharp declivity and a fence was erected across this road. The fence was not lighted and bore no warning signs. The plaintiff driving along the road, misled by the lights on the other side of the ravine into thinking the road was continuous, and not seeing the fence until too late, crashed through the fence and into the ravine. In an action for damages for negligence it was held that there being an invitation to the plaintiff to pass along the road, he was an invitee and it was therefore incumbent upon the authority to take proper steps to warn the public and prevent danger and that the failure so to do rendered them liable in damages (Oldham v. Sheffield Corpn. (1927), 91 J. P. 69; 43 T. L. R. 222; Digest Supp.). Cf. Coleshill v. Manchester Corpn., [1928] 1 K. B. 776; 92 J. P. 37; Digest Supp. Where a highway authority in widening a road cut away part of a bank in such a way as to affect the stability of a tree standing on private ground at the summit of the bank, so that the dangerous character of the tree was obvious from the highway, the local authority were held liable in damages for injuries caused to the occupants of a motor coach passing along the highway upon whom the tree fell (Mackie v. Western District Committee of Dumbartonshire County Council (1927), 91 J. P. 158). As to the liability of the owner of a tree which fell across a highway and caused injury to passengers, see Noble v. Harrison, [1926] 2 K. B. 332; 90 J. P. 188; 33 Digest 189, 316.

In Breen v. Tyrone C. C. (1908), 42 Ir. L. T. 250, an authority who had repaired the planking of a bridge with a defective board were held liable in respect of injuries to a horse, beneath which the board gave way. To lay a deep layer of broken stone across the full width of a road for a considerable distance, instead of rolling it in as the work proceeds, may amount to misfeasance (Torrance v. Ilford U. D. C. (1909), 73 J. P. 225; 25 T. L. R. 355; 26 Digest 405, 1273). So, too, though to leave unfilled a hole which has appeared in a road is only nonfeasance, to fill it with improper material apparently, but not really, solid, may be misfeasance (Meeling v. St. Mary, Newington (Vestry) (1893), 10 T. L. R. 54).

An action was brought against a corporation to recover damages for injury sustained in consequence of the defendants negligently placing certain pitch or tar on a road, and negligently allowing the same to remain for an unreasonable time, whereby the road became uneven and dangerous. The plaintiff's mare had slipped on a pool of pitch or tar, which had, in consequence of hot weather, oozed up between the sets of wood or stone from the asphalt beneath. The road had been constructed a long time before the accident. A county court judge held that there was no evidence of misfeasance. It was held, on appeal, that as no evidence was given before him that the road had been improperly constructed, he was right in concluding that the accident did not arise from the misfeasance of the defendants (Holloway v. Birmingham Corporation (1905), 69 J. P. 358; 3 L. G. R. 878; 26 Digest 401, 1256). In connection with the subject of wood paving the following decision as to the rights of adjoining owners may be noticed. A tramway company's special Act provided that the company should pave a certain road with wood; and they paved it with soft wood creosoted. There was another kind of wood paving consisting of hard wood blocks; but the company considered the creosoted wood more suitable to the locality. Dust and fumes from the creosoted wood caused damage to the plants in a market garden adjoining the road. It was held that the laying of creosoted wood blocks was a non-natural user of the land, and that the company were liable for the damage caused thereby to the market garden. As there were two kinds of wood paving at the company had laid that kind which caused damage, they were not protected by their special Act (West v. Bristol Tramways Co., Ltd., [1908] 2 K. B. 14; 72 J. 243; 36 Digest 194, 356). In Dell v. Chesham U. D. C., [1921] 3 K. B. 427; 115 J. P. 186; 26 Digest 408, 1290, the drainage from the surface of a road was rendered impure by the tarspraying of the road surface. The drainage passed through a drain and flowed into and damaged certain watercress beds of the plaintiff. It was held that the defendants had power to spray the road, but that they could not justify the damage to the plaintiff without showing that it was a necessary consequence of the exercise of the power.

In Nicholson v. Southern Rail. Co. and Sutton and Cheam U. D. C., [1935] 1 K. B. 558; 99 J. P. 141; Digest Supp., where, in consequence of a highway having been made up by the highway authority, the level of unfenced adjoining land was lowered so as to cause a dangerous drop from the edge or kerb of the reconstructed highway, a pedestrian who slipped from the highway on to the land and was injured was held entitled to recover from the highway authority but not from the owners of the land.

A vestry, acting as a sewer authority, laid down a new sewer, and their contractors in so doing, laid bare a wrought-iron service water-pipe, about two and a half feet below the surface. The surveyor of the vestry knew that the pipe was old and rusty, and likely, therefore, to become leaky. In filling in the trench some clay was put round the pipe, but not in such quantity or manner as to prevent it from leaking. A few months afterwards the pipe leaked, and the surrounding clay and earth, being thereby moistened, gave way under a van which the plaintiff was driving, and the van being overturned, the plaintiff was seriously injured. It was held that the vestry knew, or ought to have known, the character and condition of the pipe at the time when it was laid bare, and consequently were liable for negligence in not having taken special precautions against its leaking thereafter (Cox v. Paddington Vestry (1891), 64 L. T. 566; 26 Digest 411, 1315). On the other hand an authority are not liable where some individual, not acting as their agent, interferes with the highway in laying a drain. C., the owner of certain cottages in a highway, received a notice from the defendants requiring him to connect them with the main sewer. In compliance therewith he dug a trench in the road and made the connection to the satisfaction of the defendants' surveyor, and he then filled up the trench. The soil afterwards subsided, and the subsidence caused an accident to the plaintiff while driving in a pony cart. The defendants were both the sewer authority and the highway authority:—Held, that the defendants were not liable as the sewer authority on the ground that the notice did not constitute C. their agent, nor as the highway authority, on the ground that no action would lie against a local board for personal injuries arising from the non-repair of a highway (Steel v. Dartford L. B. (1891), 60 L. J. Q. B. 256; 26 Digest 399, 1249).

It has been held to be nonfeasance only, and therefore not actionable, to allow the surface of a path to slip down into adjoining premises with the result that the path becomes dangerous (Short v. Hammersmith Borough Council (1910), 75 J. P. 82; 104 L. T. 70; 26 Digest 401, 1257); to fail to clean out a highway drain into which roadside "grips" discharge (Irving v. Carlisle R. D. C. (1907), 71 J. P. 212; 5 L. G. R. 776; 26 Digest 403, 1265); to fail to remove overgrowing grass from such grips (Masters v. Hampshire C. C. (1915), 79 J. P. 493; 13 L. G. R. 879; 26 Digest 404, 1266); to fail to lop trees overhanging from an adjoining park owned by the authority (Tregellas v. London C. C. (1897), 14 T. L. R. 55; 26 Digest 403, 1264) cf. Trinder v. G. W. Ry. Co. (1919), 35 T. L. R. 291; Digest Supp., and Simon v. L. G. O. Co. (1907), 23 T. L. R. 463; 8 Digest 74, 502.

So, too, an authority are not liable for merely omitting to fence a dangerous ditch by the side of a highway (Wilson v. Halifax Corporation (1868), L. R. 3 Ex 114; 32 J. P. 230; 38 Digest 34, 203). Where, however, a council pulled down a fence erected to guard a ditch by the side of the road, and had not replaced it, so that the place was dangerous in times of flood, and at such a time a man driving along the road at night drove into the ditch and was drowned, it was held that the district council, in an action against them under Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (Lord Campbell's Act) (12 Halsbury's Statutes 335), were liable as for an act of misfeasance (Whyler v. Bingham R. D. C., [1901] 1 K. B. 45; 64 J. P. 771; 26 Digest 389, 1168).

In Skilton v. Epsom and Ewell U. D. C., [1937] 1 K. B. 112; [1936] 2 All E. R. 50; 100 J. P. 231; Digest Supp., where a cyclist was injured in a public highway by a flying stud dislodged by a car, the stud having been placed in the highway by the highway authority under the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 607), for traffic regulation purposes and having subsequently worked loose, it was held that assuming, but without deciding, that the stud was physically part of the highway, the plaintiff could still recover against the highway authority because the stud was not brought on to the highway as part of the highway maintenance but for purposes of traffic direction, and the placing of it in such a manner that it became defective amounted to the placing of a nuisance on the highway.

A corporation, who were the highway and lighting authority, erected a post in the centre of a footpath at the entrance thereto, to prevent cattle straying up the path, and near the post they placed a lamp, which they were in the habit of lighting at nights. The plaintiff was passing along the footpath at night, when the lamp was not lighted, and in consequence of the darkness came against the post, and was injured. It was held that an action lay (Lamley v. East Relford (Mayor, etc. of) (1891), 55 J. P. 133; 26 Digest 390, 1171). See also Knight v. Sheffield Corporation, post, p. 4448. The same thing has been held of an unilluminated bollard on a tram refuge (Polkinghorn v. Lambeth Corporation, [1938] 1 All E. R. 339; 102 J. P. 131; Digest Supp.), and an unilluminated post on a towing path (Attorney-General v. Wilcox, [1938] Ch. 934; [1938] 3 All E. R. 367; Digest Supp.). And as to unlit or misleading lamps, see also Thurrold v. St. George's, Hanover Square, cited on p. 4358, post; Donaldson v. Woolwich Corporation (1911), 74 J. P. N. 27, and McClelland v. Manchester Corporation, and Oldham v. Sheffield Corporation, cited on pp. 4354, 4355, ante. For cases arising out of reduced lights under wartime restrictions, see note (a) to s. 161 at p. 4448, post.

A railway bridge spanned a road in the defendants' district. After the erection of the bridge the road was dedicated to the public, and it subsequently became vested in the defendants. At the time of dedication the road was higher at the entrance of the bridge than at the exit, and the road continued in a similar state up to the commencement of the action. The plaintiff, whilst driving under the bridge, met with an accident, his head coming in contact with the bridge in consequence of the road being higher at that part. In an action by him against the defendants for damages for injuries sustained, it was held that as the road was dedicated subject to this obstruction, the action could not be maintained (Warner v. Wandsworth District Board of Works (1889), 53 J. P. 471; 26 Digest 444, 1616). See on the same point, Fisher v. Prowse (1862), 2 B. & S. 770; 26 J. P. 613; 26 Digest 265, 66. Where, however, in repairing a road under a bridge a ridge was improperly left in the surface, a driver, whose head was thereby brought into contact with the bridge, recovered damages against the authority (Hill v. Tottenham U. D. C. (1898), 79 L. T. 495; 15 T. L. R. 53; 26 Digest 404, 1268).

In Brackley v. Midland Ry. Co. (1916), 80 J. P. 369; 14 L. G. R. 632; 26 Digest 302, 333, a railway company had voluntarily constructed a footbridge close to a station to supplement a level crossing. Although the footbridge was largely used by passengers to and from the station it did not connect different parts of the station, but had direct connection with the highway and was used as part of the same without interruption. In using the steps to the bridge at a time when snow had fallen, the plaintiff fell and sustained injuries. It was held that the footbridge had been dedicated to the public and that the defendants were under no duty to persons using it to maintain and cleanse it or clear away the snow. On this question, reference should now be made to the Rights of Way Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 191), and the cases decided thereunder, post.

An authority who had erected a drinking fountain in a highway were held liable for injuries caused by the fall of a stone displaced by a sightseer climbing thereon (McLoughlin v. Warrington Corporation (1910), 75 J. P. 57; 36 Digest 51, 318).

A householder, stepping out from his front door, put his front on a piece of sandstone lying on the pavement and fell. Evidence was given that a heap of sandstone had been tipped by the defendants' servants in the roadway close to the kerb in front of the plaintiff's house, and that subsequently several stones were seen on the pavement. There was no barrier between the kerb and the stones. The plaintiff having bility for contractors, servants,

licensees, etc.

been nonsuited, it was held that the nonsuit was wrong, for there was some evidence that the piece of sandstone was on the pavement by the action of the defendants' servants (Gould v. Birkenhead Corporation (1909), 74 J. P. 105; 26 Digest 409, 1295). See also as to liability for obstacles left on a highway, cases in the succeeding paragraphs as to acts of contractors.

In Taylor v. Greenhalgh (1874), L. R. 9 Q. B. 487; 38 J. P. 599; (1876), 24 W. R. 311; 26 Digest 409, 1302, and Pendlebury v. Greenhalgh (1875), 1 Q. B. D. 36; 40 J. P. 36; 26 Digest 410, 1303, two cases arising out of one accident, it appeared that the defendant in each was a parish surveyor of highways appointed by the vestry at a salary. By a resolution of the committee of management it was ordered that a part of a road should be raised, and that the defendant should employ men to do it. He contracted with G. to do the work at so much per yard, the vestry finding the materials, but G. employing his own men. During the progress of the work one-half of the width of the road was raised first, and the other half left temporarily about a foot lower. No fence or light was put up to warn persons using the road, and the plaintiffs, driving at night, were upset and injured. The defendant had not personally interfered in doing the work, or in directing the road to be left as it was; and it was held by the Court of Queen's Bench that he was not liable to the plaintiffs either at common law, or by reason of the Highway Act, 1835, s. 56 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 76), the court holding that the persons whose negligence caused the accident were not servants of the defendant so as to bring him within Foreman v. Canterbury (Mayor of), ante, p. 4353. But the Court of Appeal, taking a different view of the facts rather than of the law, directed judgment to be entered in each case for the plaintiffs. They did not decide whether the defendant would have been liable for his contractor's negligence, if he had employed him to do everything that was necessary; but they pointed out that, for the safety of the public, it was necessary that the work while in progress should be fenced and lighted at night, and that the defendant had only contracted for labour; therefore the duty of fencing and lighting remained on him, and he was responsible for negligence in performing this duty, whereby the damage was caused.

In Reid v. Darlington Highway Board (1877), 41 J. P. 581; 26 Digest 410, 1305, a highway board finding that the wall of a bridge needed repair, instructed their surveyor to employ S., a contractor, to do the work. S. thereupon, by his servants, did the work, and the surveyor did not interfere. In the course of the work, S.'s servants left stones in the highway, which were not lighted at night, and R. drove into them, and was injured. It was held that there was no evidence upon which the board or its surveyor could be held liable for the injury to R. As to the liability of the contractor in such a case, see Blake v. Thirst (1863), 2 H. & C. 20; 34 Digest 160, 1253, which may be compared with the previous case of Overton v. Freeman (1852), 11 C. B. 867; 26 Digest 410, 1309.

A highway board directed a heap of stones to be placed on the side of a road, at a place which was used as a depôt for stones used in repairing. The carter, in placing the stones there, allowed them to project a few inches on to the road. A person driving along the road at night, drove against the heap and met his death. His widow and children thereupon brought an action under Fatal Accidents Act, 1846 (Lord Campbell's Act) (12 Halsbury's Statutes 335) against the board. It was held that, inasmuch as the carter was really a servant of the defendants, and not a contractor, they were liable (Tucker v. Axbridge Highway Board (1888), 53 J. P. 87; 5 T. L. R. 26; 26 Digest 409, 1296).

For cases in which a highway authority was held not liable for injuries suffered by children in playing on materials deposited on a road for the purpose of road improvements, see Liddle v. North Riding of Yorkshire C.C., [1934] 2 K. B. 101; 98 J. P. 319; Digest Supp., and Morley v. Staffordshire C.C., [1939] 4 All E. R. 92; Digest Supp.

A metropolitan vestry caused a heap of sand to be laid in a street near a gas lamp which was lighted under contract by a gas company. The lamp, by accident, was not lighted one night, and the plaintiff drove into the heap and sustained injury. It was left to the jury to say whether the leaving of the heap unlighted was negligence, and the jury awarded damages (Thurrold v. St. George's, Hanover Square, Times, December 7th, 1898).

A gas company, in the repair of mains in a highway, placed a fire pail on which was a ladle containing molten lead on unenclosed land adjacent to a highway. A passer-by accidentally knocked over the fire pail at a time when the same was unattended and unguarded, and the plaintiff, a young child, was injured by the molten lead. It was held that the gas company was liable on the ground that what they were doing was dangerous unless precautions were taken to guard persons using the highway from the danger. (Crane v. South Suburban Gas Co., [1916] 1 K. B. 33; 80 J. P. 51; 26 Digest 436, 1539).

But where a motor lorry laden with bales of cotton caught fire on a highway, without any default on the part of the driver who did all that he could to put the fire out and telephoned for the fire brigade, it was held that he could not be convicted under s. 72 of the Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 86), for causing damage to the highway (Tunnicliffe v. Pickup, [1939] 3 All E. R. 297; Digest Supp.).

The rule deducible from the more recent decisions (see notes to s. 265, post, p. 4494) appears to be that where a contractor is employed to do work which will necessarily entail danger to the public unless proper precautions are taken, the authority employing him will be responsible if he fails to take such precautions, e.g., if he leaves the road improperly made up in ridges (Hill v. Tottenham U. D. C. (1898), 79 L. T. 495; 26 Digest 404, 1268), or does not properly fill in and ram trenches (Gray v. Pullen (1864), 5 B. & S. 970; 29 J. P. 69; 34 Digest 165, 1279; Thompson v. Bradford Corporation, ante, p. 4354), or negligently breaks pipes laid in the road (Hardaker v. Idle U. D. C., [1896] 1 Q. B. 335; 60 J. P. 196; 34 Digest 161, 1255), or leaves stones or material unguarded and unlighted on the highway (Penny v. Wimbledon U. D. C., [1899] 2 Q. B. 72; 63 J. P. 406; 26 Digest 410, 1308; Clements v. Tyrone C. C., [1905] 2 I. R. 542; Lancaster v. West Ham L. B. (1886), 2 T. L. R. 820; and see also Pinn v. Rew (1916), 32 T. L. R. 451; 34 Digest 162, 1268. And cf. Wilson v. Hodgson's Kingston Brewery Co. (1915), 80 J. P. 39; 32 T. L. R. 60; 26 Digest 418, 1363, and Kimber v. Gas Light and Coke Co., [1918] 1 K. B. 439; 82 J. P. 125; 36 Digest 18, 83). On the other hand, for mere casual or collateral negligence of a contractor's labourer, e.g., leaving a tool on the road, the authority are probably not liable (Penny v. Wimbledon U. D. C., supra, per A. L. SMITH, L.J.).

As to the distinction between a contractor and servant, see further, Steel v. S. E. Rail. Co. (1855), 16 C. B. 550; 34 Digest 31, 87; Reedie v. L. & N. W. Rail. Co. (1849), 4 Ex. 244; 34 Digest 27, 56; Holliday v. National Telephone Co., [1899] 2 Q. B. 392; 34 Digest 163, 1271.

As to the liability of an authority for the acts of a licensee reference may be made to Gilbert v. Trinity House Corporation (1886), 17 Q. B. D. 795; 38 Digest 39, 230. They are not responsible for those of a person acting under independent statutory powers unless they are bound to supervise the work (Barham v. Ipswich Dock Commissioners (1885), 54 L. T. 23; 34 Digest 166, 1290; Steel v. Dartford L. B., ante, p. 4356; Burrows v. City of London Sewer Commissioners (1888), 4 T. L. R. 262; 26 Digest 401, 1258).

A cart was damaged through contact with a heap of stones which had been allowed to remain after nightfall on a highway. The stones had been laid there by a carter who acted under the orders of a person to whom the surveyor of a local board had given general directions as to repairing the road; but the surveyor did not himself know that the stones had been laid on the road. It was held that the facts did not show any evidence of an offence by the surveyor within the meaning of the Highway Act, 1835, s. 56 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 76) (Hardcastle v. Bielby, [1892] 1 Q. B. 709; 56 J. P. 549; 26 Digest 413, 1327). It seems to have been assumed in this case that the section would apply to a surveyor of a highway authority; but such is apparently not the case, the authority being themselves surveyors of highways within the meaning of the section. See R. v. Bradford, [1908] 1 K. B. 365; 72 J. P. 61; 26 Digest 356, 819.

Although a district council are not liable for injuries sustained in consequence of their nonfeasance as surveyors of highways, there are cases where, by reason of their acting in other capacities, they may be liable for some negligent omission which occasions injury to persons using the highway. In one case, as the plaintiff was riding along a highway, under which was a sewer, his horse trod on a grid or grating, put there to drain the surface water off the highway into the sewer. The grid being in a defective state, gave way, and the horse's leg was injured. The Note to Section 144. — plaintiff sued the local board, who were surveyors of the highways under the P. H. A., 1848, ss. 68, 117, and in whom the sewers were vested by ss. 43, 45 of the same Act. It was held that, though the defendants were not liable as surveyors of the highways, they were liable as owners of the sewer, of which the grid formed part, for negligence in not keeping the grid in a proper state (White v. Hindley L. B. (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 219; 39 J. P. 533; 26 Digest 412, 1322). In another case, the defendants, who were the highway and the sewer authority, employed a contractor to construct a sewer under a highway within their district. The contractor dug a trench, which he afterwards filled in with earth, and the roadway was apparently made good. The work was done under the directions and to the satisfaction of the defendants' surveyor. Some months later a subsidence of the soil in the trench took place, without any assignable cause, leaving the road apparently sound. The plaintiff's horse, in consequence of the surface giving way, fell into the trench and was injured. It was held that there was evidence that the work of filling in the trench had been negligently and improperly done; that the defendants were liable as the sewer authority, and, perhaps, also as the highway authority (the latter liability apparently depending on the negligence of the defendants' surveyor, as in Pendlebury v. Greenhalgh, ante, p. 4353) (Smith v. West Derby L. B. (1878), 3 C. P. D. 423; 42 J. P. 615; 26 Digest 411, 1317). As to the liability of the contractor in such a case, see Hyams v. Webster (1868), L. R. 4 Q. B. 138; 26 Digest 460, 1761. All, or nearly all, of the cases on the subject were reviewed in Borough of Bathurst v. Macpherson (1879), 4 App. Cas. 256; 43 J. P. 827; 26 Digest 405, 1274, where a small municipality in New South Wales were held by the Privy Council to be liable for an accident caused by a defective drain, the neglect to repair which had led to the falling away of the brickwork and the consequent formation of a dangerous hole in the road. The governing fact in this case was that the conduct complained of was, in view of the Privy Council, misfeasance (per Lord HOBHOUSE in Municipality of Picton v. Geldert, [1893] A. C., at p. 531; 26 Digest 400, 1252; and see Sydney Municipal Council v. Bourke, ante, p. 4353, and Andrews v. Merton & Morden U. D. C. (1921), L. J. C. C. R. 50; 43 M. C. C. 194 (a county court case). In such cases, however, it is necessary for the plaintiff to prove that there has been negligence on the part of the authority (Lambert v. Lowestoft Corporation, [1901] 1 K. B. 590; 65 J. P. 326; 26 Digest 411, 1316). As to what amounts to proof of negligence when a sewer has given way and caused a subsidence, see ibid. and Hart v. St. Marylebone Borough Council (1912), 76 J. P. 257; 10 L. G. R. 502; 41 Digest 26, 206.

The predecessors of a district council in 1893 constructed a sewer with manholes under a main road repairable by the county. In 1906 the cover of one of the manholes projected above the granite setts surrounding it, and the setts projected above the surrounding surface of the roadway. The plaintiff when cycling was upset by the manhole, and he sued the council. The jury found that the manhole was defective and was the cause of the accident, and that the defects in the manhole were due to improper construction. The Court of Appeal held that there was no evidence of improper construction in the first instance, but ordered a new trial as to whether there had been negligence in maintaining the manhole (Winslowe v. Bushey U. D. C. (1908), 72 J. P. 259; 26 Digest 411, 1314).

In Papworth v. Battersea Borough Council, [1916] 1 K. B. 583; 80 J. P. 177; 26 Digest 412, 1319, a local authority had paved and made up a road in 1883. For the purpose of carrying away the surface water they had constructed a gully near the side of the road covered with a grating, but the grating and its framework caused a considerable depression in the road. The work however was done with due care and skill and in accordance with the usual method at the time. In June, 1912, the plaintiff, whilst cycling along the road and passing over the grating, owing to the excessive depression was thrown from her bicycle and sustained injuries. The jury found that the depression was dangerous to a careful cyclist, but that the local authority were not negligent in not having discovered the defect. It was held that as the local authority in the execution of their statutory powers had exercised due care and skill in the original construction of the grating and as they were not negligent in not having discovered the danger, they were not liable though the work turned out subsequently to be dangerous.

In Newsome v. Darton U. D. C., [1938] 3 All E. R. 93; 102 J. P. 409; Digest

Note to
Section 144.

Supp., the local sanitary authority who were also the local highway authority made a trench in a highway for the purpose of executing certain drainage work. Three years after filling in, a depression formed, and it was found by a jury that, although the original work was executed without negligence, the highway had become dangerous due to the work of the defendants. The defendants in their capacity as local sanitary authority were accordingly held liable to a passenger who was injured through the defect in the highway.

Where the local authority had placed studs in the road to mark the centre line for directing traffic, they were held liable for damage caused by a defective stud (Skilton v. Epsom & Ewell U. D. C., [1937] 1 K. B. 112; [1936] 2 All E. R. 50; 100 J. P. 231; Digest Supp.).

White v. Hindley L. B., ante, p. 4360, was approved in Blackmore v. Vestry of Mile End Old Town (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 451; 47 J. P. 52; 26 Digest 399, 1247. In that case a water meter, the property of a water company, and used for measuring the water supplied by them to the defendants, the vestry of a metropolitan parish, for watering the streets, was placed by the defendants in a box of theirs sunk in the footway of one of the streets, and covered with an iron flap. The defendants were surveyors of highways under the Metropolis Management Act, 1855, s. 95, and were by s. 116 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 914) authorised to cause the streets in their parish to be watered. The plaintiff while walking along the street stepped on to the iron flap, and by reason of its having worn smooth and dangerous, he fell and was injured. It was held that although the defendants might not as surveyors of highways be liable for negligence in not keeping the flap in a proper state, they were liable in their capacity as the authority for watering the street, in which capacity they had placed the flap there. Where it is the duty of the consumer to maintain the necessary apparatus of water supply he is primâ facie liable if damage ensues arising out of its disrepair, thus in Mist v. Metropolitan Water Board (1915), 79 J. P. 495; 13 L. G. R. 874; 26 Digest 418, 1373, the cover of a meter pit in the pavement was held to be part of the apparatus, and therefore the consumer was primâ facie liable. In another case the iron cover of a valve connected with a water main was properly fixed in a highway by the defendants, but in consequence of the ordinary wearing away of the highway, the valve cover projected an inch above it. The plaintiff's horse stumbled over the valve cover and was hurt. In action against the defendants, who were both the water authority and the highway authority, for the injury to the horse, it was held that it was the duty of the defendants to make such arrangements that works under their care should not become a nuisance to the highway, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover (Kent v. Worthing L. B. (1882), 10 Q. B. D. 118; 47 J. P. 23; 26 Digest 410, 1312). The last-mentioned decision was, however, questioned in Moore v. Lambeth Waterworks Co. (1886), 7 Q. B. D. 462; 50 J. P. 756; Digest Supp., where it was held that a water company, authorised or required by Act of Parliament to maintain a water plug in a highway, is not liable in damages to a passer-by who falls over the plug by reason of the road having worn away round it, the plug itself being in good order. The Court of Appeal intimated that perhaps Kent v. Worthing L. B. could be distinguished on the ground that the defendants were both highway authority and water authority, but that, if not, it could not be upheld. And it was expressly overruled by the Court of Appeal on precisely similar facts in Thompson v. Brighton (Mayor, etc. of); Oliver v. Horsham L. B., [1894] 1 Q. B. 332; 58 J. P. 297; 26 Digest 400, 1253. See, further, as to accidents due to water plugs, the cases collected in notes to the Fire Brigades Act, 1938 (Vol. V. and 31 Halsbury's Statutes 585).

A local authority, under the powers of the P. H. A., 1848, required the defendant's predecessor in title, together with other frontages, to do certain work on a street which had since become a highway, and on default being made, did the work themselves and charged the expenses to the frontagers. The work included the laying of two sloping iron carriage plates over the gutter between the roadway and the footway to facilitate the passage of horses and carriages from the roadway to the stables of two of the houses, one of which now belonged to the defendant. The two carriage plates did not meet by a few inches, thus leaving a small hole into which the defendant stumbled. This hole was opposite the defendant's house. In an action by the plaintiff against the defendant for damages for personal injuries, it was held that the carriage plates formed part of the highway, which was vested in the local authority, and that the defendant was not liable (Jones v. Rew (1910), 74 J. P. 321; 79 L. J. K. B. 1030; 26 Digest 412, 1323). In Horridge v. Makinson (1915), 79 J. P. 484; 84 L. J. K. B. 1294; 26 Digest 542, 2407, the defendant was the owner of a house abutting upon a street which had been made up and declared a public highway. In the lower part of the wall of the house there was an opening into a coal shoot, and the local authority, by raising the level of the footpath, covered the lower portion of this opening. To admit of access thereto, however, they left an opening next the wall in the footpath and did not put any grating or cover over this opening. The plaintiff, whilst passing along the footpath, fell into this opening and sustained injuries. It was held that the defendant was not liable, the hole amounted to a nuisance but it was left by the local authority and the defendant could not be said to have permitted the continuance of the nuisance. In Daniel v. Rickett, Cockerell & Co., Ltd. & Raymond, [1938] 2 K. B. 322; [1938] 2 All E. R. 631; Digest Supp., the plaintiff, who was injured by falling through a cellar flap in the pavement which had been left open and unguarded during the delivery of coal, was held entitled to recover against both the coal merchant and the occupier of the premises. And see Wilson v. Hodgson's Kingston Brewery Co. (1915), 80 J. P. 39; 85 L. J. K. B. 270; 26 Digest 418, 1368. In that case the defendants were sued for damages for personal injuries to the plaintiff, who, passing along a pavement adjoining the defendant's premises, tripped over flaps to a cellar grating which had been negligently left open and fell into the cellar. The cellar grating was open to receive delivery of barrels of beer, which delivery being made by an independent contractor and not under the defendant's orders, it was held that the defendants were not liable to the plaintiff.

Note to
Section 144.

Liability for breach of agreement under the Tramways
Act, 1870.

A corporation are liable for damages caused by non-repair of a road which they have agreed to repair under s. 29 of the Tramways Act, 1870, ante, p. 4283 (Howitt v. Nottingham Tramways Co. (1883), 12 Q. B. D. 16; 43 Digest 345, 43). Some doubt was cast upon that decision by the Court of Appeal in Steward v. North Metropolitan Tramways Co. (1886), 16 Q. B. D. 556; 50 J. P. 324; 38 Digest 136, 998, but this was removed by Aldred v. West Metropolitan Tramways Co., [1891] 2 Q. B. 398; 55 J. P. 824; 43 Digest 345, 44, and Barnett v. Mayor, etc. of Poplar, [1901] 2 K. B. 319; 43 Digest 345, 45.

Indictments for non-repair of highways.

In R. v. Poole (Mayor, etc. of) (1887), 19 Q. B. D. 602; 52 J. P. 84; 26 Digest 376, 1015 (where the earlier cases were discussed), an indictment against a municipal corporation for non-repair of a highway alleged that the highway was in decay, and that the corporation "acting by the council as the sanitary authority for the urban district" ought to repair and amend the same, etc., but there was no allegation to show how the defendants were liable, nor did the indictment conclude "against the form of the statute." At the trial the judge intimated his willingness to make any amendment within his power, but no amendment was in fact made. After a verdict for the Crown, it was held:—(1) that the indictment was bad, and that the defendants were entitled to judgment non obstante veredicto; (2) that even assuming the necessary amendments to be made, the defendants were entitled to judgment, there being nothing in the P. H. A., 1875, ante, p. 4331, to make the urban authority liable to indictment for non-repair in the same sense as that in which the parish or persons liable ratione tenuræ were liable. In a subsequent case, however, it was held that an indictment would lie under the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 10, post, p. 4603, against an urban sanitary authority acting as the highway authority for non-repair of a highway, for the section in question provides a statutory mode of raising the question of the authority's liability to repair (R. v. Wakefield (Mayor, etc. of) (1888), 20 Q. B. D. 810; 52 J. P. 422; 26 Digest 385, 1140). In R. v. Morse, [1904] W. N. 114; 26 Digest 385, 1136, it was held that the procedure under s. 95 of the Highway Act, 1835 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 106), has not been impliedly repealed by the Highways and Locomotives (Amendment) Act, 1878, s. 10, and accordingly a rule nisi for a certiorari, asked for on the ground that the proper parties to be indicted were a rural district council, whose funds were liable to bear the expense of the repairs, was discharged. In R. v. Shipley Parish Council (1897), 61 J. P. 488; 13 T. L. R. 486; 26 Digest 376, 1016, an endeavour was unsuccessfully made to indict a parish council for non-repair of a highway.

For recent cases in which the indictment has been prepared against the inhabitants of a parish, see R. v. Ewell (Inhabitants) (1921), 85 J. P. N. 572; R. v. Bilericay (Inhabitants) (1939), Times, June 17th.

An appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from a conviction on indictment at common law for the non-repair of a highway and not to the Court of Criminal Appeal under the Criminal Appeal Act, 1907 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 725) (Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, s. 29 (4 Halsbury's Statutes 160)).

Trustees liable under a local Act to repair a road were held not liable to be indicted for manslaughter for the death of a person in consequence of an accident caused by the non-repair of the road (R. v. Pccock (1851), 17 Q. B. 34; 15 Digest 797, 8612).

The plaintiffs, a local board, had preferred an indictment against the defendants for interfering with a public road. At the trial of the indictment, an agreement for compromise was made between the solicitors, and sanctioned by the judge, and it was afterwards confirmed by a deed executed by the plaintiffs and defendants. By this deed the defendants covenanted to restore the road, which they had broken up, within seven years, and the plaintiffs covenanted that, when this had been done, they would consent to a verdict of "not guilty" on the indictment. The defendants having failed to restore the road, the plaintiffs sued them on their covenant, claiming specific performance and damages:—Held, that as the indictment was for a public injury, the agreement to consent to a verdict of "not guilty" was against public policy and illegal, and that the plaintiffs could not maintain an action on the defendants' covenant. The court maintained the view taken in Keir v. Leeman (1846), 9 Q. B. 371; 11 J. P. 38; 15 Digest 706, 7640; and refused to follow the dictum of JAMES, L.J., in Fisher & Co. v. Apollinaris Co. (1875), 10 Ch. App. 297, at p. 302; 39 J. P. 564; 15 Digest 706, 7641 (Windhill L. B. v. Vint (1890), 45 Ch. D. 351; 12 Digest 260, 2727).

Where a local authority acting as surveyors of highways occasion damage to any person, they are not liable to compensate him under s. 308, post, p. 4515. In Burgess v. Northwich L. B. (1880), 6 Q. B. D. 264; 45 J. P. 256; 26 Digest 335, 661, it appeared that a highway had subsided owing to brine-pumping operations, and the houses abutting on it had subsided also. The surface of the road remained continuous, so that traffic could still pass along it; but a hollow was formed, and the road at its new level was liable to be flooded so as to render traffic impossible. The defendants placed materials on the road, so as to raise the surface at the point of the lowest subsidence about four feet higher than at the commencement of the work. The plaintiffs raised their houses simultaneously and claimed compensation for the expense of so doing. It was stated as a fact in the case that, having regard to the obstruction by floods, the raising of the road was reasonably necessary to put the road into a proper state for traffic; but excluding the consideration of floods, the raising to the extent described was not necessary to put the road into a proper state. It was held that, as the highway was vested in the defendants (s. 149, post, p. 4375), no action of trespass could have been maintained by the plaintiffs, even if more materials had been placed on the road than a surveyor of highways could justify; that the plaintiffs had no right to have the road maintained at the level to which it accidentally and recently sank; that the works of the defendants were not done "in exercise of any of the powers" of the Act within s. 308, post, p. 4515, which mean powers created by the Act, and not merely powers transferred by s. 144 from the surveyor to the local board, but were done, if not entirely in pursuance of their duty as surveyors of highways, at all events in exercise of such powers as surveyors of highways have; and consequently that the plaintiffs were not entitled to compensation (cf. also Atherton v. Cheshire C. C., post, p. 4382). The decision in Burgess v. Northwich L. B. seems to follow a dictum of BRAMWELL, L.J., in Nutter v. Accrington L. B., post, p. 4383. In a later case a road had subsided, and was partially restored not long afterwards. The road having been again raised forty years later, BOWEN, L.J., held that the burden of proof was upon the local board to show that they had simply restored the road to its original level, and in the absence of evidence, held that they were acting under the powers given by the P. H. A., 1875, and were liable to make compensation accordingly (Pearsall v. Brierley Hill L. B. (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 735; 47 J. P. 628; affirmed (1884), 9 App. Cas. 595; 49 J. P. 84; 11 Digest 292, 2209), and see also Rochford v. Essex C. C. (1915), 85 L. J. Ch. 281; 14 L. G. R. 33; 26 Digest 407, 1288, where the highway authority were held liable for the damage to a fence caused by the additional earth pressure thereon as the result of raising the level of highway, and Howard-Flanders v. Maldon Corporation, post, p. 4383.

Note to Section 144.

No indictment for manslaughter by non-repair.

Compromise of indictments.

Liability for altering level of highway.

Note to
Section 144.

In Hoare v. Kingsbury U. D. C., [1912] 2 Ch. 452; 76 J. P. 401; 13 Digest 384, 1127, a building owner, on depositing plans for the erection of houses, entered into an agreement with the council whereby he agreed to throw a strip of land into an adjoining highway, and the council agreed to make up and adopt such strip. It was held that the agreement was one for the widening of a highway made by the council, not as the highway authority, but as an urban authority under s. 154 of this Act, post, p. 4425, and that consequently s. 174 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 698) (now repealed; see ante, p. 1125), applied to it.
